Miss Elmar Spear, seven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Spear, of Green county, Arkansas, is 41 inches high, weighs 180 pounds and has a bust measure of 46 inches. She can lift a man weighing 250 pounds and carry him across a room.

The body of a Viking, in a wonderful state of preservation has been dug up in a peat bog at Domendorf, in Schleswig, and, placed in the Kiel museum. The hair is red; it is clothed in coarse, woolen material, with sandals on the feet. Kiel experts think it was buried 1,500 years ago.

A syndicate has been formed at Ochsenfurt, Bavaria, to apply electricity in agriculture. A central station will furnish the current at a pressure of 5,000 volts to small stations on each farm for working thrashers, cutters and so on. The houses in the vicinity will also be lighted by it.

The sunflower crop is one of the best-paying in Russia. A good crop is worth, as it stands in the field, $25 an acre. The seeds are sold by the farmer for some $1 to $1.50 a pound, and at every street crossing in Russian provincial cities are stands and peddlers with baskets, selling to the passers-by the salted product of the big sunflower, which is eaten.

Beds are quite an innovation in Russia, and many well to do houses are still unprovided with them. Peasants sleep on the tops of their ovens; middle-class people and servants roll themselves up in sheepskins and lie down near stoves; soldiers rest upon wooden cots without bedding, and it is only within the last few years that students in schools have been allowed beds.

Sol Watson, a colored man, has kept a silver quarter in his mouth for a whole year. William Nagel bet him $20 that he could not do it, and the Negro won the bet. This is also the view of the colored women, many of whom have offered him their hands and hearts on acount of his performance.

The Japanese have a faculty for designing articles that are beautiful. They are not satisfied with simply placing flowers in finger bowls, but have cunningly prepared bits of wood, which, when placed in water, expand into oddly formed and queerly colored flowers. When the bowls are before the guests the bits of wood are put in them, and the diners are entertained by seeing them expand into buds and blossoms. The chrysanthemum, the Japanese national flower, is the favorite.

Gov.-elect John F. Hill, of Maine, is one of the wealthiest citizens of the Pine Tree state. He is but 40 years old, and by profession a physician. It has been many years since he practiced his profession, as he engaged in the publishing business at Augusta. His residence is on one of the high hills of Augusta, in the house that was for many years notable as the home of the late James G. Blaine. His wife is the daughter of Norman L. Coleman, of St. Louis, who was once commissioner of agriculture.

Game of all kinds is getting scarcer every year, and so the young pigeon has come in favor. The raising of squabs for the market is a new, but growing business for boys who live in villages or on farms near the large cities. Strictly speaking a pigeon is a "squab" as long as it sits in the nest, and as soon as it can utter querulous cries for food it becomes a "squeeler." But for market purposes it is a squab up to about three quarters of a pound dressed. One dozen squabs should bring $3 a dozen.

BRYAN ON TRUSTS

Democratic Nominee Attacks the Ruinous Reign of Monopoly.

Republicans Responsible for the Constantly Increasing Number of Trusts.

Business Gravitating Toward the Offices of the Big Corporations.

Farmers Feeling the Effect of Growing Combines in the Decline of Prices.

In a lengthy address at St. Louis, Saturday night, September 15, William J. Bryan made a vigorous and convincing onslaught on the trusts and the trust-fostering tendencies of the republican party, saying:

"The lament of David over Absalom is one of the most pathetic passages of the Old Testament. The fact that the son was in rebellion against the father's God, and authority did not shake the father's affection, and the anxious query: 'Is the young man, Absalom, safe?' lingers in the memory of all who study the life of the great Hebrew king. And yet, the interest which David felt in his son, Absalom, has its parallel in the more than 10,000,000 families which make up the American people.

"No language can describe a mother's love or overstate the abiding interest which the father feels in the welfare of his child. From the time when the mother's life hangs in the balance at the boy's birth until the death of the parent, there is scarcely a waking hour when the son is not present in their thoughts and plans. As to this parental affection, it is universally recognized, that I desire to appeal on this occasion.

Appeal to Parental Devotion.

"I would call the attention of every father and mother to present political and industrial conditions. I would ask them to analyze these conditions, to consider their causes and their tendencies. I would press upon them this question: 'Is the young man, Absalom, safe?' I would not deal with the possibilities and the probabilities which now open before your son?

"Is he safe when foreign or domestic financiers are allowed to determine the monetary system under which he lives?

"Is he safe when national banks control the volume of money with which he does business?

"Is he safe when the bond holding class determines the size of the national debt upon which he must pay taxes?

"Is he safe when by means of taxes laid almost entirely upon consumption he is compelled to contribute according to his want rather than according to his possession?

"Is he safe when corporate interests influence as they do to-day the selection of those who are to represent him in the Senate of the United States?

"If he is a wage-earner, and you do not know how soon he may be, is he safe even now, is he safe when he is liable to be deprived of his job through the system known as government by injunction?

"Is he safe, if a laboring man, when he is denied the protection of arbitration and compelled to submit to such hours and terms as a corporate employer may propose?

The Reign of Monopoly.

"But, I desire to call special attention to the growth of the trusts, and to ask you whether your son is safe under the reign of private monopoly? If you cannot leave him a fortune, you desire to leave him somemors valuable than money, viz: the freedom to employ his own brain and his own hands for the support and comfort of his own welfare. When there is industrial independence, each citizen is stimulated to earnest endeavor by the hope of being able to profit by his own genius, his own energy, his own industry and his own virtue. But when the republican monopoly policy of development each branch of industry will be controlled by one man, and the fruits of monopoly, the dictatorial right of rule, will be kept within the possession of a few individuals. In this condition of affairs the real producers of wealth will be condemned to perpetual clerkship or servitude. When private monopoly reaches its full development, your son will buy the finished product at the price which monopoly fixes, and sell his labor at the price which monopoly fixes; and, if he works for wages, he will work for such compensation and upon such conditions as monopoly may determine.

"Charles R. Flint, of the Rubber Goods Manufacturing company, in a speech delivered in Boston on the 25th of May, 1899, outlined the trust programme with great frankness. In speaking of the advantages to be derived from the trust system he said:

Outline of Trust Programme.

"'Raw material bought in large quantities is secured at lower prices.' When, for instance, one man buys all the wool, the price of wool will be lowered and all who produce wool will sell at the price fixed by the trust. A large proportion of our people are engaged in the production of various kinds of raw material, and they are thus placed at the mercy of the combinations.

"The second advantage is that 'those plants will be equipped and managed to advantageously situated are run continuously and in perference to those less favored.' This means that the plants which are closed in the smaller towns and business concentrated in the large centers.—It means, also, that where very large plants are on hand, part of the factories can be closed, and the burden of maintaining prices thrown upon the wage workers. Those are already scattered throughout the land life plants which stand as monuments to the evils of the trust system.

"The next advantage mentioned is that 'in case of local strife and trouble, the work goes on elsewhere, thus preventing serious loss.'

"This means that a monopoly can absolutely control its workingmen, for if a strike occurs in a factory in one state, the factory can be closed down indefinitely while the employees are starved into submission, and, as the trust can do the work in some other factory without serious loss, it is quite independent of the employes, and can absolutely prescribe the terms and conditions upon which they shall live. The more complete the monopoly the more opposed the managers will be to arbitration, because, in case of any contest between the trust and its employes, the trust will have every advantage and the employes will be perfectly powerless.

Here Mr. Bryan speaks of the effects of trusts upon the commercial travelers of the country, showing how their services will be dispensed with. He also quotes from the "Investment Guide" the names of 23 large corporations which he terms as trusts formed under McKinley.

No Hope from Republicans.

"During the present administration no honest effort has been made to protect the people from these monopolies. The republican party controls the executive and the legislative departments of federal government. It can enforce the law which now exist; it can propose and support new laws, but it does neither. No persons can watch the conduct of the republican party and read the speeches of republican leaders, and still believe the republican party sincere in its declarations against the trusts.

"The republican platform on this question and the president's letter of acceptance, taken in connection with the party's record, prove conclusively that no relief can be hoped for from that party. Instead of pointing out the evils of trusts the republican leaders spend their time in exulting over present conditions. The trust is a part of present conditions, and Mr. Flint, from which I have already quoted, declared that the formation of large corporations was one of the important features of what he described as the present business activity. If republican leaders really regarded private monopoly as an evil; if they really intended to apply an effective remedy, they would not hesitate to denounce trusts and suggest means for their extermination, but they express far more solicitude for the corporation than for the people at large. One is reminded of the picture which a mother once showed to her little son, illustrating his youthful mind the sufferings of the Christian martyrs, who were being thrown into the arena and torn to pieces by the lions. The boy looked at the picture for a moment, and then his face brightened up as he thought he caught the idea. Pointing down into one point of the picture, he said: 'Why, mamma, there is one poor little lion that isn't getting a bit.' It is even so with the republican leaders. Their sympathy goes out freely to any corporation, which in their opinion is not getting its share, but the masses are not moved by the hardships imposed by monopolies upon all who are outsids of the charmed circle. Three sessions of congress have convened and adjourned since the president's inauguration, and yet he has never recommended a specific measure looking toward the overthrow of monopolies.

Paper Money Trust.

"At the opening of the last session of congress the republican party, expressed through the house and senate a bill creating a paper money trust, and surrendered into the hands of the national banks complete control of the national currency. Just as congress was adjourning a partial and hypocritical attempt was made to deceive the public by the introduction of an anti-trust amendment, and an anti-trust bill. The amendment was not necessary and was intended to deprive the states of the power which they now possess, rather than to confer upon congress new authority. This amendment was defeated in the house by the democrats. The republican leaders then confessed the amendment unnecessary by introducing an anti-trust bill, which was supported by the democrats, but which died in the senate, just as it was expected to die. The republican majority in the senate referred the bill to the judiciary committee against the protest of the democrats, who urged its immediate passage. The republican party has made no contributions from the rostrum during the campaign, and pays back its obligations by leaving the people at the mercy of the trusts between campaigns.

"Let us note briefly the effect of the trusts upon various classes. Reference has already been made to commercial travelers, the hotel keeper, the railroad, the livery man and the newspaper.

The Effect on Trusts.

"The lawyers are finding that with the growth of trusts the business is gravitating toward the offices of the big corporation attorneys, while less successful practitioners are becoming law clerks.

"The actors suffer from the theatrical trusts.

"The small manufacturer is constantly menaced by the trusts.

"He does not know at what moment some large corporation will attempt to monopolize the business in which he is engaged, and give him his choice between bankruptcy and participation in an industrial conspiracy against the public welfare. Many have been driven into the trust organization by the larger corporations and forced to sell the same business, or by trusts formed to control iron, steel, tin plate, or some other product as a basis for further manufacture. In what business can you safely invest a small amount of capital to-day? Is not the man who owns independent business he will find it difficult, if not impossible, to compete with a large organization if it attempts to establish itself in his territory, because it can sustain itself by collecting high prices in other parts of the country. If he suppresses all trust objections and takes stock in a monopoly, he does not know how soon the trust managers may attempt to 'freeze out' the smaller stockholders.

"The merchant is losing his independence. The trust fixes the terms upon which he shall sell, and often binds him by contract not to sell a competitor's goods. When the monopoly is complete credit will be shortened, and the merchant will be compelled to bear all the risks of trade. When the trust raises prices, the merchant usually has to divide the gain with his consumers, so far as stock on hand is concerned, but when the trust overstocks the market and then lets the price fall, the merchant must bear the loss on accumulated stock. When, for instance, the American Steel and Wire company closed several of its factories a few months ago and threw some 5,000 employes out of work, it increased the price of nails and barbed wire in order to work off a surplus stock which had accumulated because the high prices had lessened the demand. Every merchant lost money on the nails and wire on hand.

"There is already a reduction in many lines. The supply of common chairs is now considerably in excess of the demand, but lest the consumer may not be able to explain this upon the theory that the people are too busy to sit down, I may add that there is also danger in the near future. The Iron Age in a recent issue pointed out that the production of iron was falling off, the decrease then amounting to more than 50,000 tons per month. Dun's report of July 1st stated that the iron mills were running at less than half their capacity, and even recently the cotton manufacturers have been threatening either to reduce wages or shut down temporarily. According to Dun's report, the business failures have been greater during the present year than in 1900 than they were during the same months of last year, and this occurs in the midst of good crops, and when two wars are in progress.

Trusts and Arbitrary Fluctuations.

"The contractor can figure with some accuracy so long as materials can command, but he cannot protect himself against the arbitrary fluctuations, which are not only possible but probable, if the monopoly controls the market.

"The farmer is one of the most important factors in our national life. Some one has said to him: 'The hand that guides the plow also feeds the world.' He is not a stockholder in any of the trusts, but he feels the extortion practiced by them all. I am not farming on a large scale, but the misleading reports which have been circulated concerning my out crop justify me in quoting reference to my own experience. The New York Tribune recently printed a dispatch from Nebraska, to the effect that I had just sold 4,800 bushels of oats at 30 cents per bushel (supposed to be the yield of 120 farms), and that the price received for the oats was more than double the price paid for the land. The Tribune article then proceeded to call attention to the poverty of the farmer, using my experience as an illustration, and asserted that the farmers of Nebraska were becoming so opulent that they were joining the republican party. The facts are, first: That I had five acres of oats instead of 120 acres of farm. That the oats have not yet been threshed, so that the yield is not known. That oats are selling for less than 22 cents in Chicago, instead of 30 cents in Nebraska, and fourth: That the land upon which the oats were raised cost me over $100 an acre instead of $5. If, when threshed, my oats yield 40 bushels to the acre, and I can thresh in Nebraska for 20 cents per bushel, the total income from the five acres will be $40, or less than eight per cent on the investment. After taking out the cost of plowing, sowing, harvesting and threshing, the net income from that five acre tract will not exceed four per cent, on the money invested. I do not need to go to Nebraska for my own experience, but I mention the facts in this case to show how the republican papers exaggerate the farmer prosperity, and credit a republican administration with good crops, making no allowance for the crop failures which occur from time to time.

Decline of Farm Products.

"But while on the oat question let me call attention to the statistics given in the Investment Guide already referred to. According to Henry Clews & Co., the average prices received by farmers for oats, during the seven years beginning with 1893, and ending with 1899, were as follows: 1893, 32.5; 1894, 25.7; 1895, 20.3; 1896, 21.5; 1897, 26.3; 1898, 28.7; 1899, 30.3, making an average of about 30.6 during the four years of Mr. Cleveland's administration, and 25.1 during the three years of Mr. McKinley's administration—the fourth year is not yet complete, but corn is at this time above the average.

"Wheat, according to the same authority, brought to the farmers the following prices: 1893, 58.8; 1894, 49.1; 1895, 50.9; 1896, 77.6; 1897, 80.3; 1898, 68.2; 1899, 64.4, showing a higher average during the last three years than during the four preceding—the fourth year is not complete, but wheat is now above the average.

"According to the same authority cotton planters received the following prices: 1893, 8.09; 1894, 4.6; 1895, 7.19; 1896, 6.18; 1897, 5.9; 1898, 4.75; 1899, 7.5, showing a higher average during the four years of Mr. Cleveland's administration than during the three years of Mr. McKinley's administration—the fourth year is not yet complete, but cotton is now above the average price.

Advance in Merchandise.

"When, however, the farmer attempts to use his income for the purchase of the necessaries of life he finds that the trusts have raised prices. He must pay more for lumber, nails, wire, harness, hardware, stoves and agricultural implements. More also for clothing, furniture, etc., and in addition to these drains upon his income he must meet an increase in federal taxes.

"Let the parent calculate how long it will take a farmer to become independent under present conditions; let him contrast the lot of the farmer with the lot of the man who profits by governmental favoritism and grows rich by the exploitation of his countrymen through the instrumentality of monopoly, and then let him answer the question: 'Is the young man, Absalom, safe?' Has the farmer's former friendliness manifested a reason for giving support to the republican party?

"And so the farmer in point of numbers and importance come the wage earners. What is the trust doing to increase the wages, shorten the hours, improve the condition, or protect the rights of the laboring man? Is the present policy an inviting one? Is he receiving a fair share of the proceeds of his toil? And, if not, why not? Republicans assert that the working man has a full dinner pail. I ask, in the first place, whether a full dinner pail is the height of the ambition of man needs? It is an insult to the wage earner to say that his thoughts are entirely centered upon his stomach. When Republican editors and speakers assume that the laboring man has all stomach. They act upon the theory that he complains only when he is hungry, and is happy when his hunger is appeased.

The Full Dinner Pail.

"If a full dinner pail were the only thing desired, and if every laboring man had plenty to eat, it would still be necessary for the laboring man to look to see some connection between republican policies and the laboring man's food supply. If bountiful crops are to the farmer he does not thank a republican administration. If a short crop raises the price of farm products here the farmer does not thank the republican party for bringing the farmer more money. Even the unpromised increase in the gold supply gives any respite from financial stringency, can the republican party claim credit? The question is not whether the laboring man is able to exist under present conditions, but whether he is enjoying his share of the blessings of the country and the progress of the government. Compare the laboring man with the trust magnate, and see which fares the better at the hands of the republican party. Inquire also whether the laboring man's income has increased as rapidly as the trust dividends.

"But even if every laboring man was prosperous, and even if that prosperity could be traced to republican policies, still the laboring man is a citizen, and must look to political questions from the citizen's standpoint. He cannot afford to barter away future security; he cannot afford to sacrifice his rights because his independence is being destroyed. Neither can he be enticed into an imperialistic path, no more than well the trap may be baited with food.

"During the last campaign laboring men were threatened with the loss of employers who desired to coerce them into the support of the republican ticket. Many of these men were put to return to work unless the republicans were successful at the polls. After the election some of these employers closed their shops and others reduced wages. It address issued by the Tillinghast Lumber & Development company in the republic. The such an army? Possibly the prospectus company will have no difficulty in securing ing official statement Sunday:

The rate for boiling is $4.75 per ton, based upon a one-cent card rate, with the same basis running up to one and two-tenths for the card rate, or $1.20. But the price for boiling for September and October shall be $5 per ton, based upon a card rate of one and four-tenths cents.

Muck rolling shall be one-seventh of the price paid for boiling.

Busheling on sand bottom shall be $2.09 on a one-cent card rate, with the same base running up to one and two-tenths, card rate.

The following scale was fixed for the finishing mills:

Among the mills ordered started are those of the American Steel Hoop Co. at Girard, Youngstown, Warren, Pomeroy and Greenville, and of the Republic Iron and Steel Co. at Youngstown, Terre Haute, Birmingham, Muncie, Franklin, Marion, Moline, New Albany, Minneapolis, Covington, Ky., Brazil, Ind., Springfield, Ill., and Alexandria, Ind.

AN INSANE NEGRO GIANT.

He Attempted to Kill His Roommate and Two Officers, and is Himself Beaten to Death.

New Orleans, Sept. 24.—Edward Gurley, an insane Negro giant, was killed Sunday morning in Algiers, after a thrilling hour. He woke up his black roommate and cut his throat, saying he was going to die and wanted to take his roommate along. Gurley was pursued by Corp. Coman and the police, but he took the officers' clubs away from them and made a furious onslaught, nearly killing the corporal. The police fired but missed. With the aid of other men they finally beat the Negro with clubs and other weapons until he was pounded to death. His Negro victim and Corp. Coman will recover.

AGREEMENT REACHED.

Iron Mills Throughout the Middle States to Start Up.

Committees of Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers and Manufacturers Sign Scale.

Cincinnati, Sept. 24.—At 6:30 o'clock Sunday morning the conference committees of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel workers and of the manufacturers signed the wage scale that will be effective until July 1, 1901.

It is what is known as the yearly scale, which begins always with July. Owing to the unusual fluctuations of the market the new scale had not been signed when the mills shut down June 30 and the conditions have been unfavorable ever since June, so that the mills have been idle for almost three months. As soon as the scale was signed Sunday morning messages were sent in every direction before the conferees breakfasted ordering the fires built at once. Some mills will start Monday morning and others as soon as possible. This decision means employment to over 60,000 workingmen who have been idle since June, awaiting the adjustment of their wage scale. Meantime the wage conference committee of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel workers has had five different conferences with the manufacturers.

They have been in conference since Wednesday and determined Saturday night to sit till they got together or agreed to disagree. While neither side got what they wanted, yet both sides felt relieved when the scale was signed after an all night session and most of the conferees left without sleep so as to be at the mills Monday morning. President Shaffer, Secretary Williams and others remained to arrange some details with Commissioner Nutt and they retired about 8 o'clock Sunday morning, but the others did their sleeping on the trains en route home for the general resumption Monday. The reasons for the delay in adjusting the wage scale as well as for the frequent prolonged conferences are due to the slump in the market and the fluctuations during the past year from the highest to the lowest prices. The workers wanted $5 per ton based on a one and four-tenths card rate. The manufacturers offered $4.50 per ton on a one cent card rate for boiling and the differences were in about the same proportion in other lines.

President Shaffer and Commissioner Nutt jointly gave out the following official statement Sunday:

The rate for boiling is $4.75 per ton, based upon a one-cent card rate, with the same basis running up to one and two-tenths for the card rate, or $1.20. But the price for boiling for September and October shall be $5 per ton, based upon a card rate of one and four-tenths cents.

Muck rolling shall be one-seventh of the price paid for boiling.

Busheling on sand bottom shall be $2.09 on a one-cent card rate, with the same base running up to one and two-tenths, card rate.

The following scale was fixed for the finishing mills:

On bar mills the price to be paid is the same as last year, with a card rate of one and four-tenths cents, graded down to a one-cent card.

On guide (ten-inch and hoop mills) the base and rates apply as they do on the bar and the twelve-inch mills.

Among the mills ordered started are those of the American Steel Hoop Co. at Girard, Youngstown, Warren, Pomeroy and Greenville, and of the Republic Iron and Steel Co. at Youngstown, Terre Haute, Birmingham, Muncie, Franklin, Marion, Moline, New Albany, Minneapolis, Covington, Ky., Brazil, Ind., Springfield, Ill., and Alexandria, Ind.

STATE ODDS AND ENDS.

HOUSE ELECTION BILL.

Provides Two State Commissioners, One Democrat and One Republican, Appointed By Governor.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 18.—Senator Harbeson, of Covington, on Monday introduced a bill providing that all the county officers, including the circuit judge and commonwealth attorney, the mayor, city clerk, attorney and treasurer in counties where there is a city of the second class, shall be nominated by primary election. County clerks are enjoined from placing on the ballots the names of candidates for these offices nominated by other means than primary elections.

Aldermen, councilmen and school trustees are not named among the officers to be so nominated. The bill, if passed, will apply to Covington, Newport and Lexington.

Senator Aiken, of Lexington, also introduced a bill in the senate allowing challengers and inspectors to represent all candidates in primary elections.

The house met with less than a quorum. Watkins, of Daviess county, offered a resolution providing for publishing the names of absentees daily, but adjournment took place before a vote on it.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 19.—The senate Wednesday will pass the senate election bill. It will probably pass unanimously. It provides for a nonpartisan state and county board, and neither is to have judicial powers. Though the house bill which will be reported in that body is recommended by a majority of the committee on elections, there is a tip that the house leaders will give in and that in the next few days the senate bill will become a law. The house bill will recommend a state commission composed of one democrat, one republican and the clerk of the court of appeals to act as referee, but confers judicial powers on the state board.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 20.—The house election bill was reported on Wednesday. It provides for two state commissioners, one a democrat and one a republican, to be appointed by the governor on recommendation of the executive committees of the leading political parties. The clerk of the court of appeals shall act as referee. County boards are also to be bipartisan, and the sheriff acts as referee. State boards may hear contests, but an appeal to the courts is provided for.

Among the minor changes made by the Bosley bill is a provision for opening the polls at 6 in the morning and closing at 6 in the evening. It also provides for the removal of the square under the political devices and supplants it with a circle. The senate Wednesday appointed a special committee to consider bills introduced by Senators Harbeson and Allen, relating to primaries.

In the house Baird (dem.), of Barren, offered a resolution providing that if no election bill is passed by October 2 the legislature adjourn sine die on that day. The motion lies over.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 21.—A majority of the members of the senate committee on suffrages and elections Thursday morning reported their bill and it was read and ordered printed. The minorities in the senate and house committees reported to their respective bodies minority bills which differ mainly in that they do not agree with the majority in the advisability of clothing the election boards with judicial powers. The senate passed a bill so amending the primary election law as to permit all candidates, up to five, to have inspectors and challengers.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 22.—Both houses of the legislature adjourned Friday until Monday. In the senate Friday the special committee favorably reported the Harbeson bill, with amendments. It now provides that all the principal county officers in Kentucky shall be nominated by a primary election when 20 per cent. of the voters sign a petition for such primary.

THE DEFENSE RESTS.

The Jim Howard Case Will Likely Be in the Hands of the Jury By Next Tuesday.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 19.—The prosecution concluded its direct testimony in the case of James Howard on Tuesday afternoon. None of the evidence Tuesday was sensational, and most of it had previously come out in the trials of Powers and others.

Ben Rake, a stable boy, corroborated Bowman Gaines as to seeing Howard run out from the rear of the state house grounds shortly after the shooting.

W. H. Culton, one of the alleged co-conspirators, went over his former testimony, which indirectly affected Howard. He claimed that Howard exhibited cartridges to him and also pointed significantly to a broken paling of the fence. Culton says he asked Howard what he meant by this, and the latter told him to "not ask so many ——— fool questions."

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 20.—The defense in the Howard trial began to present its case Wednesday. Nearly 40 witnesses have been called. Attachments for George Thompson, Laurel county, and John L. Isaacs, Owsley county, wanted by the defense as witnesses, were issued. A large crowd was present to hear Howard testify in his own behalf.

He said he first visited Frankfort in 1889, the next time in January of this year, and came here to secure a pardon. He said when he left Manchester he was clean shaven. On reaching here he went to the Board of Trade hotel, stayed in the hotel a few minutes, then started to the state house. He said he met a stranger named Robbins, and had a conversation, and, after a short talk, returned to the hotel, because it was cold. He was sitting at the fire when the message that Goebel had been shot came. Soon after he saw Goebel's body carried by.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 21.—When court convened Thursday morning James Howard again took the stand. He was cross-examined by Attorney Campbell. He again denied having made statements to Jailer Lackey, Madison, and to Culton, regarding the killing of Goebel. Attorney Owens objected to Tom Campbell's question as to whether the witness gave Mr. Mosby, Clay county's representative, the impression in a conversation that he had killed Goebel, and moved the jury's discharge and that the case be continued. The court overruled the motion, but sustained the objection.

The witness denied having shown a man named Russell, in London, smokeless cartridges. A long discussion regarding the sum of money Howard had when he returned to Manchester after the shooting followed. Attorney Campbell then investigated regarding Howard's movements in Frankfort. He told of meeting Judge Tinsley in London courthouse, and denied that the judge said "I want to congratulate you for what you did in Frankfort."

In response to Owens' questions Howard denied having received anything for coming to Frankfort at the time of the Goebel murder.

Did Jim Howard have a mustache on January 30? On that question in a great measure depends his liberty, perhaps his life. The witnesses for the defense, including the defendant himself, all state that on January 29, and days before, his face was clean shaven.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 22.—The defense rested its testimony in the case of James Howard at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. Several witnesses for the prosecution were heard in rebuttal during the afternoon, and the rebuttal will probably be concluded by noon Saturday. Argument, however, will not begin till Monday morning, and the case will likely reach the jury some time Tuesday. Several witnesses were introduced by the defense Friday afternoon attacking the character of James Stubblefield, the Clay county ex-deputy sheriff, who testified that Howard confided to him that he fired the shot that killed Goebel. Others of Stubblefield's neighbors testified for the prosecution in rebuttal on this point, and pronounced him a man of good reputation in the vicinity where he lives.

Judge J. L. Elliston and County Clerk Miller, of Kenton county, testified Friday afternoon to seeing Jim Howard on the night of January 30. Judge Elliston was in the Board of Trade hotel, where Howard claims to have been at the time of the shooting, and he swore that no one was in the hotel office, and did not see Howard on the way to the state capitol.

Representatives on both sides in the Howard case admit that a good deal of bad blood is being engendered between the mountain friends and enemies of Howard.

The Hessian Fly.

To this insect, either directly or indirectly, is doubtless due the almost total failure of the wheat crop in Indiana the present year. The freezing and thawing weather during the winter, owing to the absence of snow much of the time, doubtless had much to do with it; but the wheat plants had lost much of their vitality during the fall, owing to the ravages of the fly, and were thus rendered much more susceptible to the influence of the winter.

Although this insect has been known in this country for more than a hundred years, its habits are not well understood by the majority of farmers.

The adult fly somewhat resembles a very small musquito, being about one eighth of an inch in length; the female is more robust than the male, especially when full of eggs.

Soon after the adult fly comes forth the female deposits her eggs on the upper side of the leaf. The eggs soon hatch and the young larvæ work their way down beneath the sheath to near its base, which during autumn is just above the roots. Here they remain, absorbing the juice of the stem, until full grown, when they assume the "flaxseed" state, in which they pass the winter. During April and May the main portion of the spring brood comes forth and the same process is repeated, the "flaxseed" state being reached just before harvest.

The main question at issue is how to effectually prevent its ravages. There are various means suggested, all of which possess some merit, but none of which will prove entirely successful when practiced in the usual haphazard manner. There must be unity of effort all along the line in whatever is undertaken.

Probably the most effective measures to be recommended are (1) sowing at the proper time; (2) sowing decoy strip; (3) thorough preparation and fertilization of the land, so as to provide the most favorable conditions for strong and rapid growth.

The active period of the fall brood in the northern counties extends approximately from the last of August to about the last of September, gradually getting later as they go south, so that in the southern portion they will be found at work probably as late as the middle of October. It is evident, then, that in order to avoid the fall brood of the fly the proper time to sow wheat in the northern counties is between Sept. 20 and 30, and in the southern counties from the first to the middle of October. The station will not sow earlier than the first week in October this year, as the flies were active throughout September in 1898. Decoy strips should be sown in the north the last week in August, and in the south the first days of September, plowing these under deeply before sowing the main crop.

This places the time for sowing somewhat later than has been the usual custom, but by having the land in [illegible] condition the chances for [illegible] will be much greater than [illegible] sowing the [illegible] method of [illegible] for the fly [illegible] of the [illegible] was [illegible] on [illegible]

Emma Robinson, aged 21 years, of Boyd county, and postmaster at Nonchalanta, committed suicide by taking a dose of strychnine. Medical aid was summoned, but she died before the physician could reach her. She was in robust health and was the mainstay of her aged parents. The only known reason for the deed is the fact that her parents were much opposed to her marrying a young man to whom she was engaged. She said before her death that she would cause no worry for them.

The First National Convention.

What may be called the first national convention was not held by either of the great parties. It was conducted by what was known as the Anti-Masonic party and was held in Baltimore in September, 1831. Delegates attended from every state (not chosen, however, on a basis of electoral strength), a president and vice president were nominated, and a platform was adopted. The Democrats held their first national convention in Baltimore in May, 1832, 313 delegates being present. As this year, the only contest was over the vice-presidency, General Harrison having a walkover for first place. His opponents convened in Washington and named Henry Clay, seventeen out of twenty-four states being represented. Since then nominating conventions have been the rule.—New York Sun.

William R. Merriam, Director of the Census, predicts that the census of 1900 will show the population of the United States to be about 76,000,000. This is not an official forecast, but is the opinion of Mr. Merriam. The 52,700 districts in the United States started at an average of about 1,500, and have gone down to 1,422. At present the average is rising again. The farming communities are showing a considerable rise in population. Over 47,500,000 people have been counted and the count is proceeding at the rate of 1,000,000 a day.

An effort is being made by the attorneys in the case to secure a bond for the release of Milton Kendall from custody in the Nicholasville jail. Kendall was tried at Nicholasville on the charge of being implicated in the murder of Eugene Cassell and was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary. His attorneys at once made an appeal for a new trial and were successful. The case will be brought up the fourth week in October.—Georgetown News.

OUR GLORIOUS COUNTRY.

Have you watched its marvelous growth? If not, The Weekly Enquirer wants to study the strides it has made. The first census of the United States was taken in 1810. Since then every succeeding ten years. The result has been as follows:

Year.	Population.	Year.	Population.
1810	7,239,881	1860	31,443,321
1820	8,633,822	1870	38,558,371
1830	12,866,020	1880	50,155,783
1840	17,069,453	1890	62,622,250
1850	23,191,876

Here you have the figures of a basis of calculation. The problem now is: What will be the population of the United States, excluding recent acquisitions. The result is usually announced in July of the census year.

THE WEEKLY ENQUIRER is anxious to engage all in a study of their country. To this end it will distribute cash amounting to $25,000, for solutions received of the population of the United States Census, as follows:

To the first nearest correct guess received	$3,000.00
To the second	1,500.00
To the third	750.00
To the fourth	500.00
To the fifth	250.00
To the sixth	200.00
To the seventh	150.00
To the next 10, each $100, amounting to	1,000.00
To the next 50, each $50, amounting to	2,500.00
To the next 100, each $25, amounting to	2,500.00
To the next 500, each $10, amounting to	5,000.00
To the next 1,530, each $5, amounting to	7,650.00
2197 cash presents amounting to	$25,000.00

In case of a tie, money equally divided.

Every guess on the above proposition must be accompanied by a year's subscription to the WEEKLY ENQUIRER.

You can guess as often as you care to inclose subscription price to the WEEKLY ENQUIRER.

This contest will close a month before the result of the census will be known and officially certified by the Director of the United States Census at Washington, D. C.

Subscription price for the WEEKLY ENQUIRER (including guess) is only $1.00 a year. Eleven copies and eleven guesses for $10.00. For full particulars see WEEKLY ENQUIRER.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXV. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1900. NO. 50

THE Republicans evened up for the Colorado incident by breaking up a Democratic meeting in St. Louis, last Friday night.

IT is said that there is no doubt but what Illinois is in line for the Democrats, and will give the national ticket a handsome majority this fall.

THE Presidential campaign does not appear to be warming up like it did in 1896. By this time that year everything was hot and still heating.

IT seems now that Senator Caffery, nominated by the National party for President, refused the honor because he was not quite certain whether he wanted to vote for Bryan or McKinley.

IT might be a good idea for Democrats to read Senator Beveridge's recent speech in favor of violating our deliberate pledge to Cuba and see how far the United States is likely to travel from its old moorings under the guidance of such as he.

MR. RHINOCK'S race for the Democratic Congressionl nomination demonstrates that he is very much in politics in this district, and that his election to Congress some time in the future is a political event that is likely to eventuate.

MR. RHINOCK'S card in another column shows that he holds party success above personal triumph, and, although beaten by only a few votes, does not desire to create any trouble in the ranks. Col. Berry is also acting the part of a good Democrat.

GOV. ROOSEVELT, Republican candidate for Vice-President, struck a crowd of roughs, at Victor, Colorado, one day last week, and such treatment as was accorded Roosevelt indicates a very low opinion, on the part of participants, as to what privileges a man is entitled under the laws of the country. Such behavior as that at Victor, makes no votes against the man subjected to the indignities.

A STUDY of the vote cast at the primary election shows that a very considerable portion of the vote that would have been cast for Judge Westover followed him into the Rhinock camp. The vote cast in Grant county shows that had Judge Westover remained on the track he would have polled a vote at home that would have surprised those who were constantly giving it out that he had a fight on his hands at home.

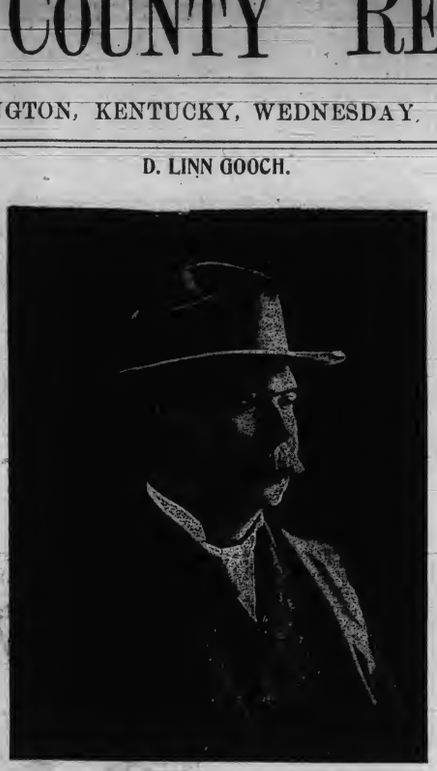
SOME of those in Covington, who supported John Young Brown, for Governor, last fall, were figuring on the Republicans nominating one of their number for Congress by the convention that meets in Carrollton to-day, but the Republican leaders gave them to understand that they can furnish their own material. So they had to take a back seat, and will not run the Republican party in this district for a while at least.

THE following from the Rising Sun Recorder shows that that staunch Republican sheet is not in accord with the party's boss, Mark Hanna, who says there are no trusts:

"Coal has advanced to 14 cents per bushel in Rising Sun. This is an advance of five cents per bushel—from 9 to 15 cents—since the Ohio river coal trust was formed to rob consumers. There trusts are robbing the people on every hand; and yet they permit themselves to be blinded by their party leaders, and vote for and uphold them in doing nothing to give the consumer relief.

We reiterate the assertion that trusts are the greatest question before the American people today. And every man in Rising Sun who is paying the millionaire coal combination five cents on every bushel of coal they use, ought to be able to see and appreciate the situation, and demand in thunder tones that relief be given them by the legislation that will squelch the trusts. The five cents a bushel on coal that consumers are compelled to pay the coal barons furnishes millions to buy up Congress and State Legislatures and thereby prevent any legislation, State or National, that would stop the robbing of the people by the multi-millionaire corporations.

[Warsaw Independent.]



Last Friday afternoon, a most shocking tragedy occurred on John Conner's farm below town in which John Conner and Martin Devereux lost their lives. John Sisson rented a part of Mr. Connor's farm last spring, and with his family resided on the part known as the Dick Weldon place. Connor and Sisson did not get along very well, and were before the county court for using abusive language toward each other. This created a bad feeling between the men. Martin Devereux resided with his uncle John Connor, and Friday at noontime Sisson was playing with his children in the barn, dancing, and called out "balance all." Devereux, who was on a hillside near by, thought he was calling at him and told him to go to hell. Sisson remarked he was not talking to him, and the matter dropped. Later, about 4 o'clock Sission and his son Lemuel were working in a tobacco patch on the hillside when Connor and his little son, and Devereux came along on their way to the pasture lot. Devereux began quarreling with John Sisson, who told him to go on as he did not want any trouble with him, and when Devereux called him a bad name Sisson's son Lemuel wanted to go down the hill after Devereux but his father restrained him. After Connor and Devereux had passed beyond the barn, presumably to the pasture, Sisson started to the barn to hang some tobacco, accompanied by his son Lemuel, and on reaching the barn found Connor and Devereux there. The quarrel was at once renewed, bad language being exchanged, when Devereux drew a knife and started toward John Sisson, who pulled a .32 calibre pistol from his pocket and shot him twice as he advanced toward him. They grappled each other, Devereux cutting Sisson on the hand with the knife and scraping his ear. Conner had knocked Lem Sisson down and was advancing toward John Sisson with a club to help Devereux, when Lem Sisson jumped up and ran to where his father had dropped his pistol in the struggle, and picking it up, shot John Connor twice, who fell in the throes of death. John Sisson had thrown Devereux down by this time who was also expiring from his wounds. Several neighbors hurried to the scene; Mrs. Connor, Lonnie Sturgeon, Martin Mylor, and others, but the wounded men were beyond help. Monday John Sisson surrendered to the authorities having been at Joseph Lord's on Craigs Creek, where Lemuel Sission was also found. Both were put in jail and on Tuesday an examining trial was begun before County Judge J. S. Brown, the Commonwealth being represented by Robert Wood and the defense by R. B. Brown. After the testimony for the prosecution had been heard Judge Brown was asked to name the bail without hearing the testimony for the defense, and placed it at $750 each. John Sisson executed bond Thursday and was released but his son Lemuel is still in jail no one having gone on his bond, though he says it will be executed. John Sisson is about 55 years old.

AMONG the several names spoken of as suitable persons for the Republican nomination for Congress from this district, it is surprising that the name of Hon. Goodloe Carter Graddy has never appeared. Mr. Graddy is a man of ability, excellent address, a ready debator, and has done more political proselyting since he flopped to the Republican party than all the other members in this county combined. Not a political change in this part of the country cannot be traced to his influence, and such party service ought to be recognized, especially when in so doing one of the party's ablest men is honored thereby.

THIRTY-FIVE hundred new men have been ordered from China to Manila and yet General McArthur wants more to enable him to put down the "rebellion."

HISTORY is a curious thing. Everybody can tell us how Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln would vote if alive nowadays, but no one seems to know how Cleveland will cast his ballot.

D. LINN GOOCH.

Democratic Nominee for Congress.

Hon. D. Linn Gooch, the nominee, is a typical specimen of the true Kentuckian. He was born at Rumsey, McLean county, Ky., in 1853, and is the son of Rev. Gideon Gooch. At the age of 16 years his father and mother both died within six months, leaving as a legacy to [illegible] a baby brother, 18 months of age, that he cared for and raised to manhood.

The 16-year-old lad, though slight physically, was bright mentally, and he resumed work in a drugstore, washing windows and bottles, dusting counters, shelving, etc. These chores the boy performed faithfully by day, and at night after the store closed he studied books on chemistry and medicine, and in a short time young Gooch graduated from chore boy to prescription clerk.

Behind the counter Gooch made a host of friends by kind attention and courtesy shown to patrons, getting out of bed at midnight or any time to sell a postage stamp or accommodate a customer, and wearing the same smile as though selling a $10 order of drugs. His spare moments were spent in chemistry, and naturally drifted into the manufacturing of drugs and chemicals.

He is now President of the Cincinnati Drug and Chemical Company, has a charming wife, two interesting daugbters, Misses Virginia and Leonor, and lives at 520 Greenup st., Covington. Though modest and assuming Mr. Gooch always took an active interest in city affairs, was frequently urged to run for office, invariably declined and was literally forced into the race by admiring friends.

Mr. Gooch's ancestors came from Virginia. The second oldest monument in the state bears the name Gooch, a relative, and is in Temple Farm Cemetery, Va. Mr. Gooch is Deputy Governor General of Kentucky, of the Society of the Sons of Colonial War, his ancestors having figured in that war.

He was elected four times President of the Jefferson Democratic Club, of Covington, an honor never before accorded. This club is the one that has launched forth every politician that ever achieved prominence in the state. Hon. John G. Carlisle, Governor William Goebel, Judge James P. Tarvin, Senator Mat Harbeson, Representative B. F. Graziana, Cecil Pence W. H. Callopy, &c.

Men out of work, families in distress, were frequently aided and carded for by Mrs. Gooch, through the aid of a third party, who was bound to shield the generous benefactor. During the entire campaign Mr. Gooch never uttered a harsh word against either of his opponents and was constantly restraining and warning many of his zealous friends against the same thing.

The official count made at Walton by the district committee gave Mr. Gooch a plurality of 274 over Mr. Rhinock and 546 over Col. Berry. Both of the unsuccessful candidates have put their shoulders to the wheel for the nominee and he will have a handsome majority in November.

SEVERAL years ago, when a Covington paper was booming D. Linn Gooch for Congress, the RECORDER modestly asked, "who the d—l is D. Linn Gooch, anyhow?" The question was not answered, but the RECORDER has recently come into possession of the information it sought to acquire years ago, and finds that he is a very pleasant gentleman on all occasions, has an abundance of vim and is a runner from Runnersville, and it is here predicted that he will be popular with the other members of Congress. Mr. Gooch, the RECORDER congratulates you and hopes that your majority in November will be ten thousand.

THE Republicans in this Congressional District are disappointed in the outcome of the recent primary election. They hoped and expected the heated campaign to develop a disfection on the part of the friends of the defeated candidates, and especially did they expect such a result when it was known that the finish was so very close. But these hopes were dashed to pieces when the defeated candidates announced they accepted the result, and called on their friends to stand by the nominee. It now looks like an old time Democratic majority in this district is assured this fall.

The Brown men have nominated Theodore Hallam for Congress in this district.

It Happened in a Drug Store.

"One day last winter a lady came to my drug store and asked for a brand of cough medicine that I did not have in stock," says Mr. C. R. Grandin, the popular druggist of Ontario, N. Y. "She was disappointed and wanted to know what cough preparation I could recommend. I said to her that I could freely recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that she could take a bottle of the remedy and after giving it a fair trial if she did not find it worth the money to bring back the bottle and I would refund the price paid. In the course of a day or two the lady came back in company with a friend in need of a cough medicine and advised her to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I consider that a very good recommendation for the remedy. It is for sale by McKim, Burlington, C. S. Balsly, Bullittsville, O. N. Grant, Bellevue, Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg.

Because feed is so abundant is no reason why we should make the mistake made by so many in the past year—of making corn cribs of our hogs by feeding them till they were too large; producing something that the market does not demand, and that will sell at a discount. There will be a much greater profit if the same amount of pork is produced in a greater number of animals sold at a lighter weight. It is much better to cater to the demands of the market as nearly as possible. —Rural World.

ALL PULL TOGETHER.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Now, that the primary is over, let us all pull right together for the nominee of the "great common people"—the Democratic party. The candidates were all good men, though indiscreet in some things, and who, of us, are infallible? The withdrawal of Judge Westover, of Grant, may hurt that gentleman's future, in fact, it will be a strong point against any claim he may set up for the support of this torn constituency, in any future race for Congress. Because his "reasons" for withdrawal will not be accepted by Democracy. Ability and patriotism are the great requisites for office, by the Democratic party, and "lack of money to carry on a campaign," was no reason at all for quitting the ranks in the middle of the stream.

If our party is to flourish in the coming future, as she has in the past, of her glorious history, she must look to all these small things, in choosing her official delegations. Of late decades, we have become too negligent in choosing material to fill our various offices. Putting men forward for personal reasons, that has, nor can have, any bearing upon his fitnest for the place, is a mistake, that the sooner it is remedied the sooner our party will rise to the level of its past glory. Reform our manner of recieving applications for office, is a pressing need for success of our great cause. The day is passed when we may say, "this is a free fight, and any man who will, may be our standard bearer for any office." Times change, and the success of "Toryism" has sprung from this very cause of indifference in our patriotism. The use of money to corrupt our voters, is a doctrine foreign to Democracy. Money is the keystone to the success of Toryism, while patriotism is the one thing needful for a successful Democracy.

Future Democracy will be very apt to weigh Judge Westover by these scales. Howbeit, as I said, let opponents of Toryism, now push our candidate for Congress. The larger majority we give him, the stronger our concentration as a party. Support the whole ticket with a determined will, and we shall soon rise to former greatness. Let all who are in favor of Toryism foam and spout, for with the beginning of a new century, we unfurl a new Banner of Liberty, and declare anew our Declaration of Independence.

Our standard bearer is second only to Washington himself, and his doctrine descends as the dew from heaven. And it will nourish anew those holy thoughts of Liberty and Independence, that once inspired patriotism to endure a Valley Forge, a Bunker Hill, a Yorktown, and even the hanging of an Andre, or a Benedict Arnold. We shall then have no mountaineers chasing our legislators, and our courts at the "point of the bayonet;" none of our heroic batallions of sovereign soldiers, smothering out the fires of liberty in the islands of the sea, or elsewhere in the world; but ready at all times to lend a helping hand to the oppressed of all lands, and welcome to the joys of independence, all people, who would be free and independent, without the consent of any other people. God grant the day. And in that patriotic day, there shall not be upon our sacred law books such things as "Force Bills," "Ship Subsidy Bills," or "Treaties of Alliance," with our mortal enemies, or any other nation. Our motto shall be, "Millions of both men and money for our Independence, but for subjugation not a cent. Oh, with what delight we behold the passing of the twentieth century, under the care of such statesmen as my eye pictures under a new Democracy—yet not a new, but that same old spirit of 1776, with a new and stronger backing. Principles purified by the wholesome and christian teachings of a Bryan, sanctioned by the teachings of even a Lincoln, himself a christian statesman. Who, in this land will deny the ticket, his ballot? who will give his voice for oppression?

A CARD.

Joseph L. Rhinock one of the late candidates for the Democratic nomination for Congress in this district, has addressed the following well timed card to the Democrats:

To the Democrats of the Sixth District of Kentucky: Upon the face of the returns I have been defeated for the nomination for Congress. I call upon my friends throughout the district to stand by the nominee. The great importance of having a majority in the National Congress of Democrats to assist President Bryan should he be successful, is apparent to myself as well as all other loyal Democrats, and I call especial attention to the necessity for an earnest and united effort for the success of Bryan and Beckham.

Many unjust and malicious falsehoods have been circulated about me during the Democratic fight, and one especially, connecting me with the Standard Oil Company. I desire again to impress upon the Democratic voters in the Sixth district that never in my life have I been employed by the Standard Oil Company, nor did I ever own one cent's worth of its capital stock. To the 5,056 voters in the district who stood by me, in the few short weeks that I had announced my candidacy against my opponent, a candidate for several years, like Spartans of old, I wish to return my heartfelt thanks. This is all I can say, and I love my friends as devotedly as any man.

Stand by Bryan and Beckham, and the greatest platform ever presented to the American people. Stand by Beckham, and vindicate our "Old Kentucky Home," and restore the State to peace, and bring to justice the assassins of our martyred Governor! Stand by the nominee for Congress, and let us have an old-fashioned Democratic victory, all along the line in Kentucky this fall!

[Courier-Journal.]

The verdict in the Howard case, following that against Caleb Powers, is a significant comment on the contention that the arrest of the alleged conspirators for the murder of Goebel was purely a political move, and merely the persecution of innocent men. Two juries of good men, divided in their politics, and living in different counties have decided that the Commonwealth has got at least two of the guilty men. These conclusions have been reached after long and patient investigation, in which the defendants have had the aid of able counsel and an array of witnesses, most of whom were evidently eager to testify in their behalf.

The juries who tried these men were not partisan. Their verdicts were not partisan. They listened for weeks with exemplary patience to the evidence, and not one of them had a reasonable doubt of the guilt of either of the accused. They had before them the defendants and the witnesses, they noted the demeanor of both, they saw the behavior of the conscious purjurer in the ordeal of cross-examination, they heard the arguments of learned counsel who endeavored to interpret the evidence for them. The decisions of the two juries establish the fact that there was a conspiracy to murder Goebel, that Powers and Howard were implicated, and that the purpose of this conspiracy was accomplished. Yet, men who do not know the witnesses, who did not hear the evidence, who did not listen to the arguments assume to know more of the case than the juries. They not only question the judgment of the jury in weighing the evidence, but they even say that there was no evidence at all against the accused. The people will judge which set of jurors is most likely to have arrived at the real facts in the case.

ACTIVITY OF PAUL.

Dr. Talmage Draws a Lesson from Work of the Disciple.

Points Out Places of Usefulness Not Yet Fully Occupied—Need of More Workers—Church as a Lifeboat.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.]

In his discourse Dr. Talmage points to fields of usefulness that are not yet thoroughly cultivated and shows the need of more activity. The text is Romans 15:20: "Lest I should build upon another man's foundation."

In laying out the plan of his missionary tour Paul sought out towns and cities which had not yet been preached to. He goes to Corinth, a city famous for splendor and vice, and Jerusalem, where the priesthood and the sanhedrim were ready to leap with both feet upon the Christian religion. He feels he has especial work to do, and he means to do it. What was the result? The grandest life of usefulness that a man ever lived. We modern Christian workers are not apt to imitate Paul. We build on other people's foundations. If we erect a church, we prefer to have it filled with families all of whom have been pious. Do we gather a Sabbath school class, we want good boys and girls, hair combed, faces washed, manners attractive. So a church in this day is apt to be built out of other churches. Some ministers spend all their time in fishing in other people's ponds, and they throw the line into that church pond, and they jerk out a Methodist, and throw the line into another church pond and bring out a Presbyterian, or there is a religious row in some neighboring church, and a whole school of fish swim off from that pond, and we take them all in with one sweep of the net. What is gained? Absolutely nothing for the cause of Christ. What strengthens an army is new recruits. While courteous to those coming from other flocks, we should build our churches not out of other churches, but out of the world, lest we build on another man's foundation.

The fact is, this is a big world. When in our schoolboy days we learned the diameter and circumference of this planet we did not learn half. It is the latitude and longitude and diameter and circumference of want and woe and sin that no figures can calculate. This one spiritual continent of wretchedness reaches across all zones, and if I were called to give its geographical boundary I would say it was bounded on the north and south and east and west by the great heart of God's sympathy and love. Oh, it is a great world! Since six o'clock this morning 60,800 persons have been born, and all these multiplied populations are to be reached by the Gospel. In England or in our eastern American cities we are being much crowded, and an acre of ground is of great value, but in western America 500 acres is a small farm, and 20,000 acres is no unusual possession. There is a vast field here and everywhere unoccupied, plenty of room more, not building on another man's foundation.

We need as churches to stop bombarding the old ironclad sinners that have been proof against 30 years of Christian assault. Alas for that church which lacks the spirit of evangelism, spending on one chandelier enough to light 500 souls to glory, and in one carved pillar enough to have made a thousand men "pillars in the house of our God forever," and doing less good than many a log cabin meeting house with tallow candles stuck in wooden sockets and a minister who has never seen a college and does not know the difference between Greek and Choctaw. We need as churches to get into sympathy with the great outside world and let them know that none are so broken-hearted or hardly bestead that they will not be welcomed. "No!" says some fastidious Christian, "I don't like to be crowded in church. Don't put anyone in my pew."

My brother, what will you do in Heaven? When a great multitude that no man can number assembles, they will put 50 in your pew. What are the select few to-day assembled in the Christian churches compared with the mightier millions outside of them? Many of the churches are like a hospital that should advertise that its patients must have nothing worse than toothache or "runrounds," but no broken heads, no crushed ankles, no fractured thighs. Give us for treatment moderate sinners, velvet-coated sinners and sinners with a gloss on. It is as though a man had a farm of 3,000 acres and put all his work on one acre. He may raise never so large ears of corn, never so big heads of wheat, he would remain poor. The church of God has bestowed its chief care on one acre and has raised splendid men and women in that small inclosure, but the field is the world. That means North and South America, Europe, Asia and Africa and all the islands of the sea. It is as though after a great battle there were left 50,000 wounded and dying on the field and three surgeons gave all their time to three patients under their charge. The major general comes in and says to the doctors: "Come out here and look at the nearly 50,000 dying for lack of surgical attendance." "No," say the three doctors, standing there fanning their patients; "we have three important cases here, and we are attending to them, and when we are not positively busy with their wounds it takes all our time to keep the flies off." In this awful battle with sin and sorrow, where millions have fallen on millions, we not let us spend all our time in taking care of a few people, and when the command comes: "Go into the world," ask practically: "No, I cannot go; I have here a few choice cases, and I am busy keeping off the flies." There are multitudes to-day who have never had any Christian worker look them in the eye and with earnestness in the accentuation say: "Come," or they would long ago have been in the kingdom. My friends, religion is either a sham or a great reality. If it be a sham, let us disband our churches and Christian associations. If it be a reality, then great populations are on the way to the bar of God unfitted for the ordeal.

Comparatively little effort as yet has been made to save that large class of persons in our midst called skeptics, and he who goes to work here will not be building upon another man's foundation. There is a large number of them. They are afraid of us and our churches for the reason we do not know how to treat them. One of this class met Christ. And hear with what tenderness and pathos and beauty and success Christ dealt with him: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind and with all thy strength. This is the first and great commandment, and the second is like unto it, namely, thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. There is none other commandment greater than these." And the scribe said to him: "Well, master, thou hast said the truth, for there is one God, and to love Him with all the heart and all the understanding and all the soul and all the strength is more than whole burnt offerings and sacrifices." And when Jesus saw that he answered discreetly He said unto him: "Thou art not far from the kingdom of God." So a skeptic was saved in one interview. But few Christian people treat the skeptic in that way. Instead of taking hold of him with the gentle hand of love, we are apt to take him with the pincers of ecclesiasticism.

You would not be so rough on that man if you knew how he lost his faith in Christianity. I have known men skeptical from the fact that they grew up in houses where religion was overdone. Sunday was the most awful day in the week. They had religion driven into them with a trip hammer. They were surfeited with prayer meetings. They were stuffed and choked with catechisms. They were often told that they were the worst boys the parents ever knew, because they liked to ride down hill better than to read Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress." Whenever father and mother talked of religion, they drew down the corners of their mouth and rolled up their eyes. If any one thing will send a boy or girl to ruin sooner than another, that is it. If I had such a father and mother I fear I should have been an infidel.

Others were tripped up to skepticism from being grievously wronged by some man who professed to be a Christian. They had a partner in business who turned out to be a first-class scoundrel, though a professed Christian. Many years ago they lost all faith by what happened in an oil company which was formed amid the petroleum excitement. The company owned no land, or if they did there was no sign of oil produced; but the president of the company was a Presbyterian elder, and the treasurer was an Episcopalian vestryman, and one director was a Methodist class leader and the other directors porminent members of Baptist and Congregational churches. Circulars were gotten out telling what fabulous prospects opened before this company. Innocent men and women who had a little money to invest, and that little their all, said: "I do not know anything about this company, but so many good men are at the head of it that it must be excellent, and taking stock in it must be almost as good as joining the church." So they bought the stock and perhaps received one dividend so as to keep them still, but after awhile they found that the company had reorganized, and had a different president and different treasurer and different directors. Other engagements or ill health had caused the former officers of the company, with many regrets, to resign. And all that the subscribers of that stock had to show for their investment was a beautifully ornamented certificate. Sometimes that man, looking over his old papers, comes across that certificate, and it is so suggestive that he vows he wants none of the religion that the president and trustees and directors of that oil company professed.

Of course, their rejection of religion on such grounds was unphilosophical and unwise. I am told that many of the United States army desert every year, and there are many court-martials every year. Is that anything against the United States government that swore them in? And if a soldier of Christ deserts, is that anything against the Christianity which he swore to support and defend? How do you judge of the currency of a country? By a counterfeit bill? Now, you must have patience with those who have been swindled by religious pretenders. Live in the presence of others a frank, honest, earnest Christian life, that they may be attracted to the same Saviour upon whom your hopes depend.

Remember, skepticism always has some reason, good or bad, for existing. Goethe's irreligion started when the news came to Germany of the earthquake at Lisbon, November 1, 1775. That 60,000 people should have perished in that earthquake and in the after rising of the Tagus river so stirred his sympathies that he threw up his belief in the goodness of God.

If I address such men and women today, I throw out no scoff. I implead them by the memory of the good old days when at their mother's knee they said: "Now I lay me down to sleep," and by those days and nights of scarlet fever in which she watched you, giving you the medicine in just the right time and turning your pillow when it was hot, and with hands that many years ago turned to dust soothed away your pain and with voice that you will never hear again, unless you join her in the better country, told you to never mind, for you would feel better by and by, and by that dying couch where she looked so pale and talked so slowly, catching her breath between the words, and you felt an awful loneliness coming over your soul. By all that I beg you to come back and take the same religion. It was good enough for her. It is good enough for you. Nay, I have a better plan than that. I plead by all the wounds and tears and blood and groans and agonies and death throes of the Son of God, who approaches you at this moment with torn brow and lacerated hands and whipped back, and saying: "Come unto me, all ye who are weary and heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

Again, there is a field of usefulness but little touched, occupied by those who are astray in their habits. All northern nations, like those of North America and England and Scotland—that is, in the colder climates—are devastated by alcoholism. They take the fire to keep up the warmth. In southern countries, like Arabia and Spain, the blood is so warm they are not tempted to fiery liquids. The great Roman armies never drank anything stronger than water tinged with vinegar, but under our northern climate the temptation to heating stimulants is most mighty, and millions succumb. When a man's habits go wrong the church drops him, the social circle drops him, good influences drop him, we all drop him. Of all the men who get off the track but few ever get on again. Near my summer residence there is a life-saving station on the beach. There are all the ropes and rockets, the boats, the machinery for getting people off shipwrecks. One summer I saw there 15 or 20 men who were breakfasting after having just escaped with their lives and nothing more. Up and down our coasts are built these useful structures, and the mariners know it, and they feel that if they are driven to the breakers there will be apt from shore to come a rescue.

The churches of God ought to be so many life-saving stations, not so much to help those who are in smooth waters, but those who have been shipwrecked. Come, let us run out the lifeboats! And who will man them? We do not preach enough to such men; we have not enough faith in their release. Alas, if when they come to hear us we are laboriously trying to show the difference between sublapsarianism and supralapsarianism, while they have a hundred vipers of remorse and despair coiling around and biting their immortal spirits! The church is not chiefly for goodish sort of men, whose proclivities are all right and who could get to Heaven praying and singing in their own homes. It is on the beach to help the drowning. Those bad cases are the cases that God likes to take hold of. He can save a big sinner as well as a small sinner, and when a man calls earnestly to God for help he will go out to deliver such a one. If it were necessary, God would come down from the sky, followed by all the artillery of Heaven and a million angels with drawn swords. Get 100 such redeemed men in your churches and nothing could stand before them, for such men are generally warm hearted and enthusiastic. No formal prayers then. No heartless singing then. No cold conventionalisms then.

Destitute children of the street offer a field of work comparatively unoccupied. The uncared for children are in the majority in most of our cities. When they grow up, if unreformed, they will outvote your children, and they will govern your children. The whisky ring will hatch out other whisky rings, and grog shops will kill with their horrid stench public sobriety unless the church of God rises up with outstretched arms and infolds this dying population in her bosom. Public schools cannot do it. Art cannot do it. Blackwell's island cannot do it. Almshouses cannot do it. Jails cannot do it. Church of God, wake up to your magnificent mission! You can do it! Get somewhere, somehow to work!

The Prussian cavalry mount by putting their right foot into the stirrup, while the American cavalry mount by putting their left foot into the stirrup. I do not care how you mount your war-charger if you only get into this battle for God and get there soon, right stirrup or left stirrup or no stirrup at all. The unoccupied fields are all around us, and why should we build on another man's foundation? I have heard of what was called the "thundering legion." It was in 179, a part of the Roman army to which some Christians belonged, and their prayers, it was said, were answered by thunder and lightning and hail and tempest, which overthrew an invading army and saved the empire. And I would to God that our churches might be so mighty in prayer and work that they would become a thundering legion before which the forces of sin might be routed and the gates of hell might tremble. Launch the Gospel ship for another voyage. Heave away now, lads! Shake out the reefs in the foretopsail! Come, O Heavenly wind, and fill the canvas! Jesus aboard will assure our safety. Jesus on the sea will beckon us forward. Jesus on the shore will welcome us into harbor.

Father's Essay Writing.

Teacher—I am sorry to say it, Henry, but your composition is not worthy of you. The rhetoric is faulty, the logic weak, the statements are based upon misinformation, and the style is lamentably crude.

Teacher—But you can tell him you did your very best.

Henry—Did my best nothing. Dad wrote the whole of it himself.—Boston Transcript.

THE IMMEDIATE ISSUE.

Justice, Honor and Duty Ignored by McKinley in the Interest of Party Policy.

Maj. McKinley declares that while the Philippine issue may be paramount the silver question is immediate. He therefore insists that the latter must take precedence in the campaign.

Yet if Bryan should be elected, as now seems assured, and by a political revolution both houses should be democratic, at least four months must elapse before Mr. Bryan could get congress together to deal with silver or with anything else. From November 7 until March 4 William McKinley will still be president.

But meanwhile shall the "nigger" killing still go on unchecked and unchallenged in the Philippines? Shall we keep in the field an army of 65,000 men and a great fleet of war ships to back up our wicked and baseless claims of sovereignty over a people who long to be free? Shall — — on with our criminal aggression, burning and slaying and sowing havoc throughout a stricken land?

Which is the immediate issue? That of dealing with a question that cannot be reached in half a year or that of stopping a war that is destroying the liberties of the Filipinos while undermining our own?

If your house is on fire, which is the immediate issue, that of extinguishing the flames, or that of deciding on plans for a new barn which you think of building next year?

Imperialism is at once the paramount and the immediate issue. Maj. McKinley, with all his shiftiness and all his smug hypocrisy, cannot dodge or obscure it. The flag is being trailed in the dust of his ignoble ambition and the blood of our late allies, perfidiously betrayed, stains its folds.

Shall we palter with standards and ratios while American guns are slaughtering freedom in a foreign land? Shall we quarrel over the color of our money when the rivers are running with blood shed in pursuit of a horrible conquest?

No. The immediate issue is one of justice and honor and high duty. Silver and everything else must wait upon this. And Maj. McKinley hopes in vain if he hopes that this great and insistent issue can be either obscured or evaded.

Republican Loss.

Mark Hanna is alarmed over the growing indications of republican defeat this fall. Fear has seized the camp of the republican national committee, and the party boss has begun to use the whip on the party workers. The big republican loss shown in the Maine election, following on the heels of the decreased majority secured by the G. O. P. in Vermont, has served as the cause for peremptory orders having been issued for every henchman of the party to get out and hustle. Hanna has quietly begun the squeezing of campaign funds from western monopolists and trust directors. Word has been passed along the line that contributions or pledges must be forthcoming during the ten days the head of the party is in Chicago.

——Since ex-Secretary Alger has consented to make a few speeches for McKinley, why not call in Gen. Eagan from the Sandwich islands, or wherever he is enjoying his five years' vacation for blackguarding Gen. Miles, and get him to do a little talking? His pay is going on all the time, so he might do it quite cheap.—Philadelphia Times.

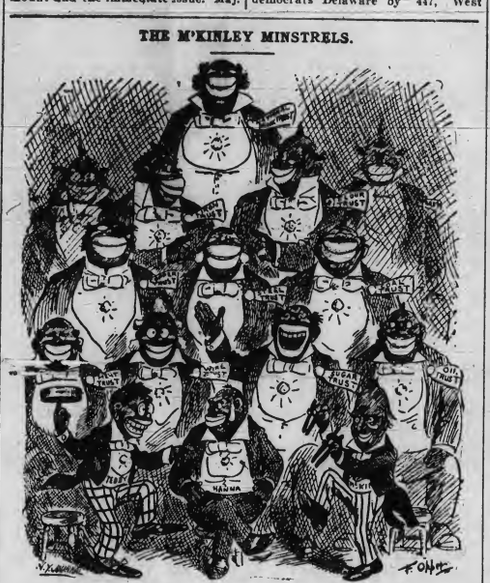
——Nothing which President McKinley or any campaign orator who is working for his reelection may say in denunciation of the trusts can be accepted as sincere or genuine as long as the republican party upholds protection, which forestalls fair competition and thus fosters all sorts of combinations against trade.—Kansas City Star.

VICTORY WELL ASSURED.

The Vermont Election Indicates That the Drift Is Toward Bryan.

Four years ago 48 more electoral votes would have elected Bryan. To be elected now he must get that many votes in addition to those he had in 1896, and if he loses any of his former votes he must get enough in addition to make up for the loss.

In 1896 several states on each side were very evenly divided. A slight drift would have sent them over the line. Everything depends now, therefore, on the direction of the drift. A small majority in a state is safe if the drift is in the direction of making it secure.



The Vermont election indicates that the drift there is toward Bryan. The democrats are indisputably stronger in Vermont now than they were four years ago. What light does that throw on the possibilities in other states?

The republican vote in Vermont has fallen off about ten per cent. as compared with the corresponding election in 1896, while the democratic vote has increased about 16 per cent.

Indiana has 15 electoral votes. In 1896 the republican vote there was 323,754, and the democratic 305,573. If the republicans lose ten per cent. and the democrats gain 16 per cent. the republican vote in Indiana this year will be 291,379 and the democratic 354,573, leaving a democratic plurality of 63,083.

A similar process would give the democrats Delaware by 447, West Virginia by 13,822, Kentucky by 58,398, Ohio by 80,501, and North Dakota by 283.

THE McKINLEY MINSTRELS.

Uncle Mark, did you know dat de republican party am like a steamboat?

Why, no, Theodore; explain yourself.

Yassir; you am de captain, de trusts am de passengers, de president am de figurehead an' I'm de foghorn.

That sweet vocalist, Mr. Sugar Trust, will sing his favorite ditty, "We've Got a Lot of Money, But We Want to Get Some More."

OHIO IN REVOLT.

One Hundred and Twenty-Five Former McKinley Men in One Town Come Out for Bryan.

Republican managers in Ohio are aghast at the continued desertion of voters from Hanna-McKinley ranks. From nearly every city and town in this state comes reports of prominent and influential republicans who declare openly that they will vote for Bryan and Stevenson and against McKinley, trusts and imperialism. The following communication from a prominent business man of Coshocton is only one of scores of similar reports from Mark Hanna's private bailiwicks:

"Coshocton, O., Sept. 10, 1900.—Editor National Democrat: I herewith send you the names of a few prominent republicans of this city who are against Mr. McKinley in this campaign because of trusts and imperialism:

"Hon. Theodore Neighbor, a prominent merchant of New Connorstown, and with him more than 20 others, who declare they will not vote for McKinley this year. Mr Neighbor was a prominent speaker for McKinley in 1896.

"G. W. Bowden, of Coshocton, because he cannot stand Mark Hanna and the trusts.

"James Crawford, a prominent farmer, who says the only way to save the country is to vote for Bryan.

"Frank Ward, a wealthy rolling mill man, who says he is going to vote the straight democratic ticket in order to rebuke the trusts, one of which closed our mills and left him out of work.

"Clyde Linn, of the Twentieth Century Printing company, who declares that McKinley is but a Punch and Judy puppet for Mark Hanna.

"There are at least 125 other republicans in and about this city who have declared their intention of supporting Bryan this year, but whose names are kept secret to prevent being persecuted by the Hanna machine gang. Yours truly,

"H. P. KNIGHT."

——On the paramount issue of imperialism Bryan is winning republicans from McKinley just as on the silver question, which was paramount in 1896, McKinley won democratic votes from Bryan. The position of the parties has changed about as regards accretion and diminution. There are no defections from the democracy this year, but a return of those who left it four years ago. There are no accessions to the republican party this year, but desertions notable in character and in number.—Boston Post.

HOMES SWEPT FROM SIGHT.

Singular Phenomena During the Earthquake of July 13, 1897, in India.

The Indian government has only just published the report of the geological survey on the great earthquake of July 12, 1897, which devastated the entire western portion of Assam. The report makes a volume of more than 400 large pages, with many plates. It contains several illustrations of disasters similar to that in the Neo valley, Japan, in the earthquake of 1891, when the earth opened and swallowed whole houses and then closed again, leaving no trace except that the roofs projecting beyond the walls of the building were too wide to fall into the rift and were left on the surface.

The same explanation of this phenomenon, says the New York Sun, is made in India as in Japan. The houses had been built along a straight line and under them the earth had opened and the houses had fallen into the chasm. Then the opening had closed and all persons who were in the houses at the time were buried in the houses, no one knows how deep. No attempt was made to recover their bodies, for there were many hundreds of wounded who required attention and the living had to be thought of before the dead. Only the roofs were to be seen, and on looking under them instead of the confused heap of rubbish found under the other wrecked buildings there was merely the surface of the ground on the same level inside as outside.

This great Indian earthquake has been the occasion of other expensive publications, chiefly by the Japanese government. Japan is keenly alive to the necessity of adopting methods of building houses and engineering constructions that will best withstand the effects of earthquake shocks. All investigations on this subject are in the hands of the earthquake investigating committee of Japan.

As soon as the serious nature of the catastrophe that had overtaken northeast India was understood a part of the Japanese committee was at once dispatched to the scene and the reports they wrote form two volumes of the committee's publications. Their researches have proved to be particularly instructive and important for earthquake countries. The volumes, for example, contain many pictures and plans, as well as much letterpress, contrasting different forms of concrete flooring, roof and other timber work, varieties of joints, types of archway and the like, which failed, with corresponding constructions which successfully resisted the destructive forces. The text is in Chinese characters, but many of the pictures show at a glance that while certain forms of structures withstood or were only slightly affected by the shocks others entirely failed.

One interesting fact observed was that buildings resting upon the earth or upon stones flush with the earth, escaped with little damage, while others near them that were raised on foundations above the surface were destroyed or badly damaged. The general conclusion reached by the Japanese investigators was that a building with a light roof and constructed entirely of timber, in which the joints are replaced by iron straps and cast iron shoes, may be made as capable of withstanding a violent racking as a wicker basket.

THE REPUBLICAN CAMPAIGN LAGGING

Present State of the Philippine Campaign—The Coal Miners' Strike and the Instrumentality of Hanna—Democratic Outlook in the East—Bryan Gaining.

[Special Correspondence.]

President McKinley has gone home to Canton to give his personal attention to his campaign in so far as Hanna will permit. The republican campaign needs something to give it life and energy. President McKinley and his advisers are not likely to change the adverse drift of popular sentiment. They have several campaign lies to be sprung the last moment.

One will be that the Philippine insurrection is over and that civil government has been established.

This might do if it hadn't been worn threadbare so many times before. It is ever heard that the announcement will be made that Aguinaldo and the other insurgent leaders have surrendered. Well, that also has been used before.

No announcement of the termination of the Philippine campaign will be believed unless accompanied by an order for the return of at least 50,000 troops. This is the test. It will be found that the republicans cannot meet it. Talk is cheap, but the troops are not going to return until the insurrection is over. Those whose term of enlistment is out will be replaced by others, if the next administration is republican.

Hanna and the Coal Trust.

The coal miners' strike becomes a matter of national importance. The coal operators are responsible for the strike itself and for any consequences which grow out of it.

The men put up with starvation wages until body and soul could no longer be held together. Think of supporting a family on 90 cents a day and having four days' work a week. It is a crime against civilization that a combine should have the power to dictate such terms to workingmen. The men offered to arbitrate and the operators scorned their pitiful appeal. The sympathy of the country will go out to these starving miners in their struggle for living wages.

It is to be hoped that the men will be patient even under the provocation that is sure to be offered by the operators. They are accustomed to starving, as one of the mine workers' executive board said recently: "We might as well starve idle as working. It is starvation anyway."

What becomes of the republican assumption of prosperity and the "full dinner pail" in the face of this strike of 143,000 men for wages to support a bare existence? It is many a month since the miners have had a full dinner pail, and they never expect to have prosperity as long as a trust controls the output of the world's supply of anthracite coal.

The public is directly interested in this strike The coal barons are threatening an advance of one dollar a ton for coal. Not because there is any scarcity, but because cold weather is coming and they have the power to squeeze the consumer as well as the workman.

Never was there a greater output of anthracite coal than this year, and never have the operators enjoyed more prosperity, yet they begrudge their men decent wages out of the millions made from the industry.

Hanna would have been glad to avert, or at least postpone, the strike, but the operators let him know that he is their servant, not their master. When they want anti-trust legislation killed it is Hanna's business to see that it is done. When Hanna wants the operators to concede the demands of the miners because a strike will have a bad effect on the republican campaign, the operators tell him to attend to his business of managing the campaign and they will attend to theirs. Hanna is chagrined, but he is like the man in the Arabian Nights who let the genii out of the box and couldn't get them back.

Bryan Gaining.

Chairman Jones, of the democratic national committee, has been spending a few days in the east. He is very much pleased over the democratic outlook. New York state is putting up a splendid campaign and the republicans are much disorganized there. The democratic state committee's have good active organizations in the middle western states. The precinct organizations and democratic clubs are making great headway. The democrats propose to see to it this year that every man who wants to vote for Bryan has the opportunity and that every vote cast for him is counted. There is no objection to Hanna getting out as big a republican vote as he can, but the republicans will not be permitted to count any votes except those actually cast for their candidate.

Every week brings new accession to Bryan from the republican ranks and every week shows plainly that there is going to be a big stay-at-home republican vote this year. The administration is decidedly unpopular with its own party.

Bryan, by his own speeches is making thousands of votes. He speaks as the plain man of the people. He has the compassion and understanding for humanity in his heart. He is frank and courageous. He tells the people exactly where he stands on all the great issues. His Labor day speech in Chicago put him in sympathy with the working people all over the country. He discussed their cause with understanding and sympathy, as if he were one of them. Not so with Roosevelt. He was pelted with jeers and hard questions by the workingmen of Chicago on Labor day. They openly taunted him with favoring government by injunction and a military form of government.

Hanna has been keeping Roosevelt as far west as possible because the eastern republicans will not stand for his bombastic and egotistic oratory on any terms, but Roosevelt has troubles in the west. The western people are not to be imposed upon by a gingerbread hero.

At Roosevelt's meetings there are the ubiquitous colored men, who remind him that a colored regiment saved the rough riders from annihilation on San Juan hill, and then there is sure to be a shower of posters containing quotations from Roosevelt's books in which he shows himself the narrow, conceited aristocrat, having no real sympathy with the people.

He has sent Hanna word that he is tired of the west and wants to come home, but, while he is losing votes for the republicans, he is doing it in states that will be democratic anyway, and Hanna doesn't propose to let him help the democrats by his foolish speeches in doubtful states.

Flaws in the Gold Standard.

The republicans are now industriously pointing out the flaws in their gold standard law and asking to be given another opportunity to fix it up. They will get that anyway in the coming short session of the Fifty-sixth congress, but if a republican congress and executive couldn't pass a satisfactory gold standard law at the last session, the bankers have a right to suspect that they will be unable to do so at any future time.

ADOLPH PATTERSON.

TAXDODGER HANNA.

His Sworn Statement to the Assessor in His Home County in Ohio.

A startling revelation has just been made at Cleveland, which shows that Mark Hanna, instead of being a plutocrat, is one of the poorest citizens of the republic. It all came out through the office of the assessor of Cuyahoga county. Mr. Hanna has made a sworn return to this meddlesome official showing that the value of all his personal property is only a little more than $9,000. This return makes Mr. Hanna's tax bill for the year very small, and, as before stated, shows that he is a poor man. It is suggested that if Mr. Hanna continues much longer to devote himself to the interests of Mr. McKinley he will be a bankrupt, for it is well known that when Mr. Hanna first entered public life he was worth many millions.

It is recalled that his first great stroke of statesmanship and act of patriotism consisted in contributing liberally to the fund raised to pay Mr. McKinley's debts, which were accumulated because confessedly Mr. McKinley was a statesman and not a business man. But this patriotic act did not cost him much, according to the statements of himself and his lieutenants. Mr. Hanna's living expenses are not nearly so heavy as are those of 20 or more other statesmen at Washington who have acquired a great deal less fame than has Mr. Hanna. What, then, it is being asked, has become of Mr. Hanna's fortune? It is not believed that he put all the money for Mr. McKinely in the last campaign or that he has been drawing on his own bank account for the president's benefit in this campaign. And yet Mr. Hanna's sworn statement recently made at Cleveland shows him to be almost a pauper.—Washington Times.

Disagreement Among Leaders.

Unless the republican leaders put their heads together and harmonize their arguments they will stand a good chance of not deceiving many people in this campaign. McKinley declares that silver is the main issue and that the battle of 1896 must be fought over again. Roosevelt insists that silver is not only an issue, but the paramount one, which it would seem ought to satisfy even a Montana "silver republican." On the other hand, Foraker says in his Youngstown speech that all of the republicans and half of the democrats are opposed to free silver, but that Bryan will try to force it.—Anaconda Standard.

What McKinley Assumes.

There is something almost laughable in Mr. McKinley's wholesale assumption of credit for the prosperous condition of the country. In his letter of acceptance the republican party and his own administration are again made the source of all the blessings which the people enjoy. The republican party—especially in its earlier days—can point to much in its history that is worthy of praise and commendation, but its amiable and self-satisfied leader, Mr. McKinley, really assumes too much when he robs nature of the credit that is due to her prodigal generosity.—Kansas City Star.

——If the republican gold standard legislation of last winter is good legislation, if it does what President McKinley and his supporters claim for it, in what way can the demand of the democrats, populists and silver republicans be a menace to the country? If it does not do what its supporters claim, why are they bragging about it? Have they purposely passed a weak law so as to have the question an issue in this campaign?—Helena Independent.

HE BASELY DECEIVED HER.

Let Her Think She Was Reforming Him, When He Had No Bad Habits to Break.

"So your engagement is broken?" said the girl in gray, according to Pearson's Weekly.

"Yes, it is," replied the girl in brown, frowning at the recollection.

"What was the matter?"

"He basely deceived me," answered the girl in brown. "You see, it was this way: I asked him one day to promise me that he never again would smoke cigarettes, and he promised. Then I asked him to refrain from the use of tobacco in any form, and he promised to do that. Later I told him I had a horror of anyone who touched liquor, and he agreed never to touch it. After that I suggested that I thought clubs had a bad influence on young men and I should expect him to give them up, and he said he would. I also took up the subject of gambling, and made him promise that he would stop playing cards and betting on the races."

"And that he didn't required a great deal of him, did you?" said the girl in gray. "I suppose he deceived you in the matter?"

"He did."

"Broke his promise, did he?"

"Oh, no! I could have forgiven that. But just when I was congratulating myself that I at least had reformed one young man I found that he didn't require any reforming. He wasn't addicted to a single one of the habits I made him promise to break. It was a terrible shock, and I broke the engagement at once. There was no longer anything in it to make it interesting."

SHE WOULD GET THERE.

It Was None of the Ticket Seller's Business Where She Wanted to Go.

He was long, lean, lank and raw-boned, and he shambled up to the ticket window at the Union passenger station much after the fashion of a scared canine when he approaches his master to receive a well-earned thrashing. He got as far as the outside railing and stood there with a bashful blush gazing at a man behind the brass bars, who is the St. Joseph News.

"Come in; come in; make yourself at home," was the encouraging welcome from within. He accepted the invitation and brought up against the marble ticket counter with more confidence in his face.

"Say, thar," he said, in a half whisper, "is this the place where you git tickets for the kyars?"

"Yes; where do you want to go? Hurry up; we're rushed."

"Well, sir," he replied, shifting a square inch of plug tobacco from one cheek to the other, "hev you all got enny long-distance tickets inter Kentucky?"

His case was equaled by that of the old lady with a sunbonnet, who said:

"I want a ticket to Platte county."

"What place in Platte county?" inquired the ticket man.

"No place in Platte county; I want to go to Platte county, and it's none o' your business where I'm going to visit. You sell me the ticket to Platte county, and I'll git there."

Antiquities of Baseball.

A north Missouri editor, who first studied baseball rules while a Sunday school boy, enters into the following antiquities of the national game: The devil was the first coacher, Eve stole first, Adam stole second. When Isaac met Rebecca at the well she was walking with a pitcher. Sampson struck out a great many when he beat the Philistines. Moses made his first run when he slew the Egyptians. Cain made a base hit when he killed Abel. Abraham made a sacrifice. The prodigal son made a home run. David was a long-distance thrower and Moses shut out the Egyptians at the Red sea."—Chicago Chronicle.

A National Reputation.

About a year ago Mrs. Henry O. Silkman of Maplewood, Pa., wrote: "I have learned of your Lotion, the wonderful cure for unsightly eruptions, through friends in Fulton, N. Y., and Evansville, Ind., and I am anxious to procure the article for friends who, I am desirous, should use it." This invaluable preparation has been before the public over fifty years and all who have used it cheerfully recommend it. If your druggist hasn't it, send name to Solon Palmer, 374 Pearl Street, New York, and receive free pamphlet of testimonials and sample of Lotion, or Lotion Soap.

Her Chief Alarm.

"Goodness gracious," exclaimed the old gentleman, "this disturbance in China is just awful."

"It is so," agreed the old lady. "What with all the natives fighting we're just as likely as not to have a most distressing tea famine this year."—Philadelphia Press.

Exhibits at Paris.

There is a large exhibit from this country at the Paris exposition which will prove very interesting to all who may attend, but no more so than the news that the famous American remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, will positively cure dyspepsia, indigestion, constipation, biliousness and nervousness. To all sufferers of the above complaints a trial is recommended, with the assurance that when honestly used a cure will be effected. It also tones up the entire system.

The Passenger Department of the New York Central seems never to tire of sending out copies of "A Message to Garcia." The latest issue is the first five thousand of the third half-million edition, and is numbered consecutively from 1,000,000 to 1,004,999. It is beautifully printed on heavy plate paper, the illustrations being brought out in a manner equal, if not superior, to the best magazines. The pages have a red line around them, and the book is bound in a grey-blue cloth and heavy boards. It is intended for libraries, and was issued at the request of a large number of American libraries who wanted the "Message" in a permanent binding. This edition contains, in addition to Mr. Hubbard's admirable preachment, a short sketch, with a portrait, of Lieutenant-Colonel Andrew S. Rowan, the man who carried "A Message to Garcia;" a short sketch, with a portrait, of General Calixto Garcia, the man to whom the "Message" was carried, and a short sketch, with portrait, of Mr. Elbert Hubbard, the man who wrote "A Message to Garcia."

It also contains eight pages of extracts from the press, and comments from well-known educators, clergymen, professional men, and many large employers of men, on the "Message" itself; a sketch of the Cuban Educational Association, and a sketch on Harvard-Americanism and the Cuban teachers.

A limited number of copies of "A Message to Garcia" bound in cloth and boards may be obtained at 50 cents each. A copy of the edition with illuminated paper cover, fully illustrated, will be sent free, post paid, to any address in the world, on receipt of a postage stamp issued by any country on the globe, or it will be sent in packages of 100 each, on receipt of 50 cents for each 100 by George H. Daniels, General Passenger Agent, New York Central & Hudson River Railroad, Grand Central Station, New York.

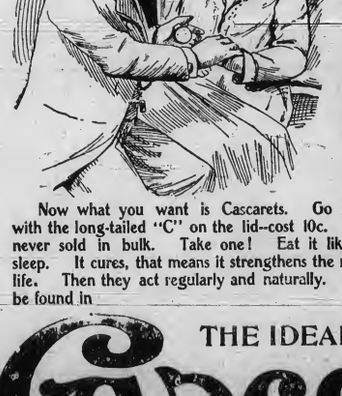
The Shortest Route to Texas

One reason why travelers to Texas go via the Cotton Belt is, that the Cotton Belt is from 25 to 100 miles shorter than other routes. This saving in distance makes a corresponding saving in time.



Three trains carry Pullman Sleepers at night, Parlor Cafe Cars during the day, and Through Coaches and Free Reclining Chair Cars both day and night. This service compares favorably with that of any road in the country.

Write and tell us where you are going and when you will leave, and we will tell you what your ticket will cost and what train to take to make the best time and connections. We will also send you an interesting little book, "A Trip to Texas."

How Are Your Bowels?

About the first thing the doctor says—

Then, "Let's see your tongue."

Because bad tongue and bad bowels go together. Regulate the bowels, clean up the tongue. We all know that this is the way to keep and look well.

You can't keep the bowels healthy and regular with purges or bird-shot pills. They move you with awful gripes, then you're worse than ever.

Now what you want is Cascarets. Go and get them today—Cascarets—in metal box with the long-tailed "C" on the lid—cost 10c. Be sure you get the genuine! Cascarets are never sold in bulk. Take one! Eat it like candy, and it will work gently—while you sleep. It cures, that means it strengthens the muscular walls of the bowels, gives them new life. Then they act regularly and naturally. That's what you want. It's guaranteed to be found in

THE IDEAL LAXATIVE

Cascarets

Get the genuine if you want results! Tablet is marked "CCC." Cascarets are never sold in bulk, but only and always in the light blue metal box with the long-tailed "C." Look for the trade-mark—the C with a long tail—on the lid!

BEST FOR THE BOWELS

Bruce Roberts will move into the house on High St., lately occupied by Dudley Laws. Dudley Laws has moved into one of the Brittenheim houses on Pike street.

D. O. Jackson, local manager of the National American Souvenir Art Co., with a corps of skilled assistants, is here for the purpose of making pictures of all farm houses in Boone and other counties. These are to be put together in book form, making volumes of counties. Farmers should give this matter consideration, as it is of great interest to the rising generation.

Thos. J. Stephens, disgusted with politics, is taking of going to the mountains and camping the remainder of the autumnal season to hunt, fish and recuperate by strict personal attention to that business and that only. He can by the exercise of the imagination be seen tramping over the mountain (accompanied by G. Crisler's dog "Dot") with a gun on his shoulder, keeping a sharp look out for "bar."

On Saturday night the friends of Mr. Taylor Crowe visited his residence, where the Mandolin Club played some of their best music, as he would be moving to Covington on Monday. Mr. Crowe made his appearance and in broken words betraying deep emotion, thanked them for this demonstration of regard, dwelling on the length of time he had been living among them so pleasantly, and concluded by saying, "I go from here to Covington to dwell among strangers." The crowd responded in low tones, "May God have mercy on his soul," and then went in and condoled with him.

It again becomes the duty of this correspondent to call down the Post reporter at this place for making a misstatement, to the effect that Mr. Lermond had married the widow of his brother Warren. Mr. Lermond attributes the item to a former resident of this place, who once upon a time tried to get him when only a boy, to get a pup from Fritz Waltz, which he refused to do. This former resident hangs about newspaper men and snatches up items for them that are frequently distilled up in a style obscuring or distorting facts. What is astonishing about the whole thing, is that a respectable paper like the Enquirer, should have the same story verbatim et literatim in its columns, as the writer happens to know that the lines are drawn very strictly on correspondents of that paper.

Saturday afternoon there was quite a crowd gathered in and around the Short Line depot, leading one to believe that another tragedy akin to the one that occurred a week previously, had been enacted. It was happily, nothing of the kind, only Charley Lermond was bringing his young wife, formerly Miss Nettie Cogswell, of Indiana, home, and as he is a favorite everybody was—Ahem. The train came in on time and Charlie helped his pretty bride into the carriage where were his two sisters who gave her an affectionate greeting, and they were whisked off to High st., in a jiffy—Bud Hance driving like a Jehu. Acquaintance develops that she is a very sensible, interesting little lady, tho very retiring in her manners, which of course was expected, being thrown so suddenly among strangers. At a late hour the Mandolin Club gave a call and some good music. Every person seemed to endeavor to make her feel at home. Long life and happiness to them is the greeting of the Recorder.

It is conceded by everyone who heard Ollie James, Monday, that he goes all the gaits in speech making. Logic, humor, eloquence, sarcasm and ridicule are all natural talents with him.

For sprains, swellings and lameness there is nothing so good as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Try it. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; Grant, Bellevue; Balsly, Bullittsville.

Elijah Holton, of Petersburg, passed through town, one day last week, with a very fine calf which he purchased of Sam Hicks, of Richwood. It was only thee months old, but was nearly large enough for a yearling.

Columbus Kirtley, who was sent to the Asylum from this county, several months since, died in that institution last Friday. The remains were sent home for burial. He was a son of Owen Kirtley, of the North Bend neighborhood. He leaves a wife.

A. B. Rouse, chairman of the county campaign committee, has got the campaign going in fine shape. He has made a tour of the county, this week, with Hon. Ollie M. James, of Crittenden county, who delivers his last of the series of speeches at Walton, tonight.

Atty. Castleman addressed a good sized crowd at Rabbit Hash, last Thursday afternoon. After the speaking, A. B. Rouse, chairman of the county campaign committee, arranged for the organization of a Democratic club at that place. Atty. Sidney Gaines spoke at Bellevue, Friday night to a large crowd.

At a recent examination for admission as cadets to Annapolis Naval Academy, there were forty-one applicants who took the examination, among them being Walter H. Lassing, son of Dr. H. C. Lassing, of Union. Walter passed but will not be permitted to enter the academy until next fall. He was nominated by Congressman Berry.

There was a lively five inning game of ball played here last Saturday, between two mixed teams, composed of players from Bellevue, Petersburg and Burlington. Arthur Alloway, late of the Toronto club, held down first base for Burlington. There were several nice plays on each side. Score 5 to 0 in favor of Burlington. Mont Slayback made his first appearance behind the bat and did well.

Next Saturday, October 6, there will be an election for one school trustee in each common school district of Kentucky. This means the selection of over eight thousand public officers who will, for the next three years, help to control the school interests of the Commonwealth. The election will be held at the several school houses, and all legal voters are entitled to participate in it. The hours are from 1 p. m. to 6 p. m. and the voting is viva voce. The officers are a Judge and clerk, who are present at the opening of the poll.

A letter was received by Mrs. Sarah Dempsey, last Saturday evening, announcing the death of her son Grant's wife, on Sept. 23d, at their home in Kern county, California. Mrs. Dempsey, nee Nellie Blyth, was the youngest daughter of the late Arthur and Sarah Blyth, of Burlington. She was born here, where she passed her girlhood days. She united with the Presbyterian church in 1885. When she as bride left for California in December, 1890, she left relatives and many dear friends behind to go among strangers with her young husband to make a new home, where it is said she made many friends. Besides brothers and sisters, she leaves a husband and two little sons, aged nine and three years, to mourn for her. She expressed a perfect willingness to go, and felt she would meet the loved ones gone before. There is no death! What seems so is transition;
This life of mortal breath,
Is but the suburb of the life elysian,
Whose portals we call death.

Personal Mentions.

W. F. Grant is quite sick.

Sam Hall and wife were visiting relatives in Rising Sun, Sunday.

Our friend, Geo. Gordon, treated this office to a basket of delicious peaches, last Saturday.

Sheriff Beall, who has been laid up with malarial fever for a week, is very much improved.

Deputy Sheriff Aliphin was on the go all last week filling appointments to collect taxes.

C. H. Acra and D. M. Snyder, our Bellevue correspondents, made us a call, last Friday.

Boone Roberts and wife, of Verona, were guests of Judge Roberts, Sunday night and Monday.

J. H. Rogers, of Walton, was a guest of his sister, Mrs. Judge Roberts, Sunday night and Monday.

Misses Anna and Edna Cowen returned home Saturday after a visit of several days with friends in the city.

Mrs. Minerva White, who was reported quite ill, last week, has improved considerably and is up and about again.

Messrs. Geo. G. Dunlap and Grant, of Petersburg, were in town yesterday. The latter was on very important business.

W. Lee Gaines and family, of Kensington, were guests of Mr. Gaines' father and mother near here, Sunday night and Monday.

M. S. Rouse, of Florence, has bought a 150 acre farm, near Alexandria, Campbell county, and will move to it. He bought of Geo. W. Hill, of Covington.

Elder Edgar Jones was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Aliphiu, last Saturday night, and preached to a good congregation that came out on a very short notice.

Mrs. Bert Gaines had a carpet-rag sewing and a big dinner, last Wednesday. Quite a number of Burlington ladies were present, and report a most delightful occasion.

C. L. Hensley, of Lincoln county, is visiting friends and relatives in this county. He has not been in Burlington before for fifteen years, and has accumulated quite a lot of white hairs. Otherwise he is holding his own.

Wm. Gibson, of Rising Sun, Indiana, was among the big court day crowd in town, Monday. He planted a nice advertisement in the RECORDER, to which your attention is luvited. When in Rising Sun, do not fail to call on Geo. B. Gibson's Sons, where you will find anything in their line you want, and at prices that cannot be duplicated.

Chas. Westbay got hung up in an alley in Covington, with a load of hay yesterday. The rack on the rear end of his hay bed broke, letting a large portion of his load fall off. He reloaded part of it and intended to go back and get the remainder, but in his absence someone threw a match into the hay, and a lively blaze was soon in progress. The fire department was called, and extinguished the fire but ruined the hay.

JOHN TANEOUS.

Robbed The Grave.

A startling incident is narrated by John Oliver, of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50c, guaranteed, at McKim's, Burlington; Crouch's, Union; Oelsner's, Florence.

The Democrat who failed hearing the speech of Hon. Ollie James, Monday, missed a treat. He is the most captivating speaker that ever addressed an audience in the court house here, and 400 or 500 people gave him close attention for two hours and a quarter, without the least manifestation of weariness. He displayed all the talents that go to make a successful campaign orator, and he simply delighted his hearers last Monday. About half of his speech was devoted to national issues, and the remainder to state issues, all of which he handled with a skill that often worked his audience up to the highest pitch of enthusiasm. He is certainly a great success on the stump and the campaign committee can rest assured that the cause of the party in the State is in the hands of an able advocate when entrusted to him—who knows an abundance of facts and is not afraid to tell them. He is not abusive, but his sarcasm is at times is withering.

Mr. James spoke at Petersburg Monday night, and at Union, last night. At each place he was greeted by a large audience. He speaks at Walton tonight, where he will be heard by a large crowd.

The following letter was forwarded to Mrs. Belle Brady, of this place, by a friend who had been seeking information in regard to her three cousins who lived in Galveston previous to the recent disaster there:

GALVESTON, Sept., 14th, 1900.

Mr. W. A. Shreve, Bordentown, N. Y., Dear Sir:—Your telegram to Mr. J. B. Denison, was handed me yesterday. I had not been able to reach the office earlier, owing to long exposure in the storm.

I wired you yesterday, "Best information obtainable indicates the loss of Mrs. Barnard, Misses Maggie and Emma Hubbie—will write you soon," and it now becomes my exceedingly painful duty to confirm the same.

We knew and loved your dear ones well, and shall miss them, especially Miss Maggie, whose custom it was to drive with us, frequently, on Wednesdaysusually, and we came to look for her every Wednesday, if the weather was fair.

I write, even now, with difficulty, owing to physical weakness. The papers do not, I think, exagerate the story of the terrible calamity which has fallen on our city, and the estimate of the loss of life is conservative in the extreme. There is not a vestige of Mrs. Barnard's home remaining. That portion of the city looks as though it had never been occupied by inhabitants.

From information gathered by members of the United Modern and Woodmen of the World, the loss of life within the corporate limits of the city will exceed the number given by the press for the entire island and settlements in the vicinity of Galveston.

I shall not cease my inquiries regarding your loved ones and their effects, and will write you again if it be possible to obtain anything of moment to you.

Sincerely Yours, GEO. A. BEHRMAN.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of Philadelphia, when Dr. King's New Discovery cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. She says: "After all other remedies and doctors failed it soon removed the pain in my chest and I can now sleep soundly, something I can scarcely remember doing before. I feel like sounding its praises through the universe." Dr. King's New Discovery is guaranteed to cure all trouble of the Throat, Chest or Lungs. Price 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at McKim's, Burlington; Oelsner's, Florence; Crouch's, Union.

As Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bradford, of Hebron, were returning home, last Sunday, from the Ohio river, where the converts of the recent protracted meeting at Sand Run Baptist church, were that day baptized, Mr. Bradford had a stroke of paralysis that rendered him unconscious and totally helpless. He left home that morning in his usual health, and took part in the services at the baptizing, no one detecting anything unusual about him. The first thing that attracted Mrs. Bradford's attention, was her husband asking who lived in a house they were passing, she knowing that he was well acquainted with the people. It was shortly after this that the stroke came, Mr. Bradford falling forward on the dash board of the buggy. Mrs. Bradford succeeded in getting him back on the seat, and drove some distance to William Batterson's, that being the first house they came to at which any person was at home. Mr. Batterson assisted in getting Mr. Bradford home, where he has laid helpless and unconscious ever since. Mr. Bradford is 68 years old, and has been a delicate looking man all his life. He has many friends who ardently hope that he may recover.

When you can not sleep for coughing, it is hardly necessary that anyone should tell you you need a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to allay the irritation of the throat, and make sleep possible. Women can now vote in New Zealand and south Australia. They will probably be allowed to do so at the next elections in West Australia and Queensland, and have been promised the franchise in New South Wales. In Victoria the government is opposed, but gradually weakening.

In New York state 910 persons were killed and about 40,000 wounded in the factories last year. In the war with Spain 208 Americans were killed and 1,557 wounded. Based on these figures, the total killed and wounded annually in the industrial pursuits in the United States would be 20,000 killed and 900,000 wounded.

Chinese labor unions exist not only in New York, Chicago and other large cities, but also throughout the Pacific states, and are especially strong in California. The unions are composed of cigarmakers, shoe manufacturers, clothing makers and laundrymen. Most of the jeans coats and trousers worn west of the Rockies are made by Chinese.

There are not many people aware of the fact that for the last 27 years a war has been going on between the Dutch and the people of Achin, in North Sumatra. Since 1873 up to the present time this war has cost the Netherlands something like $100,000,000, and over 100,000 lives have been lost on the two sides. After all these years of fighting the end of this punitive war is no nearer than when it first commenced.

In New York storage battery electric cars are being put in operation on the Thirty-fourth street crosstown line as fast as their various parts can be assembled at the Metropolitan Co.'s shops. There are between 35 and 40 in all, and the same number of horse cars will be taken from the service when these are all ready. Twenty-eight compressed-air cars of a new pattern are also being made ready for use on the Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth street line.

The tea used in the immediate household of the emperor of China is treated with the utmost care. It is raised in a garden surrounded by a wall, so that neither man nor beast can get anywhere near the plants. At the time of the harvest those collecting these leaves must abstain from eating fish, that their breath may not spoil the aroma of the tea. They must bathe three times a day, and, in addition, must wear gloves.

Eleven queens use tobacco. The dowager empress of Russia, Queen Olga of Greece, Queen Olga of Wurtemburg, the queen regent of Spain, Queen Amelia of Portugal, Queen Marguerite of Italy, Carmen Sylva, the Roumanian queen, Queen Natalie of Servia and the queen of Egypt. The late empress of Austria used to smoke 30 cigarettes a day. The queen of Italy is said to have declared that her cigarette is more essential to her comfort than anything else in life; she always smoke in solitude.

Hsianfu, or Siganfu, the ancient capital of China, to which the empress dowager is said to have fled, is one of the most important cities of the Middle kingdom. More than 3,000 years ago, or about the time of Solomon, this ancient city, under the name of "Perpetual Peace," was the capital city of one of the feudal princes of the Chou dynasty, and from that time to this, under various fortunes, it has been either the first or the second city of the empire. It is situated more than six hundred miles southwest of Peking.

Indigo is cultivated all over India, giving employment to millions of natives and thousands of foreigners. In three districts alone, in Behar, where some of the finest indigo is grown, European capital is invested to the extent of no less than $25,000,000. Some 370,000 acres are under cultivation. There are 700 Englishmen managing and working on the "concerns," and 1,500,000 natives. An indigo concern may occupy anywhere between 1,000 and 10,000 acres, each cultivated acre producing, on an average, about 15 pounds to 20 pounds.

The polygamous wives whom the United States government compelled the Kiowa Indian men to discard a month ago are discontented. Among the 600 brown-skinned women who are thus left husbandless, there have been some pathetic scenes enacted in connection with the enforcement of this law. Two of the discarded wives of Chief Nanjo committed suicide. Six squaws belonging to Tall Elk, a warrior, killed themselves because they had to leave their lord's tepee. Curiously enough these abandoned wives were the youngest.

FILIPINO ACTIVITY.

Brisk Attacks at Las Pinas and Paranaque, Also in the Zambales and Batangas Provinces.

Manila, Oct. 1.—The Filipinos in the vicinity of Manila have been more quiet of late, although last Wednesday night there were brisk attacks at Las Pinas and Paranaque, south of Manila, as well as outpost firing at Imos, Bacoor and Muntin Lupa. The American officers are satisfied that the alleged amigos living in and around the towns in question participated in these attacks.

Official reports have been received of insurgent activity in Zambales province and in Batangas province. Two skirmishes occurred during the week on the Bicol river, in the province of South Camarines. It is estimated that the insurgents lost 90 killed in the various districts.

Two civilians, John McMahon and Ralph McCord, of San Francisco, who started on a business trip for Vigan and Bangued, in Northern Luzon, have not been heard from for three weeks.

Capt. Samuel E. Smiley, of the 15th United States infantry, formerly attached to the staff of Gen. Bates in the Philippines, who proceeded to China to join his regiment, but broke down there owing to the climate and hard work, is returning to the United States on the supply ship Celtic.

FOR STORM SUFFERERS.

Amount of Money Received By Gov. Sayers Was $672,476.29—Includes Funds in Transit.

Austin, Tex., Oct. 1.—Regarding the contributions for the Galveston flood sufferers, Gov. Sayers Sunday gave out the following statement:

"The amount of money received by me up to 12 o'clock noon of September 30, 1900, for the benefit of the storm sufferers on the Texas coast, is $672,476.29. This sum includes $3,892.50 that remained in my hands of the fund contributed for the relief of the Brazos River valley sufferers last year. It also includes all drafts and authorizations to draw and which are in transit and are yet uncollected. This statement, it must be borne in mind, embraces only moneys and remittances that have been made to me directly, and also amounts for which I have been authorized to draw.

"During the present week I will submit to the people of the United States a full and complete itemized statement of the entire fund that has come into my hands, giving the amount and source of each contribution, and also the manner in which the sum total received by me has been expended and distributed.

"Every portion of the storm stricken district is being provided for.

"Joseph D. Sayers,
"Governor of Texas."

BUILDING VESSELS.

During the Past Quarter 88,790 Gross Tons Were Constructed and Officially Numbered.

Washington, Oct. 1.—The quarterly statement of the commissioner of navigation shows that 308 vessels of 88,790 gross tons were built in the United States and officially numbered during the quarter ended September 30, 1900. Of the vessels constructed of wood 160 were sail and 127 steam. Of the steel vessels four were sail and 17 steam. Of the whole number 190 were built on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts; 28 on the Pacific; 32 on the great lakes, and 58 on the western rivers. The largest tonnage, 37,057, was on the great lakes, and the next largest was on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts.

LORD ROBERTS PROMOTED.

He Is Made Commander-in-Chief of the British Army—Lord Kitchener Will Assist Him.

Lord Roberts Commander-in-Chief.

London, Oct. 1.—It is officially announced that Lord Roberts has been appointed commander-in-chief of the British army.

The Times, in an editorial reference Monday morning to the appointment of Lord Roberts as commander-in-chief, hints that Lord Kitchener will come home to assist him at his new post.

Violated the Smoke Ordinance.

New York, Sept. 29.—A large number of warrents were issued Friday to officers of the health department for the arrest of persons charged with violating the smoke ordinance and burning soft coal. These with others summoned had their cases continued until next week. In all more than 50 were served.

Died of Blood Poisoning.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Oct. 1.—Elizabeth Johnston, aged 16, daughter of Brooks Johnston, of St. Louis, died of blood poisoning at Lyndon Hall school, in this city, where she was preparing for Vassar college. The disease first manifested itself in the form of a swelling on the lip.

Hobson Wants Rest.

Washington, Oct. 1.—Lieut. Hobson has applied to the navy department for six months' leave of absence because of eye trouble. It is understood that a specialist has recommended that his eyes be given complete rest for six months.

Contractor Dady's Offer.

Havana, Oct. 1.—Michael J. Dady the Brooklyn contractor, has offered to the municipality of Havana a complete sewerage and paving system or the city, in accordance with plans officially approved, for $10,000,000.

OFFERED AN ADVANCE.

An Increase of 10 Per Cent. Granted by a Pennsylvania Coal Co.

Organizer Harris Warns Strikers Against Accepting the Offer Until So Ordered By the Officials of the Union.

Shamokin, Pa., Oct. 1.—Notices were posted here Sunday by the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Co. to the effect that beginning with Monday an advance of ten per cent. on the net wages of all men and boys would obtain. While some strikers went to work Monday morning, others held that it would not be wise to act until President Mitchell had issued officially notice as to the course the men should pursue.

Interest is manifested as to whether the Reading Co.'s collieries will be able to work, irrespective of the recognition of the mine workers' union by the mine operators.

Shenandoah, Pa., Oct. 1.—The notices of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Co. offering miners an increase of ten per cent. in wages were posted Sunday in this town, at Mahanoy City and other places. Upon reading the notice Organizer George Harris, whose headquarters are at Mahanoy City, issued instructions to the president of local branches of the United Mine Workers to warn the strikers against returning to work until so ordered by the officials of the union. Placards were accordingly placed throughout the district notifying the mine workers to remain away from the collieries until President Mitchell should order them to work or until the local branches of the union should take concerted action.

Mr. Harris said the Reading Co. proposition was not acceptable because the men insist on the abolition of the "sliding scale," i. e., the $2.50 basis. They also demand a guarantee that the increase in wages shall be permanent.

Gen. Gobin Sunday ordered the 12th regiment home, and the soldiers left here on a special train over the Philadelphia & Reading railway at 8 o'clock Monday morning. There was a parade of all the troops Sunday, reviewed by Gen. Gobin. The town was full of visitors.

It is stated that since the English speaking branch of the United Mine Workers was organized here last week 150 additional members have been elected.

Meetings of mine workers were held in various sections of this district Sunday night, and the Reading Co.'s notice was discussed.

The meeting of the foreign employes in this town was addressed by C. S. Pottier, president of the Polish branch of the United Mine Workers here and a national organizer. After the meeting Mr. Pottier said the strikers in this vicinity were unanimous in their intention to abide by the instructions of the national board of the United Mine Workers.

Reports from Mahanoy City and other points in the Schuylkill region indicate that the same sentiment exists throughout the region. Organizer Pottier said Sunday night that 140 mine employes at Lost Creek joined the union Saturday night, and about the same number added their names to the roll at Sunday night's meeting here.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 1.—At every colliery in the anthracite region a notice will be posted Tuesday morning announcing a 10 per cent. increase in wages, based on the present scale, effective October 1, and that the operators will arbitrate any grievances employes may present. There is no condition to be attached as to the men returning to work before arbitration shall begin, so it is to be inferred that the men are privileged to meet in union and adopt any plan of action they may deem advisable before entering upon arbitration.

It is supposed the miners will come together as members of the union, fix the minimum of the concessions they will be content with, and then go forth as individuals to treat with their employers through committees of employes. If arrangements are concluded satisfactorily, the committees of employes will report back to the convention of United Mine Workers that they have come to a settlement, and the strike will then be declared off. This would avoid the recognition of the union by the operators and at the same time permit the union to regulate the terms of settlement.

Died of Heart Failure.

New York, Oct. 1.—Joseph Silverman, 48 years old, a wholesale liquor dealer of Great Falls, Mont., died suddenly of heart failure Sunday afternoon while visiting the home of Joseph I. Levy, of this city. Mr. Silverman, being in ill health, had come to New York early in the summer to get the benefit of the sea air at Brighton Beach.

DIED AT HIS POST.

Rev. Gilbert H. Gregory, of New York, Expires While Conducting Sunday Services.

New York, Oct. 1.—Rev. Gilbert H. Gregory died Sunday in the presence of his congregation at the morning service in St. Stephens' M. E. church, Marble Hill, at the upper end of Manhattan island.

Physicians had urged Dr. Gregory to retire from active church work, as he had long been a sufferer from heart trouble. They told him that he might live for years if he would cease labor, but if he continued to work he was liable to be stricken at any moment. As late as Saturday Dr. Darlington, of Kingsbridge, who was attending Dr. Gregory, warned him against preaching Sunday. The clergyman said to the physician: "I prefer to meet death that way to retiring and shirking my duty in order to live longer."

Dr. Gregory was 63 years old and had preached in St. Stephens' for three Sundays on account of heart attacks, but when word was passed around that he would resume his duties Sunday the church was filled.

WM. V. WOLCOTT DEAD.

Death Results at Indianapolis From a Stroke of Apoplexy Sustained on a Big Four Train.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 1.—William V. Wolcott, of Boston, died at St. Vincent's hospital from a stroke of apoplexy sustained on a Big Four train Saturday. Mrs. Wolcott arrived Sunday night from Boston, and Miss Camilla S. Wolcott, his daughter, came in Sunday morning from St. Louis.

Mr. Wolcott was a native of Onondaga, N. Y., and located in St. Louis about 30 years ago. He became a member of the firm of Wolcott & Hume, publishers of the Journal and Times, of St. Louis, and later was president of the St. Louis Car Coupler Co.

He owned large interests in Missouri zinc mines, and at the time of his death was senior partner in the banking firm of Wolcott & Co., with offices at 27 State street, Boston, and 7 Wall street, New York. A search of his effects brought to light the fact that he carried with him a large fortune. He had in his valise $500,000 in government bonds and about $2,000 in cash on his person.

SHOOTING ON A TRAIN.

Colored Porter on the Florida Express Seriously Wounds Pullman Conductor Near Chester, Pa.

Philadelphia, Oct. 1.—Julius Washter on the Florida express on the ter on the New York express on the Pennsylvania railroad, Sunday shot and seriously wounded A. E. Hindle, the Pullman conductor of the train whose home is in this city. The shooting occurred just after the train had left Chester, Pa., Sunday afternoon, for this city, and was the result of a quarrel.

According to those on board the train the conductor and the porter had been quarreling all the way from Washington and after leaving Chester the dispute again arose over a ticket.

MILITIA CALLED OUT.

Trouble Between Whites and Blacks at Georgetown, S. C.—A Race Riot Is Threatened.

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 1.—Monday morning at 12:50 o'clock Gov. McSweeney received a telegram from Mayor W. D. Morgan, of Georgetown, S. C., appealing to have the militia ordered out to suppress a threatened race riot. The governor immediately wired to Col. Sparkman, of Georgetown, to have his cavalry troops hurried there. The trouble was caused by a Negro killing a white man. Georgetown is on the coast and the Negroes outnumbered the whites overwhelmingly.

Heavy Liabilities.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 1.—Joseph B. Williams, a well-known steamboat captain and operator, filed a petition in bankruptcy individually and as a member of the Grand Lake Coal Co. in the United States district court. His liabilities are $183,716 and his assets $100.

Stage Coach Held Up.

Boise, Ida., Oct. 1.—The Ontario and Burns stage coach was held up 70 miles out of Ontario by a lone highwayman. The robber stopped the stage by firing a shot across the road. He demanded the mail, which was thrown out. The stage was not further molested.

Death of Gen. Cotton Greene.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 1.—Gen. Cotton Greene, prominent as a confederate soldier and leader of a brigade under Gen. Sterling Price, of Missouri, died here Sunday, aged 68.

WOMAN'S KIDNEY TROUBLES

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is Especially Successful in Curing this Fatal Woman's Disease.

Of all the diseases known with which the female organism is afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal. In fact, unless early and correct treatment is applied, the weary patient seldom survives.

Being fully aware of this, Mrs. Pinkham, early in her career, gave exhaustive study to the subject, and in producing her great remedy for woman's ills—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—was careful to see that it contained the correct combination of herbs which was sure to control that fatal disease, woman's kidney troubles. The Vegetable Compound acts in harmony with the laws that govern the entire female system, and while there are many so called remedies for kidney troubles, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the only one especially prepared for women.

The following letters will show how marvellously successful it is:

Aug. 6, 1899.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am failing very fast.—since January have lost, thirty-five or forty pounds. I have a yellow, muddy complexion, feel tired, and have bearing down pains. Menses have not appeared for three months; sometimes I am troubled with a white discharge, and I also have kidney and bladder trouble. I have been this way for a long time, and feel so miserable I thought I would write to you, and see if you could do me any good."—MISS EDNA FREDERICK, Troy, Ohio.

Sept. 10, 1899.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound according to directions, and can say I have not felt so well for years as I do at present. Before taking your medicine a more miserable person you never saw. I could not eat or sleep, and did not care to talk with any one. I did not enjoy life at all. Now, I feel so well I cannot be grateful enough for what you have done for me. You are surely a woman's friend. Thanking you a thousand times, I remain,

Ever yours
MISS EDNA FREDERICK,
Troy, Ohio.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have taken five bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and cannot praise it enough. I had headaches, leucorrhoea, falling of the womb, and kidney trouble. I also had a pain when standing or walking, and sometimes there seemed to be balls of fire in front of me, so that I could not see for about twenty minutes. Felt as tired in the morning when I got up as if I had had no sleep for two weeks. Had fainting spells, was down-hearted, and would cry."—MRS. BERTHA OFER, Second and Clayton Sts., Chester Pa.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot find language to express the terrible suffering I have had to endure. I had female trouble, also liver, stomach, kidney, and bladder trouble. I tried several doctors, also quite a number of patent medicines, and had despaired of ever getting well. At last I concluded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, thanks to your medicine, I am a well woman. I can not praise your medicine too highly for I know it will do all, and even more, than it is recommended to do. I tell every suffering woman about your Vegetable Compound, and urge them to try it and see for themselves what it will do."—MRS. MARY A. HIPLE, No. Manchester, Ind.

$5000 REWARD.—We have deposited with the National City Bank of Lynn, $5000, which will be paid to any person who can find that the above testimonial letters are not genuine, or were published before obtaining the writer's special permission. LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO.

HOWARD FOUND GUILTY

The Verdict Was Reached After an All-Night Session.

The Jury Condemns Him to Death for Being Implicated in the Murder of Senator Wm. Goebel.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 27.—The jury in the case of Jim Howard, the mountaineer, charged with being implicated in the murder of Senator Goebel, returned a verdict of guilty and fixed the penalty at death. The jury was disagreed only as to the punishment—ten favoring the death penalty on the very first ballot. The two who favored life imprisonment changed to the death penalty on the first ballot Wednesday morning. The instruction given to the jury—which the court was found, was brief to the point, and was as follows:

"To be found guilty if jury believes Howard fired the shot, or if he was present when Youtsey, Berry Howard or others fired the shot."

Under it the jury believed that Howard fired the shot that killed Senator Goebel, or was present when the shot was fired, and consequently knows who the assassin was.

The jury retired to its room at 9:10 a. m., and returned with its verdict at 9:43. The court-room was crowded with spectators, and the vast crowd was white with suppressed excitement, as Foreman Crutcher of the jury passed the written verdict up to the clerk. Deputy Clerk Elliott read the verdict, which found the defendant guilty and fixed his punishment at death. Howard occupied a seat by his attorneys. He did not display the least agitation and was apparently no more concerned than other persons in the court-room.

The verdict was a surprise, as the general public were led to believe that the jury was divided on the question of the guilt or innocence of the defendant, but it turned out that the difficulty in reaching a verdict was over the degree of punishment, some of the jurors favoring life imprisonment, while others stood out for the death penalty and finally won their associates over. After the verdict had been rendered, Howard was remanded to jail, where he was followed by his bosom friend, John G. White, who seemed almost paralyzed by the verdict. Howard's cheeks also blanched as he stood up to accompany the jailor back to his cell. The jury which tried the case was divided politically, eleven democrats and one republican.

Frankfort, Sept. 27.—The verdict of the jury was based largely upon the destruction of Howard's alibi, upon which he depended solely. One of the jurors admitted that the failure of Howard to bring any of the occupants of the executive building on January 30 to testify that he was not there was considered by the jury as an indication that he was there. The testimony of Gaines as to seeing Howard run out of the grounds and also of Stubblefield, who swore that Howard confessed the killing a few days after the murder, were the other principal points upon which the jury relied.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 28.—Howard's attorneys have asked Judge Cantrill for a new trial. Among the affidavits secured on which the defense bases its claim for a new trial are that the jurors had previously expressed an opinion.

Just before noon Thursday, Maj. Owens, Howard's leading attorney, appeared before Judge Cantrill and made a formal motion for a new trial for the prisoner. The affidavit of Howard, stating facts set forth in the affidavits filed early in the morning were not discovered until after the trial began, was presented, together with a petition alleging errors during the trial. A bill of exceptions was also presented.

Commonwealth Attorney Franklin asked until Saturday morning, at which time he will present counter affidavits. Judge Cantrill, therefore, adjourned court until Saturday morning, when the motion will be passed upon.

CONVICT CAMP MANAGERS.

Are Charged With Kidnaping Innocent Negroes, Without Form of Trial Put Them to Work.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 27.—Charges have been filed with the prison commission of Georgia by Solicitor J. W. Edmondson, of Brooks county, against the McRee convict camp managers in Lowndes county; this state, in the form of affidavits from prominent citizens to the effect that the McRee brothers have kidnaped innocent men and women and made them work under armed guards for an indefinite period. It is charged that one practice of the McRee camp has been to employ "trappers" to arrest innocent Negroes passing through the county and without the form of trial to imprison them and put them to work.

Torpedo Boat Destroyer Launched

Richmond, Va., Sept. 27.—The torpedo boat destroyer Decatur, one of the largest vessels of its class in the navy, was launched Wednesday afternoon at the William R. Trigg Co.'s ship yards here in the presence of several thousand persons.

Secretary Morrill in Berlin.

Berlin, Sept. 27.—Samuel Morrill, third secretary of the United States embassy, succeeding B. Percival Dodge, recently appointed second secretary, has arrived in Berlin and entered upon his duties.

THE KING OF STALLIONS.

Cresceus Won in Five Hard Driven Heats the $20,000 Purse on the Readville Track, Boston.

Boston, Sept. 28.—Cresceus, the king of stallions added a jewel to his crown Thursday by winning in five hard driven heats the $20,000 race at the meeting of the New England Trotting Horse Breeders' association on the Readville track. So much of a favorite was the son of Robert McGregor before the trial began that the pools were barred against him.

It looked for two heats as if the great stake would be wrested from the king by that wonderful little trotter, Charley Herr, the winner of the Massachusetts stake race last year. But, game as was Charley Herr, his strength was not equal to the task, and his star set in the third heat, when Cresceus beat him at the wire. Once after that, in the fourth heat, the Lexington horse made a wonderful bid for the race, leading to the three-quarters and then being beaten out on the stretch by Cresceus, who seemed to have marvelous speed just when it meant so much to him.

RED CROSS IN GALVESTON.

An Auxiliary Society Organized—All Public Relief Will Hereafter Be Conducted Through It.

Galveston, Tex., Sept. 28.—The Galveston auxiliary of the American National Red Cross Society was organized Thursday when the relief committee operating under the central relief committee and the ladies' relief association were amalgamated. All the public relief work will hereafter be conducted through the auxiliary and it is intended to make it a permanent organization. Miss Clara Barton has recovered from her illness and she was introduced to the central committee Thursday. Friday she will address the committee on the subject of home building.

The railroads are still having trouble in getting men to work both in Galveston and up in the state. There is an immense amount of work to be done on all lines and men have their choice of jobs. Cotton pickers up the state are being paid from 75 cents to $1.00 per hundred pounds for picking cotton and Negro laborers quit the railroads to work in the fields for the higher wages.

MEMPHIS CELEBRATES.

Brought Forward From the Sixth City in 1890 to the Third City in the South in Population.

Washington, Sept. 28.—The population of the city of Memphis, Tenn., as officially announced Thursday is: 1900, 102,320; 1890, 64,495. These figures show, for the city as a whole, an increase in population of 58.65 per cent. from 1890 to 1900.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 28.—The official figures on the census of Memphis, issued from Washington Thursday, which had been held back for verification because they showed such large increase, were the occasion of a celebration here Thursday night. A parade of 15,000 people formed at 8 o'clock and accompanied by several brass bands and carrying torches, marched through the principal streets. The celebration is continued Friday. The figures given out, 102,320, an increase of 58.65 per cent., brings Memphis forward from the sixth city in the south in 1890, including New Orleans and Louisville, to the third in 1900.

Jealous Husband's Deeds.

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Jealous at supposed intimacy with Albert Micka, Joseph Skoup, employed as a watchman in John Dauber's lumber yard, shot thrice and fatally wounded his wife at their home in West Eighteenth street, Wednesday afternoon. The enraged man then swallowed carbolic acid and, pressing his revolver against his temple, fired. Death was immediate.

To Relieve India Famine Sufferers.

Springfield, Ill., Sept. 28.—Rev. Dr. Richard S. Hobbs, who has been engaged for several months in securing subscriptions for the relief of the famine sufferers in India, returned Thursday from New York. He says $600,000 has been secured by him, and that 200,000 bushels of corn have been purchased.

Claim Chicago Elevators Are Unsafe

Chicago, Sept. 28.—The authorities will bring suit against owners of 4,500 dangerous elevators. Of the 5,000 elevators in Chicago, not 500 are properly equipped with appliances for preventing accidents.

TROOPS ARE LEAVING.

Many Russians and the Legation Depart From Peking.

Allied Commanders Decided to Dispatch Combined Land and Naval Expedition to Shan Hai Kwan, on the Gulf of Liao Tung.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Reports received here tend to show a weakening of the Boxer power with the Chinese government. Prince Tuan, the archconspirator against foreigners, is reported to have been deposed and Wan Wen Chao, reputed to be strong in character and a man of intelligence, has been named to succeed him. Kung Yi, a potent factor in the Boxer movement, is alleged to have committed suicide because of the repulse to his ambitions.

The rulers of China have taken steps to mollify the powers by bringing guilty officials to justice. Prince Tuan will be among the number punished.

The state department has not been advised officially of the events of more or less importance which are said to have occurred in China, according to various European reports, within the past 24 hours. If Tuan has been degraded, and if Russia contemplates a blockade of the Chinese naval ports, the department does not know the facts. It has let it be known to the Chinese government that Tuan's promotion would be unwelcome to this government, but it has not yet been informed of the results of that representation. Respecting the statement that Ching has been discovered to be a contributor to the Boxer cause, it is said that all the information that the department has been able to secure touching Ching's personality went to show his unvarying friendliness for the foreigners, and upon that record he was accepted as a competent envoy.

Peking, Sept. 28, via Taku, Sept. 28, via Shanghai, Oct. 1.—At the conference of generals to-day the Russian commander, Gen. Linovitch, announced the immediate withdrawal from Peking of the bulk of the Russian troops and the legation. He will leave on Thursday, September 27, and the legation will follow on Saturday. There will remain a mixed force of about 2,000 to represent Russia.

Gen. Linovitch asserted that the dispatch from St. Petersburg transmitting the order to withdraw contained a statement that all the powers were adopting the same policy. The other generals replied that they had received no orders of that nature.

German and Japanese columns are operating to the southward near the imperial deer park.

Sir Alfred Gaselee, the British commander, has gone to Tien-Tsin to inspect the British troops there.

Friction between the British and Russians over the railway continues, each party seizing and guarding small sections. The repairing is unsystematic and the completion of the work very indefinite.

Tien-Tsin, Sept. 28, via Shanghai, Oct. 1.—Orders from Washington directing the withdrawal of the bulk of the American troops were received this afternoon and preparations to comply will be begun immediately. Gen. Chaffee is here directing the movement, which will commence at the earliest possible moment.

It is understood that the plan contemplates leaving a regiment of infantry, a squadron of cavalry and a battery of artillery in Peking to protect American interests and that the remainder of the troops will proceed to Manila.

The allied commanders had decided to dispatch a combined land and naval expedition to Shan Hai Kwan, on the gulf of Liao Tung, leaving Taku October 1, the total land force being 4,200. The American detail had not yet been made, nor had a decision been reached as to the naval force. Now that the order to withdraw has been received from Washington, it is possible that the plans for the expedition will have to be modified, so far as American participation is concerned. Gen. Chaffee is proceeding on the opposite assumption and has ordered the 5th marine battalion to prepare to go.

The United States armored cruiser Brooklyn will probably be the only American war ship in the expedition. The troops will go by water and will be landed south of Shan Hai Kwan. They will co-operate with a large Russian contingent already on the way.

The news of the American withdrawal created a sensation among the representatives of the other powers here.

Tien-Tsin, Sept. 23, via Taku, Sept. 26, via Shanghai, Sept. 28.—Li Hung Chang told Gen. Chaffee to-day that his chief desire was to effect a cessation of hostilities and he promised that the Chinese would not again take the initiative in fighting.

Secretary Hay at His Desk.

Washington, Oct. 1.—Secretary Hay returned Sunday from his summer's vacation in New Hampshire and Monday occupied his desk at the state department. Dr. Hill, who has been acting secretary the latter part of the summer, spent several hours with the secretary.

Contract for a New Steamer.

Berlin, Sept. 29.—The Hamburg-American Steamship Co. has awarded a contract for the construction of a new steamer at Belfast to be 750 feet long.

A FILIPINO VICTORY.

Captain and Company of the 20th Volunteer Infantry and a Gunboat Captured.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Gen. MacArthur cables, reporting the capture by the insurgents of Capt. Shields and 51 men of the 20th volunteer infantry and the gunboat Villalobes.

The officers of the gunboat Villalobes were Lieut. Edward Simpson commanding; Ensign Irwin F. Landis and Naval Cadet Roe W. Vincent. Lieut. Simpson has seen over 14 years' actual sea service. He entered the navy on June 17, 1875. He returned from his last tour of sea service in May, 1896, and was assigned to shore duties. On February 1, 1898, he was ordered to Brooklyn. Ensign Landis has seen not quite three years of sea service. He joined the navy September 6, 1899, and his last cruise expired in May, 1899. He was ordered to the Asiatic station on December 22, 1899. Cadet Vincent has had one year and seven months of sea service. On February 1, 1899, he was assigned to the New Orleans.

The war department has made public a list of officers and men of Company F, 29th regiment of infantry, whose captain and 51 members were captured or killed by insurgents of Maranduque, Philippine Islands. Among the men and their places of enlistment are:

Sergt. Harry McKinley, Cook William C. Daily, Archie R. Bratton, Thomas B. Ellis, Killer J. Fallowell, Ed H. Kidd, Jeff T. Sharp, Everett F. Smiley, Hustonville, Ky.; Private Carl Atlinger, Amsy Hill, Sam N. Turney, Toledo, O.; Howard Bible, Fred Maas, Ernest Milligan, Zanesville, O.; Chas. P. Bratton, Huntsville, Ky.; Webster Cassell, Francis L. Judd, John A. Maione, Cyrus L. Pemberton, Simon Schooley, David S. Whetstone, Anderson, Ind.; Hiram, Rice, Sisterville, W. Va.

The remainder of the company was enlisted at Ft. Pherson, Ga., and at various points in Georgia, North Carolina, Florida, Louisiana, Alabama and Tennessee.

NAPTHA TANK EXPLODED.

All Windows in the Vicinity Were Broken—Explosion Was Heard For Miles Around.

New York, Sept. 29.—Saturday morning a naptha tank exploded in the Central Gas Light Co.'s works at the foot of East 138th street. The explosion was heard for miles around and broke all windows in the vicinity. The burning naptha flowed down the street and into the engine room of the gas company, setting it afire. Two alarms of fire were turned in and the fire boat was summoned. The flames at times shot 70 feet into the air.

The fire is still burning fiercely and the firemen are fighting desperately to prevent it from spreading to the gas holders nearby.

There has been no loss of life so far.

COMING TO AMERICA.

Thousands of Boers Will Emigrate From South Africa and Settle in the Northwest.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 29.—Hundreds and perhaps thousands of Boers will emigrate from South Africa to the United States and settle in the northwest. Theodore Vongrecht, of Holland, who has of late years made his home in South Africa, is in St. Paul to arrange satisfactory railroad rates over the western lines. Mr. Vongrecht will bring a large contingent of Boers to this country in the spring if conditions are favorable.

"There are hundreds and thousands of Boers," he says, "who are anxiously awaiting opportunity to leave their present environments and embark for another land."

OUR FLAG INSULTED.

A Mob of Mexicans Pulled Down Old Glory, Flying Over the Consulate at Chihuahua, Mex.

San Antonio, Tex., Sept. 9.—United States Consul W. W. Mills, at Chihuahua, Mex., has sent a note to the federal authorities here and also to the state department at Washington detailing an insult to the American flag over his consulate on September 16, the anniversary of Mexican independence, by a mob of Mexicans. He had hoisted the United States and Mexican flags in honor of the day and the mob tore down the United States colors.

Dropped From the Gallows Twice.

Raleigh, N. C., Sept. 29.—Archie Kinsauls was hanged at Clinton, Sampson county, Friday, for the murder of John Herring. He died from strangulation after being first dropped from the gallows. After Kinsauls had hung for ten minutes the attending physician requested the sheriff to place the body on the gallows and drop it again, which was done.

Its Two Hundredth Year.

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 29.—Yale university reopened Friday morning for the beginning of its 200th year. The incoming class in the undergraduate department is slightly increased over that of last year, the freshmen numbering 550.

Actor Dies of Consumption.

Washington, Sept. 29.—Thomas Luther, of Memphis, Tenn., an actor who has been playing here this week with Katherine Osterman in a vaudeville sketch, died Friday night of consumption. He was 25 years of age

STATE NEWS HAPPENINGS.

DEMOCRATS CAUCUS.

They Have Reached An Agreement on the Kentucky Election Bill, and It Will Pass.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 25.—Both houses of the legislature held brief sessions Monday. The senate met, but the election bills proposed by both the majority and minority of the committee had not been printed. A committee was appointed to call upon the printer and hurry up the work of printing. The house was in session only two minutes, and did nothing but approve Saturday's journal.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 27.—The democrats of the house Wednesday morning reached an agreement on an election bill, and it will pass without a dissenting democratic vote. The agreement was reached at a meeting of the house special committee on suffrage and elections, both conservatives and radicals being represented by their leading men. Messrs. Orr and Cochran represented the conservative element. Mr. Cochran said on Wednesday morning after the meeting: "Thank the Lord, our troubles are over and we have agreed upon a bill and it will pass." Mr. Cantrill was the only democrat absent. He said he was opposed to the bill, but would be bound by caucus action and vote for it. So a caucus will be held.

The bill agreed upon provides that the state board shall consist of one democrat and one republican and a state officer. They shall appoint the county boards, one or two from each party and from lists submitted. They shall also appoint an umpire. This will give the democrats a majority in each county board, but the boards shall have only ministerial powers, except as to questioned ballots. It is said that the democrats in the senate will readily accept this compromise.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 29.—The real fight over the election law may be reached in the senate Saturday. The democrats in the senate who favor the house bill were talking Friday night of offering the house makeshift as a substitute for the senate bills, and if this is done, a test vote will be had on it early. The senate listened to the first reading of the house bill and discussed the Alexander substitute, but took no action.

GIRL IN A TRANCE.

Mary Shawan Was Believed to Be Dead on Three Different Occasions—A Strange Case.

Williamstown, Ky., Sept. 29.—While sitting in a buggy at the blue and gray reunion Thursday Mary Shawan, of Mt. Zion, fell back on the cushions and to all appearances was dead. She was conveyed to a nearby residence and medical aid summoned. Physicians pronounced her dead and the supposed corpse was removed to her home.

Friday morning a report was received here that she had been in a comatose state and revived shortly after being taken to her home. On two previous occasions she had two similar experiences. Twice she was pronounced dead and prepared for burial, but came from the trances into which she had fallen.

The Mob Failed to Appear.

Albany, Ky., Sept. 29.—E. A. Cross, jailer of this county, received word from two different sources that a mob was forming to come and take Bill Orick and Travis Brown out of jail and lynch them. Cross prepared himself, but the mob failed to appear. Orick is charged with killing Wade Raina at Concord, this county, last month. Brown is charged with killing Miss Celia Jones, aged 14, at her home, near Cartwright.

Culton Released on Bail.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 27.—W. H. Culton who is under an indictment as an accessory to the Goebel murder, and who gave damaging evidence against both Howard and Caleb Powers was released on bail Wednesday afternoon and his case continued till the January term. His bond was fixed at $10,000, and his brother-in-law, E. E. Hogg, of Owsley county, and J. F. Halcomb and John Johnson of Jackson county, became his sureties.

Given a Life Sentence.

Winchester, Ky., Sept. 28.—Lou Bush, who murdered her three-months-old child last March, and who, when arrested on the charge, confessed her guilt, was sentenced to the penitentiary for life.

Held Under Big Bond.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 28.—Coroner Hugh McCullough was presented in the city court Thursday morning and held to answer in $10,000 bond, which he gave. He is charged with killing a neighbor.

Over Fifteen Cents.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 28.—William Hulett, who killed James Jenkins Sunday, September 16, was given 21 years in the penitentiary Thursday afternoon. The killing was the result of a contention over a 15-cent jackpot in a poker game.

Billy Treacy's New Position.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 28.—W. J. Treacy has accepted the position of superintendent of the racing department of the Georgia state fair at Atlanta. It will be a mixed meeting, trotters and runners.

BANKERS ELECT OFFICERS.

George C. Thompson, of Paducah, President—A Vice President From Each District.

Lexington, Ky., Sept. 28.—The Kentucky Bankers' association closed its two days' session here Thursday and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, George C. Thompson, of Paducah; vice president, First congressional district, S. N. Leonard, of Eddyville; Second district, W. T. Handy, of Hopkinsville; Third district, W. B. Smith, of Glasgow; Fourth district, C. B. Skillman, of Cloverport; Fifth district, Oscar Fenley, of Louisville; Sixth district, S. L. Howard, of Ghent; Seventh district, Buckner Woodford, of Paris; Eighth district, B. M. Arnott, of Nicholasville; Ninth district, John N. Ross, of Carlisle; Tenth district, Floyd Day, of Jackson; Eleventh district, J. M. Richardson, of Somerset; secretary, Isham Bridges, of Louisville; treasurer, E. W. Hay, of Louisville. Executive committee: For three years, L. C. Murray, John W. Barr, jr., James S. Escott, of Louisville; for two years, H. C. Walbeck, of Louisville; J. A. Crabb, of Eminence; E. S. Lee, of Covington.

LOUISVILLE TRAGEDY.

Druggist Bossung Killed His Sweetheart and Then Blew Off His Head With a Shotgun.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 28.—John Bossung, who kept a drug store at Jefferson and Fourteenth streets, shot and killed Grace Preston at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon, and committed suicide. Bossung and Grace Preston had had considerable trouble with each other lately, due principally, it is said, to Bossung's jealousy. At 2 p. m. Thursday the couple were seen to go upstairs to the rooms over the drug store where they lived, and it is said they quarreled for two hours. After two shots had been heard persons who entered the rooms found Grace Preston dead and in another room found Bossung who, after killing the woman, had blown off his head with a shotgun.

FLAMES ON A LAUNCH.

The Naphtha Leaked and Caught Fire—The Vessel, in Order to Save Other Craft, Sunk in River.

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 29.—A naptha launch blazing like a bonfire, floated among the steamboats at the Louisville wharf Friday and the boatmen were compelled to summon all hands to save their craft from catching fire.

The launch was finally sunk in the river. Naptha was leaking and caught fire from a cigar in the hands of the owner of the boat, Dr. W. W. Durrett, just as he was about to board it. Dr. Durrett was severely burned.

Howard's Visitors.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 29.—Jim Howard Friday appeared much better than for some time. He slept well Thursday night and eats heartily. Street fair visitor still flock to the jail in large numbers to see him. About 250 called Thursday afternoon. Of late Howard has been seeing all who ask for him. He is more cordial in manner toward them, but speaks but little of his trial.

Learning the Road.

Paducah, Ky., Sept. 28.—Thomas McEnherny, who came here two weeks ago from Columbus, O., and was injured Monday by being knocked from the top of a freight train which was entering Claxton tunnel on the Louisville division of the I. C. road, died Thursday. McEnherny had secured a position as conductor and was learning the road.

The Sissons Surrender.

Warsaw, Ky., Sept. 28.—John Sisson and son Lemuel, who, it is charged, shot and killed John Conner and Martin Deveroux here last Saturday, surrendered Thursday and were admitted to bail in $750 each. The father executed the bond and was released, but the son was unable to secure bondsmen.

Confederate Veterans Meet.

Williamstown, Ky., Sept. 28.—Seven thousand people were here Thursday attending the reunion of the 4th Kentucky confederate cavalry. Union soldiers are participating. There was a street parade, a public dinner and speeches by Breckinridge, Duke, McCreary and others.

Suicided by Shooting.

Brooksville, Ky., Sept. 27.—Albert Cline, the 19-year-old son of Charles Cline, of Bradford, this county, committed suicide by shooting himself through the right temple. The cause is unknown.

Ex-Gov. Bradley at Home.

Lancaster, Ky., Sept. 29.—Ex-Governor W. O. Bradley is now in this city and will remain here a while with family. He is just back from a York, where he transacted legacies with some college endowments.

Sept. 28,

Hit a Peach Stone.

Owensboro, Ky., Sept. 28.—The year-old daughter of Jos. Louis Dufarmer, is thought to be fatally injured by a peach stone striking a tollgate and striking a main street, at stone which collected regularly.

OWEN COUNTY.

From Owenton Herald.

Congressman J. W. Gayle has secured for Millie Berry, a colored woman of Paris, a pension of $12 per month, with back pay for nine years, amounting to about $1300.

Last Monday was a pretty good day for stock sales, about 40 horses changing hands at the Palace Stables at prices ranging from $60 to $140, and 75 weanling mules at from $30 to $60.

At Jesse Sebastian's near Holbrook, last Monday Frank Crawford, a well-known painter, about 65 years of age, committed suicide by hanging. In the absence of the family from home he took the well rope and did the work.

There will be rather an unique prayer meeting at the Baptist church Thursday evening, consisting of a praise and thanksgiving service over the fact that the church has completed paying for their building. The notes and mortgage will be burned in the presence of the congregation. Everybody cordially invited.

Last Monday evening Joe Fortner, aged 32 years and unmarried, was found dead in the rear of Jacob's saloon. The body was taken to Undertaker Hartsough's and the Coroner, who was in town, held an inquest, the verdict of which was that the deceased came to his death from apoplexy. He was a frequent visitor to Owenton and was known to nearly everybody in the county. He lived at El Bethel, where the remains were taken for burial.

The Concord Association, which met at Mussel Shoals church, had a very pleasant session. The attendance of messengers was not large, owing to the busy season. The crowd the first day was very large, generally estimated at about a thousand. The entertainment was first-class in every respect. Nine churches across Eagle withdrew to form a new Association known as White's Run. Their departure was very fraternal and the withdrawal only made for convenience, as the Association is very large, composed of 37 churches. The contributions to all objects were unusually good. Four hundred dollars more was contributed this year to all missions than last year. The meeting will be held next year at Salem church this county, one month later than this year.

Recalling the historic incident clustering about South Carolina's Executive Mansion, Mrs. Thaddeus Horton writes, in the October Ladies' Home Journal, of the shocking tragedy that occurred there toward the close of the war. This was the death of the daughter of Governor Pickens immediately after her marriage to Lieutenant Le Rochelle. "On the afternoon preceding the evening of the marriage the Northern Army began shelling Columbia, but preparations for the wedding continued. Finally the guests were all assembled and the clergyman was proceeding with the solemn ceremony, and had just joined the right hands of the happy pair, when suddenly, there was an awful crash, and a ball from the enemy's cannon penetrated the mansion and burst in the middle of the marriage chamber, scattering the death-dealing missiles in every direction. There were screams and a heartrending groan; mirrors crashed; the house shook; women fainted; and walls rocked to and fro.

"When the first confusion was over it was discovered that in all the crowd only one person was injured, and that was the bride herself. She lay partly on the floor and partly in her lover's arms, crushed and bleeding, pale but very beautiful, her bridal gown drenched with warm blood, and a great cut in her breast. Laying her on a lounge, the frantic bridegroom besought her by every term of tenderness and endearment to allow the ceremony to proceed, to which she weakly gave consent, and lying like a crushed flower from this great, angry wound, she murmered 'yes' to the clergyman, and received her husband's first kiss. A moment more and all was over.

"She was laid to rest under the magnolias, and the heartbroken bridegroom, reckless with despair, returned to his regiment."

A process for preventing decay in wood, new to this country is a Hassel mann system which is now being introduced by the Xyloseote Company. The sap is drawn out of the timber by an air pump, and the wood is steeped in a solution of metalic and mineral salts. Soft wood is thus made hard, and green wood after treatment, neither shrinks nor warps. Thus the expense of seasoning is saved. The Russian Government is having the railway sleepers "preserved" by this process, and the Bavarian government has ordered that all its railway sleepers and telegraph poles shall be [illegible] during the next five years. Six [illegible] Elk, a [illegible] because they [illegible] of timbers is [illegible] Canada [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] wire [illegible] wood [illegible]

Crop and Stock.

It is said that a fruit tree propagator has produced a seedless apple. These new apples are claimed to be superior in flavor to the ordinary kinds and high prices are being paid for the trees.

Canada will raise the biggest crop of tobacco this year in its history. Most of it will be of the burley variety and come in competition with the famous tobacco of this type produced in Ohio and Kentucky. The Canadians are beginning to think they can produce an article the equal of Ohio and Kentucky burley.

It is claimed that a bushel of corn fed to fowls will will make 9 pounds of live poultry or seven and one tenth pounds of dressed poultry, or twelve and one half pounds of eggs. Upon this basis, which is a reasonably fair one the profit may be counted and will make as good a showing as with almost any other class of stock kept on the farm.

Farmers, if you follow these instructions you need never go to any expense to dehorn your cattle which are now commencing to grow up. Buy a five cent stick of potash, and when the little horns make the first sign of starting on the calves wet them with a little water and rub them over with the caustic stick and that calf will never know that nature intended that it should have horns.—Ex.

There are hundreds of horses and thousands of cattle in the Hawaiian islands which never take a drink of water throughout the whole course of their lives. On the islands the upper altitudes of the mountains are given up to cattle ranges. The cattle run wild from the time they are born until they are sent to the slaughter house. Except during possibly two or three months of the rainy season, there are no streams or pools of water in any part where the cattle range, but everywhere there grows a recumbent jointed grass, known by the native name of maninia. This is both food and drink. Horses and cattle grazing on it neither require water nor drink it when offered.

AN OLD FASHIONED GIRL.

And so well she cooks a chicken that your appetite will quicken, but she cannot tell modern from antique.

She knows how to set a table and make order out of babel, but she doesn't know Euripides from Kaul

Once at making pie I caught her —Jovol and expert must have taught her—but she doesn't know true eloquence from rant.

She has a firm conviction one ought only to read fiction, but she dosen't care for science, not one bit.

And the way she makes her bonnets, sure is worth a thousand sonnets, but she doesn't yearn for "culture," not one whit.

She can make her wraps and dresses, till a fellow fast confesses, that there's not another maiden half so sweet.

She's immersed in home completely where she keeps all things so neatly, but from Browning not a line can she repeat.

Well, in fact, she's just a woman, gentle, lovable and human, and her faults she is quite willing to admit.

'Twere foolish to have tarried, so we went off and got married, and I tell you I am mighty glad of it.

"For three days and nights I suffered agony untold from an attack of cholera morbus brought on by eating cucumbers," says M. E. Lowther, clerk of the district court, Centerville, Iowa. "I thought I should surely die, and tried a dozen different medicines but all to no purpose. I sent for a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and three doses relieved me entirely." This remedy is for sale by McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; Grant, Bellevue; Balsly, Bullittsville.

TEN HEALTH COMMANDMENTS.

The following ten rules are being quoted by English medical journals:

1. Don't leave your rooms in the morning with an empty stomach.

2. Never expose yourself to cold air immediately after you have partaken of a warm liquid of any kind.

3. Don't leave your abode in cold weather without warm wraps around your shoulders and breast.

4. Begin respiration in the cold by breathing through the nose This will give the air a chance to get warm before reaching the lungs.

5. Never place your back near a heated oven nor against a well, warm or cold.

6. Don't stand before an open window in a railway carriage, nor take a drive in an open [illegible] after violent physical exercise.

7. Don't remain motionless in a cold room, and do not stand in an open space, on ice or snow.

8. Talk only when you must, for the old phrase, "Speech is silver, silence is gold," holds good even in hygiene.

9. Don't put off your regular bath. When the skin is not kept fresh and soft the cold draws the pores together and you are rendered susceptible to pulmonary troubles of all kinds.

10. Don't retire with cold or wet feet. Nothing prevents sleep with so much certainty as the neglect of your pedal extremities.

GOOD FARM FOR SALE.

Desiring to retire from farming I offer for sale my farm of 62 acres, near Florence, this county, and known as the Alleu Conner farm. About one-half of this land was never plowed, and the entire track is very fertile and under splendid fence. The dwelling of seven rooms is in excellent repair throughout. All necessary outbuildings in good order. There is abundance of good stock water in the dryest seasons. It has an orchard of 3 acres. Terms made known on application. This is one of the best farms in the county, and is well located. JOHN BENTHAM,
Florence, Ky.

MIAMI UNIVERSITY a state institution. Oxford, Ohio, 40 miles north of Cincinnati; 77th year opens September 12; 16 men in the faculty. Both sexes received on equal terms.

TUITION FREE. $200 covers all necessary expenses; $160 for board, room rent, books, military uniform, laboratory and incidental fees for school year. Excellent gymnasium equipment. Military drill by U. S. army officer. This school, supported by the State, in a small town, in a mild and genial climate, having commodious buildings and campus of rare beauty, is an ideal place for study and mental and physical training.

In his speech at Ann Arbor, Michigan last week, Mr. Bryan was asked;

"How about free silver?" Mr. Bryan said: "I am going to pause long enough to gratify this enthusiastic gentleman who wants to know about silver. Your party promised you in 1896 to bring you international bimetallism. It brought the gold standard. In 1896 you were afraid of a fifty cent dollar, but you do not worry about an 85 per cent citizen in Porto Rico to-day. In 1896 (jeers and yells)—I am afraid you do not want your question answered further. I am not through, yet you seem to have enough. You were afraid we could not have a double standard of money in 1896 now you want a double standard of government, republic here and a despotism in the Philippine Islands. In 1896 you were afraid we could not maintain the parity between a white citizen here and a yellow subject in the Philippines. Why is it you are so much concerned about a matter of dollars and not at all concerned about a matter of government and of human rights? We are in favor of the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation on earth. Your President is now coining silver dollars at the ratio of 16 to 1 without waiting for the aid or consent of anvother nation on earth. Your party has never proposed a change in the ratio. If 16 to 1 is wrong let your party change it; it has the Senate and House."

A mother sent her small boy into the country, and after a week of anxiety received this letter: "I got here all right but forgot to write before. A feller and I went out in a boat and the boat tipped over and a man got me out. I was so full of water that I didn't know anything for a long time. The other boy has to be buried after they find him. His mother came and cried all the time. A horse kicked me over and I've got to have some money for fixin' my head. We are going to set fire to a barn to night and I should smile if we don't have some fun. I am goin' to bring home a tame woodchuck if I can get him in my trunk."

Campbell county will have the honor of supplying the two mascots for the battle ship Kentucky, of the United States Navy. Two young goats, bred about two miles out of Newport, have been selected. Cadet Robert L. Berry, son of Congressman Berry, of Newport, who was commissioned by the Captain of the Kentucky to secure the mascots, purchased them Friday from John Kuechler, a well-known dairyman, who lives on the Alexandria Pike, near the Two-Mile House. Berry had tried to secure them down near Owensboro, but failed. The kids were shipped to Newport News, Va., Faiday afternoon.

SENATOR TOLIN says the Democrats in the Legislature have offered the Republican members everything in the way of a modification of the election law, that fair minded men cloud have demanded, and that it has been evident for some time that the Republicans intended to block any legislation intended to modify that law.

[Carrollton Democrat.]

WE have heard a great deal said about unseating members of the Legislature and "counting out" under the Goebel law. Now, let us look on the other side for a few minutes and see if the rule does not work both ways at least. Take the record of this man Pugh, a Republican Congressman from Kentucky. Many contested election cases were up during his term of service, and we believe in every case he voted to unseat the Democrat, and to substitute the contestant, whether he was a negro, Populist, Republican or what not. We give the statement below, and in connection with each contest we show the majority that it was necessary to overcome in order to oust the Democrat. This shows how they do things in a Republican Congress, and the people ought to keep that in mind when they hear all the howling being done against Democratic management in Kentucky:

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS, REP.

It Happened in a Drug Store.

"One day last winter a lady came to my drug store and asked for a brand of cough medicine that I did not have in stock," says Mr. C. R. Grandin, the popular druggist of Ontario, N. Y. "She was disappointed and wanted to know what cough preparation I could recommend. I said to her that I could freely recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that she could take a bottle of the remedy and after giving it a fair trial if she did not find it worth the money to bring back the bottle and I would refund the price paid. In the course of a day or two the lady came back in company with a friend in need of a cough medicine and advised her to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I consider that a very good recommendation for the remedy. It is for sale by McKim, Burlington, C. S. Balsly, Bullittsville, O. N. Grant, Bellevue, Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg.

Walter Glascock of Hardin county was thrown from a buggy and fatally injured.

Crop and Stock.

In Montgomery, W. A. Cockrell sold to John Stofer a bunch of feeding cattle at 4 3-4 cents per pound.

Dave Tanner sold to Rus Wilson 34 hogs, averaging 370 lbs., at $5,00 per hundred lbs.–Georgetown Times.

Warren and Lewis Rogers sold their export cattle to B. F. Bedford, at 5c. There were 133 head, averaging 1,400 pounds, and to go this month and next.—Kentuckian.

The tobacco crop this year is estimated to be the largest since 1895, which year Kentucky produced 230,618,382 pounds. Conservative people place the yield this year at 225,000,000 pounds.

The prudent farmer will shelter from the sun and rain his harvesting machinery, and will carefully put away, after cleaning and oiling, his harness, hoes, rakes, cultivators, corn planters, &c. Money is saved in this way.

Dogs of Jacksonville and vicinity made a wholesale sheep killing last week. The losers were J. H. Holliday 10, Geo. Slade 35, and Walter Switzer 15. Farmers get your gun and kill every dog that looks at your Cynthiana Democrat.

There were 1,000 cattle on the Richmond market Monday and prices ranged from 2 1-2 to 4 1-4c. A bunch of 700-pound yearlings brought the top price. A lot of 600-pound heifers brought 3c. Aged mules brought $80 to $150 and mule colts $30 to $70.

Stuart Taylor weighed up recently 25 head of two-year-old cattle, average weight about 1,000 pounds, that he sold to Stanley Prewitt at 4½ cents; also 16 yearlings, average weight 785 that he sold to Squire Tevis at 4½ cents.—Winchester Democrat.

Cultivate fence corners. Vermont farmers make good incomes by taking care of fence corners. In Pennsylvania farms are pictures in agricultural art—not a fence corner is neglected, but all are doing something toward the income of the owner. Dimes make dollars, trifles make life.

The Stanford Interior Journal notes the sales of 17 yearlings at 4½ cents; 25 calves at $20 each, 40 steers, 1,000 pounds in weight, at 4 cents; 200 barrels of corn at $1.35 in the field; a lot of mountain yearlings and two-year-olds at 3½ cents; 84 cattle, 750 lbs., at 4 cents, and $1 per head, 80 ewes at $3.65 each.

Every grower of hogs should take pains to lay by as much succulent food for winter us as possible. The hog thrives best when he has an occasional feed of roots and punpkins. He wants plenty of water with his food, and when it is impossible to give it in the form of root crops the next best thing is to give him some well dampened clover hay—Farmers Home Journal.

The number of Belgian hare fanciers in Kentucky is already considerable and rapidly increasing. It has been suggested that a State Belgian Hare Club be organized and we second the motion. Nothing would do more to futher and foster the interests of the industry. We would like to have the views of the Kentucky breeders on this subject.—Farmers Home Journal.

During the present season there have been over 250,000 tobacco sticks sold in this city to country producers of tobacco. For some time, one particular firm had almost the monopoly, as the other firms were unable to learn from whence this particular dealer obtained his supply but finally they made the discovery. One firm sold 233,000 sticks. It has been about four years since there was such a demand.—Paris Gazette.

The large tobacco barn of Lee Combs, on George's creek; was burned last Friday night together with its contents, about 6,000 sticks of new tobacco belonging to Mage Pyles, a tenant, and about 25,000 pounds of old tobacco belonging to Dan Mitchell, which was being prized, and upon which there was insurance of $1,800. The barn was a new one and was valued at $600. The loss falls heavily upon all parties, as there was no insurance on the barn or new tobacco.—Carrollton News.

Here are a few things that an old farmer has learned and unlearned: If you are to gather apples, plant the trees [illegible] cured hog's head will grow faster than his hams. A sharp hoe in a willing hand is death to weeds and life to food crops. Pie plant is not necessary to be peeled before using, as we used to thinks. One day in the field is better than a hundred at the corner grocery, in town. To protect your melon or cucumber plants from bugs, sprinkle them with fine dust. The man who expects to get something valuable for nothing is half fool and half rascal. To drive moles out of your garden and grounds, put a spoonful of turpentine in their run twice a day. Paris green will kill worms of cabbage and might kill those who eat the cabbage, but salt water sprinkled on late of an evening, I find to be good.—Exchange.

Clover can be grown with a crop of small grain without any special preparation of soil for it, and consequently at a small cost. It is a cleansing crop, as it usually so thoroughly shades the soil weeds do not grow, while at the same time it affords good conditions for the germination of their seeds and yet smothers the young plants while they are very small. The long top roots penetrate far below the reach of the plow, and they bring up valuable plant food and make it available so that even when all the plant or foliage above the ground is used for hay, there is still a large amount furnished by the decay of the roots. It can be used to good advantage as pastures, as a soiling crop, can be cut and cured for hay, be plowed under as green manure, or be allowed to mature seed. No other plant has such a beneficial effect upon the soil, rendering stiff soil mellow and easily worked.—Wisconsin Agriculturist.

STATE NEWS.

The tannery at Ashland was destroyed by fire. Loss about $20,000.

Geo. Brown, who worked on a lock on the Kentucky river was bitten by a snake and died in great agony.

Rev. J. Helm, of the Vanceburg Christian church, recently closed a great revival at Tanney, on Kinniconnick. During the week he registered 157 additions to the church, administering the ordinance of baptism to all.

John J. Sechrest left Dawson City, Northwest territory some four weeks ago, and will arrive in Crittenden some time within the next two weeks. He will bring between forty and fifty thousand dollars in gold with him.—Williamstown Courier.

Charles Anderson was granted a patent last week on his new rolling-pin. It is from first to last a very ingenious piece of work, and is a great improvement over the old fashioned rolling-pin. On the inside is a place for salt and soda, and in the end of each handle is a place for holding of extracts.—Mt. Vernon Signal.

Mr. James Hearn, whose alarming illness was noted in this paper last week, died at an early hour last Thursday morning. He was poisoned by paris green while working in tobacco several weeks ago. He had a small sore on his hand and the deadly poison began its work there. His hand and arm soon became inflamed, and blood poison set up which resulted in his death. He was an honorable and respected citizen. His interment occurred at the Beech Grove cemetery on Friday afternoon.—Owen News.

Miss Jennie Fearn, of Hunter's Bottom, up to a few days ago had a very bad cases of "shingles," which caused her a great deal of suffering and uneasiness. It seemed that all medical aid proved of no avail, and her suffering became almost unbearable. She was finally prevailed upon to try an old time treatment, which, in years agone, was a sure cure—and that is the application of blood from a black cat's tail. In fifteen minutes after the blood had been applied she was free from pain, and in a day or two all signs of the shingles had disappeared.

The case of Davis vs. Richards taken up on an appeal from the Gallatin Circuit Court to the [illegible] of Appeals was reversed Wednesday, and it will probably come back for adjustment. This is a case in which Mrs. Anna (Davis) Richards, wife of M. Holt Richards, of Napolean, sued her father, Samuel B. Davis, for a settlement as her guardian and the lower court gave her a judgment for about $7,500. Lindsay & Botts, of Owenton, represent Mrs. Richards, and R. B. Brown and John S. Gaunt, of Carrollton, represent Mr. Davis.—Warsaw Independent.

Jessamine county claims the oldest person in the State. Millie Booker, an old ex-slave who lives near Pink, has the honor of being this person. She was purchased by the Overstreet estate from the Cecil family, of Garrard county, about eighty-three years ago. The records show that she was over twenty years of age at that time. This makes her about 103 years old. She has 39 grandchildren living and 34 dead, 103 great-grandchildren living and 50 dead, 20 great-great-grandchildren living and 3 dead. She has had 14 children, 6 of whom are still living. This makes her total progeny 236. Aunt Millie, as she is commonly called, is blind, but her mind is clear as ever.—Nicholasville News.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Speaker Henderson of the House of Representatives, says he will support McKinley, because he is in favor of Hamilton's Doctrine, which was that, "That the masses of the people are not capable of governing any country; none but the highborn of more noble blood, are fit to govern this country, the common people are too impudent." Henderson, it is to be supposed, knows more nearly the mind of McKinley than any other leader, because he was in constant touch with McKinley during the late session of Congress.

This is the hardest nut to crack. How can one fight four years for his country without pay? and come home and vote thirty years "just like he shot," and then join the enemy of his life, against his own record?

Joe Flory aspires to be Governor of Missouri. He is telling the people of that grand State of the "beautiful administration of the Tories, just after the civil war." I was a citizen of Missouri at that time, and for eight years thereafter. I well remember the humiliation that was heaped upon her citizens by shoulder strapped Tories (then called Radicals). We had to register before we "had a right to vote" on questions of taxation, called "special elections." The gentry refused to register any one who they determined was a "Southern sympathizer" if they could find out by questioning in a "round about" way. Old Mr. Carder, an Old Baptist preacher, was taxed $1,000 at one of these elections, but was not allowed a vote on the appropriation in Fayette county. And this was the "modus operandi."

Three shoulder-strapped Tories, shut in a close inner room. But one citizen can enter at a time.

Enter negro man. "Are you a voter at this place?"

"Yes sah, I is." Register right here.

"Next," enter big Irishman.

"Do you live here?" "No, I follow the work sor, the pooblic work sor."

"Do you wish to work on this R. R?" "Yes sor, I do." "I see, register here." Exit.

"Next." Enter old Mr. Carder.

"Are you a citizen of this co.?"

"Yes, for sixty years past."

"Do you own property in this county?"

"Yes, above 2000 acres of land."

"Are you a Union man?"

"I am a constitutional union man."

"Are you a Southern sympathizer?"

"I came from Old Virginia."

"Are you a Grant or Lee man?"

"I am neither, I am an Old Baptist Elder, a man of peace, and not war." "There's the door, get out." Next.

I happened to be the next. (Now, we Democrats had determined before, that we must register and vote, even if we had to tell "white lies" to secure the opportunity.) In this way we rescued Missouri from imperialism.)

"Do you live in this county?" Yes sir.

"What is your occupation?" A farmer.

"Did you ever soldier any?" Very little.

"Union or Rebel side?" Union (?). "Was Gen. Lee a great general?" Perhaps. (Walks round and clears his throat.)

"Now, see here, if Gen. Lee and Gen. Grant were drawn up to fight a battle, which would you rather should gain the victory?" Gen. Grant (?) of course.

"You can register here."

Some others lost patience under the quizzing, and answered sharply. They were hustled out rudely. I frequently heard, "shut up and get out quick."

And this is the kind of administration Mr. Flory would have the Missourians again choose. It is of the same order of the Kentucky Mountaineer Tories at Frankfort last winter.

When I left Missouri in 1873, Lafayette county had a railroad debt of $1,500,000 hanging over her people. The county appropriation was $500,000 and each township, through which the roads passed had appropriations of various sums, all told, $1,500,000, saddled upon these people in the manner I have shown. And as assassins, I would fail, if I were try to tell it. The "Palmyra Butchery" is fully as bad as the "killing enough Democrats to leave a majority of Tories in the Kentucky Legislature," last winter, by the mountain gang. Any man to vote for them—oh! oh!!

This is imperialism with a strong arm. People, wake up, for your children's sake. Your carcass may soon be out of danger of imperialism, but remember those whom you are responsible for—your children and your grand-children, to a great many generations. Think how they are to live, not as did you, under Liberty, but to be the slaves of money tyrants, such as the poor miners of Pennsylvania are now groaning under. Wake out of your lethargy and save Liberty for your coming heirs. As Republicans, your liberties are as precious as that of Democrats, and I assure you that your liberty is at stake with every Democrat. Democracy holds no spite. Save yourselves from monarchy.

I. W. CRAIG.

A veteran of Virginia contributes an amusing anecdote to a recent issue of the Lost Cause. A Mrs. Clarke, of this city, had a son, Frank Clarke, who was taken prisoner while acting on Gen. Hood's staff and confined at Fort Deleware. His mother secured permission to send him a turkey Christmas. She sent three—one very fat, one a medium-sized bird, and the third very blue and skinny. The two big turkeys were confiscated by the prison officials for themselves and the bony one given to the prisoner. Clarke was surprised to find his mother had sent him such a wretched fowl, but there was method in her madness. On examining the bird he found $400 rolled up and concealed in the stuffing. With woman's wit she had conjectured the officials would annex the nice turkeys and let the poor one go, and the result showed her surmise to have been correct. Clarke got the money, and the veteran who sent the item is anxious to know what has become of him and his family here.—Louisville Times.

BURLINGTON, : KENTUCKY

French hatred of Great Britain has taken a strange method of manifesting itself in Paris, where some of the more rabid boulevardiers are cultivating beards a la Kruger as a compliment to the Boers.

The latest word to be coined is "bounder." According to the best authority a "bounder" is one who not only dresses in bad taste, but is careless about the feelings of others. Why not call him a cad?

The cheerful grocery boy who whistles like a planing mill and puts up gasoline in the can in place of kerosene is getting too numerous. If the lamp burns blue, you have about three seconds to make for the front door.

Scientists now say the earth is shorter by 13½ miles around the poles than by the equator. Notwithstanding this fact, "following the equator" would probably be preferred by most people to the polar route around the world.

Capt. Liddle, of the British steamer King Bleddyn, which has just made the port of New York, reports that he passed a submarine volcano in the Gulf of Mexico that was blowing a column of boiling water 75 feet into the air. The sea serpent will now have to take a back seat.

Beauty is not always what it seems. The young New York woman who was called "the most beautiful woman in America" eloped with a stable boy, took to morphine and has now become a suicide. A little less beauty and a little more brains would have been a good thing for her.

A man who had been deaf and dumb for 50 years from an attack of smallpox fell off a roof and recovered both hearing and speech. It might be inconvenient to introduce this method of treatment at the state deaf and dumb asylum, but the latest developments of medical science should not be overlooked.

Surveyors in the Indian lands of Oklahoma are having so much trouble finding the corner stones that they believe the Indians have made a systematic job of destroying all corners. If the matter continues to be as bad as it has begun it may necessitate another government survey, which would require at least a year.

The medical journals say that inoculation for typhoid fever is proving a great success, and it is cited that during the Anglo-Boer war the patients inoculated suffered a disease of a milder type, while the death rate among those who had been inoculated was 23 per cent. less than among those who had not been so treated.

The census reveals the fact that the block in New York city bounded by Sixty-first and Sixty-Second streets and Tenth and Eleventh avenues is the most densely populated spot in the world. The enumerators counted 6,883 living in the great tenement houses covering that square. Even China cannot beat that record—but it is nothing to boast of.

When Scott spoke of woman as "uncertain, coy and hard to please," he must have looked into the future and noted the case of the New York woman who threatened to get a divorce from her husband because he does not provide more rain for the farm on which they live. Still, it may be said in her defense that it is a mighty mean man who will hold back the rain.

The building of wooden ships began in Maine because suitable timber in abundance was close at hand. The local supply of material is practically extinct, but the industry still clings there. The yards at Bath turned out 46,693 tons of shipping last year. Included in this lot was a five-masted schooner whose frame was of Virginia oak, planking of Georgia pine and masts of Oregon pine.

The Pennsylvania railroad has begun a crusade against tramps, and it is announced that the company has employed hundreds of special police who will make the tramp nuisance their especial business. The road does not object so much to the tramps stealing a ride if they would not steal everything movable. The officials of the road say that the amount stolen each year by these wanderers of the rail amounts to thousands of dollars.

Mrs. Nancy Jones, of Jonesboro, Tenn., celebrated her one hundred and fifth birthday a few days ago. She still enjoys her pipe, manages her farm and draws a pension as a revolutionary widow. The secret of the number of the Joneses is now explained. They have had vigorous ancestors, and if all of them live to the age of the Jonesboro Jones they will have to annex additional territory or build a new Jonestown.

A frugal Kansas woman wanted a companion, and advertised as follows in her local paper: "A lady in delicate health wishes to meet with a useful companion. She must be domesticated, musical, an early riser, amiable, of good appearance, and have some experience in nursing. Total abstainer preferred. Comfortable home. No salary." The day after the advertisement appeared in print she received by express a meek-looking cat of the female sex. No other applicant for the place has as yet presented herself.

THE HIGHEST VOLTAGE.

Thirty Thousand Two Hundred Volts Carried Through a Conduit Three Miles in Length.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 15.—A remarkable series of experiments was conducted here Sunday by Henry Floy, of New York, who successfully accomplished the feat of carrying 30,200 volts of electricity through an underground cable three miles long. The highest voltage hitherto attained with this class of conductor was 20,000 volts, which was secured at Niagara Falls and electrical engineers have long been experimenting with a view to attaining a maximum of 25,000 volts. The cable consists of three copper conductors each about the size of an ordinary lead pencil, each being enclosed in a paper tube and the whole encased in a lead sheet and drawn through vitrified clay conduits. The cable is a part of the system by which the St. Paul Light & Power Co. will utilize the water power at Apple river Wisconsin, the other 24 miles of wire being overhead. As a result of this experiment they will carry an average voltage of 25,000 volts furnishing 5,000 horse power for lighting and power purposes.

BOERS VERY ACTIVE.

Gen. DeWet Proclaims That Burghers Who Refuse to Fight Will Be Made Prisoners of War.

Cape Town, Oct 15.—The Boers are very active in the Kroonstad district. Gen. DeWet has proclaimed that burghers who refuse to fight will be made prisoners of war.

British mounted infantry, scouting from Lindley, had Capt. Wiltshire killed through mistaking a party of 40 Boers in Khaki for friends.

Boer commandoes constantly harrassed the British while marching from Lindley to Kroonstad.

The Boers captured a detachment of the Cheshire regiment which was escorting an empty wagon near Frankfort. They released the driver but kept the wagon.

London, Oct. 15.—The war office has received the following from Lord Roberts dated Pretoria, Saturday, October 13:

"A satisfactory little affair occurred near Frankfort Thursday. Col. Grove, with the West Kents, surprised a Boer lager at dawn, killed seven, wounded nine and captured 18."

WAUCHUSATT DAM.

Work on the Two-Million-Dollar Structure Begun—There Is Prospect of Labor Trouble.

Clinton, Mass., Oct. 15.—The $2,000,000 contract of McArthur, Winston & Locker, the Chicago contractors, with the Metropolitan water board for the construction of the Wachusatt dam commenced Monday. Even before a start was made by the contractors there was prospect of labor trouble.

For about three months the Metropolitan board has had a gang of about 200 men working day and night on the site of the dam in anticipation of the commencement of work by the contractors. These men have been paid $1.50 for nine hours' work. The prospect of trouble arises from the announcement in the posted notices that the contractors will pay 13½ cents an hour for ten hour's work, or $1.35 per day.

AGRICULTURAL MACHINERY.

There Are Great Opportunities for American Manufacturers in New South Wales.

Washington, Oct. 15.—A letter received at the United States department of agriculture from Penrith college, New South Wales, Australia, calls attention to the great need of different types of agricultural machines in that colony. The writer states that there are not more than a dozen in cutting and collecting maze in New South Wales, and a machine for cutting sugar cane would be greatly appreciated by the cane growers in the north of that colony and Queensland. He suggests that there are great opportunities there for American manufacturers of agricultural machines who are desirous of extending their business beyond the United States.

Bartenders Strike.

Carbondale, Ill., Oct. 15.—A unique strike is on at Murphysboro, where every bartender connected with the 30 saloons of that city has gone out for pay for overtime and picnic days. It is probable the strike will not be settled for some time, as the saloon keepers refused to comply with the demands of the men.

A New Island.

Marseilles, Oct. 15.—During the night of October 9 the steamer City of Barcelona narrowly escaped going ashore on a new island which formed off the mouth of the Rhone in consequence of the recent floods. It is situated about three miles from the coast and consists of sand.

Gave Her Daughter Laudanum.

Bay City, Mich., Oct. 15.—Mrs. Louis Mills, of Essexville, administered laudanum to her 4-year-old daughter Sunday with fatal effect and then took a dose of the drug herself. Mrs. Mills, who is supposed to have been temporarily insane, will live.

A Railroad Commission.

Havana, Oct. 15.—Gov. Gen. Wood is considering the advisability of appointing a railroad commission to fix rates and regulate construction. This is due to numerous complaints of excessive freight charges.

RUSSIANS JOIN HANDS.

Southern and Northern Armies Unite at Tchling, North of Mukden.

This Places All of Manchuria East of the River Liao and a Portion West of the Stream in Their Hands.

London, Oct. 15.—A special dispatch dated October 12, says: "At the American legation Li Hung Chang expressed regret for the recent occurrences and thanked the Americans for their good treatment of the Chinese. He promised to request that negotiations be begun at Tsang Li Yamen two days hence and to exclude Yung Lu from them."

"It is asserted" says the Shanghai correspondent of the Times, wiring Saturday, "That the Russians have seized Niu Chwang railway at the terminus of the Shan Hai Kwan line. This is the first step the Russians have taken on the right bank of the Amur. The Russian southern and northern armies have joined hands at Tchling, north of Mukden, thereby placing all of Manchuria east of the river Liao, and a portion west of the stream in the hands of Russia."

Dr. Morrison, in Monday's Times concludes his dramatic description of the siege of Peking. He expresses the deep obligation of all those confined in the British legation to the "splendid services of Rev. Frederick D. Gamewell, head of the Methodist mission board, to whom was due the designing and construction of all our defense, and who carried out in the most admirable manner Sir Claude MacDonald's ideas and suggestions."

He also refers to the "valuable services" rendered by Mr. Squiers, secretary of the United States legation.

The Times, commenting editorially upon Dr. Morrison's narrative, says: "The whole story justifies in the fullest manner Emperor William's attitude toward the authors of the atrocities. It proves beyond a reasonable doubt the responsibility of the high officials and the Tsung Li Yamen."

London, Oct. 15.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Morning Post wiring Saturday, describes four distinct agitations in Kwang-Tung, Kwang Si, Sze-Chung and the Yang-Tze region, all of which are anti-dynastic rather than anti-foreign.

"If Sun Yat Sen is successful in the south," says the correspondent, "and his rebellion spreads over the Yang-Tse region, he will probably be aided by Prince Tuan, Tung Fu Hsiang and the Mohammedan leaders in the northwest."

The Chinese imperial troops, according to a dispatch to the Daily Chronicle, from Hong-Kong, dated Saturday, have recaptured Wei-Chou, on East river, where Sun Yatsen, the reformer, had raised his flag, and have scattered the rebels.

The Standard published mail advices from Tien-Tsin giving a list of 54 documents that were seized in the Yamen of the Viceroy after the capture of the city and fell into the hands of the correspondent before the military authorities had seized the Yamen. These include receipts for money paid to Boxer generals for supplies to their troops of every kind, reports of actions and lists of casualties and rewards paid to generals and the families of the killed, all clearly proving that the authorities maintained the Boxer movement by lavish expenditure.

Shanghai, Oct. 15.—From Canton it is reported that the Kwangsi rebels have defeated the imperial troops on the borders of Kwang-Tung and that Gen. Su has resigned in consequence of his request for reinforcements being ignored.

Some Chinese soldiers desecrated the cemetery for foreigners at Nam-Shih-Tu, near Canton, and the viceroy had the offenders decapitated and dismissed their commander.

The fourth brigade from India has arrived at Taku, but owing to the gale, has not been able to land.

Sir Ernst M. Satow, who succeeds Sis Claude M. McDonald as British minister to China has arrived at Tien-Tsin.

Tien-Tsin, Oct. 14 (vit Shanghai, Oct. 15).—Only a small escort accompanied Count von Waldersee and his staff, who left for Peking at 5 o'clock this morning. The length of the field marshal's stay at the capital has not been determined, but he expects to return to Tien-Tsin before cold weather sets in. Possibly he will make Shanghai his headquarters for the winter, as it is understood that the Germans do not contemplate active operations after the winter has begun.

The rapid fall of the Pei Ho is causing the allies to redouble their efforts to rush supplies to Peking.

Shanghai, Oct. 15.—The progress of the Chinese court toward Sian Fu, the new capital, has been delayed in consequence of the supposed Mahommedan rebels in the province of Shen Si.

Dowager Empress Frederick Better.

London, Oct. 15.—The following announcement appeared Sunday in the Court Circular: "The queen has been in some anxiety for a week owing to the unsatisfactory accounts of health of Empress Frederick. Reports now, however, are favorable."

Catholic Indian Missions.

Vinita, I. T., Oct. 15.—Rev. Father William H. Ketcham, of Antlers, I. T., has been appointed and will soon take charge of the entire Catholic Indian missions of the United States, with headquarters at Washington, D. C.

YOUTSEY IS BETTER.

He Is in a Fair Way to Recover, and His Trial May Be Resumed at an Early Day.

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 12.—The condition of Henry Youtsey, who on Tuesday evening collapsed in court during his trial, Thursday, although much improved, is still such that it was impossible for the trial to be resumed, and Judge Cantrill continued the case till Friday morning.

Before court convened a long conference was held between Judge Cantrill, Attorney Franklin, for the prosecution, and Col. Crawford, for the defense, at which Youtsey's condition and the probabilities for a continuance of the trial were discussed. When court convened Col. Crawford stated that the condition of the prisoner was such that he could not be brought into court. He asked a continuance. In agreeing to this, Commonwealth's Attorney Franklin stated that from the reports of Youtsey's [illegible] and of those [illegible] ed in the case, the condition of the prisoner was such that he thought the trial could soon be resumed.

The reports from Henry Youtsey's sickroom Thursday night were not encouraging. The only change perceptible is that his stupor is not quite so heavy. Once or twice Thursday he lifted his hands an inch or two and in a weak, piping voice said: "There's no blood on my hands." His physicians fear brain fever, which will almost surely prove fatal.

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 13.—Youtsey was better Friday night. He seems to understand, and obeys what the nurses tell him, though he does not talk or answer questions. There is now less fear of brain fever.

His color remains good, his breathing natural and his sleep quiet and restful. Dr. Carrick says no opiates have been given the prisoner since Tuesday night and that the continued stupor results entirely from natural causes. Occasional doses of strychnine are given him to stimulate him, and he is thought to be in a fair way to recover. Nearly all have abandoned the fact that he was shamming.

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 15.—The condition of Henry E. Youtsey was unchanged Sunday night but the general impression is that the prosecution will make a strong effort to have the trial resumed.

DESTRUCTIVE TYPHOON.

Numerous Towns on the Coast of Formosa and Southern China Destroyed—Many Lives Lost.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 15.—A special from Tacoma, Wash., says: A typhoon caused great damage last Monday on the coasts of Formosa and Southern China. Numerous towns were destroyed. Nineteen hundred houses were washed away or inundated at Taipeh, Formosa, and many lives lost.

The Japanese steamers Faichiau Maru and Sekio Maru went ashore at Taipeh and sustained serious damage.

The French cruiser Kersaint was blown ashore in Hankow harbor, Southern China and her steering gear destroyed. Fire broke out and almost caused a panic. She was pulled into deep water, and after temporary repairs proceeded to Saigon.

Forty more Boxers were beheaded at Hankow late in September. Hankow is under martial law. Foreign drilled troops patrol foreign concessions, despite consular protests, as well as a native town.

WITH HURRICANE FORCE.

Incoming Trans-Atlantic Steamers All Report Very Heavy Weather and High Seas.

New York, Oct. 15.—Incoming trans-Atlantic steamers all report very heavy weather and high seas. The Hamburg-American liner Cap Frieo had heavy gales with high seas from October 3 to 7. From that time till the 11th the wind moderated but little. On the 12th it increased and blew with hurricane force and at 2 o'clock in the afternoon a tremendous sea broke over the bows smashing the bridge and severely injuring Capt. Von Hotten. The log of the French liner La Lorraine shows that on every day since she left Havre on the 6th with one exception, last Thursday, strong winds with heavy seas and swells buffeted the vessel. The Leyland liner, Capt. Corrigan, and the White Star liner Nomadic report heavy seas and strong winds throughout the passage.

The Bodies Recovered.

Ypsilanti, Mich., Oct. 15.—Three thousand persons, students of the state normal college and citizens, engaged in a search along Huron river Sunday for the bodies of Miss Abbie Cronin, of Lawrence, Mich., and Ward Wood, of Bangor, Mich., who were drowned Saturday night while canoeing on the river. The bodies were recovered. Miss Cronin and Mr. Wood were students at the college.

Successor to Rr. Adm. Kautz.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Rr. Adm. Silas Casey, at present commandant at League Island Navy yard, has been selected to succeed Rr. Adm. Albert Kautz as commander of the Pacific station upon the latter's retirement in the near future.

New Forest Reserve.

Washington, Oct. 13.—The general land office was notified Friday of a presidential proclamation setting aside as a forest reserve 57,000 acres of land about the head of Crow creek, Wyoming.

HELP FOR WOMEN WHO ARE ALWAYS TIRED.

"I do not feel very well, I am so tired all the time. I do not know what is the matter with me."

You hear these words every day; as often as you meet your friends just so often are these words repeated. More than likely you speak the same significant words yourself, and no doubt you do feel far from well most of the time.

Mrs. Ella Rice, of Chelsea, Wis., whose portrait we publish, writes that she suffered for two years with bearing-down pains, headache, backache, and had all kinds of miserable feelings, all of which was caused by falling and inflammation of the womb, and after doctoring with physicians and numerous medicines she was entirely cured by

MRS. ELLA RICE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you are troubled with pains, fainting spells, depression of spirits, reluctance to go anywhere, headache, backache, and always tired, please remember that there is an absolute remedy which will relieve you of your suffering as it did Mrs. Rice. Proof is monumental that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the greatest medicine for suffering women. No other medicine has made the cures that it has, and no other woman has helped so many women by direct advice as has Mrs. Pinkham; her experience is greater than that of any living person. If you are sick, write and get her advice; her address is Lynn, Mass.

One of the great advantages of going to Texas via the Cotton Belt is, that you avoid the annoyances and discomforts of changing cars, necessary on other routes.

The Cotton Belt trains are the only ones that run through from Memphis to Texas without change.

These trains carry Pullman Sleepers at night, Parlor Cafe Cars during the day, and Through Coaches and Free Reclining Chair Cars both day and night. The service compares favorably with that of any road in the country. Write and tell us where you are going and when you will leave, and we will tell you what your ticket will cost and what train to take to make the best time and connections. We will also send you an interesting little booklet, "A Trip to Texas."

TERMS OF THE MINERS

Accept Increase and Are Willing to Arbitrate Other Differences.

It Is Reported That the Presidents of Large Coal-Carrying Railroads Will Hold a Conference in New York.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 15.—The anthracite coal miners, now on strike, after a two days' convention, late Saturday afternoon decided to accept the 10 per cent. increase in wages offered by the mine-owners, providing they will continue the payment of the advance until next April, and will abolish the sliding scale. If the operators consider the proposition [illegible] the miners are willing to arbitrate the questions at issue. They also decided to continue the strike until the operators agree to the convention's proposition.

Shamokin, Pa., Oct. 15.—The terms of the Scranton convention are not acceptable to operators and representatives of coal carrying companies in this place and about Mt. Carmel. The Reading officials do not think the sliding scale will be abolished by the company, while operators are averse to signing a contract binding them to pay 10 per cent. increase until April.

No orders have been received as yet from headquarters of any company's instructing superintendents to resume work. Miners say they will not work until officially notified by President Mitchell.

Hazleton, Pa., Oct. 15.—The individual coal operators who could be seen here Sunday declined to discuss the action taken by the anthracite miners' convention at Scranton Saturday. Neither could they say what steps the employers would probably take.

It is evident from their reticence that the individual mine owners are waiting to see what the large coal-carrying railroads that mine coal will do.

It was reported in the coal region Sunday night that the presidents of these roads will hold a conference in New York Monday for discussion of the action of the convention.

There was a story afloat Sunday that the operators will accept the convention's decision, but nothing has come to the surface in this region on which to base the report.

The United Mine Workers' officials say they are now again waiting on the operators and that they will continue to close up the collieries that have been in operation since the strike began four weeks ago. There are many reports in circulation that if the strike continues much longer a break in the ranks of the idle men will occur.

President Mitchell and his assistant officials, however, reassert their confidence that the men, both union and nonunion, will remain away from the mines until after the strike is declared off. There is a fear prevalent in this region that if some of the men do return to work trouble would probably arise through efforts of the strikers to persuade the men to remain on strike.

All the collieries that are working still remain heavily guarded.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 15.—A canvass of the operators of the Wyoming valley Sunday shows that there is considerable opposition to granting the miners any more concessions than those outlined in the original offer, namely, 10 per cent. increase without any conditions. The individual operators especially, are opposed to tieing themselves up to any agreement. One operator said the only way the strike can be settled is for the strikers to accept the 10 per cent. without any provisions.

Superintendent Chase, of the Lehigh Coal Co., said:

"Not much dependence can be placed on the men when it comes to arbitration. This was shown in the case of Mr. Markle. He favored arbitration but at the behest of Mr. Mitchell his miners repudiated the agreement made with their employer. The demand of the strikers that the operators should agree to pay the increased wages for a fixed period is too arbitrary and the operators will hardly agree to it."

Despite the views of the operators, the impression here is that the strike will be ended this week.

Old-Fashioned Watch Meeting.

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 15.—Bishop Charles Galloway, president of the general board of eduention of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, Monday will issue a circular to the one and one-half million Methodists in the south to assemble in their places of worship on the night of the last day of the year to hold an old-fashioned watch meeting as a fitting climax to the twentieth century movement. The fund now amounts to $1,100,000.

Capt. Shields and Men Recovered.

Manila, Oct. 15.—Capt. Deveraux Shields who, with 51 men of Company F, 29th regiment, U. S. V. infantry, was captured by the insurgents last month in the island of Marinduque, was recovered Saturday by the American rescue force with all the members of his party.

Aleck Harris Dead.

New Orleans, Oct. 15.—Aleck Harris, for many years New Orleans agent of the Cromwell line, and probably the best known steamship agent here, died Sunday morning.

HALL OF FAME CONTEST.

The Senate of the New York University Passed Upon the List of Eligibles.

New York, Oct. 13.—The election in the Hall of Fame contest was concluded Friday when the senate of the New York university assembled and passed upon the list of eligibles submitted to that body by the committee which for the last three days has been counting the votes. The total number of names submitted to the 100 judges was 252. Though the standard of eligibility had been placed as low as 51 votes, only 30 of the nominees had reached that standard. It was the names of such nominees that were submitted to the senate, and that body, in which is vested the power of absolute and peremptory vote, on this occasion confined itself to simple confirmation of the committee's findings. According to this decision, the following famous men were accorded a place on the tablets of the Hall of Fame:

George Washington, 97 (the full vote); Abraham Lincoln, 96; Daniel Webster, 96; Benjamin Franklin, 94; U. S. Grant, 92; John Marshall, 91; Thomas Jefferson, 90; Ralph Waldo Emerson, 86; Henry W. Longfellow, 94; Washington Irving, 82; Jonathan Edwards, 82; David C. Farragut, 79; Samuel F. B. Morse, 79; Henry Clay, 74; George Peabody, 72; Nathaniel Hawthorne, 72; Robert E. Lee, 69; Peter Cooper, 68; Horace Mann, 67; Henry Ward Beecher, 66; Eli Whitney, 66; James Kent, 65; Joseph Story, 64; John Adams, 61; William Ellery Channing, 58; John James Audubon, 57; Elias Howe, 53; William Morris Hunt, 52; Gilbert Stuart, 52; Asa Gray, 51.

YELLOW FEVER AT HAVANA.

One Hundred and Thirteen New Cases Have Been Reported Since October 1.

Havana, Oct. 13.—One hundred and thirteen cases of yellow fever have been officially reported since October 1. There is no longer any doubt that the disease has attacked Maj. Peterson, chief commissary, and Frank Hayes, general manager of the Havana branch of the North American Trust Co., who were taken ill Thursday. Miss Natalie Brown, a stenographer in the employ of the trust company is also down with the disease. The company's offices will be closed for disinfection.

Four hundred and twenty-eight Spanish immigrants are in quarantine here owing to the existence of small-pox in the vessel on which they arrived.

A ROW IN THE RING.

Spectators Became Incensed Over the Decision of Referee Hogan in the Ryan-Mowatt Fight.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—It took half a score of policemen fully ten minutes to clear the ring at the Illinois Athletic club Friday night, so incensed had the spectators become over the decision of Referee Hogan giving Buddy Ryan the decision over Young Mowatt at the end of a six-round fight. In the scrimmage Hogan was struck in the face and knocked down. Sig Hart, the local bantamweight, tried to protect the referee, and received a severe beating for his pains. The police finally managed to get the principals in the melee separated and cleared the hall without further trouble.

Next Meeting in Cleveland.

St. Louis, Oct. 13.—The Woman's Auxiliary of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen concluded its convention Friday night. The new grand executive board consists of Mesdames Mary Connell, of Denver; Agnes McClain, of Boston, and Lena Stanford, of St. Louis. Mesdames Watterson and Downing were re-elected grand mistress and grand secretary and treasurer respectively. The next biennial convention will be held in Cleveland, O.

The Balloon Race.

Kiew, Russia, Oct. 13.—The balloon Centaure, one of the contestants in the long-distance race from Paris to Russia, has arrived. Comte Henry de la Vaul is the record-breaker. He was accompanied on his journey by Comte Castillon de St. Victor, who held the previous balloon record, from Paris to Westerwick, 855 miles. The Kiew voyage occupied 36 hours. The distance between Paris and Kiew is 1,304 miles.

The Locomotive Exploded.

Mexico, Mo., Oct. 13.—Engine 107 of the Chicago & Alton railroad, was blown to atoms near Curryville early Friday morning. John Mason, a colored porter, residing at Roodhouse, Ill., was struck by a piece of flying steel and his head was cut off. Engineer Pat Markey and Fireman Crawford Wheeler, both of Slater, were badly bruised, but their injuries are not fatal. The train was running at the usual rate of speed when the explosion occurred.

The Illinois-Michigan Game.

Chicago, Oct. 13.—Managers Huff of Illinois, and Baird, of Michigan, were in Chicago Friday making arrangements for the big Illinois-Michigan game, which will be played on Marshall Field, October 27. Hoagland, of Princeton, and Wren, of Harvard, were agred upon as officials.

Machinists Will Strike.

Philadelphia, Oct. 13.—The strike of 1,500 Philadelphia machinists which have been impending for the past three months will, from present indications, be ordered within a week.

TEXT OF THE REPLY.

United States Agrees With Most of France's Proposals.

Continuance of Interdiction Against Importation of Arms—Equitable Indemnities for Governments, Corporations, Etc.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Following is the reply of the United States government to the recent French note offering suggestions as to the settlement of the troubles in China:

The government of the United States agrees with that of France in recognizing as the object to be obtained from the government of China approp[illegible] and substantial guarantees for the future.

The president is glad to perceive in the basis of negotiation put forward in the memorandum of October 4 the spirit that has animated the declarations heretofore made by all the powers interested, and would be pleased to see the negotiations begun immediately upon the usual verification of credentials.

It may be convenient to enumerate the classes of the memorandum and to add some observations dictated by the attitude of the United States in the present circumstances.

1. The punishment of the guilty parties who may be designated by the representatives of the powers at Peking.

2. The Chinese government has already indicated its intention to punish a number of those responsible for the recent disorders. The representatives of the powers at Peking may suggest additions to that list when negotiations are entered upon.

2. The continuance of the interdiction against the importation of arms.

It is not understood that this interdiction is to be permanent, and the duration of it and the details of its regulation seem a proper subject of discussion by the negotiators.

3. Equitable indemnities for the governments, corporations and private individuals.

This is an object desired by all the powers. The Russian government has suggested that, in case of protracted divergence of views, this matter might be commended to the consideration of the international court of arbitration of The Hague. The president thinks the [illegible] question worthy the attention of the powers.

4. The organization in Peking of a permanent guard for the legations.

The government of the United States is unable to make any permanent engagement of this nature without the authorization of the legislative branch, but in the present emergency we have stationed in Peking an adequate legation guard.

5. The dismantling of the forts at Taku.

The president reserves the expression of his opinion as to this measure pending receipt of further information in regard to the situation in China.

6. The military occupation of two or three points on the road from Tien-Tsin to Peking.

The same observation which has been made in reference to No. 4 applies also to this proposition. The president is unable to commit the United States to a permanent participation in such occupation, but he thinks it desirable that the powers shall obtain from the Chinese government the assurance of their right to guard their legations in Peking and to have the means of unrestricted access to them whenever required.

The president believes that the governments of France and other powers will see in the reserves we have here made no obstacle to the initiation of negotiations on the lines suggested, and he hopes it will be found practicable to begin such negotiations at an early day.

Berlin, Oct. 13.—The proposal of the Russian government that, in case of protracted divergence of views regarding equitable indemnities, this matter might be commended to the consideration of the international court of arbitration at The Hague, is regarded as the most important recent development in the Chinese situation. Nothing was known publicly in Europe concerning it prior to the publication of President McKinley's answer to the note of M. Delcasse.

Most of the papers comment unsympathetically upon the suggestion. The Lokal Anzeiger says that it raises another difficult problem which will occasion long negotiations, and the Berlin Tageblatt understands that official circles regard it as tentative rather than a formal proposition.

Germany looks upon the report of the death of the empress dowager as a new Chinese intrigue. It is supposed that she intends to disappear temporarily in order to escape responsibility for the misdeeds of high officials, and, perhaps, to prepare another anti-foreign movement.

Welland Canal Navigation Stopped.

Toronto, Oct. 11.—The ocean steamship Wacea Mau, bound down, damaged two of the gates of the Welland canal Wednesday night so seriously that navigation on the canal will probably have to be discontinued for at least two days while being repaired.

A One-Sided Game.

New Haven, Ct., Oct. 11.—The Yale football eleven Wednesday afternoon ran up a score of 50 to 0 against the Bates college team on Yale field. The game was one-sided from start to finish.

DEFAULTER SCHREIBER.

His Stealings Amount to $109,716—Mrs. Hart's Personal Effects Have Been Seized.

New York, Oct. 13.—Another discovery was made Friday at the Elizabethport bank, which increased the stealings of Defaulter Schreiber to $109,716.

Several months ago an envelope containg $3,000 in United States bonds was placed for safekeeping in the bank by a resident of Elizabeth. When he called at the bank Friday for the deposit it was found the envelope had been carefully slit open and the bonds abstracted.

Judge Gilhooly, the bank's attorney, said the institution was responsible and the loss would be made good.

The furniture and personal effects of Mrs. Hart, the woman upon whom young Schreiber is said to have lavished the money of the Elizabeth bank was removed Friday to a storage warehouse by order of the sheriff. Three large vans were required to remove all the contents of the luxuriously furnished apartments. Mrs. Hart was present and angrily and tearfully protested against the removal of what she claimed to be her own personal property.

It was reported Friday night that one or more persons familiar with the affairs of the Elizabeth bank were suspected of having been confederates of Schreiber and that an arrest might be expected but up to a late hour no confirmation of the report had been obtained.

While there are rumors that the whereabouts of Schreiber are practically known, there was nothing at Elizabeth Friday night to confirm such reports. The belief is still general that he is somewhere nearby and has not gone to Europe as has been reported.

Startling developments, it is asserted, may come out of all this, enabling the bank to recover $15,000 and Mrs. Hart to keep her property, and, what is more important, to be freed of all. When the writs were served first on Mrs. Hart she said she could prove that she had "other friends" who had given her the rich treasure which the bank had claimed its defaulting bookkeeper had given her.

If Mrs. Hart persists in making a complete statement in court about her sources of wealth it is alleged she will state necessarily the names of these men.

POLAR EXPEDITION.

Wealthy New Yorker Will Fit Out One, to Be in Charge of Evelyn B. Baldwin.

New York, Oct. 13.—William Ziegler, a well-known and wealthy citizen of New York city, announced Friday that he would purchase two vessels, fully equip and man them and send them in quest of the north pole during the summer of 1901. The expedition is to be in charge of Evelyn B. Baldwin, who was a companion of Lieut. Peary in his attempts to reach the pole in 1893 and 1894 and also a member of Walter Wellman's expedition.

It is Mr. Ziegler's intention to have one vessel remain in the Arctic regions while the other returns for supplies.

GEN. MERRIAM'S REPORT.

Military Departments Greatly Reduced in Strength to Meet the Demand of Foreign Service.

Washington, Oct. 13.—Some idea of the extent to which the military departments of the United States have been reduced in strength to meet the demands of foreign service, is conveyed by the reports of Brig. Gen. Henry C. Merriam, commanding the department of Missouri. So few are the officers on duty in the department that one officer of the regular line, an artillery officer, Lieut. Deksmare Skerrett, besides being first lieutenant of the 3d artillery, is an acting captain, an acting judge advocate, chief ordnance officer, chief signal officer and acting engineer officer of the department of Missouri, making separate reports in these various capacities.

Gen. Merriam reports a satisfactory condition of affairs in his department.

Two Crops in One Season.

Mason City, W. Va., Oct. 13.—Cherry and apple trees in this section are blooming as in the spring, as are also blackberries and raspberries. At one point in this county a lady has picked a quantity of raspberries which have grown and ripened during the past month. The extraordinary occurrence is greatly interesting horticulturists.

INTERESTING STATE NEWS.

THE CLOSING DAY.

Annual Meeting of the Kentucky Horse Breeders' Association Was a Successful One.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 13.—Friday was the closing of the 28th annual meeting of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' association, and it was a most successful one. Ten days of almost perfect weather, a great track, magnificent fields of horses and grand sport. The attendance has been large each day and both socially and [illegible] ing has been one of the greatest in the history of the world famed institution. A number of records have been beaten and many fast miles have been trotted and paced.

The weather was cool and pleasant for the closing day, and fully 4,000 people gathered to witness the events. There was three races on the card with the Blue Grass stake, $2,000, for 2:19 trotters as the leading feature, and Joe Watts, selling at $25, to $40 for the field, was the favorite. Cornelia Belle was also well thought of. It turned out to be a hard contested five heat race and one worthy the occasion. Watts took the first heat in a happy style and then Cornelia Belle captured the second and third, then dropped the fourth to Palm Leaf. She won the fifth and race with a hot finish with Palm Leaf. The race in every heat was between the three named.

The 2:22 trot for a purse of $1,000 proved to be an easy thing for the New England mare Dolly Bidwell, who clearly outclassed her field, and won in straight heats from Free Silver and Telltale, the fight being principally between the latter two for place. All three showed race horse quality and put up a great contest.

Nonamie outclassed all the others in the 2:20 pace and won as she pleased in straight heats, the contending horse in each heat being Affie. The good daughter of Bourbon Wilkes, Nonamie, is a race mare of rare quality and it will take a good one to beat her in her class next year.

Kentucky Officer Is Dead.

Washington, Oct. 12.—Gen. MacArthur, at Manila, notified the war department Thursday that First Lieut. Robert Blakeman, 49th volunteer infantry, died of hepatitis on the 3d inst. Lieut. Blakemore was born at Haskiuville, Ky., December 10, 1870, and served as first sergeant of Company K of the 8th Illinois volunteer infantry during the Spanish-American war. In September, 1899, he was appointed first lieutenant of the 49th volunteer infantry, and accompanied his regiment to the Philippines in November last.

Tried to Escape.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 11.—Ten mountaineers, headed by James Howard, an ex-postmaster, who is under a three years' sentence received in the United States court, attempted to break jail Wednesday night by digging through a wall. A turnkey surprised Howard, and after a struggle knocked a big knife from his hands. Howard implicated nine other prisoners in the plot to escape.

Accused a Former Lover.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Oct. 13.—The trial of Leslie Oldham, a young planter, aged 22, charged with the murder of Martha Bell, colored, at Oak Grove, last April, was begun Friday. Several witnesses testified that Oldham shot at the woman several times, but missed, and that two shots were fired later when she dropped. Oldham claims he can prove she was shot by a former lover concealed in a thicket.

Bitten By a Mad Dog.

Owingsville, Ky., Oct. 13.—Mrs. Horace Lane, Martin Stephen, Ewing Connor and five colored people were bitten by a mad dog here Friday evening. Officers were elected as follows: Grand master, Thomas Reed, of Covington; grand treasurer, George W. Morris, of Louisville; grand secretary, R. G. Elliott, of Lexington; grand warden, A. D. Cole, of Maysville; grand representative, Thomas James, of Newport.

George W. Morris has been elected grand treasurer for the 41st time. Lexington will probably be chosen for the next place of meeting.

ELECTION BILL NO. 1.

By a Vote of 51 to 47 the Kentucky House Has Rejected It—Bill No. 18.

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 12.—The democratic and republican anti-Goebel factions on the conference committee appointed by the Kentucky legislature to adjust the disagreement over an election bill to take the place of the Goebel law failed to agree and Thursday night the lenders of both sides expressed the opinion that a new law will not be passed.

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 13.—By a vote of 51 to 47 the house at noon Friday rejected the election bill No. 1 sent it by the senate. The bill provided that the county election board should be named by the county judge of each county, and that the circuit clerk should be the third member or "umpire," of the board. This leaves house bill No. 18, as amended by the senate, the only one before the house.

WILL T. NUGENT.

Three Indictments Have Been Filed Against the Young Man For Taking His Father's Money.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 11.—Will T. Nugent, the young man who was arrested on the charge of attempting to beat the bankrupt law by skipping out with the funds of his bankrupt father and remaining concealed, was Wednesday indicted by the federal grand jury, three bills being returned. One states that he fraudulently received part of the money and personalty of E. B. Nugent, in all $10,000, which was paid by another merchant for Nugent's stock. The other two cite that he received this money while bankruptcy proceedings were pending and after Nugent had been adjudged a bankrupt.

Weaver Indicted.

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 11.—B. F. Weaver, the "strolling" barber witness in the Caleb Powers trial last summer, was Wednesday indicted by the Scott county grand jury for perjury. Weaver's actions have been a puzzle, as there was apparently no motive for his testifying as he did and he protested against going on the stand, but insisted and still insists that he was in the statehouse yard when Goebel was shot.

Would Not Testify.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 12.—W. J. Talbott, it was charged, struck Nellie Thomas, of 518 Tenth street, in the eye a few days ago and destroyed the sight of the member. Notwithstanding the great injury she would not give any testimony against the man in the city court Thursday. Judge Buckley said that if she could stand all that for him, he would dismiss the case, which he did.

On last Wednesday the 10th inst. Dr. S. M. Adams performed the matrimonial ceremony making Mr. Bailey McClure and Miss Kennedy, of Verona, daughter of Wm. Kennedy, man and wife. On the same day Miss Nettie Rice and Edward Fullilove took their way to Newport and were married there. The newly wedded conple are as well as could be expected.

On last Wednesday Mrs. Dr. Adams gave a 5 o'clock dinner in honor of their son, John. As Mrs. Adams' dinners have been mentioned in these columns it is superfluous to state that this one was a complete success. The savory dishes were greatly relished and the company broke up praising the repast in unmeasured terms. There were present Mrs. Sallie and Miss Rose Adams, Mrs. Lizzie and Miss Emma Cleek, Misses Alva Williams, Nellie Cleek, and Katie Cleek; Messrs. John Donnelly, Columbus Bedinger, Howe Cleek and John G. Adams.

The Town Council having got an inkling that a movement was being made to elect a new board of trustees, got a move on itself and is hurrying up some improvements that have long been threatened. The making of a sidewalk on the street leading to the depot of the Short Line railroad, promises now to be completed before the term of the "Old Board" expires. This will be one good thing done by it, even had it never done any other. And, by the way, nothing has been said for a week or two about electing a new board.

Ildewild.

W. B. Shotwell represented Petersburg Lodge of Odd Fellows in the Grand Lodge at Louisville, last week.

Courtney Walton, Scott Chambers, R. C. Gaines and Thomas Whitaker, all disposed of their cattle last week, and have money to loan, I reckon.

We found on our way home from Petersburg, Tuesday morning a lady's breast pin which owner can recover on application to F. P. Walton, Ildewild.

If we have omitted any items of interest this week we trust that the fair correspondent from Bullittsville will communicate them, as our correspondence seems to cover very nearly the same territory.

In company with the genial and companionable Mr. Fredrick Pfalzgraf, we made a short tour of the north part of the county Friday. Passing through the farm of Lee Cropper, we saw as it were prosperity written everywhere. He has a 25 acre field of corn that he says will make 1500 bushels. At the Utzinger place where many evidences of thrift. Here we saw the tracks of the only Cpl. Graddy, who is building one of his neat and matchless fences ... We found Reuben Ogden engaged in sowing wheat on what we knew, when a boy, as Campbell's Hill, the home of raccoons, and where many a woodsman's ax has broken the stillness of the night while the faithful coon dog sat by eagerly awaiting the encounter with the game. Mr. Ogden is one of our thriving men and will make a success if hluck is worth anything. We saw Mr. John Black one of the stately oaks of North Bend, husking corn in the distance, and regretted our inability to reach him and shake his friendly hand. At W. T. Snyder's everything looked homelike with no scarcity of any of this world's blessings except, perhaps, water. We saw that they had taken the pump out of the cistern and had been digging for water near by. The old homestead of John Cropper, where he spent his earlier days and where he entered upon the career of the successful farmer that he has been, bore evidence of neglect nowhere. Roundin in about noontime we felt like there's no place like home just now.

The Grand Lodge of Odd-Fellows held its annual session in Louisville, last week. The attendance was very large. The growth of the order in the past year was greater, perhaps, than ever before in a twelve-mouth. The total increase was 1,918; deducting total losses from all causes, the net gain was 1,131. The Widows and Orphans' Home at Lexington was reported in excellent condition, being more than self-sustaining. There are in the home 27 children and one widow.

Congressman Berry, of Newport, is endeavoring to locate Mrs. Elizabeth J. Fields, formerly of Newport, for whom he has secured a pension. A year ago he took up the matter, and, since Wednesday, when he was notified of his success, has tried to locate Mrs. Fields. Twelve dollars a month back pension for a year awaits her at Col. Berry's home, corner of Third and York streets.

A Thousand Tongues

Could not express the rapture of Annie E. Springer, of Philadelphia, when Dr. King's New Discovery cured her of a hacking cough that for many years had made life a burden. Miss Schuster's Entertainment.

On several occasions during the summer just ended, it was my privilege to meet Miss Schuster and the talented young ladies who assisted her in the entertainment given in the Courthouse in Burlington on the evening of the 6th inst. I was so impressed with their accomplishments that I invited them to arrange a program and give an entertainment in Burlington. I had a double purpose in giving this invitation. I wished to give an artistic treat to the society of Burlington and vicinity, and to assist the young ladies in their efforts to make their chosen vocations a success.

Miss Schuster is the foundress and directress of a school of elocution and dramatic action. During the short period of six years she has secured for her school its present high rank in the educational world. The art of good reading and artistic expression is becoming appreciative every day. We saw a striking evidence of this in a speech delivered by Mr. Ollie James on last court day in our court-house. It was not so much what he said as the manner in which he said it that caused such an outburst of enthusiasm.

Miss Schuster favored the audience with three recitations in which her artistic interpretation of the authors met with the most appreciative recognition by the very select assemblage. Miss Reaume, a niece and graduate of Miss Schuster's school, recited the Winning Cup's Race by Foss, in a manner that reflected great credit upon herself as well as her instructress. Nature has favored her with a beautiful person, and culture has rendered her voice and deportment charming both in the social circle and upon the stage. The ease and grace with which she rendered the Indian Club swinging was highly appreciated by the guests and gave evidence of a high degree of physical culture.

Miss Laughlin, from an elevated position in the rear of the stage presented a beautiful picture in demonstrating the Delsarte theory of physical culture in gesture and artistic posing. Miss Schuster read a selection from Longfellow and Miss Laughlin gave an expression to the sentiment in gestures and pantomime in perfect time to the music on piano by Miss Elsie Gallagher.

Master Percy Thomas, a Boone county lad, in his recitation of the "Limitations of Youth" by Eugene Field, immortalized himself as a comic recitationist. There is a vein of humor running through him that promises him good success as a comic presenter. His facial culture is wonderful for one so young.

Miss Eugenia Fowler, the little nine year old daughter of the popular host and hostess of the Boone House, displayed a wonderful elocutionary talent for one so young. She has a clear voice, distinct articulation, with a pronunciation and intonation that indicates a correct interpretation of the sentiment of the story she recites.

The music by Miss Gretchen Gallagher on violin accompanied by Miss Elsie on piano, was the occasion for long continued applause following each performance and she was obliged to respond to the hearty encore of her eager hearers. Miss Gallagher is an accomplished violinist and her execution is so artistic that those who hear her can not fail to note its beauty and precision. Her touch was so delicate and she handled her bow with such skill and technique that the music seemed to steal quietly into the hearts of her hearers and held them spellbound.

The ladies were accompanied by three very agreeable gentlemen—Judge Cecil Pence, of Covington, and Messrs. Monroe and Wulgemuth, of Cincinnati.

I met with many discouragements in trying to secure a piano. I expected to secure one in the vicinity of the courtroom, but failed. I then applied to the John Church Co. Failing to secure one of them, I applied to the Wurlitzer Co., 121 East Fourth St., Cincinnati. They offered me the use of any instrument in the house free of charge. This is one of the oldest and most successful firms in the piano business. Their pianos, wherever found, will testify to their favor more than any commendation I can give. G. C. G.

By one of those singular oversights which so often and so unaccountably occur, the young man who wrote up the "Confederate Reunion" for last week's Courier, omitted to mention one of the most picturesque and popular figures present on the grounds. Who that was there does not recall the scene when the venerable Dr. S. S. Scott, of Erlanger, was escorted to the platform by Col. A. S. Berry and stood tremulous with emotion, while his old companions in arms gathered about him to shake his hand and express the joy and gladness occasioned by meeting thus again. It was a great day for the old surgeon and soldier of many wars.—Williamstown Courier.

H. V. McChesney, Superintendent of Public Instructions, has sent out to the County Superintendents of Schools, the following communication:

"To County Superintendents: —Under a recent decision of the Court of Appeals the deficit of over $130,000, yet due certain cities on last school year must be paid out of the fund of the present year, and must be paid before any warrants are drawn. The payment of this will make it impossible to pay you the 40 per cent. due your teachers on Oct. 13th, only 20 per cent. can be paid. You will please explain to your teachers that this is due to the fact that the per capita was declared too high last year."

Robbed The Grave.

A startling incident is narrated by John Oliver, of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50c., guaranteed, at McKim's, Burlington; Crouch's, Union; Oelsner's, Florence.

PRACTICAL LESSONS.

Dr. Talmage Preaches a Sermon for Young Men.

The Temptations of College Life—Suggestions for Those Who Are Required to Leave Their Homes—Early Training.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.]

Dr. Talmage staid in London to occupy the famous Wesley pulpit in the City Road chapel, where he had preached several times before, always receiving a hearty welcome. Thence he went to Ireland, preaching in Belfast and Dublin. The discourse he has sent this week describes the behavior of a young man away from home and suggests practical lessons for people of every age and class. The text is Daniel 1, 5: "And the king appointed them a daily provision of the king's meat and of the wine which he drank; so nourishing them three years, that at the end thereof they might stand before the king."

My text opens the door of a college in Babylon and introduces you to a young student 17 years of age, Daniel by name. He not surprised if in the college you find many hilarities. Put a hundred young men together and they are sure to have a good time. There is no harm in that. God does not write out the trees and the grass and the blossoms in dull prose. The old robin does not sit moping in the nest because of the chirpings and the lively adventures of the fledglings that have just begun to fly. Do not come into an orchard looking for winter apples on a May morning.

But Daniel of the text is far from being gay. What oppressive thoughts must have come over him as he remembered that he was a captive in a strange land! The music that came into his study window was not the song of Zion, but the sound of flute, sackbut and dulcimer in the worship of the heathen god. Moreover, he had no hope of getting back home again and meeting those who had missed him long and bitterly, wondering if he were still alive and finding many a luxury tasteless because they did not know but Daniel might be lacking bread.

When you and I were in school or college and the vacation approached we were full of bright anticipation, and we could not study the last day, and we could not study the last night. The lexicon and the philosophical apparatus were transparent, so we could see right through them into the meadows and the orchards. Not so with poor Daniel. He did not know that he should ever escape from captivity, or escaping, he did not know but when he got home the loved ones would be dead, and he would go wandering and weeping among the sepulchers of his fathers. Besides that the king tried to make him forget his home and forget his country; for that purpose actually changed his name. The king wanted him to be a prodigy in personal appearance, and so he ordered meat and wine sent from his own table to Daniel, but Daniel refuses all this and puts himself upon the humblest diet, the phorest of all herbs, called pulse, and plain water. His attendants cry out against this and tell him he will perish under such a diet. "No," he says, "you try us for ten days, and if at the end of that time you are not full checked and robust as any, it will be surprising." Ten days pass along, and students come up for examination, and all declare that none are so ruddy and robust as Daniel and his fellow captives. The days of industrious pupilage and the years pass by, and the day of graduation has come, and Daniel gets his diploma, signed by the king, and reading as follows: "In all matters of wisdom and understanding that the king inquired of them he found them ten times better than all the magicians and astrologers that were in all his realm." And so Daniel took the first honor, and here the story ends, for Daniel the student hereafter will be Daniel the prime minister.

The first thought suggested to me by this subject is that young men may be carried into captivity by their enemies. There is a captivity more galling than the one in which Daniel was transported; it is the captivity of evil habit. Men do not go into that wittingly. Slyly and imperceptibly are the chains forged upon them, and one day they wake up to find themselves away down in Babylon. Cyrus afterward consented that some of his captives should return, and 50,000 of them accepted the opportunity, but tell me of that evil habit ever consented to set Wesson go. Ten plagues made Pharaoh's 5 o'clonsent to the departure of Moses, son, Jobie, but tell me what Pharaoh have been habit ever cheerfully consumes it is supposed any of its victims go. one was a compan evil habits as though dishes were gre company broke up and trivial, but they in unmeasured termsips that tear the rent Mrs. Sallie and Jenkes more bloody Mrs. Lizzie and Mr. a Brad On; they Misses Alva Williams, Sallie O'Neasus; and Katie Cleek; Messrs. John Keh nilly, Columbus Bedinger, Howe Adams and John G. Adams.

The Town Council having got it be inkling that a movement was be made to elect a new board of trust and got a move on itself and is hurrying some improvements that have long been threatened. The making of a lake walk on the street leading to the dep of the Short Line railroad, promis now to be completed before the t of the "Old Board" expires. This w be one good thing done by it, even be it never done any other. And, by the way, nothing has been said for a week or two about electing a new board.

bug. Pike's peak looks beautiful in the distance, but ask the starved travelers by the roadside what they think of Pike's peak. Are there those around whom suspicious companions are gathered? Do their jests and their entertainments make the hours go blithely by when you are with them? Have you taken a sip from their cup of sin or gone with them in one path of unrighteousness? Turn back. From Babylon they came and to Babylon they would carry you. If so many plague stricken men would like to enter your companionship, before anyone is allowed to pass into the intimacy of your heart put on them severest quarantine.

Let me say to those Christian parents who are doing their best in the education of their children: Take good heart; your sons this morning may be far away from you and in a distant city, but God, to whom you dedicated them, will take care of them. The God of Daniel will take care of them far away in Babylon. "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." He may wander away for awhile and fall into sin and break your heart, but before he is done with this life, you having commended him to God, he will come back again, for I put the emphasis in the right place and on the word "old" when I repeat that passage and say, "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." May you all have the glorious satisfaction of seeing your children walk in paths of righteousness and peace! One with them on earth, may you be one with them in Heaven!

But I learn also from this subject the beauty of Christian sobriety. The meat and the wine that were to come from the king's table were to come from the king's table. Well, Daniel had no right to take that food. The king was a heathen, and, like all the heathens, was accustomed to ask blessings before he partook of food, and in that blessing they always dedicated the food to the gods. So that if Daniel had taken this food he would have broken the law which forbade the taking of food dedicated to idols. He chose pulse. It was a miracle that he did not dwindle away. There is nothing in pulse, such a poor herb, to make a man ruddy and healthful. Some people talk as though that were a kind of diet which would make a man swarthy and competent to do the duties of this life. That is not the lesson of all. But for a positive miracle Daniel would have dwindled away, and when God for his self denial puts upon him this benediction He puts a benediction upon all Christian sobriety. I would not have you class your preacher among those who would put unnecessary restraint upon lawful appetites. There are those in this day who dispute the grant which God gave to man for animal food, and they make a religion of their hunger as the Pharisees expected Heaven for their fasting. Daniel did not always live on pulse. He was not a Grahamite; he was not a vegetarian. He went through that self-denial because the food offered him was idolatrous food. When I see God filling the earth with all varieties of food, I have not much confidence in the teaching of those who would put us on severe regimen. They are parents who, with a wrong theory in this respect, deny their children all harmless luxuries and without sufficient inquiry send them out to boarding schools where their intellects are enlivated to the disadvantage of their starved bodies, so that from many a boarding school a class of 20 will graduate, 19 of them ghosts. Now, when I see the three angels eating the calf which Abraham slew and when I find Christ eating broiled fish even after His resurrection, I come to the conclusion that the theories of the vegetarian are not from a religious standpoint well founded.

But, oh, how many temptations to dissipation! With so many things to tempt the appetite, how many temptations to gluttony! With so many sparkling beverages, how much temptation to drunkenness! Could I bring before you this morning the mothers and the wives and the sisters who have wept at the graves of the inebriate, your soul would be overpowered with the spectacle. Could I show you the manly forms robbed of their beauty, the eye flashings quenched in the wine cup, the ruddy cheek from which rum has wormed the rose, your soul would recoil with horror, and you would rise up and cry: "Begone, thou dream of hell!"

Charles Lamb, who made all the world laugh at his humor, and then afterward made all the world weep at his fate, who outwitted everybody and was at last outwitted of his own appetites, wrote thus: "The waters have gone over me; but out of the depths, could I be heard, I would cry out to all those who have set foot in the perilous flood. Could the youth to whom the flavor of the first wine is delicious as the opening scenes of his life, or the entering upon some newly discovered paradise—could he look into my desolation and be made to understand what a dreary thing it is when a man shall feel himself going down a precipice with open eyes and a passive will, to see his destruction and have no power to stop it, yet feel it all the way emanating from himself; to see all godliness ebbing out of him, and yet not able to forget the time when it was otherwise; to bear about the piteous spectacle of his own ruin—could he see his feverish eye, feverish with last night's drinking and feverishly looking for to-night's repetition of that same—could he but feel the body of this death out of which I cry bound, with the cheerful outcry to be delivered, sufficiently enough to make him dash the intoxicating beverage to the earth in all the power of its mantling temptation."

Another kind of pictures? Here, [illegible] by Solomon: "Who hath [illegible] hath sorrow? Who hath [illegible]? Who hath babbling? [illegible] wounds without cause?

They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek mixed wine. Look not thou upon the wine when it is red, when it moveth itself aright in the cup. At the last it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder."

"Do you know what you are doing?" said a mother who had broken into a restaurant, the door locked against her, her son inside. She came up to the counter and saw the man of the restaurant mingling the intoxicating cup for her own son. She said to the man behind the counter: "Do you know what you are doing?" "No," said he, "I don't." Says she: "You are fattening graveyards."

My subject also impresses me with the beauty of youthful character remaining incorrupt away from home. If Daniel had plunged into every wickedness of the city of Babylon, the old folks at home would never have heard of it. If he had gone through all the rounds of iniquity, it would have cast no shadow on his early home. There were no telegraphs; there were no railroads. But Daniel knew that God's eye was on him. That was enough. There are young men not so good away from home as at home. Frederick tending his father's sheep among the hills or thrashing rye in the barn is different perhaps from Frederick on the stock exchange. Instead of the retiring disposition there is bold effrontery; instead of an obliging spirit there is perhaps oppressive selfishness; instead of open handed charity there is tight-fisted stinginess; instead of reasonable hours there is midnight revel. I speak to many young men on this matter—you who may have left your father's house and others who, though still under the parental roof, are looking forward to the time when you will go forth to conflict, alone in this world, with its temptations and its sorrows, and when you will build up your own character. Oh, that the God of Daniel might be with you in Babylon!

I think the most thrilling passage of a young man's life is when he leaves home to make his fortune. The novelty and the romance of the thing may keep him from any keen sorrow, but the old people who have seen the destruction of so many who started with high hope cannot help but be anxious. As long as he was in his father's house his waywardness was kindly chided, and although sometimes he thought the restraint rather bitter and rather severe in his calmer moments he acknowledged it was salutary and righteous. Through the influence of metropolitan friends the father has obtained a situation for his son in the city. The comrades of the young man come the night before his departure to bid farewell to the adventurer. The morning of his going away he walks around the place to take a last look at things—perhaps comes upon some object that starts a tear, some old familiar place, but no one sees the tear. The trunk is put upon the wagon, the young man is off for the city. He is set down amid excitements and amid associates who are not overcareful about their words and thoughts and actions. Morning comes. No family altar. Sabbath comes. No rural quiet. The sanctuary comes, but all the faces are strange, and no one cares whether he comes to church or does not come. On his way home from the store he sees a placard announcing a rare and vivacious amusement. He has no greeting at the door of the boarding house. He has no appetite for the food. No one cares whether he eats or does not eat—rather he would not eat—it is cheaper! After the tea he goes into the parlor, takes up a book, finds it dull, no sister to look over it with him. Goes upstairs to his room in the third story, finds it cold and uninviting, and in despair he rushes out, caring for nothing but to get something to make him stop thinking. He is caught in the first whirl of sin. He has started out on the dark sea where the gleam of the joy is the flashing of the pit and the laughter is the creaking of the gate of the lost. Oh, how many graves there are in the country churchyard which, if they could speak, would tell of young men who went off with high hopes and came back binsted and crushed to disgrace the sepulcher of their fathers!

And yet this exodus must go on. As from distant hills the rivers are poured down through tunnels to slake the thirst of our great cities, so from distant country places the streams of incorrupt population must pour down to purify our great cities. Tomorrow morning on all the thoroughfares, in every steamboat and in every mail car will be young men going forth to seek their fortunes in our great towns. O Lord God of Daniel, help them to be as faithful in Babylon as they were in Jerusalem! Forget not, O my young friend, in the great seaports the moral and religious principles inculcated by parental solicitude, and if to-day seated in the house of God you feel the advantage of early Christian culture forget not those to whom you are most indebted and pray God that as old age comes upon them and the shadow of death the hope of Heaven may beam through the darkness. God forbid that any of us through our misconduct should bring disgrace upon a father's name or prove recreant to the love of a mother. The dramatist made no exaggeration when he exclaimed: "How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have a thankless child!" Oh, that God would help you as parents and as young people to take to heart the lessons of this important subject, and if we shall learn that there is danger of being carried into captivity, and that early impressions are almost ineffaceable, and that there is something beautiful in Christian sobriety, and that there is great attractiveness and purity away from home—then it will be to you one to me a matter of everlasting congratulation that we considered how Daniel behaved when he became a college student at Babylon.

ENRICHES THE FEW.

Cruelties of Republican Monopolists Perpetrated Upon Cruel-Sed Labor.

The strike of miners in the Pennsylvania coal fields is causing much concern to the republican bosses. They have not forgotten the Homestead troubles in 1892, nor their effects on the national campaign of that year. Soldiers and Pinkerton detectives, obeying the mandates of heartless capitalists, make poor campaigners among the common people. A needy miner shot down while asserting his manhood speaks louder to the hearts of the American masses than all their artillery.

Hanna recognizes these facts. After reaching New York the other day from Chicago, one of his first acts was to call on J. Pierpont Morgan, and a report of the interview says he told the big financier that unless the coal strike was stopped at once, the election of McKinley was in peril. "This strike will ruin us," Hanna is reported to have said, "and you with your great command can stop it." Mr. Morgan was told that no money was wanted from him, that the republican committee had all the funds it wanted; its pressing desire was that the strike should be ended until at least after the election, for every day of its continuance was winning thousands of votes for Bryan. Cornelius N. Bliss, former secretary of the interior; Senator Scott, of West Virginia, and the president of the National City bank were with Hanna, and they joined their voices in an earnest appeal that for the sake of party success, the strike should be settled at once.

It is too late. The harm has been done. The pitiful wail of the miners that they might as well starve idle as starve working has been heard throughout the land, and the infamous industrial system that enriches the few and pauperizes the many must go. It would be incredible, were not the facts adduced, that men with families of young children were compelled to work in the mines at an average of less than $250 a year. Some of them, as was recently stated, at a meeting of the miners never had in their possession even one dollar in cash of their earnings. It is all traded out as fast or faster than it was earned, in the "pluck-me" stores owned by the coal barons, where the unfortunate underground delvers were forced to purchase their insufficient necessaries of life and the materials used by them in their occupation. They were compelled to produce, too, for a ton of coal as high as 3,600 pounds, which the coal baron sold for nearly the equivalent of two tons. These facts and conditions are now known to all voters throughout the land, and even were the few moderate demands of the miners granted, it would not, in the minds of an outraged people be regarded as a condonation of the crimes and cruelties against robbed and crucified and too patient labor.

Hanna's presentation of the political situation seems to have convinced Morgan that the strike was a grave and dangerous one, and the latter immediately set to work to bring it to a close. The next day he held a conference with the presidents of the important coal roads and representatives of the coal operators for the purpose of devising means to end the strike, and the result will probably be that the coal trust will offer some concessions to the miners, for the time being, at least.

Hanna's assurances to Pierpont Morgan that he had all the money needed to run the national campaign was doubtless true, but was no pledge that the work of "fat-frying" would be suspended. That he should forget his role of "poucher" in the presence of a multi-millionaire showed how deeply the strike had troubled his mind. It is a sure sign that he is unnerved and frightened, and that he sees in the strike a political catastrophe that campaign contributions cannot avert. He wants the coal barons to do violence to their feelings by pretending to sympathize with the woes of the miners, and taking some steps to temporarily remedy some of their grievances.

The Helena Independent, of Helena, Mont., furnishes some interesting figures in regard to the strike in the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania.

"It is estimated that if the anthracite coal strike should last two months the men will lose $8,000,000 in wages; and operators $20,000,000 and the railroad companies a like amount.

Here is a curious condition, well illustrating the power of private monopoly to rob the producer, arbitrarily fix the terms and conditions of labor, and appropriate the fruits of industry for the benefit of the few at the expense of the many.

It is estimated that some 115,000 or 120,000 workers will lose $8,000,000 in wages while a few monopolies will lose $20,000,000. In other words these few monopolies get 2½ times as much for mere ownership as the great army of laborers get for doing the work.

Every $100 got from mining and marketing the coal is distributed as follows:

To the coal miners	$16 68
To the monopolists	41 67
To the railroads	41 67
Total	$100 00

Leaving the railroads out of account, every $100 got for mining the coal is distributed as follows:

To the miners	$28 57
To the monopolists	71 43

The railroads get 2½ times as much for carrying the coal to market as the miners get for digging it out of the ground.

"Private monopolies are indefensible and intolerable," says the democratic platform; and these private coal monopolies are an apt illustration of that declaration.

RELATIVES DESERT HIM.

Members of the McKinley Family Who Will Vote for Bryan This Year.

President McKinley appears to have been deserted by his own kith and kin. So far the returns indicate that only "Brother Abner" remains loyal to the political fortunes of the republican imperator.

Mr. McKinley has relatives of near and remote degree in many parts of the country, and these, almost without exception, will vote this year for Mr. Bryan, although most of them supported "Cousin William" in 1896.

Several weeks ago there appeared a list of McKinley's relatives who had repudiated their kinsman. An additional list has been furnished by William W. McKinley, of Kosciusko county, Ind., who vouches for its accuracy. The list follows:

Preston H. McKinley, of Harper county, Kan.

Dr. L. D. McKinley, of Topeka, Kan.

William W. McKinley, of Kosciusko county, Ind.

B. H. McKinley, Delaware county, Ind.

W. J. McKinley, Delaware county, Ind.

John W. McKinley, Delaware county, Ind.

Samuel McKinley, Delaware county, Ind.

Thomas McKinley, Delaware county, Ind.

James McKinley, Delaware county, Ind.

Robert McKinley, Delaware county, Ind.

George McKinley, Delaware county, Ind.

These are all relatives of President McKinley. William W. and B. H. are first cousins; W. J. and Samuel are second cousins, while the others are third cousins of the Canton man. One of them is postmaster in his Indiana town, while all are prominent and reputable citizens. They declare they cannot vote for their relative and will cast their ballots in November for Bryan and Stevenson.

——The contortions of Hanna in the effort to extricate himself from a bad position are amusing. He denies having said certain things in alleged interviews, but the fun begins when he attempts to explain just what he did say. Hanna's revised logic finally sifts itself down to the proposition that there are no trusts, because the Sherman law and statutes in several states prevent the existence of illegal trusts. In other words, there are no trusts, because there are some legal ones. As is usually the case with orators who do not weigh their words, Hanna gets more and more muddled the more he "explains."—Boston Globe.

A FOE TO EMPIRE.

Prof. Laughlin, Political Scientist, Against McKinley.

Former Opponent of "Coin" Harvey Calls Philippine War a Blunder —Imperialism Against Constitution.

Prof. J. Laurence Laughlin, who was one of William McKinley's most energetic supporters four years ago, and who took a prominent part in debates with "Coin" Harvey, advocating the single gold standard, recently announced to his classes at the University of Chicago that he cannot cast his ballot for the McKinley administration. Prof. Laughlin gives as his reason for the defection President McKinley's attitude on the question of imperialism.

"The course of the present administration is opposed to the very origin and genius of our institutions," he insists, "and I cannot vote for McKinley."

Prof. Laughlin is head of the department of political science at the University of Chicago. He believes that American commerce can never be increased by the methods of imperialism alone.

"Trade does not follow the flag," he insists, "but on the contrary, the flag follows trade. When American ability to compete in foreign markets is proved there trade will go and later the protecting flag will follow."

Philippine War a Blunder.

"There is no need of words how we came by the Philippines. The war on those islands was due to someone's blunder. They tell us that we must stay on the islands to obtain markets for our manufacturers; that the Philippines will provide a basis of trade with the orient. They tell us that we ought to conduct the war to this end even at a cost of countless lives and millions of dollars.

"The argument that this course is an effectual means to trade expansion is fallacious. Go back to the years between 1893 and 1898 and you will find that the total annual value of the exports and imports in the Philippine islands was $34,000,000. Supposing that this trade was all under American control and that 10 per cent was rate of profit, say ten per cent., it would be insufficient even to pay the interest on our war loan.

Home Conditions Tell.

"Increasing trade will not depend on our owning the Philippines. After we get them we must open the doors of trade to other nations on about the same conditions as we ourselves enjoy. Then to sell goods to the islanders we must make the prices as low as those of other nations. Our ability to compete with these other nations will depend upon the industrial conditions at home.

"The fact that the value of American exports has reached a sum never equaled before refutes the claim that we need foreign ports to sell goods. Whether America shall sell to the Filipinos much or little depends upon what the islanders can produce to offer us and upon our ability to supply the goods they desire cheaper than any other nation. If American manufacturers wish to sell goods on the eastern markets the conditions at home must be looked after.

"The ability to sell depends upon America's natural resources, on the efficiency of labor and the organization of industries. Also on the low cost of transportation, the knowledge of foreign markets and the adaptability to the customs and the prejudices of buyers.

America Leads in Steel.

"America has taken the lead in iron and steel trade because of the abundance of ores, the improved machinery for loading and the capacity of transports. European contracts for bridge building and railroad construction come to Americans because advantages similar to those enumerated enable them to do the work cheaper and better and faster than the British firms. And so I say that trade with the Philippines depends more on the smoking chimneys of the south than on the rapid-firing guns of the army.

"It is the laboring man and the taxpayer who defray the enormous cost of exploiting a new country for the benefit of a favored few who obtain industrial concessions there. The only commercial gains by conquest go to the few at the expense of the workingman and the taxpayer. The course of the present administration in exploiting the Philippines is opposed to the very origin and genius of our institutions.

Disloyal to Past History.

"Imperialism is the government of a colony which has no equal share in controlling the policy of the parent state. This is exactly the system which the American republic once repudiated.

"It is the very elementary principle on which the constitution is based, and that principle is being betrayed. If there is any historic sense in the American people they will reverse the policy of imperialism, as the hope lies not so much in presidents as in the houses of congress.

"President McKinley declared at Atlanta two years ago that 'the flag has been planted in the hemisphere to stay,' which remains the symbol of liberty and law, of peace and progress. Who will withdraw from the people over whom it floats its protecting folds? Who will pull it down? In the Philippines we are now mowing down the natives with rapid-fire guns—'nigger-hunting.' It is grewsomely expressed. The flag does not protect those over whom it floats. It is there to Filipinos the emblem of tyranny and butchery.

Principle Is Overthrown.

"The common sense of the people knows that the flag cannot be immediately withdrawn, but the moral sense of the people demands that so long as it remains its folds shall provide in the west and brown men alike a tree and independent government and assurance from outside aggression. As a nation of freemen all equal under the constitution we are now defying ourselves morally and politically. We are showing to the world that our principles of government are as nothing in comparison with grasping land, because it is said by our legislators to be fertile and rich.

"The baseseness of this philosophy should bring its own punishment and dishonor. The base greed for gain which has led strong interests to obtain the promise of special privileges in return for political support is apparent in the whole business. The appeal to the cupidity of the dishonest element in the country has been openly proclaimed by some of our legislators, notably by Senator Beveridge, who advocates the conquest of the Philippines, because they abound in gold and hemp.

"I have not decided what course to follow at election time, but I shall not vote for William McKinley."

——Mr. Bryan can no more be held responsible for the ice trust than can Mr. McKinley be held responsible for Gov. Roosevelt's strange suspension of the state constitution and laws to keep the ice trust mayor in the office which he has forfeited on his own sworn confession.—N. Y. World.

——According to Mr. Hanna's way of theorizing there are no trusts in this country, either, because there are laws against them. He says there are no trusts because we have laws against trusts.—Rochester Herald.

NOTES FROM WASHINGTON

What Is Going On in the National Struggle for Political Supremacy.

ADMINISTRATION AIDS THE TRUSTS.

Prosperity of the Trusts Is an Undisputed Fact—Labor Oppressed by the Combines—Republican Indifference to the Workingmen's Troubles.

[Special Correspondence.]

Hanna occasionally tells an unconscious truth. In one of his recent noonday speeches in New York city he said:

"In this political struggle, where the issue is the prosperity of the country, we must brush everything else aside."

Now, what Hanna really meant was that the republicans consider the prosperity of the trusts the chief issue. To them everything else must be brushed aside.

But he literally and unintentionally indorses the democratic position in saying that the prosperity of the whole country is the issue. The democrats contend that we have had trust prosperity and not that of the whole people. In fact, the masses have been heavily assessed in order to pile up trust millions.

There isn't any doubt about the reality of trust prosperity. When the wire trust makes $15,000,000 in six months it is prosperous. But in order to do that it doubles the price of barbed wire to the farmers and closes five factories, throwing thousands of men out of work.

The republicans believe in encouraging this sort of trust prosperity. It does not matter to them that the workman and the farmer have less than before the trust was organized.

Trust Prosperity.

The coal combine js prosperous. It has a monopoly of the anthracite coal of the world. By working its men long hours and at low wages it secured the largest output of coal this year that was ever known in the anthracite field. Recently it has advanced the price of coal two dollars a ton to the consumer. The advance alone nets the coal trust $2,000,000 a week.

How about the miners who dig the coal out of the earth? They are not prosperous. In fact, they have been so near starvation that they recently went on strike. Then public attention was called to the awful conditions under which the coal combine forced its men to work. An average wage of 90 cents a day. Only 180 days of work last year. The miner furnishes his own blasting powder at $2.50 a keg. He could buy it for 90 cents from anybody but "the company."

The miner never sees a dollar of cash from one end of the year to the other. He is forced to trade at the "company store." There he pays from 40 to 60 per cent. more than even the trust prices on necessaries in the open market.

If his family is ill the miner must patronize the company doctor. He even lives in the compaay hut, by courtesy called a house.

The miners' strike caused the whole country to draw the contrast between the prosperity of the coal combine and the starvation of its employes.

The republican party has made it clear that it favors trusts. In four years President McKinley has not acquired courage enough to interfere with any trust, no matter how illegal or unjust its transactions.

Hanna's Fears.

Now Hanna fears that the miners' strike will defeat the republican party next month. He is trying to patch up a compromise which will send the men back to work until after election.

Unfortunately for Mr. Hanna's plans, the miners want their union recognized if any concessions are to be made. They know that if the operators deal with them as individuals all concessions are likely to be revoked immediately after election. If an advanced wage scale were signed there might be some hope of permanency.

In any case, the operators will make the consuming public pay the bills. If the miners go back to work this week at a ten per cent. advance in wages the public will still be charged with the 25 per cent. advance which went into effect immediately after the strike was declared.

Bryan has called attention to the deplorable conditions under which the miners work. The democratic press has so successfully put before the public the justice of the miners' demands, that Hanna is forced to assume a sympathy for the men which he does not feel.

Even if the strike is settled before election, the public will not forget that the coal combine is still doing business at the old stand. The people want to replace McKinley by a president who will look out for the welfare of the masses.

Republican Indifference.

The Workingmen's Political league, of New York, has just passed resolutions calling attention to the indifference of Hanna and other republican leaders to labor troubles in the past four years. They declare that his interest in settling the miners' strike at this time is a purely political one.

They are entirely right. Hanna has always been the enemy of organized labor. He wrecked the Lake Seamen's union, of Cleveland, by his arbitrary and unreasonable attitude toward men who were only asking living wages and fair conditions of labor. It is too late for Hanna to pose as a friend of the laboring man. His record is too well known.

Judge W. A. Day, auditor of the treasury under President Cleveland, has written a letter to Chairman Richardson, of the democratic congressional committee, in which he scores Hanna for asking the country to "Trust McKinley", to deal with the trusts.

Judge Day declares that McKinley's attorney general deliberately refuse to enforce the Sherman anti-trust law, even after the supreme court of the United States declared that the Trans-Missouri Freight association and similar combines were criminal associations.

In the Trans-Missouri case the supreme court decision was filed 18 days after McKinley was elected. It only remained for the attorney general to direct the punishment. This was never done. The Joint Traffic association was another trust which came under the jurisdiction of the Sherman law. President McKinley and his attorney general refused to enforce even the anti trust law already in existence.

If President McKinley has not done his plain duty in relation to trusts in the past four years, the people have no reason to trust him for another term of office.

ADOLPH PATTERSON.

TRUST OF GRAIN MEN.

A Gigantic Conspiracy to Rob the Farmers of the Country.

P. E. Dowie, member of the executive committe of the National Democratic Traveling Men's association, and of the Commercial Travelers' Anti-Trust league, arrived in Chicago a few days ago. He has just completed an extensive tour of Missouri, Nebraska and Iowa.

"I have recently discovered," said Mr. Dowie, "a gigantic conspiracy to rob the farmers of the country. This latest product of monopoly includes in its membership about 600 big grain dealers and elevator men in the territory extending from St. Paul on the north to Kansas City on the south, including the states of Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas.

"All of the 600 and more members of this newest thing in trusts, are pledged to buy grain at one and one-half cents low, that is below the cash price, and to store for not less than one and one-half cents profit. The association engineering the scheme is to fix the selling price. Forty per cent. of the profits are to go to the association, the balance going to the dealers who are parties to the swindle.

"Grain dealers in the sections where the trust is at work have been induced to sign contracts and a regular system of inspection guarantees against cutting prices. Grain stations are established here and there, and at each station the trust has an agent who has authority to inspect the books of any member of the association. A membership fee of $50 is charged. A fine of $100 is imposed if the agreement is broken, and $50 is charged for reinstating a member who has violated any of the terms of the pact.

"On its part, the association guarantees the grain dealers who enter into the agreement protection from changes in ownership of elevators where they may have their grain stored. If an elevator attempts to break away or to run independent, they guarantee to have its supply of cars shut off, so that it cannot ship grain to market in opposition to the trust.

"Since I have discovered the conspiracy, a few days since, I have been collecting information concerning it. I ascertained to-day that the promoter and organizer of the trust is an ardent republican and superintendent of one of the largest elevators in the country.

"The practical workings of this combination to rob the farmers are not difficult to see. By getting all the grain dealers of a community enrolled as members, it is impossible for the farmers of that section to sell to anyone outside the trust or to ship their grain away. They must stand the loss of a cent and a half a bushel on the price of their grain in order to find a market. I am not ready to give the names, but will do so soon."

It is said that the new movement to compel the farmers in the states mentioned to accept less than the market price to realize on their crops had its inception in Chicago, and that several of the big elevator men and grain dealers are interested in it.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

——Now, as there are really no trusts in this country, as Boss Hanna says, how is Mr. McKinley going to explain what he had in mind when he wrote that part of his letter of acceptance speaking of "conspiracies against trade, commouly called trusts?"—Fort Worth Journal.

——In his Chicago speech Senator Hanna wiped out the trusts. In New York he removed imperialism from the campaign. There are no trusts and there is no imperialism. Only one real and substantial issue remains, therefore, and that is the full dinner pail.—Chicago Chronicle.

——President McKinley loudly declares that "prosperity abounds everywhere throughout the republic," but that declaration is not likely to be particularly popular in Newtown or in any of the other towns which find themselves wrecked by the legitimate operations of the trust programme.—Rockford Star.

——While Mark Hanna is engaged in what he calls "tearing the mask from the face of that hypocrite, William J Bryan," he might take a snatch at the musk on the face of the hypocrite who declares that "there is not a trust in the entire United States" and then holds up the trusts for $30,000,000.—St. Louis Republic.

CONNOISSEUR.

He Planted Some Bulbs and Found Out to His Sorrow That He Was in for a Bicycle.

"I have a good joke on myself," said the business man whose hobby is agriculture, says the Detroit Free Press. "My mind has always had a particular preference for seeds and roots, and I never miss an opportunity to indulge this fancy. Some time ago, in looking through an old tool box, I came across several peculiar looking seeds that at once aroused my interest. They were a little different from anything that I had discovered during my horticultural and agricultural experience, and I decided to plant them and see what the product would be. Well, I did so, and for weeks I waited to see the strange fruit, flower or vegetable plant make an appearance, carefully nurturing the soil, and giving my pet bulbs the closest attention.

"Discouraged at length at their failure to part the soil and spring into life, I dug them up, and what do you suppose was the discovery that I made? Why, that my interesting and peculiar bulbs were nothing more nor less than those little bicycle balls that are an important part of the steel steed's mechanism. They had been laid away in the toolbox, and their size and rusted appearance made them resemble seeds. My wife and some of my intimate friends seem to think there is no excuse for such a ludicrous thing to happen to a man that has made a study of plants and bulbs. I've never done chaffing me and asking me when I expect to gather my crop of bicycles."

WORTH A KING'S RANSOM.

Saved From the Maelstrom of Catarrh

How Peruna Saves Lives

Mrs. Col. E. J. Gresham, Treasurer Daughters of the Confederacy and President Herndon Village Improvement Society, writes the following letter from Hernden, Fairfax county, Va.:

Hernden, Va.

The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Gentlemen—"I cannot speak too highly of the value of Peruna. I believe that I owe my life to its wonderful merits. I suffered with catarrh of the head and lungs in its worst form, until the doctors fairly gave me up, and I despaired of ever getting well again.

"I noticed your advertisement and the splendid testimonials given by people who had been cured by Peruna, and determined to try a bottle. I felt but little better, but used a second and a third bottle and kept on improving slowly.

"It took six bottles to cure me, but they were worth a King's ransom to me. I talk Peruna to all my friends and am a true believer in its worth." Mrs. Col. E. J. Gresham.

Thousands of women owe their lives to Peruna. Tens of thousands owe their health to Peruna. Hundreds of thousands are praising Peruna in every state in the Union. We have on file a great multitude of letters with written permission for use in public print, which can never be used for want of space.

Address The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O., for a book written especially for women, instructively illustrated, entitled "Health and Beauty." Sent free to women.

When a man gets one, he becomes a slave to his bowels. Every person ought to have control over the different parts of the body, and it is the easiest thing in the world to educate the bowels, make them do their duty naturally and regularly, and keep them from becoming a source of misery and a deformity as well.

Educate your bowels!

Don't neglect the slightest sign of irregularity but see that you have at least one natural easy movement a day. Pills, salts and black draughts are dangerous because they strain and weaken the bowels. What you want is a mild but sure laxative, that tones and strengthens the bowels and stimulates their movements. Such a laxative is CASCARETS, and when you try them, you will find that it is the easiest thing in the world to make and keep your bowels clean and regular, strong and healthy. Be sure you get the genuine. CASCARETS are never sold in bulk. Look for the trade-mark, the long-tailed "C" on the box. By keeping the bowels clean, all serious disorders are Thirteen indictments have been returned by the Christian county grand jury against prominent Republicans, including several county officials, for violation of election laws. Commonwealth Attorney Howell, who has been active in uncovering these offences, says the full extent of the corruption has not yet been disclosed and that if the present grand jury had had sufficient time to have handled the mass of evidence brought before it, indictments might have been returned against Republicans, both white and black, for fraudulent registration, false swearing and gross irregularities. He says the public will be astonished at the disclosures at trials of persons already indicted.

A Quaker once sent his watch to a jeweler to have it repaired, and sent with it the following note: "Dear Sir—I hereby send thee my pocket clock, which standeth in need of friendly correction. The last time it was in thy friendly school it was in no way benefitted thereby, for I perceive by the index of its mind that it is a liar, and the truth is not in it. Purge it, therefore, and correct it from the error of its way, and when thou findeth it conformed to the above rules, send it to me with a true and just bill, drawn out in the spirit of moderation, and I will remit to thee in the root of all evil."

Cincinnati Tobacco Market.

The market for the past week was quite steady and uniform in price from the opening to the close.

Bright trashes and medium lugs were in stronger request and prices bid were rather more favorable to the seller than a week ago. Fine to fancy trash and lugs were offered sparingly. Prices bid for them were a shade better, though generally not quite up to the expectations of growers and shippers. The demand for common or green tips and trash showed no improvement. Prices bid for them showed no quotable change. Speculative interest in these sorts does not appear as strong as heretofore. Good clean red tips hold firm at full prices. The demand for this sort of tobacco appears to be slightly increased, but not sufficiently however to advance the prices for the same. Good to fine cutters and fillers meet an active market and quick and spirited bidding; up to fourteen dollars; above this price the market is slow and draggy. The supply of these sorts is not over abundant, and they are sweet and sound and will remain so. For this reason manufacturers buying them on the present market for immediate or future use are surely not making any mistake.

While the present market is not as high as for June and July, it is not a bad one. We think it wise for dealers to continue selling and to be ready to take hold of the new crop, unhandicapped by the carrying of a too heavy load of old tobacco.

GOOD FARM
FOR SALE.
Desiring to retire from farming I offer for sale my farm of 62 acres, near Florence, this county, and known as the Allen Conner farm. About one-half of this land was never plowed, and the entire track is very fertile and under splendid fence. The dwelling of seven rooms is in excellent repair throughout. All necessary outbuildings in good order. There is abundance of good stock water in the dryest seasons. It has an orchard of 8 acres. Terms made known on application. This is one of the best farms in the county, and is well located.

THE total British losses in the Boer War to date are officially stated at about 40,000 men, of whom three fourths have been sent home as invalids and the other fourth have died from one cause or another. Pretty expensive fighting, considering everything, wasn't it?

DON'T forget that Hon. Adlai E. Stevenson, Democratic candidate for the Vice-President, will speak at Lawreceburg, Ind., on the 29inst., at 2 p. m. He is a strong speaker, and it will do you good to hear him.

"THERE are no trusts," says Mr. Hanna. Mr. Monnett, while Attorney General of Ohio, found a trust and undertook to put it out of business, but instead lost his job. Monnett, at least thinks there are trusts.

To be as far advanced as it is, the national campaign is exceedingly quiet, and what this unusual quietude augurs is puzzling the politicians in both parties. There is no question but a surprise is in store for somebody, and two weeks from yesterday the curtain will be lifted and the politicians will then know where they are at.

THE ovation given W. J. Bryan in New York city, last week, was the greatest ever accorded any man by that metropolis, except Admiral Dewey, when he came home from Manilla. The reception was expected to be a big affair, but eclipsed any thing that had been anticipated.

WELL, it looks like South Trimble ought to make a good race for Congress in the Seventh District. Five times has he been declared the Democratic nominee since he entered the contest. Is there anybody in any party who has a record equal to Mr. Trimble's on the question of nominations?

THE local Democratic orators have been rendering faithful service in the campaign this fall, and it is hoped that their efforts will be rewarded next month by a handsome increase in Boone's Democratic majority. If the Democrats will all turn out and vote, an increased majority in the county is inevitable.

THE Coxites gave Roosevelt an awful frost when he landed in Cincinnati. He was absolutely ignored by them for several hours, before some of the leaders concluded they had made a mistake, and went before the Vice-Presidential candidate to explain matters, but he was in no mood to accept the apologies offered, and left the city as mad as a wet hen.

THE Legislature finally succeeded in passing what is considered an absolutely nonpartisan election law, which will not go into effect in time to hold the next eleetion under it. The present law was amended and imposes several additional duties on the officers of eleetion, and that part of the amendment setting forth the additional duties will be published in these columns next week,

THE Owen county papers are figuring on a Democratic majority in that county anywhere from two thousand to two thousand five hundred. That kind of talk indicates that Mr. Todd going over to the opposite party has not demoralized the Democratic party in the State of Owen. Boone county Democrats should prove to the Owen county brethren that they are not asleep, but that they are also putting up a game fight.

GOV. BRADLEY has been twice summnned to testify on behalf of defendants, charged with the assassination of Senator Goeble, and he appeared in court in response to each summons, but in both instances the attorneys for defendant deemed it advisable not to call Gov. Bradley to the stand. That proceedure looks very singular. He ought to have been given an opportunity to contradict some of the damaging statements that have been made in regard to his knowledge of the conspiracy, by witnesses for the prosecution.

THE bridge between Carrollton and Prestonville will be formally opened on the 25th inst., and that will be the greatest day in the history of that thriving little city. Her enterprising ctizens have worked long and faithfully to secure the construction of the bridge, and have overcome numerous obstacles, which, to a less enterprising community, would have proven insurmountable. Here is to Carrollton and her new bridge, and may every advantage anticipated from its construction be realized an hundred fold.

AND ex-President Harrison is not even a little bit inclined to assist the Republican party in the campaign now on. The Administration's Porto Rican policy threw Mr. Harrison off his feet, and he has not become reconciled to a degree that will permit him to take the stump in behalf of a candidate whom he considers as having departed from the fundamental principles of government, as heretofore recognized by this country. Mr. Harrison says he is out of politics, and probably wants it understood that he can afford to be consistent.

WITH this issue the RECORDER begins its twenty-sixth year. It has been here now for a quarter of a century, and has on its subscription list the names of many friends who have stood by it from its infancy—friends who have been friends indeed, and whose steadfastness is and has been at all times duly appreciated at this office. In beginning a new volume the RECORDER desires to thank all those who have in any way assisted it in arriving at its present age, and especially does it desire to again thank its neighborhood correspondents for their valuable assistance in the past, for it is largely to them its popularity is due

MR. BRYAN is surely immensely stronger in both, New York State and New York City, than he was four years ago. In 1896 the majority of the Democratic leaders there were giving his campaign the cold shoulder, but this year the men who were fighting him in '96 are giving him a hearty support, making his prospects for carrying the Empire State next month much better than they were four years since. The conditions that prevail in New York are reported from every part of the country, and when it is remembered that a proper distribution of twenty-five thousand votes in 1896 would have given Mr. Bryan a majority of the electoral college, there is nothing in sight in the present campaign that is calculated to discourage the Democrats, while, on the other hand, there is much to encourage them to increase their efforts to achieve a great victory at the polls next month.

HON. ADLAI E. STEVENSON, Democratic candidate for Vice-President, will speak at Lawrenceburg, Indiana, October 29, at 2 p. m, All of Boone county will be there.

OF course, there was a good deal of organization about the Bryan welcome in New York the other night. But nevertheless it was clearly evident that something more than organization was there.

It matters not whether apples are intended for home use or market, they should in either case be carefully gathered. In packing ladders should be employed in reaching the outer portions of the tree, as an active man can usually relieve the tree of about one-third of its fruit by standing upon the main branches, when the trees are strong enough to support the weight. The fruit from the lower branches is quickest gathered by the use of a step-ladder; it is quickly moved about and the fruit is not bruised or knocked off, nor the little twigs broken as by the use of a common ladder.

The fruit should be loosened by raising upward and not pulled off as is usually done, and with varieties that cling tenaciously, raise the apple and give it a half turn at the same time. Lay carefully in the basket or receptacle used, and when placing in a box or barrel handle with care, in fact just as tenderly as you would eggs, thereby preventing bruising or puncturing of the skin by the stems. Apples for home use should not be placed directly in the cellar, but in a dark, well-ventilated building, until freezing weather approaches, and those intended for market should be put upon the ground under the trees, to remain a week or more; and then barreled. All bruised ones are then readily discernable and may be thrown out for evaporating or other use.—L. D. Snook, in American Agriculturalist.

Every swine grower knows that success in pork production is best promoted by having an abundance of good pasture. The hogs thrive best and make pork cheapest on grass and clover for, by nature, the pig feeds on grass as well as grains, notwithstanding the comparatively small size of its stomach. Pigs like blue grass pasture well and it comes early, but brood sows that are nursing should be turned on it with caution and gradually accustomed to it, otherwise it will affect the milk and the swine grower will be wondering what is the matter with his pigs. Blue grass is also fine fall pasture for brood sows, after the clover has been nipped by the frost. Clover is a fine summer pasture hard to improve upon and coming in when blue grass has become a little dry and unpalatable, and both the sows and pigs can almost live upon it until fall. We say almost, advisedly, for pigs feed naturally on grass as well as grain, and not on grass exclusively at any season. Clover should be managed so that the pigs will always have it young and tender. When it becomes woody larger stock should eat it down or it may be mowed, so as to allow the new growth to come on. Rape is also being more largely grown for hog pasture and it makes a very good one, especially in the fall, and early fall sown rye serves an excellent purpose after it has made a good growth. With reasonable forethought it is no very difficult matter to provide good pasture for the hogs the whole season through, and they will be all the better for it as well as more cheaply grown. No one should try to raise hogs without plenty of pasture throughout the season, but remember also that it takes grain to make a marketable hog and to keep brood sows up to their work.—Ex.

When the farmer sneers at the scientific study of agriculture he is trying to look out of the back of his head Every farmer is a scientist that strives to gain a knowledge of the facts and forces about him, and further a knowledge of the law that governs their action. He is the best farmer, that can bring to his aid the largest knowledge of nature's forces and the best skill in the management of these forces. To take advantage of his own knowledge and all the knowledge of other men that he can absorb is the true way to be practical. That is wisdom. To refuse to do this—folly. To be able to handle this knowledge to his own profit and advancement, that is skill. Knowledge of the science of this or that comes through study, making the mind familiar with it. Skill comes through practicing what a man knows. Without practice there can be no skill.—London Agricultural Engineer.

The Chicago postoffice receiver an order from the Postmasted General at Washington which rules all coupon schemes out of the mails. Until now they have not been prosecuted as violators of any law, as they were organized before the law excluding their business from the mails was passed.

The scheme referred to is that of the chain letter system. A firm sends out a book of coupons and the persons receiving the book are to send each coupon to a different person. These return the coupon which they receive with a certain amount of money and receive some article of more or less value and also a coupon book. They in turn send out the coupons to their friends and the chain is continued indefinitely. When a certain number of each customer's friends have returned the coupons which he sent them to the firm the customer receives a prize.

The postoffice authorities hold this a violation of the postal laws. Not only are the coupons to be excluded from the mails, but all matter pertaining to the advertisement of such schemes is shut out. The department does not state whether the endless chain letter scheme for charitable purposes is included under this ruling.—Caxton Caveat.

If you are fortunate enough to have some clover, cut it for your hens. This is the best bulky food you can get for your hens. It takes the place of green food in winter, and is cheap. Being bulky it aids in digesting the other more concentrated foods, as grain and meats. It is also rich in mineral food that is in a digestible form. It will help make bone and feathers and furnishes lime for egg shells, besides supplying the yolk with plenty of mineral matter. It should be cut into half inch lengths and then steamed by pouring over it boiling water and letting it stand, well covered, over night to make it tender. With it should be mixed a little ground food and table scraps or meatand bone.

Cut the clover when in full bloom, and after it has been well cured it should be stored away where it will be handy to get next winter. It can be cut on any ordinary feed cutter or a special cutter be obtained for a small sum from any leader in poultry supplies.—Indiana Farmer.

A bill is being prepared by Chas. A. Hess, the Secretary of the Kentucky State Poultry Association, which will be presented at the next regular session of the Kentucky Legislature for the appropriation of $2,000 for the benefit of the Association.

At the last session of the Nebraska legislature an appropriation was made for $2,000 for the benefit of the Nebraska State Poultry Association. There are several other States that do this. Why not Kentucky?

It Happened in a Drug Store.

"One day last winter a lady came to my drug store and asked for a brand of cough medicine that I did not have, in stock," says Mr. C. R. Grandin, the popular druggist of Ontario, N. Y. "She was disappointed and wanted to know what cough preparation I could recommend. I said to her that I could freely recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that she could take a bottle of the remedy and after giving it a fair trial if she did not find it worth the money to bring back the bottle and I would refund the price paid. In the course of a day or two the lady came back in company with a friend in need of a cough medicine and advised her to buy a bottle of Chaimberlain's Cough Remedy. I consider that a very good recommendation for the remedy. It is for sale by McKim, Burlington, C. S. Balsly, Bullittsville, O. N. Grant, Bellevue, Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg.

Stretch a stout wire across your stable at right angles to the stalls, put a ring on it first, however. Fasten a harness clasp to the ring. Hang your lantern wherever you happen to be working. Of course, make the wire high enough to be out of the way of stock and your head. No kicking the light over, nor setting the barn on fire this way.

Notice the little children on the street and you may find pleasant thoughts entering your soul.

FACTS FOR CONSIDERATION.

The New York State Bureau of Labor Statistics is a non partisan bureau, obtaining its facts from resorts of all the labor organizations and trades unions in the State. Its bulletins show that while the number of men employed in all skilled labor trades since 1896, has increased 18 per cent. the aggregate or gross sum of wages paid has increased, the average rate of wages has fallen off.

Do you know that

It requires 50 per cent. more wheat to buy a stove than it did in 1896?

But—the stove moulder gets no higher wages.

Who gets the difference?

It requires twenty bushels more corn to buy a wagon than it did in 1896.

But—the wheel wrights and wagon-makers get no higher wages.

Who gets the difference?

It requires 100 per cent more corn or wheat to buy a copper kettle than in 1896.

But—the copper workers and drawers get no higher wages.

Who gets the difference?

It requires twice as much corn to buy a coil of rope as in 1806.

But—the rope-makers get no higher wages.

Who gets the difference?

It requires 75 per cent. more grain to buy a plow than in 1896.

But—agricultural implements makers get no higher wages.

Who gets the difference?

It requires 75 per cent. more grain to buy a hoe, a rake or a shovel than in 1896.

But—the men who make these things get no higher wages.

Who gets the difference?

A set of common wheels that cost $7.00 in 1896 now cost $12.00.

But—the wheel makers get no higher wages.

Who gets the difference?

The price of cultivators and other farm implements have gone up proportionately.

But—the workers engaged to these trades get no higher wages.

Who gets the difference?

Galvanized barbed wire costs from $4 to $4.50 per hundred more than in 1896.

But—the wire drawers get no higher wages.

Who gets the difference?

It requires 40 per cent. more corn or cotton to buy a pound of sugar than in 1896.

But—the sugar makers get no higher wages.

Who gets the difference?

You have to pay 40 per cent. more for glass than in 1806.

But—the glass makers get no higher wages.

Who gets the difference?

Freight rates have climbed back to the exorbitant prices which caused a popular revolt in legislation a few years ago.

But—the railroad employe gets no more higher wages.

Who gets the difference?

The prices of oil, coal, lumber, tools and hardware have gone up from 40 to 100 per cent.

But—the laborers engaged in this work, skilled and unskilled, get no more weges.

Who gets the difference?

All these things have been done by the trusts. Can you answer these questions now?

A trusts robs you walking or sleeping, eating or drinking, working or playing, living or dying, and the coffin trust gets you in the end.

Bismark's Iron Nerve

Was the result of his splendid health. Indomitable will and tremendous energy are not found where Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels are out of order. If you want these qualities and the success they bring, use Dr. King's New Life Pills. Only 25 cents at McKim's, Burlington; Crouch's, Union, and Oelsner's, Florence.

COL. BERRY will speak in Burlington next county court day. The Colonel is rendering his party excellent service in the State and National campaigns. Mr. Fitzgerald, of Louisville, will speak before noon and Col. Berry in the afternoon. Turn out and give them a good crowd.

PLOWING IN SEASON.

There are a few if any items of work on the farm more important than plowing. Not only is it necessary that it will be done in order that the best growth and yield be secured, but it must be done in good season. With the plowing done in good season a much better opportunity is afforded in every way not only of getting the crops sown or planted in a better tilth. To secure the best germination of the seed and a thrifty, vigorous start to grow it is very important that the soil be prepared in a good tilth. Having the soil in a good tilth also enables the cultivation to be commenced earlier and at the same time lessons the work. On this account from this time on it is quite an item to take advantage of every opportunity to plow, so as to have as much of it done as possible before the season for seeding or planting opens. In doing this, however, it is rarely an advantage to plow when the soil is too wet to work well. It may be admissable to plow sod groundwhen it is somewhat wet, but it is an exceptional case when old ground should be plowed wet.

With all spring crops, and especially all cultivated crops like corn or potatoes, it is quite an item to plow deep and thorough. One advantage in plowing early is that there is less occasion for hurrying and the work may be better done.

With all crops every season there is a best time for planting and the nearer to this time the seed is put into the ground in a good condition the better the results. Having the plowing done in good season is an important item in this.

STATE NEWS.

Lizzie Stone, 15, colored, accidentally and instantly killed her mother, Carrie Stone, near Kennedy. She was carelessly handling a revolver.

Revenue officers, headed by W. T. Hawkings, made a raid on Saturday night and destroyed one of the largest illicit distilleries ever found in that section. The operators escaped.

Mr Isaac Marks, one of the oldest and best-known business men of Georgetown, died at his home of a complication of diseases aged fifty-five years. He had been a resident of that town for thirty-three years.

The Kentucky game law has been sustained by the Court of Appeals. The Chase-Davidson Company, of Louisville, was fined in the Police Court for selling quail during the close season. The Circuit Court reverses the Judgment. The Appellate Court reverses the Circuit and orders the fines reinstated.

Job Couldn't Have Stood It

If he'd had itching piles. They're terribly annoying; but Bucklyn's Arnica salve will cure the wost case of Piles on earth. It has cured thousands. For Injuries, Pains or Blood Eruptions it's the best salve in the world. Price 25c. a box. Cure guaranteed. Sold by McKim, Burlington; Oelsner, Florence, and Crouch, Union.

Since the insult to Mr. Bryan by the students of Ann Arbor, Michigan University, the Republican papers ought to quit harping on the discourtesy shown to Gov. Roosevelt in a town out in Colorado. Both demonstrations were very disgraceful, and especially the one against Mr. Bryan, which was the work of young men who by virtue of their connection with a prominent educational institution ought to know something of the proprieties which obtain among gentlemen. Let it be hoped that they will be taught some thing in this direction before their college days are ended.—Georgetown Times.

THE speeches being made by Col. Bennet H. Young in the State campaign, are blows straight from the shoulder.

IT's only a few weeks more until ten out of the eleven Presidential candidates will painfully expire, and then—the fireworks.

THAT picture at the head of the local column of last week's Carrollton Republican was a patent medicine ad., but none the less suggestive as representing that paper's notion as a proper way of dealing with certain matters in Kentucky.

LESSONS OF COMFORT.

Dr. Talmage Draws a Text from Rescue of Joash.

The House of David Saved from Extinction by Jehosheba's Heroic Deed—Work of Soul Saving.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.]

In this discourse on a neglected incident of the Bible Dr. Talmage draws some comforting lessons and shows that all around us are royal natures that we may help deliver. The text is 2 Kings 11:2, 3: "Jehosheba, the daughter of King Joram, sister of Ahaziah, took Joash, the son of Ahaziah, and stole him from among the king's sons which were slain, and they hid him, even him and his nurse, in the bedchamber from Athaliah, so that he was not slain. And he was with her hid in the house of the Lord six years."

Grandmothers are more lenient with their children's children than they were with their own. At 40 years of age if discipline be necessary chastisement is used, but at 70 the grandmother, looking upon the misbehavior of the grandchild, is apologetic and disposed to substitute confectionery for whip. There is nothing more beautiful than childhood. Grandmother takes out her pocket handkerchief and wipes her spectacles and puts them on and looks down into the face of her mischievous and rebellious descendant and says: "I don't think he meant to do it. Let him off this time. I'll be responsible for his behavior in the future." My mother, with the second generation around her, a boisterous crew, said one day: "I suppose they ought to be disciplined, but I can't do it. Grandmothers are not fit to bring up grandchildren." But here in my text we have a graudmother of a different type.

I have been at Jerusalem, where the occurrence of the text took place, and the whole scene came vividly before me while I was going over the site of the ancient temple and climbing the towers of the king's palace. Here in the text it is old Athaliah, the royal murderess. She ought to have been honorable. Her father was a king. Her husband was a king. Her son was a king. And yet we find her plotting for the extermination of the entire royal family, including her own grandchildren. The executioners' knives are sharpened. The palace is red with the blood of princes and princesses. On all sides are shrieks and hands thrown up and struggle and death groan. No mercy! Kill, kill! But while the ivory floors of the palace run with carnage and the whole land is under the shadow of a great horror a fleet-footed woman, a clergyman's wife, Jehosheba by name, stealthily approaches the imperial nursery, seizes upon the grandchild that had somehow as yet escaped massacre, wraps it up tenderly but in haste, snuggles it against her, flies down the palace stairs, her heart in her throat lest she be discovered in this compassionate abduction. Get her out of the way as quick as you can, for she carries a precious burden, even a young king. With this youthful prize she presses into the room of the ancient temple, the church of olden time, unwraps the young king and puts him down, sound asleep as he is and unconscious of the peril that has been threatened, and there for six years he is secreted in that church apartment. Meanwhile old Athaliah smacks her lips with satisfaction and thinks that all the royal family are dead. But the six years expire, and it is time for young Joash to come forth and take the throne and to push back into disgrace and death old Athaliah.

The arrangements are all made for political revolution. The military come and take possession of the temple, swear loyalty to the boy Joash and stand around for his defense. See the sharpened swords and the burnished shields! Everything is ready. Now Joash, half affrighted at the armed tramp of his defenders, scared at the vociferation of his admirers, is brought forth in full regalia. The scroll of authority is put in his hands, the coronet of government is put on his brow, and the people clapped and waved and huzzaed and trumpeted. "What is that?" said Athaliah. "What is that sound over in the temple?" And she flies to see, and on her way they meet her and say: "Why, haven't you heard? You thought you had slain all the royal family, but Joash has come to light." Then the royal murderess, frantic with rage, grabbed her mantle and tore it to tatters and cried until she foamed at the mouth: "You have no right to crown my grandson. You have no right to take the government from my shoulders. Treason, treason!"

While she stood there crying that the military started for her arrest, and she took a short cut through a back door of the temple and ran through the royal stables, but the battleaxes of the military fell on her in the barnyard, and for many a day when the horses were being unloosened from the chariot after drawing out young Joash the fiery steeds would snort and rear passing the place as they smell the place of the carnage.

The first thought I hand you from this subject is that the extermination of righteousness is an impossibility When a woman is good, she is apt to be very good, and when she is bad she is apt to be very bad, and this Athaliah was one of the latter sort. She would exterminate the last scion of the house of David, through whom Jesus was to come. There was plenty of work for embalmers and undertakers. She would cleave the land of all God fearing and God loving people. She would put an end to everything that could in anywise interfere with her imperial criminality. She folds her hands and says: "The work is done. It is completely done." Is it? In the swaddling clothes of that church apartment are wrapped the cause of God and the cause of good government. That is the scion of the house of David. It is Joash, the God worshiping reformer. It is Joash, the friend of God. It is Joash, the demoralizer of Baalitish idolatry. Rock him tenderly, nurse him gently. Athaliah, you may kill all the other children, but you cannot kill him. Eternal defenses are thrown all around him, and this clergyman's wife, Jehosheba, will snatch him up from the palace nursery and will run down with him into the house of the Lord, and there she will hide him for six years, and at the end of that time he will come forth for your dethronement and obliteration.

Well, my friends, just as poor a botch does the world always make of extinguishing righteousness. Superstition rises up and says: "I will just put an end to pure religion." Domitian slew 44,000 Christians, Diocletian slew 844,000 Christians. And the scythe of persecution has been swung through all ages, and the flames hissed, and the guillotine chopped, and the Bastile groaned, but did the foes of Christianity exterminate it? Did they exterminate Alban, the first British sacrifice, or Zwingli, the Swiss reformer, or John Oldcastle, the Christian nobleman, or Abdallah, the Arabian martyr, or Anne Askew or Sanders or Cranmer? Great work of extermination they made of it. Just at the time when they thought they had slain all the royal family of Jesus some Joash would spring up and out and take the throne of power and wield a very scepter of Christian dominion.

Infidelity says: "I will exterminate the Bible," and the Scriptures were thrown into the street for the mob to trample on, and they were piled up in the public squares and set on fire, and mountains of indignant contempt were hurled on them, and learned universities decreed the Bible out of existence. Thomas Paine said: "In my 'Age of Reason' I have annihilated the Scriptures. Your Washington is a pusillanimous Christian, but I am the foe of Bibles and churches." Oh, how many assaults upon that word! All the hostilities that have ever been created on earth are not to be compared with the hostilities against that book. Said one man in his infidel desperation to his wife: "You must not be reading that Bible," and he snatched it away from her. And though in that Bible was a lock of hair of the dead child—the only child that God had ever given them—he pitched the book with its contents into the fire and stirred it with the tongs and spat on it and cursed it and said: "Susan, never have any more of that damnable stuff here."

How many individual and organized attempts have been made to exterminate that Bible? Have its enemies done it? Have they exterminated the American Bible society? Have they exterminated the British and Foreign Bible society? Have they exterminated the thousands of Christian institutions whose only object is to multiply copies of the Scriptures and spread them broadcast around the world? They have exterminated until instead of one or two copies of the Bible in our houses we have eight or ten, and we pile them up in the corners of our Sabbath-school rooms and send great boxes of them everywhere. If they get on as well as they are now going on in the work of extermination, I do not know but that our children may live to see the millennium. Yea, if there should come a time of persecution in which all the known Bibles of the earth should be destroyed, all these lamps of life that blaze in our pulpits and in our families extinguished, in the very day that infidelity and sin should be holding jubilee over the universal extinction there would be in some secret closet of a backwoods church a secreted Bible, and this Joash of eternal literature would come out and come up and take the throne, and the Athaliah of infidelity and persecution would fly out of the back door of the palace and drop her miserable carcass under the hoofs of the horses of the king's stables. You cannot exterminate Christianity! You cannot kill Joash!

The second thought I hand you from my subject is that there are opportunities in which we may save royal life. You know that profane history is replete with stories of strangled monarchs and of young princes who have been put out of the way. Here is the story of a young king saved. But Jehosheba, the clergyman's wife, must have trembled as she rushed into the imperal nursery and snatched up Joash! How she hushed him lest by his cry he hinder the escape! Fly with him, Jehosheba! You hold in your arms the cause of God and good government. Fail, and he is slain. Succeed, and you turn the tide of the world's history in the right direction. It seems as if between that young king and his assassins there is nothing but the frail arm of a woman. But why should we spend our time in praising this bravery of expedition when God asks the same thing of you and me? All around us the imperial children of a great King. They are born of Almighty parentage and will come to a throne if permitted. But sin, the old Athaliah, goes forth to the massacre. Murderous temptations are out for the assassination. Valens, the emperor, was told that there was somebody in his realm who would usurp his throne and that the name of the man who should be the usurper would begin with the letters T, H, E, O, D, and the edict went forth from the emperor's throne: "Kill every body whose name begins with T, H, E, O, D." And hundreds were slain, hoping by that massacre to put an end to that one usurper. But sin is more terrific in its denunciation. It matters not how you spell your name, you come under its knife, under its sword, under its doom, unless there be some omnipotent relief brought to the rescue. But, blessed be God, there is such a thing as delivering a royal soul. Who will snatch away Joash?

Can you imagine any sublimer work than this soul saving? That was what flushed Paul's cheek with enthusiasm; that was what led Munson to risk his life amid Bornesian cannibals; that was what sent Dr. Abeel to preach under the consuming skies of China; that was what gave courage to Phocas in the third century. When the military officers came to put him to death for Christ's sake, he put them to bed that they might rest, while he himself got out and in his own garden dug his grave and then came back and said: "I am ready." But they were shocked at the idea of taking the life of their host. He said: "It is the will of God that I should die," and he stood on the margin of his own grave, and they beheaded him. You say it is a mania, a foolhardiness, a fanaticism. Rather would I call it a glorious self-abnegation, a thrill of eternal satisfaction, the plucking of Joash from death and raising him to coronation.

The third thought I hand to you is that the church of God is a good hiding place. When Jehosheba rushes into the nursery of the king and picks up Joash, what shall she do with him? Shall she take him to some room in the palace? No, for the officinl desperadoes will hunt through every nook and corner of that building. Shall she take him to the residence of some wealthy citizen? No; that citizen would not dare to harbor the fugitive. But she has to take him somewhere. She hears the cry of the mob in the streets; she hears the shriek of the dying nobility; so she rushes with Joash unto the room of the temple, into the house of God, and there she puts him down. She knows that Athaliah and her wicked assassins will not bother the temple a great deal. They are not apt to go very much to church, and so she sets down Joash in the temple. There he will be hearing the songs of the worshipers year after year; there he will breathe the odor of the golden censers; in that sacred spot he will tarry, secreted until the six years have passed and he come to enthronement.

Would God that we were all as wise as Jehosheba and knew that the church of God is the best hiding place! Perhaps our parents took us there in early days. They snatched us away from the world and hid us behind the baptismal fonts and amid the Bibles and psalm books. O glorious inclosure! We have been breathing the breath of the golden censers all the time, and we have seen the Lamb on the altar, and we have handled the vials in which are the prayers of all saints, and we have dwelt under the wings of the cherubim. Glorious inclosure! When my father and mother died and the property was settled up, there was hardly anything left. But they endowed us with a property worth more than any earthly possession because they hid us in the temple. And when days of temptation have come upon my soul I have gone there for shelter, and when assaulted of sorrows I have gone there for comfort, and there I mean to live. I want, like Joash, to stay until coronation.

O men of the world outside there, betrayed, caricatured and cheated of the world, why do you not come in through the broad, wide-open door of Christian communion? I wish I could act the part of Jehoshebn to-day and steal you away from your perils and hide you in the temple. How few of us appreciate the fact that the church of God is a hiding place! There are many people who put the church at so low a mark that they begrudge it everything, even the few dollars they give toward it. They make no sacrifices. They dole a little out of their surplusage. They pay their butcher's bill, and they pay their doctor's bill, and they pay their landlord, and they pay everybody but the Lord, and they come in at the last to pay the Lord in His church, and frown as they say: "There, Lord, it is. Send me a receipt in full and don't bother me soon again." There is not more than one man out of a thousand that appreciates what the church is. Where are the souls that put aside one-tenth for Christinn institutions—one-tenth of their income? Where are those who, having put aside that one-tenth, draw upon it cheerfully? Why, it is pull and drag and hold on and grab and clutch, and giving is an affliction to most people, when it ought to be an exhilnration and a rapture. Oh, that God would remodel our souls on this subject and that we might appreciate the house of God as the great refuge! If your children are to come up to lives of virtue and happiness, they will come up under the shadow of the church. If the church does not get them, the world will.

Church of God, be a hiding place to all these people! Give them a seat where they can rest their weary souls. Flash some light from your chandeliers upon their darkness. With some soothing hymn hush their griefs. Oh, church of God, gate of Heaven, let me go through it! All other institutions are going to fail, but the church of God—its foundation is the Rock of Ages, its charter is for everlasting years, its keys are held by the universal Proprietor, its dividend is Heaven, its president is God!

Sure as thy truth shall last,
To Zion shall be given
The highest glories earth can yield
And brighter bliss of Heaven.

God grant that all this audience, the youngest, the eldest, the worst, the best, may find their safe and glorious hiding place where Joash found it—in the temple!

USELESS PHILIPPINE WAR.

McKinley's Persistent Policy of Subjugation by Military Conquest.

Dispatches from the Philippines are authentic. They are from our own officers there, and they make known a terrible condition of affairs. Over and over it has been asserted by the administration that the war there is ended. Now our officers are calling for more men, saying the present forces are inadequate to meet the insurgents and compel submission. One body of 90 United States soldiers was compelled on Monday to fight for their lives with 1,000 entrenched and armed Filipinos, with a loss of about one-third of their number. Gen. MacArthur pays a glowing tribute to their heroic defense, "the splendid response of the men."

But compliments do not give us back our dead, and fine words do not heal wounds, or restore lost health. There were, a few weeks ago, in the Philippines about 65,000 United States soldiers. There is nearly that number there now, growing smaller by fatalities numbering from 40 to 130 every week.

If there were no political unbelievers to satisfy and no "pride of the administration" to cater to, does one think that this merciless sacrifice would be tolerated? We made a fearful miscalculation when we undertook the subjugation of these islands, and they have proved an expensive burden, and the death of thousands of young men. The game is not worth the candle.

MONEY TALKS.

What does it all amount to? It has been a costly experiment, and the sooner we are out of it the better. What are 10,000,000 Filipinos to 65,000 Americans, and especially when the conditions involve constant and terrible bloodshed? The country is not with McKinley in his persistent policy of subjugation by military conquest; it is not in harmony with American ideas, and its utter failure is steadily augmenting the growth of anti-imperialism, and making votes for the democratic party everywhere.—Providence (R. I.) Telegram.

YALE PROFESSOR FOR BRYAN.

Dr. George T. Ladd Is Against Imperialism After His Trip in the Far West.

George T. Ladd, head professor of the department of philosophy and psychology at Yale university, who has just returned from a trip around the world, has become an ardent anti-imperialist through his personal investigations into conditions in the far east. Prof. Ladd spent about four months in Japan and the whole of one winter in India and came into contact with the foremost educators and statesmen of the orient. He personally looked into conditions in the east and the prospects for American and western civilization and has come to the conclusion that America is making a great mistake to enter the Philippines as ruler and possessor. Prof. Ladd said:

"The attitude of the United States in retaining the Philippines is entirely unjustifiable. It was wrong from the very beginning, from the moment when the commissioners of our government forced Spain to sell us the islands. It is impolitic, immoral and contrary to all of our traditions. The chances are that the Filipinos will always keep in rebellion till they either have self-government or are exterminated."

Another thing that is making the people tired of Hannaism is the fact that the glass trust is selling its products to the market of Europe from 15 to 20 per cent. cheaper than it sells the same goods to the people of the United States. This is the sworn testimony of the secretary of the trust, given before the industrial commission at a recent hearing.—Keokuk Constitution-Democrat.

M'KINLEY OR BRYAN.

It Is Either the Republic or the Empire, Which Will You Vote For?

Either Bryan or McKinley will be elected president the first Tuesday after the first Monday of next month.

Either the republic or the empire will be indorsed.

If Bryan wins it will mean the end of a war of conquest for unholy greed.

If McKinley wins it will mean that that war will go on; that American ideals will be repudiated; that national faith will be betrayed; that the rights of man will be denied; that the Declaration of Independence will become a mere mockery; that the constitution will be ignored; that polygamy and slavery will be endorsed, and that all for which we have stood and of which we have boasted and of which we have been honestly proud during a hundred and twenty-five years of glorious national history will be put behind us for a mean and ignoble ambition.

The citizen must choose. He may affect to believe that there is some other duty before him, but that of deciding between the republic and the empire. But if he shall vote for any other man than for Bryan he will vote to strengthen the arm of imperialism and to cripple that of free government.

The issue cannot be dodged. It is either the republic or the empire. Which shall it be? Which does the citizen want?

If he desires the republic to stand he must vote for Bryan.

If he is careless whether it stand or fall he may vote for anybody else or fail or refuse to vote at all. And that will be his contribution to the coming of the Man on Horseback.

AGAINST LABOR UNIONS.

The Trusts and the Republicans Are Together Against the Workingman.

The concessions offered by the hard coal trust to its striking miners emphasize the fact that the real war is on organized labor. The coal trust is bent upon the destruction of the United Mine Workers of America.

Mark Hanna has shown that there is a close alliance between the coal trust and the republican party. In the interest of the latter the former quickly agreed to pay the miners a trifle more money. But it tied a string to this agreement. It would pay the advance. Yes. But it would do this only as the price of disunion. And Hnnna accepted the condition.

So the miners may get a paltry ten per cent. increase of wages through Mark Hanna's powerful influence if they will consent to destroy their own organization. And when their organization has been destroyed, they may then accept any terms the coal trust shall see fit to offer. They will then be powerless to resist.

Organized labor may make up its mind to this: Organized monopoly has decreed its destruction. And the action of Mark Hanna in accepting J. Pierpont Morgnn's condition, following President McKinley's suppression of unionism in Idaho with United States troops at the behest of the Standard Oil trust, indicates plainly enough that organized labor has its deadliest foe in the republican party.

Republicans Changing Views.

The republicans used to be for bimetallism; now they are for the gold standard. Republicans used to believe in the greenback; now they have to turn over and say that they believe that bank notes are better. They used to believe in the income tax; now they are against the income tax. They used to oppose the trusts; now they defend the trusts. They used to be against a large standing army; now they are for a large standing army. They used to be opposed to a large national debt; now they stand for a national debt. Now they stand for a currency system that can only be permanent when based on a perpetual debt.—William J. Bryan.

WELCOMED IN OHIO.

Bryan Speaks at Several Points in the Buckeye State.

Presidential Nominee Strenuously Urges Election of Entire Party Ticket to Preserve the Republic.

William J. Bryan closed the first day of his Ohio tour by an address before a large and enthusiastic audience at Portsmouth Friday night, October 12. Mr. Bryan started out from Toledo early in the morning, but before he left that city a great crowd gathered at the depot and demanded a speech. Finally the national candidate was compelled to hurriedly dress himself and make his appearance. It had not been planned to make a spech at that point Friday. Mr. Bryan's route during the day took him to Bowling Green, Findlay, Kenton, Springfield, Xenia, Washington Courthouse, Greenfield, Waverly and Dayton.

When Mr. Bryan was introduced at Springfield some enthusiastic admirer in the crowd shouted:

"Hurrah for the farmer president!"

The exclamation attracted Mr. Bryan's attention and he said:

"I do not want to be elected under false pretenses. I am not a farmer; I am an agriculturist. You know the difference between them. A farmer is a man who makes his money on the farm and spends it in town, while an agriculturist is a man who makes his money in town and spends it on the farm."

This definition of the farmer pleased the audience and all listened attentively to his speech throughout.

Speaks for the Entire Ticket.

Trusts and imperialism formed the basis of Mr. Bryan's speeches, and he also touched upon the importance of electing the whole democratic ticket. He said in part:

"If I am elected president I do not want to be in the white house merely to distribute patronage. If I am there I want to have a chance to sign my name to bills, and I cannot sign a bill as president until it comes to me, and a bill cannot reach the president until it passes the house and the senate.

"You have a chance to help secure a majority in the house and it may be that the house will be so close that one vote in the house of representatives will determine the majority, and one vote in this district may determine the election of a congressman, and if you believe in the doctrines for which we stand I want you to work from now until election day to send a congressman down to Washington who will carry out these ideas. If we are right in the position taken you ought to be interested in turning over the control of the government to those who believe as we do.

Tells of Trust Dangers.

"Possibly it is not necessary to speak long on the trust question, for people learn more by appearance than they do by speeches and a speech can only point out the lessons of experience. It used to be that if a mill closed down under a democratic administration every republican paper and editor pointed to the mill and to its smokeless chimneys as evidence that democratic policies were destroying the industries of the country. But now when a trust buys a plant and closes it down no republican says a word about it.

"Bowling Green, in this state, has four trusts. I went to West Superior, Wis., the other day and I found that they had six there. The flour mill trust had closed down six flour mills. You will find that the trust will close more mills than any policy that any other party ever stood for. When a republican tells you that those who fight the trusts are fighting industries you tell him that when an industry is independent it cannot close down without loss. Its laboring men scatter, its trade is lost and not only the industry itself but the community suffer—all these are interested in keeping it going. But when you put all the industries of one line under one management the management can close a factory here or there and carry on the work somewhere else.

Says Public Officer Is a Servant.

"According to my idea a public officer is a public servant. He is chosen by the people to do for them what they want done, not what may be best for himself as an individual necessary, but what is best for the people, and they are entitled to know, first, that he understands the things that they believe in; and, second, that he will carry out the things which he promises to carry out. You know my platform and you know whether you like it or not. If you like the platform you need not have any fear but that it will be carried out if I am elected. I believe that even the republicans now will give me credit for meaning what I say. In fact, I believe the greatest argument that is now used against my election is that I am an honest man and therefore dangerous. This argument cannot be brought against many republicans whom I might mention.

"You will find that the republican party to-day is insisting that a standard of money is more important than a question of government; that it is more important that a man shall have a gold dollar in his pocket than that he shall have a republic in which to live. You will hear them say that every laboring man ought to be satisfied as long as he is not hungry and you will hear them say that the farmers are prosperous. You will hear them claim credit for the farmers' prosperity without showing any connection between any prosperity a farmer may enjoy this year or any other year and the republican party. We insist that a money question is more important than a question of taxation, and because we believed that in 1896 we declared the money question to be the paramount issue. Questions of taxation come up every year, questions of money come up every few years, but a question of government is a question of a century."

Denounces Imperial Policy.

In speaking of the increase in the standing army and also the wisdom of a colonial policy Mr. Bryan declared that the people had never voted for a large army and did not want one, and that the only excuse for the demand for an increase which had been made by the administration in addition to suppressing discontent in the United States was found in the desire to maintain a colonial policy and establish an empire.

Discussing his plan to give protection to the Philippines as an independent republic Mr. Bryan said:

"Do you think that we are going to have difficulty? Let me tell you that there is not a nation in Europe that would be willing to let any other nation in Europe have the Philippine islands.

"If you believe with us make this your fight from now until election day and see that the majority is so large that neither corruption nor intimidation can defeat the triumph of the ideas of a republic, and show the people of the United States that Ohio, the home of presidents, is also the home of the principles of the early presidents and the men who gave us our liberty and our institutions."

NOTES FROM WASHINGTON

Capital Correspondent Writes of Republican Scheme to Defeat Bryan.

COERCION THREATENED BY TRUSTS.

Plan of Democrats to Retaliate on Combines—Guerrilla Organizations of Capital Are Restless and Uncertain—The Meaning of Bryan's Election.

The democrats propose to strike back at the trusts and corporations that are using intimidation tactics to compel their employes to vote for McKinley.

The democratic national committee recommends that all democrats and their allies refuse to buy goods made by firms using intimidation to deprive their employes of a free vote. A list of such firms, so far as known, will be published broadcast by the democratic committee. But democrats are asked to look up such instances as come within their own observation and apply the remedy suggested.

To refuse to buy its goods is to strike at the dividend-paying power of a trust or corporation. This is its most vulnerable point. It is the one way in which the consumer can register an effective protest against the illegal and immoral methods that are being employed to reelect McKinley.

The trusts began by displaying to their employes bogus orders and contracts. These all had a clause providing that the order should be "void in case of Bryan's election." This scheme was worked in '96 with great effect. This year employes are not to be frightened. They remember the scarcity of work and depression of industry after they had been coerced into aiding McKinley's election. They reason that Bryan's election could have had no worse effect. They are restless over the new and unconstitutional policies adopted by McKinley. Workingmen will vote their convictions this time.

A Trust Threat.

The trusts are now threatening a general lockout of workmen until election is over. This also was done in '96. There will be a difference this year. The wage worker will face a temporary lockout, if need be, in order to preserve his right to vote as he chooses. He will help to elect Bryan in order to settle once and for all the possibility of coercion tactics becoming a permanent feature of republican campaigning.

Republicans profess sympathy for labor, yet it is the republican party which is trying to take from the masses their right to vote as they please. This is a very serious matter. If trusts and combines are permitted to use coercion this year without an effective protest, every succeeding campaign will find the people less able to assert their rights as free citizens.

The trusts, in their concerted attempt at intimidation, are showing clearly that they intend to make helpless slaves of the prooners of wealth. They assume that the consumers are already helpless under their exactions.

This is not entirely true, however. The farmers of the northwest have for more than a year refused to buy barbed wire feeling because the steel and wire trust put its prices so high. The result was that this trust soon dropped prices several pegs, and is now anxious to have the farmers buy barbed wire at almost any price.

The cordage trust is in difficulties because the farmers refused to buy twine at the outrageous prices it charged. They established and patronized local twine plants in more than one state.

These examples are cited to show that the trusts can be brought to terms if the consumers choose to go without their goods for a little time. The crime of attempting to take away the right to a free ballot is very much greater than that of putting up prices. If men are not going to have the right to vote their convictions under republican trust domination it is about time a halt was called. Democrats all over the country will refuse to buy goods from firms that intimidate their employes.

A Republican Scheme.

The whole cry of business depression in case of Bryan's election is a republican scheme to influence voters who do very little thinking for themselves. There will be a change if Bryan is elected. Trusts and corporations whose chief assets are watered stock will be insecure. The water will be squeezed out of their stock. They will be forced to adopt legitimate business methods. This will render the legitimate merchant and the public more secure than under the present administration, where wildcat combines are encouraged.

The trusts that have been plundering the people in order to pile up big dividends for themselves will be insecure under Bryan's administration. They will be forced to give an account of their transactions. Their cheapened methods of production will be applied to give the consumer lower prices instead of the exorbitant tariffs now levied.

Yes, if Bryan is elected the guerrilla organizations of capital will have good reason to feel restless and insecure. They will be put under legal restrictions and the public will be protected from their rapacity.

If Bryan is elected the coal combine will pay its miners more wages and deliver coal cheaper to the consumer.

Likewise the farmer will get better prices for his wheat and flour will be lower to the consumer.

The election of Bryan means better prices to the raiser of cotton and lower rates on cotton and calico to the workingman's wife.

Such illustrations might be multiplied all along the line. When Bryan is elected the trusts will have to cease taking toll from both consumer and producer by paying low wages and exacting monopoly prices. Whatever legitimate profit comes to organized capital will have to be made by an increase of sales and the offering of high-grade goods at reasonable prices.

Illegal Discriminations.

Such trusts as the American Tobacco company have been in the habit of forcing retail dealers to handle no goods but theirs. Let Bryan be elected and the attorney general whom he appoints will quickly show these trusts that such illegal discriminations against individual manufacturers will not be permitted.

Then, too, when a trust or a railway combine attempts to rob the people, let the president of the combine be arrested and punished, not some agent of the concern.

The election of Bryan will mean deliverance from trust rapacity and selfishness.

ADOLPH PATTERSON.

THE COSTLY COAL STRIKE.

Interesting Figures and Comparisons Which Set People Thinking.

The Helena Independent, of Helena, Mont., furnishes some interesting figures in regard to the strike in the anthracite region of Pennsylvania.

It is estimated that if the anthracite coal strike shall last two months the men will lose $8,000,000 in wages; the operators $20,000,000 and the railroad companies a like amount.

Here is a curious condition, well illustrating the power of private monopoly to rob the producer, arbitrarily fix the terms and conditions of labor, and appropriate the fruits of industry for the benefit of the few at the expense of the many.

It is estimated that some 115,000 or 120,000 workers will lose $8,000,000 in wages, while a few monopolies will lose $20,000,000. In other words, these few monopolists will get two and a half times as much for mere ownership as the great army of laborers get for doing the work.

Every $100 got from mining and marketing the coal is distributed as follows:

To the monopolists	41 67
To the railroads	41 67
Total	$100 00

Leaving the railroads out of account, every $100 got for mining the coal is distributed as follows:

To the miners	$28 57
To the monopolists	71 43

The railroads get two and a half times as much for carrying the coal to market as the miners get for digging it out of the ground.

"Private monopolies are indefensible and intolerable," says the democratic platform; and these private coal monopolies are an apt illustration of that declaration.

PROTECTION DENOUNCED.

Methodist Bishop Says McKinley's Policy Will Bring Us to the Level of the Chinese.

Methodist ministers heard a denunciation of the republican party's tariff principle by Bishop J. H. Thoburn, at the Rock River conference, held at the Garfield Park church, in Chicago, recently. The bishop, who has spent 40 years in the orient, delivered the first of a series of lectures on the eastern situation, and he likened the republican party to the Chinese.

"Our fathers never intended to build a Chinese wall around this nation," he said, "by putting a duty upon things, and keeping the foreigner from bringing in his goods. We are doing as the Chinese have done for centuries. We must get broader notions about these matters. The Chinese built a stone wall that they thought would keep out the foreigners. Our stone wall is the custom houses that we set out on our borders.

"Before I became a missionary I believed in the republican policy of protection. I have learned that if a nation wants to survive it must open wide its doors and trade with the world. Let our revenues be raised from direct taxation. The true policy to be adopted in dealing with the people of the east is to abandon the old principles. Let us give up being a semi-Chinese nation and excluding other people."

The bishop's attack on the republican party was made in connection with his review of the Chinese and other orientals.

He ascribed their lack of progression to the isolation created by the protective system.

To Be Decided by the People.

You people are going to decide this fall whether you want the shum or the real; whether you want the European or the American; whether you want a government that protects the individual or a government that takes care of a monopoly; whether you want a government that rests upon the consent of the governed or a government 13 inches in diameter, round in shape and fired out of a cannon.—William J. Bryan.

William McKinley and William Jennings Bryan stand out in the boldest possible contrast as representatives of hostile forms of thought, of opposite views regarding questions of public concern. The democratic candidate for president of the United States is the strong man of the people, the supporter of the constitution. The republican candidate is the weak and vacillating creature of the money power, the servant of overmastering trusts, the ambitious seeker after an imperial power, sternly forbidden by the organic law which he has flagrantly violated.—Philadelphia Times.

HAS KEY DUG UP IN ROME.

Evanston Educator's Souvenir Is Believed to Be of Solomonic Value.

Prof. Boltwood, principal of the Evanston (Ill.) high school, has in his possession a key that was dug from the ruins of the Roman forum last summer. It has never been seen by scientists, but Prof. Boltwood believes it is of great value.

The key was secured by Edwin McDonald, a student of the Evanston high school, last summer, while he was in Rome. Young McDonald was watching the workmen excavating among the ruins and saw one of them bring the key to light. The workmen were not allowed to remove anything they found, but McDonald took advantage of the absence of the overseer to buy the key of the finder. He offered him a coin to the value of $2.50 and it was readily taken.

The key is of bronze, is 18 inches long and weighs five pounds. But what is of far more interest to students of history is that the key is covered with hieroglyphics. Prof. Boltwood was unable to translate any of them, but he believes the inscriptions are in several different languages. He thinks some of them are in Hebrew, others in Greek, and still another in Persian.

Prof. Boltwood purposes to have the inscriptions translated by archaeologists.

WEDDINGS AMONG THE RICH.

Autumn Will See the Union of Hearts and Fortunes Among Members of the 400.

Cupid is reaping a rich harvest of hearts this autumn. In the fashionable world of the 400 the weddings will follow each other closely all through October and November. Foremost in social importance is that of Miss Louisa Morgan, the eldest daughter of J. Pierpont Morgan, the multi-millionaire, to Herbert Livingstone Satterlee, a New York lawyer. It is said that Mr. Satterlee's bride will bring him a dower of $1,000,000, the gift of her father, whose favorite child she is. Mr. Satterlee is a member of the New York naval militia, and served as a member of Gov. Morton's and Gov. Black's staffs.

Another wedding to be celebrated during November is that of Miss May Harper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Henry Harper, to Langdon Barrett Valentine, a Harvard man of the class of '87. Still another wedding in which society is interested is that of Miss Edith Whitney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Whitney, to Henry Lewis Batterman. Miss Elizabeth Barnes, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Burd Barnes, will be married on November 8 to William B. Potts.

Speed of Pioneer Ocean Liners.

The Britannia, the pioneer vessel of the Cunard company, was built on the Clyde in 1840, and she and three sister ships averaged a speed of 8½ knots an hour. In a race between the first American ship, the Washington, and the Britannia the British vessel won by two days. With the inauguration of the Collins line in 1850 the Cunard company met with keen competition, but it held its own, and in 1885 it added the Persia to its fleet, and she averaged a speed of 13.1 knots per hour—which eclipsed every previous performance by any steamer. The average length of passage from Liverpool to New York was then 12 days.

Female Clerks in Japan.

The latest innovation in Japan is the formation of commercial schools for the training of female clerks, and one of the largest railway companies in Nippon has intimated that after a certain date women only will be employed in its clerical department.

Military Automobiles.

The immense advantages presented by automobiles have had a great fascination for progressive military men all over the world. Large sums have been offered for the best military automobile. In war, as in everything, it pays to use the best weapons. The best shield with which to protect the stomach is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It is a certain cure for constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia and biliousness, and prevents malaria, fever and ague.

Papa Was Wearing the Laundry.

The little girl was inclined to answer the door bell about as soon as it sounded, and sometimes she gave answers to whoever might be there that were curious. One day the man who collects the packages of laundry was at the door and asked if the laundry was ready. "No," she replied, "papa has got it on."—Chicago Chronicle.

A Thankful Woman.

On September 27, 1900, Mrs. Anna E. V. Bartley, of 1823 Baymiller Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, wrote: "My eyes were sore ever since I was eleven years old. My parents tried everything they could for me, used all the Eye D——— and they could not do as much as relieve me. My eyelids at times would have ulcers on them, causing terrible pain, so I could neither sleep nor work, and leeches were put on my head and temples to draw the blood away from my eyes. But your wonderful Lotion has cured me and I have been well now for more than five years. I am never without it at home and have been recommending it to dozens of sufferers because it cured me, and I cannot thank you too much for what it has done for me." If your druggist does not keep it, send to Solon Palmer, 374 Pearl Street, New York, for sample of Lotion and Lotion Soap.

"What wholesome truth," asked the Sabbath-school teacher, nervously, "is taught by the story of Jonah and the whale?" The serious child with the tall brow did not reply. "It's hard to keep a good man down?" But merely: "I don't know!" This was thought to be very remarkable in one so young.—Detroit Journal.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is often ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Old river men differ as to the river. Some say it is lower than they have seen it for 18 years, and others say not. But what's the difference, so the old creek does not go dry?

Gunpowder

Mr. Daniel Foulk, of Ashland, Ohio, is the guest of Mr. R. Tanner.

The sick in the neighborhood have not improved very much since our last report, although we are glad to report them no worse.

We are sorry to report the death of little Wallace the son of S. S. and Mrs. Susie Smith, which occurred last Thursday. His death was caused by membranous croup. He was only ill a few days and was not thought dangerously sick until a short while before his death. Wallace was a bright, cheerful little fellow, and rather a favorite among his companions and schoolmates. His remains were interred in the Union cemetery last Saturday afternoon in the presence of a host of sorrowing friends. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved family.

The school at Pleasant Ridge has closed for two weeks on account of contagious diseases in the neighborhood.

Rev. Lents preached his farewell sermon at Hopeful, last Sunday afternoon, to a large and attentive audience. Among others present from a distance we noticed Dr. Jackson, of Cincinnati, formerly of Hebron. Rev. Lents left last Monday night for his new home at Sheperdstown, West Virginia.

The writer had a very pleasant trip through the Miami Valley, of Ohio, last week. We accidently met Mike Ceaton, at Dayton, formerly of this neighborhood. He is in the employ of the C. H. & D. Rail Road Co., and is getting good wages. We hardly recognized him on account of immense size. He said he expected to visit Boone county about Christmas, and spend a few days among his many friends here. From Dayton we went to Troy, where during our stay we were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Hannan, in a most hospitable way. The church in which the meeting was held, has a capacity of about 450, and was most beautifully decorated for the occasion.

Walton

Last Friday night Col. A. S. Berry made the best speech at the Opera House that he has ever delivered in this place. It was a wise and patriotic address, and showed up our former Congressman in a new light. His views were those of a statesman, animated by a deep love of country and an ardent attachment to the principles of the Democratic party, and they were so admirably expressed as to bring forth the heartiest applause from not only his immediate followiug, but also from those who steadily contested his nomination in the late primary. Everybody, even the Republicans, joined in the cheering.

Hon. W. McD. Shaw Republican candidate for Congress from the Sixth District addressed the people at the Opera House on Saturday night. The opera house was pretty well filled and it was thought that he made a pretty good Republican speech contenting himself mainly with denouncing the Goebel law. It appears however that it did not satisfy his Republican friends some of whom were getting up a petition this morning to have the Hon. W. W. Dickerson, of Williamstown, come down and make a blue fire and red light speech for them. They have not get over the prodding given them by Ollie James nor can they reply to the able and statesmanlike address make by Berry. They had the cheek to ask some Democrats to sign the petition but no mention is made of any having done such a silly thing.

T. Albert Anderson, dentist, notifies the public of his desire to attend to their dental work, and states at what places he can be found.

There is considerable complaint of the poor quality of the corn that is being gathered. It is chaffy, lose on the cob, and much of it is damaged at the point of ear having been in contact with the earth. Many attribute the chaffy condition to the work of the chinch bugs on the stalks at time the grain was maturing. It seems that the chinch bugs are destined to become very annoying to the farmers in this part of the country.

Our friend M. L. Downs, of Carrollton, is living in an atmosphere laden with good luck. Only a short time since the Democrats of Carroll county presented him a unanimous nomination as their candidate for county judge, and at the recent meeting of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows, of Kentucky, he was elected Grand Warden. He wears the honors in a manner becoming the gentleman that he is.

Mrs. Sarah Ann Northcutt has a sale advertised in this issue.

Tobacco growers in Daviess and other counties in that section of the State are holding their tobacco at 10 cents for leaf and 2 cents for trash.

A few crops of new tobacco have been sold in this county, six cents being the highest price reported paid. The buyers will soon be ready to take hold, and will begin calling on the growers.

Robbed The Grave.

A startling incident is narrated by John Oliver, of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50c., guaranteed, at McKim's, Burlington; Crouch's, Union; Oelsner's, Florence.

Mr. Stratton, of Ludlow, the Independent Republican candidate for Congress, was in town Friday, and filed with the county clerk a petition bearing 400 names, asking that his name be placed on the official ballot. The candidate was walking and carrying a large bundle supported by a stick across his shoulder. Having transacted his business with the clerk and addressed a small crowd on the corner of the street, the candidate returned back into the country from whence he came.

One of the pleasantest society events of the week was the marriage of Miss Dora H. Cowin and Frank W. Berkshire, which occurred Wednesday at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cowin, No. 2710 North Pauline street, Ravenswood. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. J. W. Allen, pastor of the Jackson Boulevard Christian church. The guests were a few of the chosen friends of the bride in the city, there being from abroad only Mrs. T. J. Van Allen, of Cleveland, and the Misses Grace May Lane and Mabel Sauer, of Elgin. The bride is one of the most popular young women of Ravenswood, and the bridegroom is a young Kentuckian, who has been stationed in Chicago for some years as a government official. The happy couple left the same evening for a thirty days' tour, and among other points will visit the groom's "Old Kentucky Home," where the bride will meet her husband's parents, cousins, and aunts, and a host of the hospitable Kentuckians anxious to greet them. After Nov. 20 Mr. and Mrs. Berkshire will be domiciled at No. 2503 Michigan avenue.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

The trees have begun shedding their leaves freely, and all nature appears on the decline. Very appropriately is this called "the melancholy season of the year."

Many of the farmers are desirous of breaking up the annoyance occasioned by hunters traveling over their farms with dogs and guns, and each week the list of those giving notice to trespassers increases.

Adlia E. Stevenson, Democratic candidate for Vice President, and Hon. Thos. Taggert, of Indianapolis, will speak at Lawrenceburg, next Monday at 2 p. m. Arrangements are being made for a grand day. Go and take part.

Five of the Burlington base ball team and four of the ball tossers at Bellevue, visited Patriot, Indiana, Saturday, where a close game was played, the Burlington-Bellevue combine winning. Score—7 to 6. The Kentuckians were delighted with the handsome treatment accorded them.

One day last week Fred Pfalzgraf and Thomas Randall, of Utzluger, and Rev. Hoover, of Burlington, were hunting on Edward Botts' farm, on Wooper. Mr. Pfalzgraf was hunting on one side of a ridge, while his companions were on the other. A rabbit ran from toward Mr. Pfalzgraf across a ridge, and he shot at it, not thinking the other two hunters, who were obscured by some weeds, were in range and near the top of the ridge. But such was the case, and Rev. Hoover received four or five flesh wounds in the forward and left side of his face, and in one hand, while Mr. Randall was stung considerably by the shot, which, fortunately, were small and did no serious injury to either of the gentlemen struck. The accident grieved Mr. Pfalzgraf sorely, but no person censures him, as he is known to be a very careful man when handling firearms, and would not have had the accident to occur for anything.

An aesthetic English vicar at Wembley will not allow the word "died" to be put on the tombstones of the people buried in the cemetery. He insists on the phrases like "departed this life" or "passed away" or "entered to rest," and says that "died" is a denial of the Christian teaching of immortality.

A plan is before the Italian parliament for providing the three southeastern provinces—Foggia, Bari and Leece—with water from the Apennines, by building an aqueduct 169 miles long, with branches that will bring up the total length to 867 miles. The proposed aqueduct will cost $32,- [illegible] will supply 288 towns and villages, with a poulation of 1,800,000.

One Paris "grand dame" is bound that France shall not be depopulated. The Vicomtesse de Rochemaille is 22 years of age, has been married five years and is the mother of 11 boys, of whom the eldest are not 4 years of age. She presented her husband with four pairs of twins in succession and has just topped off with triplets. The children are all sound and healthy.

Hundreds of thousands of nests are built every year in trees and hedges. What becomes of all these homes after the birds have flitted from them at summer's end? Most of them are lined with sheep's wool, with feathers and other materials that bind them together. Now it happens that beetles and moths and other insects devour these things, and by thus destroying them loosen the nests so much that wind and rain soon scatter the rest of the materials.

Emma C. Gilbert, a talented girl, of Enfield, Mass., was a thirteenth child, born on the thirteenth day of the month. When she was thirteen she was stricken with a serious illness. She was one of the brightest girls in her class in the Westfield Normal school and wanted to be a teacher. The appointment came to her on September 13. Driven frantic by her thoughts and believing herself to be hoodooed by "13," she blew out her brains.

During a thunder storm in Philadelphia lightning struck a marble statue of Diana at an entrance to Fairmount park. Immediately afterward the left leg of the statue turned brown. Next morning all the coloring had disappeared, except one large spot, which so far has resisted persistent scrubbing and the application of powerful acids. The marble statue when struck was illuminated as though hundreds of electric lights had been arranged about it.

In France the number of suicides has increased in fifty years by more than 200 per cent., while the population has only increased by 18 per cent. In Belgium and a large part of Germany the rate of suicide has about doubled in the same period. In Denmark the rate has practically stood still. In England and Wales it has increased from 68 per million in the first twenty years of the queen's reign to 86.5 in the five years preceding her diamond jubilee.

Alexander Huston, bugler of the first section of the light brigade, which made the famous charge upon the Russian guns at the Crimean battle of Balaklava, on October 25, 1854, died at his home in Laurel Hill, L. I., and was buried in Mount Olivet cemetery, Maspeth. Huston was 80 years old and very well preserved. He sounded the call for the charge of the light brigade at Lord Cardigan's command, sabred a Russian gunner at the foot of the hill and managed to get back to safety.

The millions of Cornelius Vanderbilt may not be available to his heirs for many months. There is prospect of a resort to the courts to determine the amount of the fortune. The deadlock has come between Anderson & Anderson, lawyers representing the estate, and C. B. B. Hasbrouck, attorney for the state controller. After eight months of investigation, arguing and wrangling, Mr. Hasbrouck has taken the stand that the estate left by Cornelius Vanderbilt should be taxed at $51,000,000.

The French are a much more early-rising people than the Americans. At an hour when we are still slumbering Paris has already begun to stir. At 5 a. m. the "marchand de vin" takes down his shutters and lights his gas, to catch the workman on the way to his work, and supply him with the dram which supplements or takes the place of his morning cafe. The bakers and the milkmen are the next to open. The majority of shops open about 8 a. m. Early omnibuses, at special fares for workmen begin to run at 6.

Naturalists have generally accepted the opinion that ants are not able to perceive any sounds that are audible to human ears. Prof. Weld, of the Iowa State university, controverts this opinion. He describes careful experiments made by him with four species of American ants, from which he deduces the conclusion that these species are able to perceive sounds, but whether they do it by means of organs of hearing or through the sense of touch being excited by atmospheric vibrations, he is unable to say.

JOHN SHERMAN DEAD.

His Extreme Enfeebled Condition Refused to Yield to Treatment.

The Aged Statesman Passed Away at His Home in Washington at 6:45 Monday Morning.

Washington, Oct. 22.—The condition of ex-Secretary Sherman showed a decided change for the worse Sunday, and it was not believed he would survive the night. Saturday night was a very bad one for him, and he failed to recover any of his strength during the early hours of the morning which was characteristic of the early period of the critical stage of his sickness. His naturally extremely enfeebled condition refuses to yield to the treatment given him, and he is gradually sinking. However, he shows extraordinary vitality for a man of his age.

Dr. W. W. Johnson came to the house early in the evening and is in constant attendance to relieve the needs of the dying man. A number of the relatives gathered at the house on K street opposite Franklin square during the evening, some of the more intimate of whom remained at the bedside of the distinguished patient.

At 5 o'clock a. m. ex-Secretary Sherman was still alive.

At 6 a. m. Sherman was still alive, but death was momentarily expected.

John Sherman died at 6:45 a. m.

LAID TO REST.

Remains of Hon. William L. Wilson Interred in the Family Lot at Charlestown, W. Va.

Charlestown, W. Va., Oct. 20.—The remains of the late William L. Wilson, postmaster general in President Cleveland's cabinet and president of Washington and Lee university, of Lexington, Va., who died suddenly Wednesday, were laid to rest Friday in the family lot at Edgehill cemetery. The funeral train arrived from Lexington at noon and the procession to the burying ground started soon after. The cortege was composed of John Rowan camp, Confederate Veterans, ministers of the gospel, Washington and Lee university students, pall bearers, the university faculty and trustees, the family, ex-President Cleveland, Hon. Isadors Straus and other distinguished visitors.

The city was thronged with visitors who had come to pay their last tribute to the memory of one of Virginia's most illustrious citizens. At the request of the deceased the ceremonies at the grave were very simple.

YOUTSEY FOUND GUILTY.

The Jury Prescribes Life Imprisonment for the Prisoner—An Appeal Will Be Taken.

Georgetown, Ky., Oct. 22.—The jury in the Henry E. Youtsey trial for the murder of Senator Goebel returned a verdict of guilty and fixed the punishment at life imprisonment.

Owing to Youtsey's condition Judge Cantrill will not pass sentence until the next term of court.

Judge Askew, for the defendant, filed two motions, one asking for a stay of judgment, alleging that the facts charged do not constitute a public offense, and asking that stay of judgment be granted until inquiry can be made into the prisoner's sanity.

Judge Cantrill ordered the motions filed for hearing the second day of the February term of court in 1901. He ordered the prisoner's removal to the Franklin county jail forthwith for safe keeping.

Blew Open the Safe.

Nevada, Mo., Oct. 20.—The Farmers' bank was entered by three masked men Friday before dawn. They blew the safe, and, it is stated, secured about $5,000. Constable Wm. Maron, who heard the explosion, fired into the darkness to alarm the town. The robbers returned the fire, killing the constable instantly. Sheriff Ewing, with a posse and bloodhounds, immediately started in pursuit of the robbers.

Will Sell the Legation Buildings.

Madrid, Oct. 22.—The Spanish government has decided to sell the Spanish legation buildings in Peking, now occupied by officials of the French legation. Senor B. J. de Cologan, the Spanish minister to China, wires that he can transfer the legation to Shanghai early in January.

Washington Wheat.

Tacoma, Wash., Oct. 22.—Tacoma warehouses are filled with several million bushels of wheat, and loaded wheat cars cover the side tracks from here to Spokane, 400 miles away.

MILLIONAIRE GATES.

An Alleged Attempt Made Upon His Life—S. I. Morris Is Placed Under Arrest.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—S. I. Morris was arrested Friday evening for an alleged attempt upon the life of John W. Gates, ex-president of the American Steel and Wire Co. When searched at the police station two large revolvers were found in his pockets. It is asserted that Morris also had designs upon the life of W. J. Brimson, general manager of the Kansas City & Southern railroad, whom Morris, it is alleged, had enticed to this city by means of a telegram purporting to have been signed by Gates, but which he himself had sent. Manager Brimson arrived at the Grand Pacific hotel Friday in accordance with the appointment made in the telegram. Failing to find Mr. Gates, he called upon him in his office in the Rookery building.

Morris went to the Rookery building during the afternoon and entered the office of J. K. Knapp, general attorney for the Illinois Steel Co. He immediately began talking excitedly and drawing a revolver leveled it at Mr. Knapp.

Spectators threw Morris out of the office and as he went down the corridor he shouted that he would kill Gates and Brimson before he left the building. Mr. Knapp immediately notified Gates and Brimson.

THE VICKSBURG PARK.

Chief of Engineers Gen. Wilson Reports That the Work Is Progressing Satisfactorily.

Washington, Oct. 20.—Gen. Wilson, chief of engineers, returned Friday morning from a trip through Kentucky, Tennessee and Mississippi, where he has been inspecting the improvements of rivers under the engineer corps. While at Vicksburg, Gen. Wilson took occasion to visit the new park that is being established by the government on the Vicksburg battle-field. He says this work is progressing in a most satisfactory manner, and that all parties interested are co-operating to make it a good representation of the great seige which took place there in 1863. It is the intention of the managers to have the cannon used by both unions and confederates correctly represented in the guns that are to be mounted to mark the lift lines of battle.

Gen. Wilson also says that the government work at Louisville and other points is progressing in a satisfactory manner.

BATTLESHIP KENTUCKY.

She Begins Her Long Trip to China, Which Will Require About Two Months' Time.

Washington, Oct. 20.—The new battle ship Kentucky sailed Saturday on her long trip to China, which will take about two months. She has been at the New York navy yard for some time making final preparations, and is now gone to Tompkinsville, preparatory to the start. The gunboats Vicksburg and Annapolis, which also are to go to China, will follow in about two weeks. The Frolic, which has been designated to take the place of the Dorothea for similar service, is in good condition for a start, but probably will be detained in order to furnish more extensive quarters for the large number of officers assigned to her.

HANGED HIMSELF.

Procured a Clothes Line and Swung From a Hook in the Door Casing.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Within a few feet of his wife and in the same room where she was sewing and singing, John Pfeiffer Friday hanged himself to a hook in the door casing. So quiet was the man in his act and so busy was the woman with her work and her song that she did not see him procure the clothes line and deliberately hang himself. It was nearly a half hour before the woman arose to leave the room and saw her husband hanging by the neck dead. Pfeiffer was out of employment and had been despondent.

CHARGED WITH ROBBERY.

A Former Agent of the Wells-Fargo Express Co. in Texas Arrested in New Orleans.

New Orleans, Oct. 20.—Detectives Friday arrested in this city John Krug, a German by birth, on a telegram from G. A. Taft, of Houston, Tex. Krug was formerly the agent of the Wells Fargo Express Co. at Escalon, Tex. He and John Lehn are charged with the robbery of $10,000 from the express company. Krug denies being guilty. Lehn also left Escalon after the robbery, but he did not come to this city. Krug had about $1,500 in 100's and 50's on his person. It was in American currency. He said he would go back to Texas.

Niagara Falls is the latest city to adopt voting machines. The list now includes Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse and a dozen of the smaller cities of the state, so that a good estimate of the result of the election in the Empire state will be obtainable early on the evening of November 6.

CONGER INSTRUCTED.

First Meeting of the Plenipotentiaries Will Relate to Credentials.

Following This Will Come the Designation of Peace Commissioners to Conduct the Negotiations of the Formal Treaty.

Washington, Oct. 22.—Nothing came to the state department Sunday from Minister Conger in regard to the proposed preliminary meeting for the consideration of peace negotiations asked for by Li Hung Chang and Prince Ching for October 20. The presumption of the officials, therefore, is that the press dispatches announcing that it had been postponed is correct. This postponement was due probably to the unreadiness of the powers generally to begin negotiations, the ministers in all likelihood not having received their final preliminary instructions from their government for their guidance.

The United States minister, Mr Conger, is prepared to proceed with the preliminary work, his instructions from the state department being ample to cover all questions which it is expected will be raised at the beginning. As is understood here, the initial meeting will relate mainly to the verification of the credentials of the Chinese plenipotentiaries. Both Li Hung Chang and Prince Ching are in Peking, but the two great southern viceroys are supposed to be still in their own provinces. Conference with them by the Chinese now in Peking will be largely by telegraph. Following the verification of credentials will come the designation of plenipotentiaries by this government to conduct the formal negotiations, but as to their personnel the officials here are not yet willing to make any statement.

Washington, Oct. 22.—The state department has received a copy of the Anglo-German agreement regarding China published in London. It was sent to the department by Count de Quadt, the German charge d'affaires, who earlier in the day had received it by telegraph from Count von Buelow, the German chancellor at Berlin. The official version is identical in terms with that already published, and it was communicated to our government with only a formal letter of transmission. Count de Quadt is very much gratified over the agreement between the powers, and believes it augurs well for the prompt beginning of peace negotiations in China.

Nothing has yet come to our government from the American embassy at Berlin touching the agreement between Germany and England. The feeling on the subject of state department officials was made known in the press dispatches, the document giving very general satisfaction and being recognied as in line with the attitude of the United States toward China as already defined by Secretary Hay and by other great powers.

The note issued by the British foreign officers relating to the agreement is in four parts as follws:

1. As a matter of joint permanent international interest, the rivers of littoral China should remain open to trade and to every other legitimate form of economic activity for the nationals of all countries. The two governments agree to uphold the same for all Chinese territory so far as they have influence.

2. The governments of Great Britain and of Germany will not advantage themselves of territory on account of present complications.

3. In the case of another power using the complications to obtain territorial advantages under any form whatever, England and Germany will come to the preliminary understanding as to the eventual steps to be taken to protect their own interests in China.

4. England and Germany will invite the powers especially Austria, France, Italy, Japan, Russia and the United States, to accept the principles of this agreement.

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 22.—According to a correspondent of the Shanghai Mercury, Bishop Fontosati in South Honan was tortured four hours by Chinese. His body was dismembered piece by piece and he was disemboweled. Two priests were covered with coal oil and placed in sticks, which were then set afire. Others were frightfully tortured. Three thousand converts, led by French priests, while they were defending their church were massacred.

Killed By a Fall.

Quincy, Ill., Oct. 22.—Joseph E. Tallis, newspaper man of Tennessee, who wrote under the name of Ray Raymond, was killed by falling from a third story window of the Occidental hotel. The presumption is that he fell asleep on the window sill, as the body was found in the hotel alley Sunday morning arrayed in night clothes. The skull was crushed. Tallas was about 40 years old and unmarried.

Sixty Cases of Smallpox.

Houghton, Mich., Oct. 22.—There are 60 cases of smallpox in Calumet, Lake Linden, Hancock and Houghton and the various boards of health will endeavor to secure a general vaccination. Fortunately the disease is of a mild type and so far but one death has resulted.

Salisbury Sees the Queen.

London, Oct. 22.—Lord Salisbury went to Balmoral Monday to consult with Queen Victoria regarding cabinet changes and other important matters.

THE TURN OF LIFE.

The Most Important Period in a Woman's Existence.—Mrs. Johnson Tells How She Was Helped Over the Trying Time.

Owing to modern methods of living, not one woman in a thousand approaches this perfectly natural change without experiencing a train of very annoying, and sometimes painful symptoms.

Those dreadful hot flashes, sending the blood surging to the heart until it seems ready to burst, and the faint feeling that follows, sometimes with chills, as if the heart were going to stop for good, are only a few of the symptoms of a dangerous nervous trouble. The nerves are crying out for assistance. The cry should be heeded in time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was prepared to meet the needs of woman's system at this trying period of her life.

The three following letters are guaranteed to be genuine and true, and still further prove what a great medicine Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is for women.

Mar. 12, 1897.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:— I have been sick for a long time. I was taken sick with flooding. All my trouble seemed to be in the womb. I ache all the time at the lower part of the womb. The doctor says the womb is covered with ulcers. I suffer with a pain on the left side of my back over the kidney. I am fifty years old and passing through the change of life. Please advise me what to do to get relief. Would like to hear from you as soon as possible."—MRS. CHARLOTTE JOHNSON, Monclova, Ohio.

Jan. 23, 1898.

'I have been taking your remedies, and think they have helped me a great deal. I had been in bed for ten weeks when I began taking your Vegetable Compound, but after using it for a short time I was able to be up around the house. The aching in the lower part of womb has left me. The most that troubles me now is the flowing. That is not so bad, but still there is a little every day. I am not discouraged yet, and shall continue with your medicine, for I believe it will cure me."—MRS. CHARLOTTE JOHNSON, Monclova, Ohio.

April 13, 1900.

"I send you this letter to publish for the benefit of others. I was sick for about nine years so that I could not do my work. For three months I could not sit up long enough to have my bed made. I had five different doctors, and all said there was no help for me. My trouble was change of life. I suffered with ulceration of the womb, pain in sides, kidney and stomach trouble, backache, headache, and dizziness. I am well and strong, and feel like a new person. My recovery is a perfect surprise to everybody that knew me. I owe all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I would not do without your medicine for anything. There is no need of women suffering so much if they would take your remedies, for they are a sure cure."—MRS. CHARLOTTE JOHNSON, Monclova, Ohio.

When one stops to think about the good Mrs. Johnson derived from Mrs. Pinkham's advice and medicine, it seems almost beyond belief; yet it is all true as stated in her three letters published above at her own request.

As a matter of positive fact Mrs. Pinkham has on file thousands of letters from women who have been safely carried through that danger period "Change of Life." Mrs. Johnson's cure is not an unusual one for Mrs. Pinkham's medicine to accomplish.

$5000 REWARD.—We have deposited with the National City Bank of Lynn, $5000, which will be paid to any person who can find that the above testimonial letters are not genuine, or were published before obtaining the writer's special permission. LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO.

STRIKE MUST END SOON

Generally Believed It Will Close Sometime During the Week.

The Operators Are Losing Their Trade, and the Strikers Can Not Afford to Hold Out a Great While Longer.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 19.—Representatives of nearly all the big coal companies of the region conferred here Thursday and made an agreement to amend the notices already posted by attaching the following:

"In further explanation of the above notice, this company desires to say that it is its intention to pay the advance in wages above noted until April 1, 1901, and thereafter until further notice."

The following statement was issued to the press:

"The representatives of the larger coal companies, after their meeting Thursday afternoon, stated in reply to inquiries that they had offered their men a ten per cent. advance, as indicated by the notices they posted; that this notice specially stated that the reduction of powder from $2.75 to $1.50 would be considered in arriving at the wages of their contract miners.

"It was expected when the notices were posted that the offer was to stand until April 1, and indefinitely thereafter, but inasmuch as there seems to be some misunderstanding in this matter, they have agreed to add to their notice a clause to the effect that it is their intention to pay the advance in wages until April 1, 1901, and thereafter until further notice."

The conference was held in the office of the Temple Iron Co., in the board of trade building, and was well attended by the operators.

National President Mitchell, District President T. H. Nichols, District Secretary John T. Dempsey and National Organizer Fred Dilcher, of the United Mine Workers, have all been quoted as saying that the resolutions of the Scranton convention contemplated a straight advance of ten per cent. for all parts of the region, and that the matter of having this increase made up in part by a decrease in the cost of powder in these upper regions, where powder is sold for $2.75 a keg, was not to be agreed to. The powder question, they one and all said, was left out of the present negotiations, with the understanding that it should form one of the grievances to be adjusted in the conferences which the offer says the operators agree to have with their men to "take up any grievances they may have."

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 22.—The general belief here is that this week will see the windup of the strike. The strikers do not admit this openly, but it is the feeling that the lockout can not be continued much longer. Both sides are expected to make concessions. The operators say they have none to make, but under certain pressure they are expected to make them nevertheless. The politicians have had their say in the negotiations looking toward a settlement, and now the sales agents of the big coal companies and the retail dealers in the big cities are taking a hand.

They are writing and telegraphing every day to the coal companies that, unless something is done very soon to bring the strike to an end, and an effort made to get some hard coal on the market at saleable figures, the anthracite trade will be demoralized for years to come and some of it will be lost forever.

One sales agent writes: "One of my largest customers tells me that consumers are getting to like bituminous coal and that they think they will keep on using it."

It is such as these that make the operators just as anxious to settle the strike as the miners. But the strikers must make the biggest concession, and there is every reason to believe that they will do it before the week is out. Many of the miners out on strike argue this way: "Let us accept the latest offer of the companies and settle the powder question later on. If we return to work we are sure to get an increase over the wages paid in the past, no matter how the operators try to figure it out, and we can afford to bide our time for a settlement of the powder issue."

Of course, there is some opposition to taking this position. There are some strikers who favor holding out until every demand is granted, but this class is not in the majority. They are men who own their own homes and have their larders well filled for the winter. They can afford to hold out against the companies, but the bulk of the miners can not.

President Mitchell is now thoroughly acquainted with the condition of affairs in the Wyoming and Lackawanna regions, and as late as Sunday he told one of the Luzerne county officers of the United Mine Workers who is in Hazleton that he would not stand in the way of a settlement.

Baroness von Ketteler at Home.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 22.—Baroness von Ketteler, widow of the murdered German ambassador to China, arrived in Detroit Sunday afternoon and was immediately driven to the residence of her father, Henry B. Ledyard, president of the Michigan Central railroad.

Spanish Cabinet Resigns.

Madrid, Oct. 22.—The entire Spanish cabinet has resigned, and the queen regent has intrusted Gen. Azcarraga with the formation of a new ministry.

FOUR FIREMEN DEAD.

Several Others Were Injured as a Result of a Fire in St. Paul, Minn. —Property Loss $450,000.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 22.—As a result of a fire which broke out in the slaughtering department of A. V. Pinman and Co.'s packing house at the Minnesota transfer, early Sunday morning, four firemen are dead and a number are injured, and property to the amount of about $450,000 was burned.

The fire is supposed to have been incendiary.

From the packing house the flames spread to the warehouse of the North Western Co., thence to the McCormick Harvester Co.'s large brick warehouse, filled with machinery. It was here that the fatalities occurred.

The firemen of Engine Co. No 13 had entered the McCormick warehouse to better fight the flames. There was a tank containing 200 gallons of gasoline in the rear of the building and its explosion shattered the walls, which buried the men. Andrew Johnson was taken from the ruins alive but so badly injured that he died during the day. The bodies of the other victims have all been recovered.

The McCormack Harvester Co., was the heaviest looser, their loss footing up $380,000. Of this $80,000 was on the building and $300,000 on stocks and notes. They carry no insurance.

The loss of D. M. Robbins, owner of the packing house were the fire originated, is placed at $35,300. The loss to the great Northern railroad on cars destroyed foots $8,000; North Western Lime Co. $15,000; A. V. Hinman and Co. lessees of the packing plant lost $4,000 on stock and machinery. The Merriam Park Ice Co., $1,000 on buildings and stocks, and other minor losses which will bring the total to nearly $450,000. Losers other than the McCormick Co. are well protected by insurance.

PREPARING FOR WAR.

Either a Rebellion or a War of Conquest Is Likely in Mexico —Buying Saddle Horses.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 22.—A special from Cheyenne, Wyo., says:

Senor Manuel Alvarez, an agent of the Mexican government, came here about two weeks ago and since that time has purchased and shipped several car loads of saddle horses to the City of Mexico. From words dropped now and then from Senor Alvarez the Mexican government is preparing for war; either rebellion or a war of conquest. Alvarez will say nothing as to his real purpose in buying so many horses, but it is a significant fact that he purchases only the very best saddle horses. The prices paid are in some cases fancy, and Senor Alvarez seems to have plenty of money. He does say that he was directed to this section because of the reputation made by Wyoming and Colorado horses in the late war with Spain. He says he wants only the very best animals.

TEXAS TORNADO.

Everything in Its Path Was Swept Away—Several Persons Killed, While Others Are Missing.

Atlanta, Tex., Oct. 22.—A tornado struck half a mile west of Lodi and 15 miles west of here Sunday morning at 7 o'clock. The path of the tornado was 200 yards wide, and the wind swept everything before it. One house in the center of its path occupied by colored people was destroyed, six persons being killed outright and three others are missing who are supposed to be dead.

The cyclone traveled from the southwest to the northeast, crossing the Texas & Pacific railroad at Campbellsville spur, a lumber-loading station two miles north of Lodi. The lumber was carried away in all directions. It is feared further loss of life has resulted out in the country.

THE AIRSHIP.

Another Trial Made By Count Zeppelin, Resulting in a Series of Successful Evolutions.

Freidrichshafen, Wartemburg, Oct. 22.—Another trial of Count Zeppelin's airship was made Sunday, resulting in a series of successful evolutions.

The airship, with Count Zeppelin and Herr Eugen Wolff on board ascended at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon to an altitude of five-eighths of a mile, where various maneuvers were executed. It then descended slowly to the water, which it reached near the point of departure at 5:25.

The king and queen of Wurtemburg witnessed the trial.

Will Resign.

Rome, Ga., Oct. 22.—Capt. A. B. S. Moseley, of this city, who was several months ago appointed vice consul to Singapore, has decided not to go and will in a few days forward his resignation to the state department. Dr. R. A. Moseley, a brother of Capt. Moseley, is consul general at Singapore, but has been ordered to Japan on account of his health.

Charles Dudley Warner Dead.

Hartford, Ct., Oct. 22.—Charles Dudley Warner, of literary fame, and one of the owners of the Hartford Courant, died suddenly. Mr. Warner had a very severe attack of pneumonia two years ago while in New Orleans, and had never fully recovered from it.

Abattoir Partially Burned.

Philadelphia, Oct. 22.—The abattoir of the West Philadelphia stock yards was partially destroyed by a fire of unknown origin Sunday causing a loss of about $5,000, fully covered by insurance.

COUNTRY'S DANGER.

John P. Altgeld Talks to College Men in Connecticut.

The Administration's Attitude on Trusts and Imperialism Denounced—Roasts Republican Rantors.

Ex-Gov. John P. Altgeld, of Illinois, was the chief speaker at the Yale Democratic club's first rally of the campaign, at New Haven, Conn., October 10. The meeting was most successful. Music hall, with a capacity of 2,500, was thronged and hundreds were unable to gain admission. He spoke in part as follows:

"Liberal ideas have given the world its progress and constitute the hope of humanity. All institutions are the product of ideas—some temporary, some permanent, and justice is the recognition of human rights. Justice stands for equality, and from it comes democracy, evolution, growth, life, progress and happiness.

"Brute force asserts that might gives right, that the strong may control the weak, that the strong may give the weak so much of liberty as they think best. From this source comes kingcraft, aristocracy, oligarchy, monopoly, privilege. It is reactionary and repressive. It arrests progress. It leads to decay and death.

Trusts Rule by Force.

"The monopolies that are devouring the substance of our people all rest on the doctrine of might. They stand on advantage.

"Has it occurred to you that monopoly lowers the social status of the American people and lessens their ability to educate their children? Equal opportunity made possible the thousands of educational institutions in this country. With the destruction of equal opportunities they must fade from the land, and many professors must fade with them, because the people will not be able to educate their children as they do now.

"The mere fact that some trust magnate may give a few millions of stolen money to some college cannot keep the people who are doing the work of America from sinking down to a lower plane if monopolies continue.

"The law looks upon monopolies as criminal. In addition we have on our statute book what is called the Sherman anti-trust law, which fixes severe penalties for forming a monopoly. But it is a dead letter because the administration will not enforce it.

"The trusts have absolutely controlled this administration. At present we are in this situation: We must repeal such legislation as promotes monopoly and we must have an honest enforcement of the laws against monopoly.

Trusts Take a Hand in Politics.

"But the trusts take a hand in politics. They furnish Mark Hanna the millions of corruption funds with which to debauch the elections and continue this administration in power. So far as I can learn, every great monopoly in America is supporting this administration. Even the alleged democratic stockholders in the republican ice trust of New York city were against our platform and did not like our candidate. The men who debauch legislation—who pollute the streams of justice—are shouting for McKinley.

"Let me ask this question: Is there an intelligent man in the land who believes that if the trusts succeed in carrying this election the trusts will be destroyed?

"It is not a partisan question. It is a question of self-preservation. Shall the syndicate run the government at Washington, or shall the people who do the work of this country again take charge of it?

"Let me remind you that amid all the vilification, amid all the misrepresentation, no man has yet arisen who has had the hardihood to assert that the trusts and the syndicates could control William J. Bryan.

Talks of "Destiny."

Turning to the subject of "Imperialism" with the introductory remark that he would next say a word about "duty and destiny and the mission of our flag," Mr. Altgeld reviewed the history of our war with Spain, telling how the democratic spirit of the country forced the republican administration to go to the rescue of Cuba. After tracing, step by step, the course of events in the West Indies and in the Philippines down to the point of the forcible acquisition of the eastern islands of the United States, Mr. Altgeld said:

"We are told that Providence is doing this, that destiny has done it, and that we are simply marching in the line of our duty. This cant and hypocrisy become wearisome.

"Were the British ambassador the agent of Divine Providence when he went to Mr. McKinley and urged him to keep all of the islands and go into the colonial business, as an agency that Providence so far forget himself as to demand of the Philippine people the recognition of American sovereignty or the forfeiture of 1,500 lives, before we had any treaty rights or any other rights there?

"Was it the Lord that issued the order to Gen. Otis on December 21, 1898, practically commanding him to begin a war against those people who had been our allies down to that time; practically commanding him to march through their own blood, their country and shoot down their men, their women and their children?

Issue Is Not a Partisan One.

"Why attempt to shoulder on the Lord these indefensible acts of William McKinley, who was guided, not by destiny, not by Providence, but by the greed of American syndicates? Does the Lord change with the seasons so that what is a crime in the spring becomes a virtue in the fall?

"This is not a partisan question. It is an American question. Shall we preserve republican institutions or shall we abandon them? The principles of liberty, the principles of equality, the vigor of liberal ideas have triumphed in every contest for the last 130 years. Now they are again in death struggle, in a struggle with the spirit of monopoly at home, and in a struggle with the spirit of despotism abroad. Shall we surrender and start on a retrograde movement? Shall it be written that the sons of the revolutionary sires were incapable of maintaining free government, and that in one short century the corruptions of trade and the corrosions of greed had destroyed their vitality? Shall the great American republic die down on the dusty plains of despotism to die?"

Mr. Altgeld also referred briefly to the postal scandals in Cuba, growing out of republican mismanagement of the islands, and closed with an appeal to the young men to vote with the party that is seeking to maintain the ideals of liberty and freedom which have heretofore controlled this republic.

DOWN ON TRUSTS.

Frank S. Monnett, of Ohio, Speaks for Bryan.

Former Republican Attorney General Charges Capitalists with Controlling the Nation's Chief Executive.

Frank S. Monnett, for four years republican attorney general of Ohio and who has achieved a national reputation on account of his vigorous warfare on trusts, made a ringing speech at a nonpartisan meeting of laboring men at Columbus on the night of Friday, October 12, concluding with a public announcement that he would vote for Bryan this fall and advising all of his republican friends to do the same. Mr. Monnett confined his address wholly to trusts. He reviewed the prosecutions against various trusts, combinations and monopolies which he had undertaken while attorney general of the state. In this connection he said:

"It became my privilege and duty to institute upward of 24 suits against these combinations, monopolies and trusts in your sworn officer of the law, calling upon the highest courts of the state to electrocute these law violators that pillage your sugar bowl, your oil can, your tobacco pouch, exact excessive freight and telephone charges and to protect you in your rights of private property under the constitution and laws of the state. We labored to accomplish this, as it was our duty to do.

Obstructed by Republicans.

"We were badgered and obstructed by republican leaders, United States senators, political bosses and a subsidized press. The monopolies sent the briber with his seductions of gold and with his promises of positions and salaries and procured the leading governmental officials to defend them, and last, but not least, driven from pillar to post, they came into court and with uplifted hands swore that they did not and could not answer the interrogatories or produce their books, for if they did it would subject their corporations to civil death for violating the law of their creation; and lastly, that it would criminate the college-fostering, church-erecting, campaign-contributing monopolists.

"A like experience was encountered against the salt trust at Pomeroy, O. The same dodge and skulking from the avenging law was adopted there."

Points to McKinley's Record.

Mr. Monnett then went into the subject of federal legislation against trusts and discussed the Sherman anti-trust law. He dwelt especially on the "evils of combinations in restraint of trade." Continuing, he said:

"We nominated a president from Ohio, who promised the people in fair phrases that he would enforce the anti-trust laws of the United States, including the Sherman anti-trust act. How has he enforced it? He went to New Jersey, the state of the trust-breeding grounds, the cesspool and the spawn of all these illegal combinations, and placed at the head of the attorney general's department John W. Griggs, who has under him 76 district attorneys scattered throughout the various states of the union, the duty of each and every one of which is to enforce this anti-trust act, and according to his official report May 29, 1900, to congress out of 13 suits instituted under this law three have been begun under his administration, and one of these is not yet decided."

Declares Law Is Nullified.

"This is the magnificent record of the present national administration of the complete nullification of the most important law upon the statute books upon this subject since the beginning of our government.

"The trusts utterly failed in defeating the Sherman anti-trust act; they were completely routed by the judiciary in the final test in the supreme court, and they have now begun the dangerous policy of paralyzing the executive arm by means that are so palpable that he who runs may read, and none but the most skeptical can fail to be convinced.

"I believe that William McKinley and John W. Griggs, his attorney general, and his executive officers have willfully, purposely and knowingly paralyzed the executive arm of this government for the last four years and prevented the enforcement of the common law and the statute law, both criminally and civilly, against these law violators. And the hours has now come and the only time we will have for the next four years as voters to legally and constitutionally smite them for this hypocrisy, to resent this violation of official duty, and we should vote against every elector that is pledged on the republican ticket to perpetuate this great wrong in our republic.

Urges Support of Bryan.

"William J. Bryan may not accomplish all that we expect or all that we hope for in this behalf, but I believe him to be thoroughly honest, sincere and a determined man, and while I do not agree with him in all that he advocates, yet I am forced to take one side or the other on this great question which for the masses is the paramount issue.

"In the name of patriotism and for the sake of our republic and to prevent the threatened danger that Senator Hanna, the man and the other Nestors in the councils of our government have so graphically prophested, and which I firmly believe will come to pass if not checked, I propose to cast my vote for that fearless, upright champion of the people, William J. Bryan."

The Shadow of Imperialism.

Every official indication from the war department casts before it the shadow of impending imperialism. The signs cannot be ignored, for they are black and somber and forbidding in their proportions. The indorsement of imperialism, of foreign conquest, is the indorsement of militarism. It is but a short step from present conditions to the assumption of military burdens like those which are oppressing the poor of Europe. If we conquer for the trusts the trusts will not pay the bills. It is the common people who support standing armies, not the millionaires. —Boston Traveler.

——Once when his keeper was temporarily absent, Mr. McKinley wrote a message to congress in which he embodied the famous truism about "our plain duty to Porto Rico." It is also history that when the full and fell meaning of this innocent outpouring of conscience dawned upon the fatty degenerated mental processes of Hanna that person went to the white house and called his delegate and protege to account. Since the time to which we allude it is of record that the present republican candidate has been compelled to submit all of his written words to the party boss before uttering them.—Washington Times.

STATE ITEMS OF INTEREST.

KILLED HIS WIFE.

He Then Ran to the River and Shot Himself—Tragic Deed of James J. Lilly.

Cynthiana, Ky., Oct. 19.—James J. Lilly, a well-known and popular colored politician of this city, shot and killed his wife about 9 o'clock Thursday night. The trouble first started when his wife attended a camp meeting held at Berry, this county, about six weeks ago, against his wishes, and on her return home he gave her a severe beating. She left him immediately, and has since been making her home with her mother.

Late Thursday evening Lilly called at his wife's home and asked to see her. Upon being admitted into her presence he drew a 32-caliber revolver from his pocket and fired the bullet taking effect in his wife's head. Lilly then sat down and reloaded his revolver, after which he started for the river.

Officers were soon on his trail and discovered him on the railroad bridge one mile north of here. When Lilly saw escape was impossible, he plunged into the river below, falling 25 feet before striking the water. He swam to shore, and immediately upon reaching the bank drew the same devolver with which he had slain his wife and attempted suicide, shooting himself in the abdomen, seriously, though not fatally, wounding himself. He was carried to town by officers and placed in jail.

ALMOST DECAPITATED.

An Aged Man Caught on a Railway Trestle and Killed Near Louisville, Ky.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 19.—In an effort to escape being killed by a train on a 200 foot trestle of the Louisville, Harrods Creek & Prospect railroad Thursday, Walter C. Townsend, aged 65, attempted to let himself down between the ties. His shoulders became wedged between two ties, and, utterly helpless, he saw the locomotive approach, which in a few minutes almost decapitated him, his body dropping to the ground dead. A fog prevented the trainmen from seeing Townsend.

Killed By a Watchman.

Paducah, Ky., Oct. 22.—Nathan and Thawyer Nash were taken back to Johnsonville, Tenn., Sunday afternoon, they returning without requisition. They are charged with murdering Watchman Thomas Johnson, of the N., C. & St. L. freight elevator there, two weeks ago. One thousand dollars reward was offered for their capture by the governor of Tennessee.

Minister Stricken With Paralysis.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 22.—While Rev. Dr. F. V. Bartlett, who has been pastor of the First Presbyterian church here for 26 years, was in the midst of prayer at the morning service he suffered a stroke of paralysis, being rendered dumb and helpless. He was carried from the pulpit to his home. He has since recovered his speech, but his faculties are still affected.

For Her Husband's Loss.

Middlesboro, Ky., Oct. 22.—Mrs. M. J. Bowers, of Bristol, widow and administratrix of W. T. Bowers, has brought suit against the Bristol Gas and Electric Light Co. for $10,000 damages in the Virginia corporation court. Her husband was killed by falling from an electric light pole, from which he was thrown by a shock from an imperfect light.

Aged Couple Eloped.

Newport, Ky., Oct. 20.—E. C. Topie, aged 71, a wealthy and retired merchant of Newport, was secretly married on September 4 to Miss Mary Doty, of Winton Place, O. The couple eloped to Louisville, and have since kept their marriage a secret until Friday, when he brought his bride to his home.

Slayer Is Silent.

Cynthiana, Ky., Oct. 20.—J. J. Lillie, the Negro politician who shot and instantly killed his wife Lizzie, and then attempted to commit suicide by jumping from the bridge, refuses to talk, saying he will die before giving his reason for the act.

Aged Man Robbed of $500.

Vanceburg, Ky., Oct. 20.—John Grandison, aged 82 years, former partner of Jesse and Simpson Grant, grandfather of Gen. U. S. Grant, in the tanning business at Esculapia Springs, was robbed of $500.

Jail Burned to the Ground.

Corbin, Ky., Oct. 20.—The city jail burned to the ground at 8 o'clock Thursday night. Several prisoners narrowly escaped. It was set on fire from the outside by some one. Bloodhounds are tracking the firebugs.

Held a Reunion.

Cynthiana, Ky., Oct. 19.—The 7th Ohio cavalry held a reunion Thursday and visited the battlefields. The visitors were entertained by the Commercial hotel. President Theo. F. Allen, of Covington, responded to the address of welcome.

Bitten By a Mad Dog.

Owingsville, Ky., Oct. 19.—Walter Coyle was bitten by a mad dog. The canine appeared on the streets here during the street fair last week and bit eight persons and hundreds of dogs.

BIG FIRE AT PADUCAH.

Morton's Opera House, a Large Dry Goods House and Other Property Destroyed.

Paducah, Ky., Oct. 22.—The most disastrous fire that has visited Paducah for years broke out in Morton's Opera House Monday morning at 1:20 o'clock. The fire had gained considerable headway before it was discovered and the building was doomed before the fire company, only half a block away, could reach the scene.

The largest dry goods store in the city, owned by L. B. Ogilvie and Co., occupying the ground floors of the building was destroyed as well as many offices, a barber shop and David Van Culins book store.

The losser are estimated at $200,000.

The fire is believed to have been of incendiary origin.

HER DEATH EXPECTED.

Vicious Dog Attacks a Three-Years-Old Girl, Literally Tearing Her Flesh to Shreds.

Henderson, Ky., Oct. 20.—A vicious dog attacked the 3-year-old daughter of Joe Mullen here Friday, literally tearing her flesh to shreds. The child's face was so badly torn as to render it unrecognizable, and had it not been for the timely interference by the bystanders the brute would have torn the little one limb from limb. The physicians say there is little hope of the child's recovery.

The Election Bill.

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 18.—House bill No. 19, embracing the non-partisan amendments to the present election law, was signed by Gov. Beckham and, containing an emergency clause, it becomes effective immediately.

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 20.—At 11:15 o'clock Friday morning the joint legislative conference committee adopted a report providing for amending the house bill 18 by making the sheriff the umpire of the county board in each county, giving the people local self-government in elections. Radical Representatives Holland, Cantrill and Henry of Campbell county fought the adoption of the report. Both houses will adopt the report and sine die adjournment will come not later than Saturday.

Shot Two Men For a Nickel.

Harrodsburg, Ky., Oct. 22.—In a dispute Saturday night over a game of "five-up" in which a nickel was involved, Homer Boston shot Adam Duncan and Tom Range, both colored. Duncan was shot in the head and only slightly wounded, but Range is seriously hurt. Boston was arrested.

Wealth Proved His Ruin.

Paris, Ky., Oct. 22.—The dead body of Edward B. Moran was found Sunday afternoon in the front yard of his mother's residence in East Paris. Moran had inherited a fortune from his father and had become very dissipated. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict of death from alcoholism and exposure.

Boys Quarrel Over Politics.

Williamstown, Ky., Oct. 20.—Eddie Bird and Sol Taylor, two small boys, quarreled over a political argument near here and the former received a blow on the head from a baseball bat that fractured his skull. The wounded lad is 11 years old. His assailant is 12 years old. Bird's condition is critical.

Fearfully Mangled.

Beattyville, Ky., Oct. 19.—In the saw mill of the Clay City Lumber and Stave Co. here Thursday morning Leslie Hall, who operated the bolting machine, fell across one of the saws and was fearfully mangled. His left leg was cut off and his body cut in two. His funeral will be held Friday at Hall's Chapel.

Ex-Banker Guilty.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 22.—The jury which tried the case of ex-Banker J. M. McKnight returned a verdict of guilty. He was charged with misappropriating the funds of the German National bank, of which he was president until it was closed by the examiner. McKnight was tried before and got a sentence of seven years.

For Killing a Watchman.

State News.

The sausage plant of James F. Price burned Wednesday night at Lexington.

W. Bush Nelson, of Lexington, won the contract to establish a broom factory in the Kentucky House of Reform.

Dr. S. W. Spears, the oldest Methodist minister in Kentucky, died at Nicholasville, where he went two weeks ago to attend Conference.

At the sawmill of Clay City Lumber and Stave Company, Leslie Hall, who operated the bolting machine, fell across one of the saws and was fearfully mangled. His left leg was cut off and his body cut in two.

The Court of Appeals reversed the decision of the Kenton Circuit Court in the case of the L. & N. Railroad against the Covington & Cincinnati Elevated Railroad Company, involving the title to 10 acres of land in Covington.

Walter Townsell, a plasterer, while walking a trestle 30 feet high in the eastern part of Louisville, saw a train approaching and tried to squeeze down between the ties to save himself, but could not get his shoulders through. Thus trapped he screamed in agony until the train struck him, severing his head and knocking his body through to the ground below.

The price of steel billets—the raw material of armor plate—has declined about $17 per ton since armor manufactures formulated their bids for the 38,000 tons of steel armor required by the Government, yet representatives of the companies insist that the original demand of $445 per ton, with a royalty of $45 per ton added, cannot possibly be scaled down. Is this declaration mere presumption and audacity, or is it based upon conditions of agreement of which the Navy Department and the public are ignorant? —New York Journal.

The Masonic Grand Lodge has decided to build a home for aged Masons. For this purpose it was recommended that a farm of not to exceed 250 acres be purchased. There is a fund of $50,000 on hand for the home, the location of which will be left with the committee. W. C. McChord, of Springfield, was to-day elected Grand Master; Henry Bailey, of Cynthiana, Deputy Grand Master; John W. Landrum, of Mayfield, Grand Senior Warden. Owen D. Thomas, of Lebanon, Grand Junior Warden; Henry B. Grant, of Louisville, Grand Secretary; John H. Leathers, of Louisville, Grand Treasurer, and Joseph T. Davidson Grand Tyler.

Charles H. Jordan, of Newport, Ky., preferred speedy death to long imprisonment. He was a trusted employe of the American Type Foundry, and embezzled funds intrusted to his care, his peculations extending over a long period, with certain exposure at the end. When this discovery was made the Cincinnati police were notified, and he was found in a saloon in a drunken stupor, and arrested. On the way to the station-house the officers saw him place something between his lips. A moment later he staggered and fell with a cry of agony. He was hurriedly sent to the hospital, where he died soon after his arrival. He had swallowed cyanide of potassium, which he had carried on his person for weeks for just such an emergency. He leaves a wife and two daughters.

The largest hanging Bell in the world is in a Buddhist monastery near Canton, China. It is eighteen feet high and forty-five feet in circumference, and is of solid bronze. It is eight great bells which were cast by command of the Emperor Young-lo, about A. D. 1400, and is said to have cost the lives of eight men, who were killed during the process of casting. The whole bell both inside and out, is covered with an inscription of embossed Chinese characters about half an inch long covering even the handle, the total number being 84,000. The characters tell a single story—one of the Chinese classics.

T. R. Brown, a prominent attorney of Catlettsburg, says the Big Sandy Democrats are in better trim for the campaign than he ever saw them before. Nearly all of the Gold Democrats and those who opposed Goebel being in line. He predicts Kehoe's election to Congress by 1,000 majority and says that Bryan and Beckham will run right along together.

A Bracken county girl has discovered the best hiding place for mice—the mustache.

Crop and Stock.

It costs something to buy a harvester, tedder or hay press, and yet such implements are not always well cared for in the winter. One or two hours devoted to cleaning and oiling the implements and tools not required, and storing them under shelter, may save the cost of repair next year.

It seems that hens can shed their feathers much easier, early in the fall while the nights are warm, than later in the season after weather becomes colder; it is therefore, well to encourage early moulting by giving the fowls a little extra care and feed. Years ago there was little or no attention given to poultry during the moulting season; they merely said "well, it is moulting time, and we cannot expect any eggs." And I am sorry to say that at the present day there are but few except those who pay very close attention to their poultry—who give their poultry—who give their fowls much more care when moulting than any other time. Hens cannot be expected to lay during the moult, yet many of them do, in some it seems to be the bird's very nature to lay all the time they are shedding feathers. In flocks of thirty or forty head, some will commence shedding early, a few will shed off in August and I have known fowls to be entirely through moulting by the end of July, but of course that is very early, and quite unusual; during the first and second week in September it is not unfrequent to see a few hens with their new plumage on. At the same time it is not unusual to find hens that have not commenced to moult, not a new feather can be seen upon them by the end of October. There is a large margin between the two periods. This is where eggs can be produced from one pen of old birds all through the autumn, even those hens which have already shed their feathers will often lay as many eggs between the first of October and Christmas as March hatched pullets. If all hens moulted during a certain month of the year, we would not expect many eggs during that month from ordinary hens but as they moult a few at a time, we get more or less eggs, if we give them proper treatment.—Practical Poultryman.

[Western Tobacco Journal.]

Later reports do not tend to improve the outlook for the new Burley crop. From practically every quarter of the Burley section comes the report of extreme inferiority, and even in the very best Burley counties the showing is not much better. Reports which seem quite conservative say that the crop is the poorest in ten years. The fact that the crop is such a heavy one in volume in no wise lends encouragement to the situation. If the crop were a short poor one, the Tobacco might command a remunerative price, notwithstanding its inferiority, but this favorable feature is lacking in the present instance. Of the poor stuff there will be enough and to spare. Consequently it can not be expected to command good prices

The limited stocks of desirable old Tobaccos, however, will undoubtedly be wanted, and holders certainly should be able to realize better figures than are offered for the same. It is difficult to understand why the market is not stronger for this class of goods. The situation warrants something better than the buyers seem inclined to give.

The exact size of the big new crop is of much less importance than its quality, and with the limited data at hand it is much too early to hazard an estimate that would be of any value to the trade.

Teddy got his wires crossed at Lexington yesterday when he permitted himself to indulge in the hope that the United States Senate will not admit the Hon. Joe Blackburn. There is no contest over that seat. Mr. Blackburn was elected in the usual manner, and although Gov. Taylor refused to sign his credentials, there has been no declaration of an intention to make objection to his taking his seat. The Kentucky Legislature is recognized as a legal body, and it certainly had a right to elect a United States Senator to succee the Hon. william. Lindsay. We are afraid Mr Roosevelt entertains some strange notions concerning the legislative body over which he expects to preside.—The Washington Post.

Not content with levying contributions from trusts and assessing federal office holders in order to raise a corruption fund, the Republican National Committee is soliciting assistance from the life insurance companies, saving banks and building and loan associations. The hope of the Republicans is in the money power of the country. The big corporations and moneyed institutions are advised to get money in their own way. The people to are be bought, intimidated, coerced, starved in order to re-elect McKinley.

This "startling" fact is sent out from Paris, Ky.:

"Careful examination of the registration books of six polling precincts in the city of Paris reveals the startling fact that of the 600 Republicans registered 451 of the number are blacks and only 149 are white. In other words, only 25 per cent of the Republican vote of Paris is white."

The registration at Georgetown develops a still more "startling fact," and one full of significance. The colored Republicans out number the white Republicans as 5 to 1. The official figures from Lexington, Versailles and Frankfort would probably show a very similar condition of things. If the negro vote was eliminated, the Republicans of the Seventh Congressional district would cut a very sorry figure.—Georgetown Times.

The New York Herald's poll of the country, published yesterday, gives McKinley a total of 282 electoral votes and Bryan 165. On the contrary, an estimate by Chairman Jones, of the Democratic National Committee, puts down 263 electoral votes for Bryan 103 for McKinley and 87 doubtful. Secretary Kerr, of the Democratic Congressional Committee, says the next House will have a Democratic majority of twenty five.

Young Women

The entry into womanhood is a critical time for a girl. Little menstrual disorders started at that time soon grow into fatal complications. That female troubles are filling graveyards proves this. Wine of Cardui establishes a painless and natural menstrual flow. When once this important function is started right, a healthy life will usually follow. Many women, young and old, owe their lives to Wine of Cardui. There is nothing like it to give women freedom from pain and to fit young women for every duty of life. $1.00 bottles at druggists.

Miss Della M. Strayer, Tully, Kan.: "I have suffered untold pain at menstrual periods for a long time, was nervous, had no appetite, and lost interest in everything, in fact was miserable. I have taken four bottles of Wine of Cardui, with Thedford's Black-Draught, when needed, and to-day I am entirely cured. I cannot express the thanks I feel for what you have done for me."

GOOD FARM FOR SALE.
Desiring to retire from farming I offer for sale my farm of 62 acres, near Florence, this county, and known as the Allen Conner farm. About one-half of this land was never plowed, and the entire track is very fertile and under splendid fence. The dwelling of seven rooms is in excellent repair throughout. All necessary outbuildings in good order. There is abundance of good stock water in the dryest seasons. It has an orchard of 3 acres. Terms made known on application. This is one of the best farms in the county, and is well located.

ONE thing is very noticeable in the speeches of those ex-Democratic officeholds, who, in the last few years, have joined the Republican party, and have taken the stump in its behalf, and that is the total absence of criticism of any act of the party before or during the time it was honoring them with office. There is nothing too bad for them to charge the party with; their abuse running in torrents, as it were, back to the time they held office by virtue of Democratic votes, and there it stops abruptly. From this fact it is to be inferred that thise gentlemen entertain the belef that when they left the party they took with them all the honesty and respectability that the organization contained—in other words they were the whole thing, and without their mighty wisdom to shape party policies, the party has drifted into the whirlpool of dishonor. The Deomcratic party, in the mind of these gentlemen, was the party so long as it could boast of their august presence as members and officeholders.

ONE set of scientists have incontrovertibly established the fact that malaria is solely communicated by mosquito bites and now another set of scientists are trying to demonstrate that mosquitos acquire the malaria they spread, wholly from biting men who are poisoned with it. Pretty soon this issue will become parallel to the famous question as to which existed first, the hen or the egg?

THOSE who have been assigning the Goebel election law as their only reason for not supporting Mr. Beckham, the Democratic nominee for Governor, are now without any excuse for not returning to the Democratic fold in truth and in spirit. The law repealing the Goebel law was signed promptly by Gov. Beckham upon its passage by the Legislature.

THE professional politician will soon be out of a job again. For the good of the country there are two many of that class of professionals, and it would be well if a great many of those who devote their time to saving the country, would, after the sixth of November, go out of the business entirely.

THE next thing that Germany will do to us will probably be to announce that our coal has been discovered to be the abiding place of a noxious gas that causes death when breathed to the exclusion of air. Consequently, she will prohibit its importation in competition with German miners.

A BET proves that the man who makes it is either a fool or has money that he can afford to risk, but it proves nothing else. The average working man has nothing of the sort and the millionaire can bet him to a standstill whenever he likes. This may exist in certain phases of the campaign.

THE silent vote this fall will be larger than for years past. Hundreds upon hundreds of voters are still hanging in the balance between conflicting impulses and whichever way they vote, the election will fall. It is folly for anyone to claim that there is any certainty about it.

THE indications are that next Monday will bring a large crowd to town. Two good speeches, one before and one afternoon, will bring the Democrats to town by the hundreds.

THE RECORDER hopes to be able to tell its readers next week who is elected in the State and nation

X

DEMOCRATIC PARTY.

This is the way to vote the Straight Democratic Ticket.

THIS is the week for the great political round-up.

THE boodle is now being placed where it will do most good next Tuesday.

EVERY Democrat should go to the polls next Tuesday and vote for Bryan, Beckham and Gooch.

S. W. TOLIN made a good speech to an enthusiastic audience at the Court House, last night.

THE issues involved in the State campaign are of more importance to Kentuckians than are the national issues.

THE officers of the election should be very careful to comply with the election law in every particular next Tuesday.

THE polls will open at 6 o'clock a. m. and close at 4 o'clock p. m., giving one hour's more time in which to vote. It is well to vote early.

THE first thing for the officers of election to do after the polls are closed is to tear from the ballot book all the unused ballots, and burn them.

COL. BERRY made two strong Democratic speeches in this county, last week—one at Rabbit Hash and the other at Petersburg. The Colonel is making himself mighty solid with his party.

C. J. BRONSTON, of Lexington, has got back into the band wagon, and is busy making speeches for Bryan and Beckam. He was a Brown man last year, but he says there is no reason why every one in the State, who claims to be a Democrat, should not vote for Beckam for Governor.

THE entire new election law will be found on an inside page. It must be borne in mind that that law was not passed by the Legislature in time for next Tuesday's election to be held under it. The election next Tuesday will be held under the amendment, the most important sections of which are printed on this page.

MR. HANNA says "there are no trusts"; but Senator N. B. Scott, of West Virginia, one of Mr. Hanna's most trusted lieutenants, says: "I believe in trusts—they are a good thing." Scott believes exactly as Senator Hanna and other Republicans leaders believe, and if you do not believe as they do—that trusts are a good thing—you ought to vote the Democratic ticket, next Tuesday.

THE Republicans are very uneasy for fear another Burchard has come to the front in their party. At the Roosevelt dinner in New York, the other day, N. B. Scott, who is one of Mr. Hanna's right-hand men, made a very frank statement endorsing trusts. As soon as the statement was made, those present at the dinner realized that it was another case of Burchard, and made strenuous efforts to suppress the publication of the incident, Mr. Scott even threatening the representative of a news association who was present.

Senator Wellington, of Maryland, says Bryan will carry every State South of the Mason and Dixon's line, including Delaware and Maryland, with the possible exception of West Virginia, which he does not concede to McKinley by any means. He also thinks Bryan will carry New York by a majority, with good chances for Indiana, Michigan, Illinois and Ohio.

The following from the amendment to the election law is of vital importance to the officers who will hold the election, and should be thoroughly understood by them:

Sec. 10. As soon as the polls are closed on the day of election, and without adjournment or separation of the officers, they shall, in the voting room, open the ballot box and immediately count the ballots and make a tally sheet of the count. When the results of the ballot is ascertained it shall be immediately announced by one of the judges in front of the room. All the ballots which have been counted, and over which there is no question of regularity, shall consecutively be placed on a string, to be furnished by the County Clerk, as near as possible in the middle of the ballot, and when the count is completed the ballots so strung shall be wrapped twice around each way with the string upon which the ballots are strung, and tied in a hard bow knot, and the knot shall then be sealed with sealing wax and stamped with the county election seal by the judges of the election, in the presence of the clerk and sheriff, while the wax is hot, so that the impression of the county election seal can be plainly read. Provided: That if there are any ballots cast and counted or left uncounted, concerning the legality or regularity of which there is any doubt or difference of opinion in the minds of the judges of election, said ballots shall be placed in the large linen envelope furnished by the County Clerk for that purpose, and sealed up, and across the seal thereof the officers of the election shall plainly write their names, and at the point of the seal indicated for that purpose the judges of the election shall, in the presence of the clerk and sheriff, place the county election seal in hot wax, as above described, so that it can plainly be read, and the same shall be returned to the Clerk of the County Court with the returns of the election, for such judicial or other investigation as may be necessary, with a true statement as to whether they have or have not been counted, and if counted what part and for whom. The tally sheet shall be placed in the linen envelope furnished for that purpose and sealed up separately, and across the seal thereof the judges of election shall plainly write their names, and at the point of the seal indicated for that purpose the judges of the election shall, in the presence of the clerk and sheriff, place with wax, as above required, the county election seal. After the certificates have been prepared and signed, and delivered as required by law, by the officers the election, then the ballots that have been counted and tied and sealed as above required (and none other), together with the tally sheet, after it has been stamped and sealed, as above required, shall all be placed in the large adjustable linen envelope prepared and furnished for that purpose, then the said envelope shall be sealed, and across the seal thereof the officers of election shall each write their names in a plain and legible hand, and the judges shall, in the presence of the clerk and sheriff, at the point of the seal on said envelope indicated for that purpose, place the county election seal in hot wax, as above described, so that it can be plainly read, and the envelopes so sealed shall then be placed in the ballot box and securely locked with the two locks hereinbefore required to be furnished and the key to said ballot box, and the county seal shall then be placed in the possession of the judge of the opposite political faith to that of the sheriff of election, and the sheriff of election shall then take possession of said ballot box, containing the ballots and tally sheet, and also take possession of the stub books containing the certificates of election and the envelopes containing the spoiled and mutilated and uncounted and questioned ballots. And the judge of election holding the keys to the ballot box and county election seal shall go with and accompany the sheriff of election, within two days thereafter, for which he shall receive the same compensation as the sheriff of election now receives by the law for delivering the poll books and election returns to the County Clerk's office, and shall, in the presence of each other, deliver to the County Clerk the ballot box and the poll books, certificates and the envelope containing the spoiled, mutilated and questioned ballots, and the keys to the ballot box, together with the county election seal, and the County Clerk shall then and there, in the presence of the said sheriff and judge, unlock the ballot box and ascertain if the packages containing the ballots and tally sheets is properly sealed, according to the requirements herein, and if it is he shall then issue his receipt in duplicate for said ballot box and ballots one to the sheriff and one to the judge, which shall be in form as follows, or as near as can be, to conform to the fact:

Received of .....,sheriff of election for .....precinct, the ballot box, and of .....judge of the election of said precinct, the keys to said ballot box and the county election seal for said precinct. I hereby certify that I find upon examination, in the presence of said officers, that the package in said box is properly sealed and stamped, according to law; that I have replaced said package in said ballot box and relocked the same, and delivered to each of them a key to said ballot-box, and to the judge of the election the county seal of election, and taken their receipt for same.

The clerk, after having satisfied himself as to the condition of said ballots, shall again replace said ballots in the ballot box and relock said box in the presence of the judge and sheriff, and then and there deliver to each of them a key to said box, and the seal of election to the judge who gave it to him, and take their receipt therefor. The form of receipt shall be, as near as can be to conform with the facts, as follows:

Received of .....Clerk of.... County Court, one key each to the ballot box that has been delivered to him this day by ..... sheriff in..... precinct,..... county, Kentucky, after having first seen him unlock said ballot box and examine the package therein, and finding it to be sealed and stamped according to law, and that we saw him replace the same, and.....judge of election, hereby acknowledges receipt of the county election seal for his precinct this.....day of ....., 1900.

.....,
Judge of.....Precinct.

.....,
Sheriff of.....Precinct.

The judge and sheriff shall retain said keys for the period of six months, at which time, if there has not been a contest filed, then they shall deliver said keys to the County Court Clerk, together with the county election seal, and it shall be his duty to destroy said ballots: Provided however, if there be a contest filed then the judge and sheriff of the different precincts, who hold the keys to the ballot-box of their respective precincts, shall upon notice of the filing of the contest, deliver the keys to the Judge of the court having jurisdiction to try the contest, and the officer so holding the county election seal shall then deliver the same to the County Court Clerk.

Sec. 11. At the close of the polls, and before the ballot-box is open, the officers of election shall count the remaining ballots that have not been used and tear them from the books and destroy them by burning, and in their certificate of the result of the election they shall certify how many ballots were not used and destoyed.

Sec. 12. Any officer of the election who shall knowingly and wilfully give or certify to an improper certificate of the election as herein required, or shall mutilate or tamper with any of the seals, or destroy or remove any of the ballots required to be preserved herein, shall be guilty of felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be confined in the penitentiary for a period of not less than one nor morethan three years.

Bismark's Iron Nerve

Was the result of his splendid health. Indomitable will and tremendous energy are not found where Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bowels are out of order. FOLLOWING is an extract from a speech made by Col. William O. Bradley at the Lexington Chautauqua in 1898. Since that time he has reversed his position, completyl, on the subjects he then discussed. At that time he was applauded by Republicans for the abilitywith which hehandled these questions, and they are now applauding the speeches he is making on the other side ot these questions as loud and as long as they did those he made in 1898. Bradley's speech in 1898 is a very complete answer to those he is making now on the same subjects:

"We should not, in the midst of our triumphs, however significant, be overcome with the glamor of conquest or an inordinate desire for the acquisition of territory. Monarchies and empires may and will engage in war to bring other countries into subjugation, in order to fill their coffers and add to their territory. These are but the natural outgrowth of their antecedents and teachings. A republic, founded on the bedrock of liberty, with the declaration that "all men are born free and equal," and that "governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed," can not engage in the conquest of other lands.

"The acquisition of foreign territory means the formation of standing armies in every country so acquired, and the building of a navy that will hold them in subjugation. It means taxation, a strongly centralized government and the opportunity, yea, the probability of measuring arms with the combined nations of the world. It means troublesome entanglements and complications. In short, it means turning of a peace loving people, who should be satisfied with their immense power and possessions, into an aggressive and war waging people.

"All this talk about 'manifest destiny,' while it may be pleasing to the ear of aggrandizement, and the demon of avarice, is the same that inspired the rulers of the Roman Empire, and that has marked the history of Spain. One of their countries has sunk into oblivion—the magnificent temples inhabited by bats and owls; the other step by step, has grown weaker, until although once the mightiest in the world has lost nearly all of its possessions and is now struggling to save the small remnant that remains. Sooner or later this must be the fate of all nations that live by the sword. The acquisition of one piece of territory begets a desire for another, and in the end, an effort to take by force that which justly belongs to others, will lead to the loss of all we have.

"During its existence this government has opposed the extension of foreign territory in this hemisphere. Time and again that doctrine has been enforced, and while we have so long applied and practiced this doctrine; it appears glaringly inconsistent that we should now insist on acquiring territory abroad. We would not be unlike the father who punished his son for gambling and then sat down and played his hand out.

"Let each one of us cultivate the soil from which springs the tree of liberty, with blood and tears if need be, but always with patriotic industry until its generous branches may extend so that the oppressed of every land may rest beneath its shade and feel and know that "the stars shall float over their heads." Let our flag be respected in every land, on every sea. Let the busy marts of trade and commerce swarm with liberty loving people who know that "Peace has no victories,

No less renowned than war."

"Let us remember the patriotic words of the father of our country as they come echoing down the corridors of time and nor forget that this is a republic 'of the people,' courting no strife, but avoiding no conflict when honor is assailed, and America will continue to grow in power and wealth, in influence and grandeur until from the great height it has won, her people may look down upon the other nations of the world, free from their strife, free from their entanglements—not the American republic."

If the earth's surface were level the water of the oceans would cover it to a depth of 600 feet.

The Administrationists have been on the defensive during the campaign. Or, rather, they have been engaged in dodging the real issues. This has, of course, been very trying to the Republican managers and spellbinders, and of late several experiments have been made.

Senator Beveridge, of Indiana was sent out to see how the people would stand an almost open repudiation of the guarantee of freedom and independence to the people of Cuba. One of the salient points of the declaration of war against Spain was the solemn promise that the United States would not enter upon conquest or absorption of the island. Mr. Beveridge was free to say, though, that it was a mistake to make such a promise, and insinuated that the annexation of Cuba to the United States was a part of manifest destiny.

Secretary Root of the War Department, in a recent speech at Canton, tried justification of the war in the Philippines, but only succeeded in demonstrating afresh the imperial wickedness of the Admin istration, of which he is a part.

Senator Scott, of west Virginia, appears to have become restive under restraint, and at a dinner in New York one night last week broke out in open advocacy and defense of the trusts, especially the Standard Oil Trust. This last performance was more than was officially authorized, and the Administration magnates who were present nearly wrenched Mr. Scott's shoulders out of joint in getting him into his seat. Since then he has been making fantastic explanations that the talk about trusts was a private dinner conversation and not a speech.

The evidence on the subject, however, is specific, and Mr. Scott's explanation is not accepted. He is already known as The Burchard of the campaign of 1900. The Burchards come about once in sixteen years, and are irrepressible. They do their deadly work late in the campaign. There have been lessons enough now to teach politicians not to take chances when the canvass is closing. The unbridled Burchard Scott has made sad havoc, and Mr. Hanna, who next to his spellbinding, prides himself on his acuteness as a managing politician, will hang his head in shame for having allowed Scott to perform at all.—Enquirer.

It Happened in a Drug Store.

"One day last winter a lady came to my drug store and asked for a brand of cough medicine that I did not have in stock," says Mr. C. R. Grandin, the popular druggist of Ontario, N. Y. "She was disappointed and wanted to know what cough preparation I could recommend. I said to her that I could freely recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and that she could take a bottle of the remedy and after giving it a fair trial if she did not find it worth the money to bring back the bottle and I would refund the price paid. In the course of a day or two the lady came back in company with a friend in need of a cough medicine and advised her to buy a bottle of Chaimberlain's Cough Remedy. I consider that a very good recommendation for the remedy. It is for sale by McKim, Burlington, C. S. Balsly, Bullittsville, O. N. Grant, Bellevue, Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg.

The changes in the ballots this year, according to the instruction accompaning, the Democratic device is placed at the left of the ballot, and is stated as "A gamecock in the act of crowing." The order of the others is as follows: "Next, the device of the Republican party, 'A Log Cabin;' next the device of the People's Party, "The Plow and Hammer;' next the device of the Prohibition party, a 'Phoenix;' next the device of the Socialist Labor ticket, 'An Arm and Hammer;' next the device of the Social Democratic party, 'An arm holding aloft a torch."

The principal difference in the appearance of the new ballot is that instead of the square around the device in which the ballot was formerly stamped there is an inch-diameter circle under the device. Under each of the six devices are printed the names of the candidates for Presidential electors and the names of the candidates for Governor.

There are no trusts, says Mark Hanna, yet Mark Hanna is compelled to rise at all hours of the night and beat a kettle drum for the purpose of driving the trust bogey man off the premises.

THE ELECTION LAW

Full Text of Bill Recently Passed by the Kentucky Legislature.

It Is Thought It Will Satisfy the Whole People, and Is Believed to Be as Just as Any in the Union.

The new election law passed by the house and senate October 21 is in full as follows:

An act to amend an act, entitled "An Act to Further Regulate Elections," which became a law March 11, 1898, the objections of the governor to the contrary notwithsanding.

Be it enacted by the general assembly of the commonwealth of Kentucky: Section 1. That the act entitled "An Act to Further Regulate Elections," which became a law March 11, 1898, the objections of the governor to the contrary notwithstanding, be amended so as to read as follows: A state board of election commissioners is hereby created, which shall consist of two commissioners, who shall hold their office for the term of one year and until their successors are appointed and qualified. They shall be citizens and electors of Kentucky, and not less than 25 years old. They shall be appointed by the governor of the state from names designated in writing, if any are so designated by each of the state ceatral committees of the two political parties that polled the largest vote at the last preceding election for state officer or presidential electors; one commissioner to be appointed from each of the two said parties. Said appointment of the governor shall be made annually in the month of July. Said commissioners shall qualify by taking before the clerk of the court of appeals an oath faithfully to perform their duties according to law. Of such qualification said clerk shall make a certificate which shall be noted on the record of the proceedings of said board and preserved among its records. The clerk of the court of appeals, by virtue of his office, shall be a member of said board, and preside at its meetings; and in case of disagreement between the other members of said board, acting as umpire, he shall be permitted to vote. The board shall appoint a secretary who shall hold office during the pleasure of the board; and the board shall prescribe the duties of the secretary and fix his compensation, which shall not exceed $250 per annum. The board shall keep a record of its acts, orders and findings and all its proceedings. A majority of said board, consisting of the two members appointed by the governor, or one of said appointive members and the clerk of the court of appeals shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of all the business of the board, and a majority of said board may make any order to do any act the board is authorized or empowered to do. The secretary of said board shall mail written notice of the time and place of meeting to each member of said board before any meeting thereof for the transaction of business shall be held, and any action of said board at any meeting thereof held without such notice having been given shall be null and void. If a vacancy should occur in said board it shall be filled by the governor in the same manner as hereinbefore provided for appointment of said board, and the member so appointed shall be of the same political party as his predecessor. Resignations from said board shall be in writing, directed to the state board and filed with the secretary of state.

Duties of County Board.

Sec. 2. A county board of election commissioners is hereby created, which shall consist of two commissioners, who shall hold their office for one year and until their successors are appointed and qualified. They shall be citizens and electors of the county from which they are appointed, and not less than 25 years old. They shall be appointed by the state board of election commissioners.

The two members of said county board of commissioners shall be appointed, one each from five names designated in writing, if any are so designated, by each of the county executive committees of the two political parties that polled the largest number of votes in the state at the last preceding election for state officers or presidential electors, one of said two commissioners to be appointed from each of the two said parties: Provided, if there will be two or more contending executive committees of the same party in the county, then that county executive committee which is recognized by the state central committee, by written certificate of the chairman thereof, shall be recognized by the state commission in making their appointments. The sheriff of the county shall preside at its meetings, and in case of disagreement between the other members of said board, acting as umpire, he shall be permitted to vote. Said appointment by the state board shall be made annually in the month of August. Said county commissioners shall qualify by taking before the clerk of the county court an oath faithfully to perform their duties according to law. Said clerk shall make a certificate thereof, which shall be filed in his office. The board shall choose one of its members secretary, who shall keep a record of its proceedings, which shall be a public record and kept in the office of the county court clerk. A majority of said board, consisting of the two members appointed as aforesaid from said two political parties, or one of said two members and the sheriff of the county, shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of the business of the board. A majority of said board shall make any order or do any act the board is authorized or empowered to do. If a vacancy shall occur in the board it shall be filled by appointment by the state board from names already designated to the state board as hereinbefore provided; and the member so appointed shall be of the same political party as his predecessor. In counties where there is no sheriff, or where for cause the sheriff can not act, the circuit court clerk shall act in his stead. Resignations from said board shall be in writing, directed to the state board and filed with the secretary thereof. Due notice in writing of every meeting of said board shall be given to each member thereof.

Appointment of Precinct Officers.

Sec. 3. Said county board shall, annually, not later than September 20, appoint for each precinct in the county, two judges, one clerk and one sheriff of election, to act as such in their precincts; all of whom shall be discreet qualified voters of the precinct for which they are appointed, and shall hold their offices for one year and until their successors are appointed and qualified. The county executive committees of the two political parties having representation on the state board and county boards of election commissioners may, annually, on or before the 15th of September, designate in writing for each precinct a list of not less than eight names to the county board of election commissioners: Provided, if in any precinct there be not as many as eight electors possessing the qualifications of an election officer belonging to the political party filing said list of names then a less number may be designated. And from these names, if any are so designated, the officers of election shall be selected from said lists as follows: One judge at each voting place shall be selecter from each of said lists, and in like manner the sheriff shall be chosen from one of said lists and the clerk from the other. If no lists are submitted to the said county board, then the officers of election shall be so selected and appointed as that one of the judges at each place of voting shall be of one political party and the other judge of a different political party, and there shall be a like difference at each voting place between the sheriff and clerk of election. No person shall be eligible as an officer of election who has not resided in the precinct for twelve months next preceding the day of election or who has committed homicide or who has been convicted of a felony or is under indictment therefor, or who is not sober, temperate, discreet and of good demeanor, or who has anything of value wagered on the result of said election, or who is a candidate to be voted for at such election, and who is not capable of reading the constitution of the commonwealth in English and of writing a plain and legible hand. It shall be the duty of said county board of election commissioners to determine the qualification of all election officers before appointment. The county board of election commissioners shall have the power to remove all election officers who are disqualified under the provisions of this act, but no such removal shall be made within five days of the election; nor shall any such removal be made at any time without cause, and the grounds therefor shall be reduced to writing by said board and made a part of its records. If a vacancy shall occur, by removal or otherwise, it shall be filed by the county board of election commissioners from the list already submitted, if any, from which the officer was selected, and in conformity with the provisions of this act. The county board of election commissioners shall give due notice of said appointment of election officers to the sheriff of the county, who shall, before the day of the next ensuing election and within ten days next after said appointments, give each officer of election written notice of his appointment. If there be two or more contending executive committees of the same party in the county, then that county executive committee which is recognized by the state central committee, by the written certificate of the chairman thereof, shall be recognized by the county board in making the appointment of election officers.

In the Event of Failure.

Sec. 4. Should the county board of election commissioners fail to appoint such officers of election, or if any of such officers fail to attend for 30 minutes after the time for commencing the election, or refuse to act, the officer in attendance representing the same political party of the absentee shall appoint a suitable person to act in his stead for that election; or if both representatives of the same political party are absent, qualified voters present affiliating with the party of said two absentees shall elect, viva voci, suitable persons to act in their stead. Each officer of election shall, before entering upon the duties of his office, take an oath faithfully to discharge his duties as such an officer before some person authorized to administer an oath, or if no such officer be present it may be administered by the clerk of the election, who shall in turn be sworn by one of the judges of electon.

The Canvass of Returns.

Sec. 5. Said county board of election commissioners shall constitute a board for examining and canvassing the election returns of each county and awarding and issuing certificates of election. Any two of the members of said board may constitute the board, but if either be a candidate he shall have no voice in the decision of his own case. If from any cause two of the members of the board can not act, in whole or in part, in examining or canvassing the returns their places shall be supplied as in case of vacancies in such board. Within two days next after an election the sheriff shall deposit with the clerk of the county court the returns from the different precincts. On the next day the said county board of election commissioners shall meet in the county clerk's office between 10 and 12 o'clock in the morning, open and canvass the returns of such election and give triplicate or more written certificates of election, over their signatures, of those who have received the highest number of votes for any office exclusively within the gift of the voters of the county, one copy of the certificate to be retained in the clerk's office, another to be delivered to each of the persons elected and the other forwarded by the county clerk to the secretary of state at the seat of government. For offices not within [illegible] give duplicate or more written certificates, over their signatures, of the number of votes given in the county, city, town, district or precinct at which the votes were given, one copy to be retained in the clerk's office, one delivered to the sheriff, and one, in case of municipal or district election, to the common council of said municipality or governing authority of such district. The pollbooks and "questioned ballots" shall thereafter remain in the clerk's office as parts of the records. So, also, shall the certificates of any precinct judges which may have been used in the absence of the pollbooks of that precinct.

Sec. 6. Where two or more counties vote together in the choice of a representative or senator the canvassing board of election of the respective counties shall make duplicate written certificates, over their signatures, of the number of votes given in the counties for such representative or senator, one copy to be retained at the clerk's office of such county, and the other to be sent immediately by mail to the canvassing board of the county shall, between 10 and 12 o'clock in the morning of the second Monday after the election, meet in the clerk's office of there county, compare the certificates of the canvassing boards of the several counties, and therefrom give triplicate certificates of election, in writing, over their signatures, of the persons who appear to have received the largest number of votes, one copy of the certificate to be retained in the clerk's office, another delivered to the person elected, and the other forwarded to the secretary of state at the seat of government.

Sec. 7. The certificates of election of a county officer shall be in substance in the following form: "Commonwealth of Kentucky, set. We, A, B and C, duly authorized to canvass the returns of the county of ——, do certify that at an election held in said county, on the —— day of ——, E F was duly elected to fill the office of ——." The certificate of election of a justice of the peace or constable shall be altered to show that the election was held in a named district.

Method of Contest.

Sec. 8. When the election of a governor or lieutenant-governor is contested a board for determining the contest shall be formed in the manner following: First—On the third day after the organization of the general assembly which meets next after the election the senate shall select, by lot, three of its members, and the house of representatives shall select, by lot, eight of its members, and the 11 so selected shall constitute a board, seven of whom shall have power to act. Second—In making the selection, by lot, the name of each member present shall be written on a separate piece of paper, every such piece being as nearly similar to the other as may be. Each piece shall be rolled up, so that the names thereon can not be seen, nor any particular piece ascertained or selected by feeling. The whole, so prepared, shall be placed by the clerk in a box on his table, and after it has been well shaken, and the papers therein well intermixed, the clerk shall draw out one paper, which shall be opened and read aloud by the presiding officer, and so on until the required number is obtained. The persons whose names are so drawn shall be members of the board. Third—The members of the board so chosen by the two houses shall be sworn by the speaker of the house of representatives to try the contested election, and give true judgment thereon according to the evidence unless dissolved before rendering judgment. Fourth—The board shall, within 24 hours after its selection, meet, appoint its chairman, and assign a day for hearing the contest and adjourn from day to day as its business may require. Fifth—If any person so elected shall swear that he can not, without great personal inconvenience, serve on the board, or that he feels an undue bias for or against either of the parties, he may be excused by the house from which he was chosen from serving on the board; and if it appears that a person so selected is relaied to either party, or is liable to any other proper objection on the score of his partiality, he shall be excused. Sixth—Any deficiency in the proper number so created shall be supplied by another draw from the box. Seventh—The board shall have the power to send for persons, papers and records, to issue attachments therefor signed by its chairman or clerk and issue commissions for taking proof. Eighth—Where it shall appear that candidates receiving the highest number of votes given have received an equal number the right to the office shall be determined by lot, under the direction of the board. Where the person returned is found not to have been legally qualified to receive the office at the time of his election a new election shall be ordered to fill the vacancy: Provided, that the first two years of his term shall not have expired. When another than the person returned shall be found to have received the highest number of legal votes given, such other shall be adjudged to be the person elected and entitled to the office. Ninth—No decision shall be made but by the vote of six members. The decision of the board shall not be final nor conclusive. Such decision shall be reported to the two houses of the general assembly in joint session for the further action of the general assembly over, which the speaker of the house shall preside, and the general assembly shall then determine such contest. Tenth—If a new election is required, it shall be immediately ordered by proclamation of the speaker of the house of representatives, to take place within six weeks thereafter, and on a day not sooner than 30 days thereafter. Eleventh—When a new election is ordered or the incumbent is adjudged not to be entitled to the office, his power shall immediately cease, and if the office is not adjudged to another, it shall be deemed to be vacant. Twelfth—If any member of the board willfully fails to attend its sessions he shall be reported to the house to which he belongs, and thereupon such house shall, in its discretion, punish him by fine or imprisonment, or both. Thirteenth—If no decision of the board is given during the then session of the general assembly, it shall be dissolved, unless by joint resolution of the two houses it is empowered to continue longer.

Sec. 9. After an election for presidential electors, representatives in congress or for any state or district officer other than a member of the general assembly, or for or upon questions or constitutional amendments submitted to the vote of the people, it shall be the duty of the board of canvassers of returns for each county, immediately after examination of such returns, to make out two or more certificates in writing, over their signatures, of the number of votes given in the county for each of the candidates for any of said offices and the number of votes for or against any such questions or constitutional amendments. One of the certificates shall be retained in the clerk's office, another the clerk shall send by next mail, under cover, to the secretary of state at the seat of government.

Action By State Board.

Sec. 10. Said state board of election commissioners, or any two of them, in the absence of a member, shall be a board for examining and canvassing the returns of election for any of the offices named in the last preceding section of this act. First, it shall be the duty of said board when the returns are all in, or on the third Monday after the election, whether they are in or not, to make out in the office of the secretary of state, from the returns made, duplicate certificate, in writing, over the signatures, of the election of those having the highest number of votes, one certificate to be retained in the office and the other sent, by mail, to the person elected. If all the returns are not made the right to contest an election will not be impaired. Second, in the case of the election of a representative to congress there shall be three certificates, one to be retained in the office, another sent by mail to the clerk of the house of representatives at the seat of federal government, and another sent by mail to the person elected. Third, it shall be the duty of the secretary of state, immediately after the comparison of the returns to cause a statement therefrom of the votes given in every county for each candidate to be published in two newspapers. Fourth, if two or more persons shall be found to receive the highest number and equal number of votes for the same office, so that the election can not be determined by a plurality of votes, it shall be determined by lot in such manner as the board may direct, and in the presence of not less than three other persons. Fifth, if one or more of the persons voted for as electors for president is elected, then he or they, when convened to vote for president, shall determine which of the candidates having an equal number of votes shall be deemed to be elected without casting any lot therefor. But if none is elected, then the board shall determine the election, by lot, between those having the highest and equal number of votes, except that they shall be arranged and drawn for in classes, according to their known pledges to vote for the different candidates, so that the whole vote of the state shall be givin to the same person

Sec. 11. Where the canvassing board of two or more counties on comparison of the returns, or the board of canvassers for a county, find that two or more have received the highest and equal number of votes for the same office, they shall, by lot, determine which of the candidates is elected.

Contests for Minor Offices.

Sec. 12. In case there shall be a contest of the election of the secretary of state, auditor, treasurer, attorney general, superintendent of public instruction, commissioner of agriculture, or other state officer, or in case there shall be a contest of the election of a judge or a clerk of the court of appeals, circuit judge, commonwealth's attorney or railroad commissioner, or of any officer elected by the voters of a county or any district therein, excepting members of the general assembly, or of any police judge, clerk, marshal or other elective municipal officer, where there is no provision by law for determining the contested election of such municipal officer, the contest shall be made by the filing of a petition in the circuit court of the county where the contestee resides, except where the officer is one elective by the voters of the whole state in which event the petition shall be filed in the Franklin circuit court. Such petition shall be filed and process issued in the case of an officer elective by the voters of the whole state or any district comprising more than one county, within 30 days after the final action of the board of canvassers, and in case of any other office, within 10 days after such action; and shall state the grounds of the contest relied on, and no other grounds shall afterwards be relied on.

Within 20 days after the service of summons upon him the contestee shall file his answer, which may consist of a denial of the averments of the petition and may also set up grounds of contest against the contestant, and if the grounds are so set up they shall be especially pointed out and none other shall thereafterward be relied on by said party. A reply may be filed within 10 days after the answer or answers filed, but its affirmative allegations shall be treated as controverted, and no subsequent pleading allowed, and the action shall proceed as an equity action.

The evidence in chief for the contestant shall be completed within 30 days after the issues are made up and the evidence of the contestee completed within 20 days thereafter, and the evidence for contestant in rebuttal in 15 days after the contestee has concluded. The action shall have precedence on the trial docket over all other cases. All ballots, pollbooks, stubs or other papers concerning which there is any ground for the contest may be removed to the court in which the action is pending. Either party may appeal from the judgment of the circuit court to the court of appeals by giving bond to the clerk of the circuit court, with good surety, conditioned for the payment of all costs and damages that the other party may sustain by reason of the appeal and by filing the record in the clerk's office of the court of appeals, within 20 days after final judgment in the circuit court. And in the court of appeals the case shall be heard and determined as speedily as possible, and shall have precedence over all other cases.

In case it shall appear from an inspection of the whole record that there has been such fraud, intimidation, bribery or violence in the conduct of the election that neither the contestant nor contestee can be adjudged to have been fairly elected the circuit court, subject to revision by appeal, or the court of appeals finally, may adjudge that there has been no election. In such event the same legal effect as if the person elected had refused to qualify.

In the production of a copy of the final judgment, the successful party shall be permitted to qualify or be commissioned or a writ of new election shall be issued as the judgment may require. The unsuccessful party shall pay all costs in both courts.

As to Salaries.

Sec. 13. Said state board of election commissioners shall hold its sessions at the seat of government at Frankfort, where a suitable room for them shall be provided in some of the state buildings. The members of the board shall be paid for all their services under this act five dollars per day while so in session: Provided, that no member of said board shall be paid more than one hundred dollars for his services in any year. Said board shall provide itself with necessary books, material and postage to enable it to perform the duties which it is charged by this act. The chairman of said board shall certify to the auditor of public accounts the money so expended by said board, and the sums that the members of said board and its secretary are entitled to be paid, under this act, and thereupon the auditor shall draw his warrant upon the treasurer for the sum so specified, to the end that the same may be paid out of the treasury.

Sec. 14. The county board of election commissioners shall be paid for all services they may render under this act two dollars per day while actually in session; but no member of such board shall be paid more than twenty dollars for his services during any year. Said board may provide itself with necessary books and stationery to enable it to perform its duties under this act. The amount of such expenditure and the number of days the members of said board were actually in session shall be certified by the chairman of the board to the fiscal court of the county, and paid out of the county funds.

Penalties for Violations.

Sec. 15. If any member of either the state board or the county boards of election commissioners herein provided for shall willfully and knowingly violate any of the provisions of this act, or fail to execute faithfully any of the duties imposed upon said members under the provisions of this act, he shall be fined not less than one hundred nor more than one thousand dollars, and imprisoned in the county jail not exceeding sixty days.

Sec. 16. Any person or persons who shall, by threats of violence, or in any other manner, intimidate, or attempt to intimidate, the election officers, or the county or state canvassing boards, as herein named, in the performance of their duty, or shall conspire together and go forth armed for the purpose of intimidating said officers, shall be guilty of a felony, and, on conviction, be confined in the state penitentiary for not less than one year or more than five years.

Sec. 17. All acts or parts of acts in conflict with this act are, to the extent of such conflict, repealed.

NONPARTISAN AMENDMENTS.

The Law Passed October 15 Contains Five Important Changes in the Goebel Law.

House bill 19, which embraces the nonpartisan amendments of the present election law, was signed by Gov. Beckham and is now a law.

Besides throwing a number of safeguards around the present law to prevent violations of it the new law has five important amendments in its provisions. These are:

The furnishing of paper of 60 pounds weight by the secretary of state to the county clerks of the state, which the clerks are to use in the ballots furnished by them to the preginct election officers, and providing a penalty of $500 and six months imprisonment in the county jail for failure of the clerk to use the paper furnished him.

The preservation of both voted and spoiled ballots by the county clerks for a period of six months after the election, or in case of a contest until the same is settled. The ballots are to be bundled up by the election officers after they have been counted, and the county election seal placed upon the package.

The placing of a circle under the devices on the ballot instead of the square heretofore used.

Making it a felony for a county clerk to fail to place the name of the regular nominee of a party under the device of of that party on the ballot, and fixing his punishment at confinement for three years in the state penitentiary.

Requiring a person whose right to vote has been challenged to make an affidavit that he is entitled to vote. If a resident of the precinct makes a counter affidavit the person shall not be allowed to vote, and in either case the affidavit shall be laid before the grand jury of the county at the first term of court following the election.

Secretary of State Hill has notified the county clerks and has made arrangements to furnish paper for the ballots for the coming election, as required by the new law.

RIOT IN A RESTAURANT.

Drunken Negroes Attempt to Kill a White Man and His Young Son at Hyndman, Pa.

Hyndman, Pa., Oct. 24.—A riot occurred here Tuesday afternoon in a restaurant near the Baltimore & Ohio depot conducted by Willis Caves a Negro. Adam Shroyer, a white man, who was sitting at one of the tables, cheered lustily for Bryan and angered some Negroes who were present. Knives and pistols were drawn and an effort made to kill Shroyer and his young son, who was nearby. A score of shots were fired, but no one was hit. A reign of terror exists. The saloons have been closed, and Sheriff Gates, who has been sent for, arrived here Monday night with a posse of deputies. The Negroes employed on the Baltimore & Ohio improvements here were paid off on Monday and have been drunk and disorderly ever since, shooting and rioting in daylight and committing robberies. Monday night G. H. Staub, a Nova Scotian in charge of Ketcham & Co.'s stables, was shot and died soon after. Two Italians were also shot and seriously wounded.

POOR BOX ROBBERY.

Father G. Andre, of Minneapolis Dashed Into the Street and Captured the Thief.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 24.—Father G. Andre, of the Church of Notre Dame les Lourdes, noting that the poor box in the church was being robbed, had it fitted with a burglar alarm. When this rang Tuesday he dashed into the street in pursuit of the robber. The priest finally overtook the thief and handed him over to the police. His name was M. Landry, and he was a cigarmaker of respectable antecedents. About an hour after being locked up Landry was found in his cell dead. He had committed suicide.

Nome City Money Orders.

Washington, Oct. 24.—A letter received at the post office department Tuesday from Nome City, Alaska, shows that up to September 21 the Nome post office sold 5,000 money orders. The money order service had been in operation then about three months.

Drowned In Porto Rico.

San Juan, P. R., Oct. 24.—Mr. Frank Williams, an engineer in the department of public works, was drowned while attempting to cross a river on horseback. The body has not been recovered. Nothing is known here as to his parents or other relatives but it is believed that he came from Brooklyn, N. Y.

STATE NEWS ITEMS.

ONLY TWELVE DAYS.

The Spring Meeting of the Louisville Jockey Club Will Be a Very Short One.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 29.—President Schulte, of the new Louisville jockey club, has announced that the meeting next spring will continue for 12 days, instead of 15, as has been the rule heretofore.

However, from the indications the racing next spring at Churchill Downs will be of a higher class than has been run over this famous course for many years. This statement is based on the fact that during the 12 days' sport the new Louisville jockey club will give away $50,000 in stakes and purses, or more than $4,000 a day, which is more money than any other track in the west offers for the same number of days.

Col. John E. Madden arrived at Churchill Downs Saturday with his Hanover-Correction $20,000 colt and five other colts. These five colts were bought by Mr. Madden at the Morris sale in the east for $65,000. Shortly after the colts were bought ex-Secretary of the Navy W. C. Whitney offered Mr. Madden $80,000 for them, which offer was declined.

These colts, without exception, are the finest bred that have ever been quartered at the Downs.

WORE A NIGHTGOWN.

Miss Mattie Davis Escaped From Her Parents' Home and Eloped With James Garrett.

Owensboro, Ky., Oct. 27.—Miss Mattie Davis, the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Davis, who live about 18 miles below the city, robed only in her nightgown and a quilt ran away with James Garrett, a farm hand in the neighborhood, to Rockport, Ind., where they were married. The signal for her leaving was the firing of a pistol. Miss Davis left her room in her nightgown, wrapped a quilt around her, and left with Garrett. They went to a neighbor's house, where she was furnished clothing, and then resumed the trip to Rockport.

The Controversy Decided.

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 26.—The Covington Gas Co.'s light with the city of Covington and the Suburban Electric Light Co. was passed on by the court of appeals Thursday, one case being reversed and one affirmed. The court of appeals holds that the city had the right to sell its option on the gas company's franchise and plant, but that the Suburban Co. had under its charter no power or right to purchase said option. The court further holds that the gas company can not compel the city to use gas in preference to electric lights.

Dr. Williams' Mistake.

Harrodsburg, Ky., Oct. 29.—It is doubtful whether Dr. John M. Williams, republican nominee for congress against Hon. George Gilbert, in this (the Eighth) district, will get his name on the ballots in this county. He failed to file his certificate of nomination with the county clerk 15 days before the election, as required by law. The clerk has agreed to leave the question with Circuit Judge Snuffey as to whether or not he shall put the republican nominee's name on the ticket.

Caught a Moonshiner.

Somerset, Ky., Oct. 26.—Dump Roy, a notorious moonshiner, who has eluded government detectives for more than 15 years, was arrested by United States Deputy Marshal Coleman, of this city, who met him in the road near Baldrock, Casey county, and, getting the drop on him made the outlaw throw up his hands and lead the way to his still, where the entire apparatus was destroyed, after which the officer brought his prisoner to this place.

Jury Was Dismissed.

Nicholasville, Ky., Oct. 29.—The jury in the Kendall murder case, after being out 24 hours, was finally dismissed. Half were for acquittal and half for from two to 21 years' imprisonment. Milton Kendall and his son William were charged with the murder of Eugene Cassell on January 5 last.

BISHOP MUST HANG.

The Kentucky Court of Appeals Affirmed the Finding of the Circuit Court in the Case.

Covington, Ky., Oct. 27.—Wallace Bishop, scion of a good family, who shot and killed an unknown tramp at Ludlow and then killed Policeman McQuery while defying arrest, on the suspension bridge, must die. He will be executed in the jail yard here, though the execution has not yet been fixed. The appended special gives the finding of the court of appeals in his case:

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 27.—In the court of appeals Friday morning Judge Durelle delivered an opinion affirming the judgment of the Kenton circuit court in the case of Wallace Bishop against the commonwealth. Bishop was sentenced to be hanged for the murder of a policeman who was attempting to arrest him on the charge of killing a tramp at the Ludlow lagoon. After killing the policeman Bishop jumped off the suspension bridge. Gov. Beckham will fix the day of execution.

BURIED THE HATCHET.

Ex-Gov. Bradley and Col. Bennett H. Young Withdraw Statements Made About Each Other.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 26.—Ex-Gov. W. O. Bradley and Col. Bennett H. Young, who, speaking respectively for republican and democratic tickets in Kentucky, have recently had some interesting tilts through the press, as the result of statements made about each other on the stump, Thursday night gave out the following:

"Louisville, Ky., Oct. 25.—At the instance of our friends and on their advice, in order to settle the personal strife between us, each of us has withdrawn everything of a personal character that he has said concerning the other. Bennett H. Young.

"W. O. Bradley."

Accidentally Shot His Son.

Owensboro, Ky., Oct. 26.—Robert Wayne, a farmer near Rome, went into his woods Thursday morning to hunt squirrels. His son, 12 years old, was hunting wild grapes. The boy was in a tree gathering grapes, and Mr. Wayne, seeing the leaves rustle, and thinking he saw a squirrel, fired. The boy fell, and a physician was hastily summoned, who found the boy's legs full of shot. The wounds were dressed and the boy will get well.

Horses in a Wreck.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 29.—In a wreck near Stevenson, Ala., several horses being shipped from Atlanta, Ga., to St. Louis, to be entered in the horse show, were injured, among them the team of J. T. Crenshaw, of this city, World's Wonder and Out of Sight. They were a handsome team, and have taken many prizes. Kentucky Bell, Kentucky Artist and Jane Carter, show mares, were also in the wreck.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 29.—The stern-wheel steamer Falls City caught fire in a state room at 2:55 o'clock Sunday morning and the pilot house, texas and cabin were burned. The loss is $8,000. The boat was insured and will be rebuilt at once. She cost $40,000, belongs to the Kentucky River Packet and Towboat Co. and plies between Louisville and Frankfort. The origin of the fire is not definitely known.

Pulled Onto a Saw.

Williamsburg, Ky., Oct. 29.—Information has just reached here from Plensant View of a fatal accident in the saw mill of Jones Bros., at that place. Joe Bolaud, aged 21, of Elk Valley, Tenn., was employed in the mill, and while approaching a big circular saw with an arm load of slabs one got caught on the teeth and jerked him upon the saw and in a flash he was cut diagonally in two. He died instantly.

Gets Five Years.

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 27.—Federal Judge Evans Friday sentenced ex-Banker J. M. McKnight to serve five years at hard labor for embezzling the funds of the German National bank, of which he was president. On his former trial McKnight got seven years. A writ of error was granted, which takes the case again to the court of appeals at Cincinnati. The prisoner was released on bond.

Predicted His Death.

Muyking, Ky., Oct. 27.—Uncle Henry Mullins, aged 98, a Kentucky pioneer and a remarkable old man, died near Jewell, having predicted that his death would occur on October 24, 1900, six years ago. He lived in the house in which he died for over 70 years, and 22 children were born in it.

MUST STOP LIGHT WASTE.

Treasury Officials Send Out Notice to Employes in Public Buildings.

It is proposed by the treasury officials to economize on the use of gas and electricity in public buildings. It has been discovered that great carelessness exists all over the country in this respect, and the circumstances has led to this order from the secretary of the treasury addressed to the custodians of government buildings:

"The department desires to emphasize the fact that in a number of public buildings under its control there is a considerable waste of gas or electricity, or both, which by the observance of a proper degree of watchfulness on the part of the employes could be avoided. This applies particularly to post office workrooms, and in some instances to the basements of the buildings, where, owing to a lack of interest or willful neglect, lights are permitted to burn when there exists no necessity therefor.

"Officials and employes should be instructed to extinguish the light immediately upon the completion of their work, or when there exists no further necessity for its use, and the names of any officials or employes who, from carelessness or indifference, contribute to the wastage of gas or electricity, should be reported to this office, together with the branch of the service with which they are connected.

"You will please give the matter your personal attention, and from time to time visit the various rooms and corridors in the building, and also request officials of the post office department, where they occupy buildings, to cooperate with you, in order that the consumption of gas or electricity may be reduced to the actual requirements of the official business of the government."

MANY SAVED BY ENGINEER.

Prompt Action Prevents Destruction of a Train Filled with Passengers.

A train from Boston loaded with passengers for Chicago and western points had a hair-raising experience with a runaway freight and for a few moments it was expected that the entire train would be hurled into eternity. A freight train of 45 cars had pulled out of the tunnel six miles from Harpersville, N. Y., and started down a heavy six-mile grade when the brakes failed to hold and the train attained a fearful velocity. The engineer stuck to his post, realizing the danger to the passenger train ahead. He blew the whistle continuously, hoping to give warning before it was too late. The passenger was standing at the Harpersville depot and, hearing the whistling, surmised the cause instantly. It pulled out of the yard, but none too soon, for the freight could be seen approaching at lightning speed.

The trains raced to Nineveh, the freight gaining rapidly. Here an upgrade was struck, which slacked the runaway's speed, and it was brought to a stop 60 feet from the last passenger coach.

Wisconsin Butter and Cheese.

Wisconsin produced 100,000,000 pounds of butter and 64,000,000 pounds of cheese last year. The butter was valued at an average of 20 cents a pound, or $20,000,000, and the cheese at over 12 cents, or $8,000,000.

Valuable Old Jug.

An old jug fetched £135 at a London auction. It was of mottled brown stoneware, and bore the date 1566.

Recommended by a Doctor.

On September 15th, 1900, Mr. C. S. Bahney, Rio Vista Pineapple Plantation, Ankona, Florida, wrote: "I have been using your Lotion for the past two years for pimples or little yellow boils on my face, and it seems to do more good than anything else I can get. I have spent many dollars with Doctors but have not succeeded in getting a permanent cure, and very few have done me any good. Your Lotion was recommended to me by a doctor some two years ago. I have been using it ever since." If your druggist does not keep it send his name to Solon Palmer, 374 Pearl Street, New York, and receive sample of Lotion and Lotion Soap.

A Noted Knight Templar Owes His Health to Peruna.

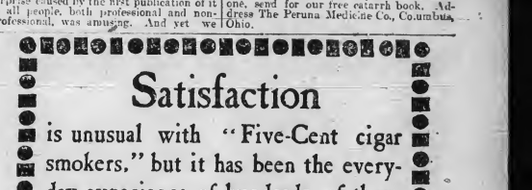
Colonel T. P. Moody, of Chicago, Had Catarrh Twenty-five Years and Was Cured by Peruna.

Colonel T. P. Moody, a prominent Knight Templar, is well known in every city in the United States west of Buffalo, N. Y., as a Jeweler's Auctioneer. In the city of Chicago as a prominent lodge man, being a member of the K. T.'s and also of the Masons.—The cut shows Colonel Moody in the costume of the Oriental Consistory Masons, 32nd degree.

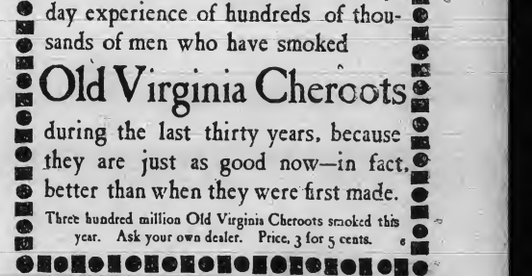
In a recent letter from 5900 Michigan avenue, Chicago, Ill., Mr. Moody says the following:

"For over twenty-five years I suffered from catarrh, and for over ten years I suffered from catarrh of the stomach terribly.

"I have taken all kinds of medicines and have been treated by all kinds of doctors, as thousands of my acquaintances are aware in different parts of the United States, where I have traveled, but my relief was only temporary, until a little over a year ago I started to take Peruna, and at the present time I am better than I have been for twenty years.

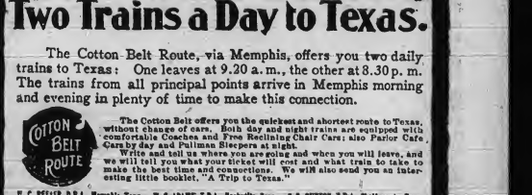


"The soreness has left my stomach entirely and I am free from indigestion and dyspepsia and will say to all who are troubled with catarrh or stomach trouble of any kind, don't put it off and suffer, but begin to take Peruna right away, and keep it up until you are cured, as you surely will be if you persevere.



"My wife, as many in the southwest can say, was troubled with a bad cough and bronchial trouble, and doctors all over the country gave her up to die, as they could do nothing more for her. She began taking Peruna with the result that she is better now than she has been in years, and her cough has almost left her entirely. The soreness has left her lungs and she is as well as she ever was in her life, with thanks, as she says, to Peruna. Yours very truly,

T. P. Moody.



Catarrh in its various forms is rapidly becoming a general curse. An undoubted remedy has been discovered by Dr. Hartman. This remedy has been thoroughly tested during the past forty years. Prominent men have come to know of its virtues, and are making public utterances on the subject. To save the country we must save the people. To save the people we must protect them from disease. The disease that is at once the most prevalent and stubborn of cure is catarrh.

If one were to make a list of the different names that have been applied to catarrh in different locations and organs, the result would be astonishing. We have often published a partial list of these names, and the surprise caused by the first publication of it to all people, both professional and non-professional, was amusing. And yet we have never enumerated all of the diseases which are classed as catarrh. It must be confessed, however, to see even this partial list drawn up in battle array is rather appalling. If the reader desires to see this list, together with a short exposition of each one, send for our free catarrh book. Address The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Florence

Miss Cecile Tucker, of Cincinnati, is the guest of her aunts, the Misses Hoggins.

Mr. Henry Olsner and daughter spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Olsuer, of near Limaburg.

Mrs. Omer Armstrong and mother, Mrs. John Conner, were visiting Miss Maggie Conner, last Saturday.

Benjamin Downey, jr., of Wichita, Kansas, spent several days, last week, with his mother at this place.

Miss Bettie Hoggins has returned home after a short visit with her sister, Mrs. Ollie Tucker, of Cincinnati.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Conner and sons spent Saturday and Sunday with Mrs. M. Latham.

We are sorry to hear of John Sells being ill with typhoid fever.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tanner, Mr. and Mrs. Mort Blankenbecker, and daughter spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Tanner, of Kensington.

Miss Stella Taylor, of Richwood, called on Mrs. Fannie Clutterbuck Saturday morning.

William Rouse is improving rapidly, after being very ill with typhoid pneumonia.

Mrs. Frances Clutterbuck entertained quite a number of friends last Thursday with a big dinner, it being her birth day. Among the crowd were Mr, and Mrs. Fred Utz, Mrs. Eliza Tanner, Mrs. James Wilhoit and children, Mrs. John Popham and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Tanner, Mrs. James Tanner and daughter, Lena.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hollingsworth of Cincinnati, were guests of Mrs. J. W. Clarke, Saturday and Sunday.

Wheat is looking well, but is needing rain badly.

Water is getting scarce with a great many people in this neighborhood.

Everybody ought to go and hear J. C. Clore speak at Erlanger, next Saturday night.

Jas. Acra and Jas. Barlow passed through our burg last week with about 300 sheep, en route to Cincinnati Union stock yards.

Mr. and Mrs. James Utz spent last Thursday with their daughter Mrs. Kittie Taylor, of Beaver.

Verona.

Weather dry and water becoming scarce.

Small grain about all sowed. Farmers are busy gathering corn and find it is a much shorter crop than they expected.

Rev. S. M. Adams, of Walton, New Bethel's regular pastor, has just closed a ten days' successful meeting at Verona. It resulted in reviving the members spiritually and adding two to the church.

New Bethel Baptist church has called Rev. Sam Adams as its pastor for another year, beginning the first of November, 1900.

Mr. John Benson and Miss Hallie Waller, wended their way to Walton last Wednesday, and at the residence of Rev. Adams, were joined together in the holy bonds of wedlock. The Recorder wishes Mr. and Mrs. Benson a useful, happy, prosperous journey through life.

Mr. James Hind, we are glad to say, is improving and will be able to be out in a few days.

Hon. D. E Castleman gave the Democrats, at this place, a very instructive talk last week. He was applauded frequently. Mr. Castleman is a good orator and a clever gentleman.

Grant Tomlin, of Walton, Republican, and Robt. Wood, of Warsaw, Democrat, spoke here in joint debate last Wednesday night.

Several from this place visited the Zoo, last Sunday.

Mr. R. R. Walton, of Chicago, was the guest of his father and relatives here recently.

Midway.

Hon. J. P. Carter, of Vevay, Ind., addressed a large and enthusiastic crowd at Big Bone Springs, last Saturday, at 2 o'clock p. m. County Atty. Wood, of Gallatin, preceded Mr. Carter with a few well chosen remarks on his experience in the Spanish-American war, which caught the crowd. A splendid brass band from Rising Sun furnished good music for the occasion. All things considered it was one of the biggest days the Springs have enjoyed for many years.

W. C. Johnson has a fine lot of logs at his mill yard near the Springs, which shows the prospect for some repairing is good.

Both political parties are lining up for the big battle of votes November the 6th, and if the confidence of both can be taken for a criterion, there is going to be two tickets elected certain.

William Isbel has purchased a nice lot of Mr. Murve Hance at the Springs, upon which he intends to build a residence in the early spring.

Will Wilson and O. M. Moore delivered quite a fine drove of cattle which they were grazing for J. C. Hughes, last Tuesday.

A number from here went to Lawrenceburg to here Stevenson speak.

Quite a nice congregation attended church at Mt. Pleasant Sunday.

There was preaching at the old Baptist church here Thursday and Friday.

The Teachers' Association will meet here Saturday, Nov. 3. Everybody is invited.

Miss Marie Corn entertained a number of her friends to dinner Sunday.

Walton.

Pupils in the preparatory department of the Walton Graded School, whose average is 90 or above, Miss Effie J. Lermond, teacher: Sallie Booth, Mamie Allen, Ralph Edwards, Willeve Tillman, Katie Kentz, Leslie Jones, Zella Mayhugh, Rivolet DeMossy, Louis Green, Nellie Fullilove, Amy West, Hallie Watson, Tom Watson, Carrie Campbell, Ella Haley, Pauline Curley, Hattie Vest, Walt Cress, Clara Diers, Virgie Dixon, Amanda Ellis, Lula Ellis, Leona Rouse, Godfrey Houston, Gladys Wilson, Youell Murphy, John Craig, Marian Marsh, Clifton Botts. Pupils 93 and above: Blanche Dyas, Queen Tillman, Charles Chambers, Eddie Kipp, Lena Hedges, Mary Plunkett, Gertrude Curley, Mary Jones, John Ingram, Joseph Huey. Those between 90 and 95: Cleveland Hedges, Charles Rensler, Harvey Diers, John DeJarnett, M. Jones, Hallie Taylor, Roy Cross, Mollie Hudson. Hattie Taylor has the honor of writing the best essay on the subject, "Waltou." John Ingram lead the arithmetic class the first part of the month. Harvey Diers and John Ingram bore equal honors the last part.

A strange mortality appeared among the chickens of Mrs. R. M. Jones, and on Sunday 16 were dead, and on this Monday morning two more have died, and several have shown symptoms of being afflicted. The part affected appears to be the neck, which becomes so limber that the bird cannot hold up the head, altho making persistent efforts to do so. Mrs. Jones is expecting all her chickens to die. They droop around, bowing their heads up and down, typical of the performance of a French dancing master. It is reported that David Vallandingham, living in the Goshen neighborhood, has lost all of his fowls but one. Dr. Tobe Bagby's neighborhood, in Kenton, must have been afflicted with the plague as a friend informs us that he has successfully treated it with a strong tea made of Peruvian Bark, to be given as soon as there are any symptoms of the malady apparent.—[This could be alternated with doses of sassafras tea, which will surely destroy the germs or worms which many suppose to be the cause of this unknown disease.—Correspondent.]

Thomas K. Fleming has returned from a trip to Oklahoma, where he has been visiting his nephews, Thomas and George Southgate. He becomes very elogent in descriptions of that wonderful region. Asked if his relations showed any lachrymose emotion about their "Old Kentucky Home," he almost shouted a negative, and said that he believed they regarded their emigration to that land as a Special Dispensation of Providence in their behalf.

J. J. Hudson, T. F. Curley, Orin Percival and Dr. Jacob Cleek were down to hear Bourke Cockran's great speech at Music Hall. As they emerged from the building, Jake Cleek said with great emotion: "It is no wonder Bryan was beaten in '96, with such a man as that following him everywhere.

Mr. and Mrs. Myron Stephens had a very enjoyable visit to Mrs. Lermond's on Sunday the 21st inst.

Mr. Jacob Kipp was presented with a stone boot by W. O. Rouse, who found it when gathering rock for his new house. It makes a very good sign for Kipp's business as it leans against the leafy maple shading his show window.

Dr. Bagby came near losing two of his horses Monday night. About half past seven his son Clarence took a notion to go to the stable which is across the Southern road from the dwelling on Pike street. All was dark inside and he brushed up against a man who was standing in the stall and had already haltered one of the horses. The thief rushed by him and Clarence ran to the house and gave the alarm. The Dr. took his horses to H. G. Dier's stable saying that he would be much safer there than in the lone stable on the rail road.

Bellevue.

Farmers are busy gathering their corn and pumpkins, of which there is a large and fine crop.

The Bellevue Baptist protracted meeting still continues, with three additions up to this writing. Rev. Atwood is conducting the meeting alone, preaching two sermons a day. His sermons are a credit to him and the church. He has a good attendance, both day and night.

The teachers' precinct meeting here, held in the school house, last Saturday was interesting and well attended.

The parents of your reporter from Middle creek, spent the day, last Saturday, with him.

Mrs. Fannie Snyder and daughter, Mary, were visiting her mother and sister, last Saturday and Sunday.

Several from here went to Rabbit Hash, last Saturday afternoon, to hear Berry speak, and they followed him to Petersburg that night.

E. L. Grant has purchased a pony for his little daughter, Frances, for a riding and driving animal.

County Clerk B. W. Adams was at church Sunday night.

A good crowd from here was at Lawrenceburg Monday to hear Vice President Stevenson.

Dr. French and wife were visiting Mrs. French's brothers and sisters for several days last week. Both seem to be enjoying the best of health.

We have the pleasure of announcing the wedding of Weeden Williamson, son of Dr. H. A. Williamson, and Miss Mamie Roger, daughter of Boone F. Rogers, to take place in the Bellevue Baptist church, at 6 o'clock p. m. November 7th.

Francesville.

Willie Graves entertained his mother and mother-in-law Tuesday.

Edgar Graves and mother went to Hamilton, Ohio, Saturday to visit relatives who live there.

Mr. C. W. McFee and family were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kilgore, Sunday.

Mr. George McGlasson and wife entertained his father's family and brothers and their families, on Tuesday.

Mrs. Jake Brittman lost some money on the road between her home and Hebron, one day last week.

We are pleased to hear of the continued improvement of Mr. Bradford, of Hebron.

There will be services at Sand Run on the second Sunday in November, and on Saturday preceding, at 7 p. m. and on Sunday evening also.

Pt. Pleasant.

We are glad to announce that Miss Lucy Russell is recovering from an attack of scarlet fever.

Miss Margaret Duun, of Dent, Ohio, is visiting Miss Kate Walton.

Mr. and Mrs. Homer Riggs, of Erlanger are now occupying their new residence in this neighborhood.

Mrs. Tupman and daughter Miss Margaret and Miss Sweet of Covington, were the guests of Mrs. B. F. McGlasson Sunday.

Quite a number from a distance attended services here Sunday morning and evening.

Miss Maggie Youell is quite sick at this writing.

Misses Flora Youell and Clementine Walton were visiting Miss Estella Sederberg at Waterloo Saturday.

vs. } Order of Reference.

James W. Raker, &c., Dfts.

On motion of the plaintiff this cause is now referred to the Master Commissioner with the following directions:

1. The Master will audit and settle the accounts of the administrator.

2. He will ascertain the amount of debts for which decedent's estate is liable and report same.

3. He will ascertain the amount, location, description and value of the land owned by the decedent at the time of his death.

4. He will give due notice of his sittings and report at the next term of this court.

5. The Master will rent out the property of the decedent if he can do so for money and on the best terms he can.

J. W. DUNCAN, Clerk B. C. C.

Notice is hereby given that I will begin my sittings in the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, Ky., Oct., 6, 1900, to hear proof of claims in the above styled cause and will adjourn from day to day (Sunday excepted) to the 20th day of Nov., 1900.

According to Weather Prophet W. W. Marsh's readings the coming month will be locally seasonable until the 12th or 14th, when the first cold wave will strike the Ohio Valley. From that date until the close of the month it will be cold. There will be stages of water during the entire month. The winter is to be a severe one. Extreme cold weather is booked from the 22d of December until the last of February. A hurricane is scheduled for the North Atlantic between the 6th and 8th of November. These storms will rage fiercest in the south, particularly in Louisiana and Texas. A blizzard is to visit the Northwest between the 12th and 14th of December.

A coach on the Q. & C. road was full of passengers one day not long ago, one of them being a big fat, placid-faced colored woman, who had got on at Cincinnati with her child in her arms, which was squalling, and she was trying to console it. "Stop det reyin' chile; doan yo' see yo' mamma gittin' out yo' nuppuh?" With this remark she offered the breast to the child, but it wouldn't take it. Coaxingly, she said; "Hush yo' squealin', yo' black rascal, an' take yo' suppah; if yo' doan I'se gwine to give it to the conductah!" The roar that went up in the car was deafening. The conductor went into the baggage car ahead.—Stauford Ky. Interior Journal.

L. N. Crigler has made some very necessary improvements to his hotel property here in the last few months. Besides repairing the barn considerably, the old traps in the back yard have been torn away, and their place taken by a good summer kitchen and other necessary out-buildings. The two brick rooms have been replastered and otherwise repaired. The premises have been very much improved in appearance.

Richard Underbill was in town Saturday, and he said that the day the sun crossed the line in September the wind was coming from the south, indicating a period of forty days of fine weather. He says when the wind is from the north the day the sun crosses the line, either in the spring or in the fall, bad weather is sure to prevail for the above named period. This sign was observed by his father, Elder Jno. Underbill, through his long life, and he never knew it to fail.

To the Brown Democrats of Boone County:—The election of President and Vice-President of the United States, and Governor of Kentucky, and a Congressman from the Sixth Congressional District, is near at hand, and I think it is the duty of every Brown Democrat to support the nominees of the Democratic party at the coming November election. At the convention that nominated John Young Brown at Lexington, we endorsed William Jennings Bryan, and it is the duty of every Brown Democrat to support him. We asked for precinct conventions to select delegates to nominate a candidate for Governor, and we got them, and J. W. C. Beckham was nominated by acclamation, and we took part in the convention that nominated him. Mr. Beckham was not our choice, but was nominated fairly, and I think it is the duty of every Brown Democrat to support him for Governor. We asked for a primary election to nominate a candidate for Congress, and we got that. Hon. D. Linn Gooch received the nomination at that primary. He was not our choice, but he was nominated fairly, and it is our duty to support him, as we took part in the primary that nominated him. Now the Goebel Election Law is modified, and any man who is a Democrat it is his duty to cast his vote for the nominees of the Democratic party on the 6th day of November, 1900.

Respectfully, DAVID HALEY,
Chairman of the Brown Campaign Committee, Walton, Kentucky.

A. E. Chambers, of Idlewild, has a fresh cow for sale.

The marriage of Dr. W. K. Chambers and Miss Margarette Smith was solemnized last evening at the residence of Mr. H. J. Donald. The Rev. Roberts performed the ceremony. The bride who entered the room on her brother's arm looked lovely, gowned in dainty Paris muslin over white taffeta. She carried in her hand a beautiful bouquet of bride's roses. The bride was attended by Miss Ina Wilkinson who was charming in a pretty white organdie over pink. Mr. T. F. Darnall, gracefully carried out the responsibilities of groomsman. The ceremony was witnessed by a few relatives and intimate friends of the high contracting parties only. The rooms were beautifully decorated with hanging baskets, wall pockets of maiden hair fern, and ferns and potted plants, while carnations were used with artistic effect. After ceremony a delicious repast was served, and the happy pair received the congratulations of those present. The wedding presents were both numerous and costly. The young couple then left for the residence the groom had prepared for the reception of his bride. The bride's home is in Los Angeles where she has a large circle of friends while the groom is one of our most popular, and prosperous professional men and general favorite. Dr. and Mrs. Chambers will be at home at their residence in Bisbee. It is with great pleasure that the Review records this happy event, and joins with everyone in the town of Bisbee in wishing our fortunate young townsman and his lovely wife every blessing that providence can bestow.—Bisbee Arizona, Bochise Review.

Robbed The Grave.

A startling incident is narrated by John Oliver, of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50c., guaranteed. at McKim's, Burlington; Crouch's, Union; Oelsner's, Florence.

Burglars entered the postoffice at Petersburg, last Thursday night, and were about ready to open the safe, when Mr. Klem, who lives next door to the postoffice, heard the noise and got up to ascertain the cause. The burglars hearing him abandoned the job and fled, leaving all their tools. Except one drill the tools were taken from Mr. Brooks' blacksmith shop there in town. Had the thieves, who it is believed were professionals, got into the safe, they would have secured $6 in money and some postage stamps.

The amendment to the election law gives the county clerk considerable more work.

Fishermen in Holland kill all fish as soon as they are landed, while French fishermen, on the contrary, allow them to die of suffocation. The Dutch custom is the right one, because fish that are properly killed are in better condition for the table.

A recent report of the comptroller of the currency shows the total individual deposits in the state and national banks of the west and northwest to be $43,827,336 greater than last year and $158,357,737 greater than at the corresponding date in 1898.

The Germans make flannel underclothing of the fiber of the pine needles, while knee warmers, knitting and darning yarns, cork soles, quilts, wadding, pine needle soap, incense, and even cigars made from the same material have been exported from Germany for years.

The Bolivian government has appropriated about $50,000 for the preliminary study of three railway lines —from Oruro to La Paz and Lake Titicaca, from Oruro to Cochabamba and from Challapata to Colquechaca. Another road is to run from Potosi to the Argentine boundary.

The number of sheep in the principal countries of the world is 410,000,000. Great Britain has 30,500,000; France, 21,500,000; Germany, 11,000,000; Russia, 44,500,000; Spain, 13,250,000; Argentina, 74,250,000; United States, 39,000,000; Uruguay, 106,250,000; Australia, 110,500,000.

Speaking of the expected change, either of gauge or of motive power, in the railway system of the country, the Electrical World says: "We see only one conclusion to the whole matter, viz.: The steam roads must adopt electricity, and much of the steam-operated railroad system will soon have to pass into history."

If 12 persons were to agree to dine together every day, but never sit exactly in the same order around the table, it would take 18,000,000 years at the rate of one dinner a day, and they would have to eat more than 470,000,000 dinners, before they could get through all the possible arrangements in which they could place themselves.

It is believed that the trades unions of Pennsylvania will not take an appeal to the supreme court against a recent decision of a lower court in declaring unconstitutional the law protecting employes in their rights to belong to labor organizations, but will go to the next legislature and have a law enacted on lines indicated by the judge's objections.

A method of utilizing liquefied air on warships has been discovered which will render the explosion of a magazine, even when the ship is in action, almost impossible. The method is to so place the liquid air that it will freeze the ammunition to several hundred degrees below zero. In that condition it could not explode, even if a shell should burst in the magazine.

A new use for the phonograph has been found in New South Wales, where a candidate who found it impossible to visit all parts of the sparsely settled region he wished to represent in the legislature dictated his speech into an instrument and sent a number of copies about for his constituents to hear, a large picture of himself helping the voters to know whom they were voting for.

George Haines, of Winfield, Penn., is a theological wonder. Aged but 9 years, he holds religious services every Sunday morning and preaches a sermon, his favorite texts being taken from the fourteenth chapter of St. John. Young Haines is the son of Amos Haines, a well-known merchant. In preaching he makes many striking gestures and evinces the greatest earnestness and enthusiasm.

The forthcoming orange crop in California is reported to be in exceptionally fine condition. The comparatively cool summer has permitted the fruit to develop fully and gradually, and the warm days of September and early October have advanced the ripening. Even the most conservative shippers estimate that the crop will be one of the largest and finest ever picked in the California groves.

Cabbage crops in Europe are generally poor this years and this country is being called upon to make up the deficiency. Truck gardens in the neighborhood of Bay City, Mich., are reaping part of the benefit. The best crop there was poor last year, and the gardeners gave it up, planting cabbage instead. But for the shortage abroad the Michigan market would have been badly overstocked, but the growers are shipping their product to Germany.

A new telephone fire alarm system has just been patented, the whole system being operated by a magneto current and dry batteries. After the system is once installed the only thing to get out of order is the burning out occasionally of a fuse, which may be quickly repaired. A separate line is used for each fire district, and any number of telephones may be connected with any district wire. By means of the system every house and building along the line of the wires may be connected with the alarm

ARE ADDED TO THE LIST

Two More Princes Selected by Foreign Ministers for Execution.

When Peace Is Restored Russia Will Hand Back to Its Owners the Tong Ku and Niu Chwang Railway.

London, Oct. 29.—Dr. Morrison, wiring to the Times from Peking under date of October 26, says: "The foreign ministers in conference to-day decided to add the names of Prince Yi and Ying Nien to those of the seven officials whose execution France has demanded.

"It is said that the commander of the allied troops at Pao Ting Fu has arrested the provincial treasurer, who was chiefly responsible for the ill-treatment of the rescued missionaries."

The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Daily Express claims to have authority for the statement that when peace is restored Russia will hand back to its owners the railway from Tong Fu to Niu Chwang.

Berlin, Oct. 29.—The Berliner Post publishes Sunday an inspired article devoted to showing that the Anglo-German agreement will in no way interfere with Russia's interests in Manchuria.

"If England had not arrived at an agreement with Germany," says the Post, "she would have been compelled to do so with Russia. This would have been a serious blow to German trade. Germany in her capacity of an honest broker has served Russian interests."

Vienna, Oct. 29.—The semi-official Politische correspondenz asserts that France and Russia, after discussion, have decided to accept the Anglo-German agreement.

London, Oct. 29.—The Chinese imbroglio is in a state of stagnation. Shanghai sends renewed rumors that the court, from Sinan Fu is sending agents to collect funds in the southern and central provinces. Advices from Pao Ting Fu give harrowing accounts of the sufferings of missionaries at the hands of Boxers; and it is reported that ten missionaries are still at Cheng Ten Fu.

The correspondent of the Morning Post at Pao Ting Fu, wiring October 20, says: "The Boxers declare that the provincial treasurer has ordered them to kill all foreigners. He allowed 11 American and four British to be massacred."

St. Petersburg, Oct. 29.—The Russian sappers who were employed to dig out and destroy the mines at Mukden, official dispatches say, found the whole district mined, and it was only the unexpected arrival of the Russians that prevented wholesale destruction. A special committee was appointed to investigate.

The advices also say that the provincial treasurer escaped and that the Chinese guerrillas had been looting extensively, their booty including the Manchu throne, extensive libraries, collections of pictures and colossal archaeological objects, all of great value.

Washington, Oct. 27.—The text of the communication handed by the Chinese minister to the secretary of state Friday is as follows:

"Cablegram from Viceroy Chang Chi Tung, dated October 25, states that the governor of Shensi has reported that Kang Yi died on October 18; that Yu Hsien (late governor of Shansi) has committed suicide by swallowing gold leaf, and Prince Tuan has not been permitted to accompany the court.

"A cablegram dated October 24, from Director General Sheng, states that an imperial decree has been issued directing Prince Ching and Earl Li to fix and submit for approval the several penalties to be inflicted on those princes and ministers that ought to be punished. He adds that Kang Yi has died of sickness, and that Prince Tuan and Prince Chwang have not been allowed to accompany the court (to Shensi)."

Washington, Oct. 27.—Minister Conger has been authorized by his government to begin negotiations at once with the Chinese envoys on the basis of the points of the German and French notes, upon which all of the powers are agreed.

BLUE-STEM WHEAT.

Twenty-Five Thousand Bushels to Be Shipped From Lewiston, Ore., to Chicago.

Lewiston, Ore., Oct. 29.—Twenty-five thousand bushels of blue-stem wheat was sold here Saturday for Chicago delivery. The first shipment was made over the Northern Pacific Sunday. The local quotation on blue-stem is 43 cents, and the freight rate to Chicago is 36 cents per bushel. The seller does not give the price list, but it is to be two or three cents better than the market price. This shipment is the first made from the extreme northwest to Chicago this season.

Two Bodies Found.

Carbondale, Ill., Oct. 29.—The bodies of Loren Lewis, son of a merchant of Alto Pass, and a companion named George Corgan were found by the side of the Mobile & Ohio railroad tracks north of Pomeno. It is believed they were killed by a train.

Slain By a Footpad.

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 29.—William McHugh, an East Side merchant who was attacked by a footpad Wednesday night, died Sunday of his injuries. Arthur Biddle, colored, has been arrested for the murder.

PAYMASTER'S REPORT.

Amount of Money Paid to the Army, Regular and Volunteer, During the Year Ending June 30.

Washington, Oct. 27.—Paymaster Gen. Bates reports to the secretary of war that during the year ending June 30, 1900, he has paid to the army, regular and volunteers, $36,656,600; on the emergency fund to disband the Cuban army, $1,642,650.

Several minor recommendations concerning the pay of the army are contained in this report.

A comparison of the expenditures of the last fiscal year with those of the fiscal year of 1899 shows a net decrease of $33,382,147. The mileage provisions under the act of May last have applied satisfactorily to the army, with the single exception of what are known as "agreement roads" reductions.

The expense, hire and labor involved in the multiplicity of time and distance tables required under the ever changing conditions of the railroads making these deductions is found to offset completely any saving to the government through their use in the transportation of troops and supplies. Gen. Bates, therefore, recommends that this clause be stricken out of the mileage provisions.

The paymaster general calls particular attention to the 10 and 20 per cent. extra pay allowance provided by congress for the troops serving in the island possessions and Alaska, which unfortunately deprives the troops serving in China from a share of this bonus, the disturbances in the Chinese empire not having assumed a threatening aspect when this law was passed, in the latter part of May. He recommends that the extra allowance be extended to officers and men serving in all countries beyond the limits of the United States.

AS TRADE UNIONISTS.

Postal Clerks of Chicago Affiliate Themselves With the American Federation of Labor.

Chicago, Oct. 29.—Post office clerks of Chicago Sunday entered the ranks of the trade unionists. The clerks have affiliated themselves with the American Federation of Labor and the new organization will be known as "The Chicago Post Office Clerks' Union." It is claimed that practically all the 1,400 post office employes in Chicago are included in the movement.

Foremost among the objects of which the new union is to strive will be the adoption of the eight hour work day for letter carriers in Chicago and throughout the country. Another object to be given almost equal prominence will be the working up of an agitation in favor of federal execution that will fix absolutely the rate of wages for letter carriers and other post office employes, taking that matter completely out of the hands of the "promotion boards" and other similar agencies.

It is to be a labor union pure and simple and will direct its efforts solely to the problem of bettering the lot of the rank and file of the post office employes.

REGISTRATION IN HAWAII.

Only 11,216 Persons Enrolled in the Entire Group for the Coming Election.

Honolulu, Oct. 20.—(Correspondence.)—The official returns of the registration in all the Sandwich islands have been received. Only 11,216 persons registered in the group for the coming election.

This is 3,000 less than the registration during the last year under the monarchy. By islands the registrations is as follows:

Hawaii, 2,715; Maui, 2,058; Oahua, includes Honoluhu, 5,704; Kaulai, 739.

Hawaiian postmasters who held office under the republic are endeavoring to have the United States redeem several thousand dollars' worth of Hawaiian stamps. Under the laws of the republic the postmaster purchased their stamps outright. When annexation came no provision was made for redeeming the stamps in their possession.

Marshal Shot and Killed.

Falls City, Neb., Oct. 29.—City Marshal Wake, of the town of Rulo, was shot and killed by Bill" Hunt Saturday night. Hunt was disturbing speakers at a political meeting and the city marshal attempted to arrest him when Hunt shot him twice, killing him instantly. An effort was made to form a mob to lynch Hunt but he was hurried away to the county jail at this place.

Shipwrecked Crew Picked Up.

London, Oct. 29.—The British ship Maxwell, Capt. Davies, from Iquique, landed at Dover Sunday the crew of the French bark Bretagne, Capt. Guillon, which sailed from Antwerp on April 3 for San Francisco. The men were picked up after they had abandoned their vessel off Cape Horn on August 16, with loss of rudder and all sails.

To Enforce the School Law.

Havana, Oct. 27.—Mayor Rodriguez has issued an order to the police directing them to take into custody children under 12 years of age found in the streets unaccompanied during school hours. It is the intention of the authorities to enforce the school law strictly.

To Receive Kruger.

Marseilles, Oct. 27.—Mr. Kruger is expected to arrive here November 11 and remain at least a day. An elaborate demonstration is being organized in his honor.

INSURGENTS ACTIVE.

A Detachment of Americans Attacked by 400 of Them.

Capt. Beigler and Three Privates Were Slightly Wounded, and Two of the United States Force Were Killed.

Manila, Oct. 29.—While scouting near Looc a detachment of the Twentieth and Twenty-eighth regiments, under Capt. Beigler, was attacked by four hundred insurgents armed with rifles under the command of a white man whose nationality is not known to the Americans. The insurgents for the most part were intrenched.

After an heroic fight Capt. Beigler drove off the enemy, killing more than 75. The fight lasted more than two hours. Capt. Beigler and three privates were slightly wounded, and two of the Americans were killed.

Reports from Gen. Young's district show a daily increase of insurgents there, owing to the fact that recruits are going thither from the towns.

While a detail of the 33d volnuteer infantry was returning from Bangued on rafts it was fired upon by insurgents, Sergt. Berdstaller being killed and two privates wounded.

Manila, Oct. 29.—A civilian launch towing a barge loaded with merchandise near Arayat was attacked by a force of 150 insurgents under David Fagin, a deserter from the 24th infantry. The American troops, on hearing the firing, turned out in force before the boat could be looted and captured.

Fagin, who holds the rank of general among the insurgents, has sworn special enmity towards his former company. Of the 20 men he captured a month ago seven have returned. One was killed in a fight, his body being horribly mutilated.

Fagin sends messages to his former comrades threatening them with violence if they become his prisoners. It was Fagin's men who captured Frederick W. Alstaetter, who is still a prisoner.

Gen. Hall's expedition with a force of nearly 800 men through the mountains of Binangonan, province of Infanta, in pursuit of the insurgent Gen. Cailles, although it discovered no trace of the enemy, encountered great hardships on the march. Twenty Chinese porters died and 40 men were sent into the hospital. After stationing a garrison of 250 men in Binangonan and visiting Polilo island, off the coast of Infanta province, Gen. Hall and the rest of his force embarked there on the transport Garonse.

Washington, Oct. 27.—The war department received the following from Gen. MacArthur Friday:

Manila, Oct. 26.—Adjutant General, Washington: October 24 First Lieut. Febiger, 40 men, Company H, 33d regiment, United States infantry, volunteers: Second Lieut. Grayson V. Heidt, 60 men, Troop L, 3d cavalry, attacked insurgents 14 miles east of Narvican, Ilocos province, Luzon; developed strong position occupied by about 400 riflemen, 1,000 bolomen under command of Juan Villamor, subordinate of Timos. Desperate fight ensued which was most credible to force engaged, though under heavy pressure overwhelming numbers, our troops compelled to return to Narvican which was accomplished in tactal orderly manner. Acting Assistant Surgeon Bath and civilian teamster captured early in the fight were released by Villamor.

According to their accounts insurgents much stronger than reported here and their loss, moderate estimate, over 150. Our loss:

Wounded—Company H, 33d vol. infantry, Floyd W. McPherson, hip, slight; John W. Grace, face, slight; Foyd H. Heard, cheek, slight; Harry S. Johnson, knee, serious; Troop K, 3d U. S. cavalry, Adam R. Wachs, arm, slight; Alfred Downer, lip, head, slight; Charles W. Martin, thigh, slight; Oscar O. Bradford, foot, slight; Wm. E. Hunder, leg below knee, slight.

Missing—Company H, 33d regiment, John J. Boyd, Samuel P. Harris; Troop L, 3d cavalry, Samuel Davis, Ferdi. Schwed. Twenty-nine horses missing, some known to be killed.

More Gold From the Klondike.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 29.—The steamer Dolphin arrived from Skagway Sunday with 130 passengers and $200,000 in gold from the Klondike. The Klondikers came up the river on the Zealandia, leaving Dawson October 14. The river was then full of floating ice for 100 miles and the weather was bitterly cold. Two small steamers left two days later, and are now winter-bound on Lake Labarge. River navigation is over for the season.

Hayes' Successor.

Montreal, Oct. 29.—It is stated on high authority Sunday night that F. H. McGuigan, general superintendent of the Grand Trunk, will be promoted to the general management of the system in succession to Charles H. Hayes resigned to accept the presidency of the Southern Pacific.

At the Seattle Assay Office.

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 29.—A total of $20,166,867 worth of gold dust and bullion has been received at the Seattle assay office during the present year.

Still More Counterfeiting.

The Secret Service has unearthed another band of counterfeiters and secured a large quantity of bogus bills, which are so cleverly executed that the average person would never suspect them of being spurious. ST. VITUS' DANCE

Three great and complete cures effected by Dr. Greene's Nervura Blood and Nerve Remedy.

Mrs. J. A. Ferre, who resides near 905 Main Street, Hartford, Conn., says:

"My daughter Lulu became very ill with St. Vitus dance over a year ago. She became so bad that she lost the use of her right arm and side, and we thought at one time she would lose her speech. Her tongue was almost paralyzed, she was so bad she could not feed herself, and at night she would get so nervous I had to sit and hold her. I tried several doctors, but they did not do her any good. I did not find anything that would help her until I tried Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. She is now, by the use of this medicine, entirely cured."

C. H. Bailey, Esq., of Waterbury, Vt., writes;

"I am more than glad to write about my little daughter. Until a short time ago she had always been a very delicate child and subject to sick spells lasting weeks at a time. She was very nervous, and our family doctor said we would never raise her, she was so delicate and feeble. We tried many remedies without the least good. We felt much anxiety about her, especially as no doctors could benefit her, and had great fear for her future. Learning of the wonders being done by Dr Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, I determined to give it to her. She soon commenced to improve under its use, and rapidly gained in every respect. She eats and sleeps well and her nerves are strong. The medicine has done wonders for her and it is the best we ever knew. I recommend Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, to everybody."

Mrs. J. Learmonth, of 776 Broadway, South Boston, Mass., says:

"At ten years of age my daughter became affected with a nervous condition which soon developed into St. Vitus' dance. It was pronounced by the attending physician to be a very severe attack. The mouth would be drawn spasmodically far to one side, the hands and arms were restless and constantly twitching. Her limbs also were weak; her ankles bent under her so that it was almost impossible to walk. She was so nervous that she would scream almost like a maniac and then have fits of crying. After two months' treatment without a cure, I concluded to try Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. Three bottles entirely cured her. She is now thirteen years old, and has been well ever since, and to-day is a picture of health."

EFFECT ON MANKIND.

Dr. Talmago Shows How the Spirit of Greed Destroys.

Strong Denunciation of Those Who Worship the Golden Calf of Modern Idolatry—Day of Judgment Coming.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.]

In this discourse Dr. Talmage shows how the spirit of greed destroys when it takes possession of a man and that, money got in wrong ways is a curse. Text: Exodus, xxxii., 20, "And he took the calf which they had made and burnt it in the fire, and ground it to powder, and strewed it upon the water, and made the children of Israel drink of it."

People will have a god of some kind, and they prefer one of their own making. Here come the Israelites, b...aking off their golden earrings, the men as well as the women, for in those times there was masculine as well as feminine decoration. Where did they get these beautiful goldearrings, coming up as they did from the desert? Oh, they borrowed them of the Egyptians when they left Egypt. These earrings are piled up into a pyramid of glittering beauty. "Any more earrings to bring?" says Aaron. None. Fire is kindled, the earrings are melted and poured into a mold, not of an eagle or a war charger, but of a silly calf. They gold cools down, the mold is taken away, and the idol is set up on its four legs. An altar is built in front of the shining calf. Then the people throw up their arms and gyrate and shriek and dance vigorously and worship.

Moses has been six weeks on Mount Sinai, and he comes back and hears the howling and sees the dancing of these golden calf fanatics, and he loses his patience, and he takes the two plates of stone on which were written the Ten Commandments and flings them so hard against a rock that they split all to pieces. When a man gets angry, he is apt to break all the Ten Commandments! Moses rushes in, and he takes this calf god and throws it into a hot fire until it is melted all out of shape and then pulverizes it, not by the modern appliance of nitromuriatic acid, but by the ancient appliance of niter or by the old-fashioned file. He stirs for the people a most nauseating draft. He takes this pulverized golden calf and throws it in the only brook which is accessible, and the people are compelled to drink of that brook or not drink at all.

But they did not drink all the glittering stuff thrown on the surface. Some of it flows on down the surface of the brook to the river and then flows on down the river to the sea, and the sea takes it up and bears it to the mouth of all the rivers, and when the tides set back the remains of this golden calf are carried up into the Potomac and the Hudson and the Thames and the Clyde and the Tiber, and men go out, and they skim the glittering surface, and they bring it ashore, and they make another golden calf, and California and Australia break off their golden earrings to augment the pile, and in the fires of financial excitement and struggle all these things are melted together, and while we stand looking and wondering what will come of it, lo we find that the golden calf of Israelitish worship has become the golden calf of European and American worship.

Pull aside this curtain, and you see the golden calf of modern idolatry. It is not, like other idols, made out of stocks or stone, but it has an ear so sensitive that it can hear the whispers on Wall street, and Third street, and State street, and the footfalls in the Bank of England, and the flutter of a Frenchman's heart on the bourse. It has an eye so keen that it can see the rust on the farm of Michigan wheat and the insect in the Maryland peach orchard and the trampled grain under the hoof of the Russian war charger. It is so mighty that it swings any way it will the world's shipping. It has its foot on all the merchantmen and the steamers. It started the American civil war and, under God, stopped it, and it decided the Turko-Russian contest. One broker in September, 1869, in New York, shouted: "One hundred and sixty for gold!" and the whole continent shivered. The golden calf of the text has, as far as America is concerned, its right foot in New York, its left foot in Chicago, its right back foot in Charleston, its left back foot in New Orleans, and when it shakes itself it shakes the world. Oh, this is a mighty god—the golden calf of the world's worship.

But every god must have its temple, and this golden calf of the text is no exception. Its temple is vaster than St. Paul's cathedral in England, and St. Peter's in Italy, and the Alhambra of the Spaniards, and the Parthenon of the Greeks, and the Taj Mahnl of the Hindoos and all the cathedrals put together. Its pillars are grooved and fluted with gold, and its ribbed arches are hovering gold, and its chandeliers are descending gold, and its floors are tasselated gold, and its vaults are crowded heaps of gold, and its spires and domes are soaring gold, and its organ pipes are resounding gold, and its pedals are trampling gold, and its stops pulled out are flashing gold, while standing at the head of the temple, as the presiding deity, are the hoofs and shoulders and eyes and ears and nostrils of the calf of gold.

Further, every god must have not only its temple, but its altar of sacrifice, and this golden calf of the text is no exception. Its altar is not made out of stone, as other altars, but out of counting-room desks and fireproof safes, and it is a broad, a long, a high altar. The victims sacrificed on it are the Swedenborgs and the Benjamins and the Fisks and 10,000 other people who are slain before this golden calf. What does this god care about the groans and struggles of the victims before it? With cold, metallic eye it looks on and yet lets them suffer. What an altar? What a sacrifice of mind, body and soul! The physical health of a great multitude is flung on to this sacrificial altar. They cannot sleep, and they take chloral and morphine and intoxicants. Some of them struggle in a nightmare of stocks and at one o'clock in the morning suddenly rise up, shouting: "A thousand shares of New York Central—108½—take it!" until the whole family is affrighted, and the speculators fall back on their pillow and sleep until they are awakened again by a corner" in Pacific Mail or a sudden "rise" of Rock Island. Their nerves gone, their digestion gone, their brain gone, they die. The gowned ecclesiastic comes in and reads the funeral service: "Blessed are they who die in the Lord!" Mistake. They did not "die in the Lord." The golden calf kicked them!

The trouble is when men sacrifice themselves on this altar suggested in the text they not only sacrifice themselves, but they sacrifice their families. If a man by a wrong course is determined to go to perdition, I suppose you will have to let him go. But he puts his wife and children in an equipage that is the amazement of the avenues, and the driver lashes the horses into two whirlwinds, and the spokes flash in the sun, and the golden headgear of the harness gleams until black calamity takes the bits of the horses and stops them and shouts to the luxuriant occupants of the equipage: "Get out!" They get out. They go down. That husband and father during his family so hard they never got up. There was the mark on them for life—the mark of a split hoof—the death-dealing hoof of the golden calf.

Solomon offered in one sacrifice on one occasion 22,000 oxen and 120,000 sheep, but that was a tame sacrifice compared with the multitude of men who are sacrificing themselves on this altar of the golden calf and sacrificing their families with them. The soldiers of Gen. Havelock, in India, waded literally ankle deep in the blood of "the house of massacre" where 200 white women and children had been slain by the Sepoys, but the blood about this altar of the golden calf flows up to the knee, flows up to the girdle, flows up to the shoulder, flows up to the lip. Great God of Heaven and earth, have mercy on those who immolate themselves on this altar! The golden calf has none.

Still the degrading worship goes on, and the devotees kneel and kiss the dust and count their golden beads and cross themselves with the blood of their own sacrifice. The music rolls on under the arches. It is made of clinking silver and clinking gold and the rattling specie of the banks and brokers' shops and the voices of all the exchanges. The soprano of the worship is carried by the timid voices of men who have just begun to speculate, while the deep bass rolls out from those who for ten years have been steeped in the seething caldron. Chorus of voices rejoicing over what they have made; chorus of voices wailing over what they have lost. The temple of which I speak stands open day and night, and there is a glittering god with his four feet on broken hearts, and there is the smoking altar of sacrifice, new victims every moment on it, and there are the kneeling devotees; and the doxology of the worship rolls on, while death stands with moldy and skeleton arm beating time for the chorus—"More, more, more!"

Some people are very much surprised at the actions of people in the stock exchange. People are indeed, it is a scene sometimes that paralyzes description and is beyond the imagination of anyone who has never looked in. What snapping of finger and thumb and wild gesticulation and raving like hyenas and stamping like buffaloes and swaying to and fro and jostling and running one upon another, and deafening uproar, until the president of the exchange strikes with his mallet four or five times, crying: "Order, order!" and the astonished spectator goes out into the fresh air feeling that he has escaped from pandemonium. What does it all mean? I will tell you what it means. The devotees of every heathen temple cut themselves to pieces and yell and gyrate. This vociferation and gyration of the stock exchange is all appropriate. This is the worship of the golden calf.

But my text suggests that this worship has to be broken up, as the behavior of Moses on this occasion indicated. There are those who say that this golden calf spoken of in the text was hollow and merely plated with gold, otherwise Moses could not have carried it. I do not know that, but somehow, perhaps by the assistance of his friends, he takes up this golden calf, which is an infernal insult to God and man, and throws it into the fire and it is melted, and then it comes out and is cooled off, and by some chemical appliance or by an old-fashioned file it is pulverized, and it is thrown into the brook, and as a punishment the people are compelled to drink the nauseating stuff. So you may depend upon it that God will burn and he will grind to pieces the golden calf of modern idolatry, and he will compel the people in their agony to drink it. If not before, it will be so on the last day. I know not where the fire will begin, whether in the "Curb" or Lombard street, whether at Shoreditch or West End, but it will be a very hot blaze. All the government securities of the United States and Great Britain will curl up in the first blaze. All the money safes and deposit vaults will melt under the first touch. The sea will burn like tinder, and the shipping will be abandoned forever. The melting gold in the broker's window will burst through the metted window glass into the street, but the flying population will not stop to scoop it up. The cry of "Fire!" from the mountain will be answered by the cry of "Fire!" in the plain. The conflagration will burn out from the continent toward the sea and then burn in from the sea toward the land. New York and London with one cut of the red scythe of destruction will go down. Twenty-five thousand miles of conflagration! The earth will wrap itself round and round in shroud of flame and lie down to perish. What then will become of your golden calf? Who then so poor as to worship it? Melted or between the upper and the nether millstone of falling mountains ground to powder. Dagon down. Moloch down. Juggernaut down, golden calf down!

But every day is a day of judgment, and God is all the time grinding to pieces the golden calf. Some years ago in a time of panic we learned as never before that forgeries will not pay, that the watering of stock will not pay, that the spending of $50,000 on country seats and a palatial city residence when there are only $30,000 income will not pay, that the appropriation of trust funds to our own private speculation will not pay. We had a great national tumor in the shape of fictitious prosperity. We called it national enlargement. Instead of calling it enlargement we might better have called it a swelling. It was a tumor, and God cut it out, and the nation was sent back to the principles of our fathers and grandfathers, when twice three made six instead of 60 and when the apples at the bottom of the barrel were just as good as the apples on the top of the barrel and a silk handkerchief was not half cotton and a man who wore a five-dollar coat paid for was more honored than a man who wore a $50 coat not paid for.

Te modern golden calf, like the one of the text, is very apt to be made out of borrowed gold. These Israelites of the text borrowed the earrings of the Egyptians and then melted them into a god. That is the way the golden calf is made nowadays. A great many housekeepers not paying for the articles they get borrow of the grocer and the baker and the butcher and the dry goods seller. Then the retailer borrows of the wholesale dealer. Then the wholesale dealer borrows of the capitalist, and we borrow and borrow and borrow until the community is divided into two classes, those who borrow and those who are borrowed of, and after awhile the capitalist wants his money, and he rushes upon the wholesale dealer, and the wholesale dealer wants his money and he rushes upon the retailer, and the retailer wants his money, and he rushes on the customer, and we all go down together. There is many a man in this day who rides in a carriage and owes the blacksmith for the tire and the wheelwright for the wheel and the trimmer for the curtain and the driver for unpaid wages and the harness maker for the bridle and the furrier for the robe, while from the tip of the carriage tongue clear back to the tip of the camel's hair shawl fluttering out of the back of the vehicle everything is paid for by notes that have been three times renewed.

I tell you that in this country we shall never get things right until we stop borrowing and pay as we go. It is this temptation to borrow and borrow and borrow that keeps the people everlastingly praying to the golden calf for help, and just the minute they expect the help the golden calf treads on them. The judgments of God, like Moses in the text, will rush in and break up this worship, and I say let the work go on until every man shall learn to speak truth with his neighbor, and those who make engagements shall feel themselves bound to keep them, and then a man who will not repeat of his business iniquity, but goes on wishing to satiate his cannibal appetite by devouring widows' houses, shall, by the law of the land, be compelled to exchange the brownstone front for the penitentiary. Let the golden calf perish!

I want you to change temples and to give up the worship of this unsatisfying and cruel god for the service of the Lord Jesus Christ. Here is the gold that will never tarnish. Here are the securities that will never fail. Here are the banks that will never break. Here is an altar on which there has been one sacrifice that does for all, for "by one sacrifice hath Christ perfected forever them that are sanctified." Here is a God who will comfort you when you are in trouble and soothe you when you are sick and save you when you die. For He has said: "When thou passeth through the waters, I will be with thee, and through the rivers they shall not overflow thee; when thou walkest through the fire, thou shalt not be burned, neither shall the flame kindle upon thee."

When your parents have breathed their last and the old, wrinkled and trembling hands can no more be put upon your head for a blessing, He will be to you a father and mother both, giving you the defense of one and the comfort of the other. For have we not Paul's blessed hope that as Jesus died and rose again, "even so them also which sleep in Jesus shall God bring with Him." And when your children go away from you, the sweet darlings, you will not kiss them always good-by forever. By only wants to hold them for you a little while. He will give them back to you again, and He will have them all waiting for you at the gates of eternal welcome. Oh, what a God He is! He will allow you to come so close that you can put your arms around His neck, while He in response will put His arms around your neck, and all the windows of Heaven will be hoisted to let the redeemed look out and see the spectacle of a rejoicing Father and a returned prodigal locked in that glorious embrace. Quit worshiping the golden calf and how this day before Him in whose presence we must all appear when the world has turned to ashes.

The flaming heavens together roll,
When louder yet and yet more dread
Swells the high trumpet that wakes the dead

ANOTHER NOMINATION

Silver Republicans Notify Bryan of Their Selection.

To Which the Nominee Replies at Length Accepting the Nomination and Thanks the Plain People.

The following letter notifying William J. Bryan of his nomination for the presidency by the national silver republican convention has been in Mr. Bryan's possession for some time:

"Mount Pleasant, Mich., Oct. 17.—Hon. William J. Bryan, Lincoln, Neb.: The silver republican organization at its national convention, held at Kansas City July 4 last, appointed a committee whose duty it is to notify you of your nomination for such nomination. In performing that duty permit us to say that convention was made up of voters 250 of whom voted for Abraham Lincoln; 250 born and as union soldiers in our great civil conflict; many were soldiers in the late Spanish-American war, and gave their best efforts for the liberation of our suffering Cuban neighbors. Four hundred were sons of veterans. We mention that as showing the fact that liberty fires burned in their hearts as warmly as in the lives of their patriotic forefathers.

"Learning as we do, that the great leader of democracy, Jefferson, wrote the declaration of independence, and the great leader of republicanism, Lincoln, supported, defended and applied it, both seeking in their efforts to establish and maintain government of equal rights for the people, we readily see why Jeffersonian democrats and Lincoln republicans may unite and should unite, and do unite now in their support of one ticket for the welfare of our country.

"To us it is no wonder that all the political parties split in 1896 on the money question. It was the struggle of the oligarchy of money changers in opposition to the rights of the people. At St. Louis the aristocracy controlled and kept the party name—without it the campaign would have resulted differently. At Chicago the people controlled and kept the party name. We believe the rank and file of voters in all parties are faithful to the true Americanism embodied in the declaration of independence, and when freed from party surroundings will support and vote for the man representing the rights of the masses.

"From the patriotism of the republican party of 1856 and 1860 to the greed of the republican party of 1896 and 1900 is a toboggan equaled only by the descent from the grandeur of Lincoln's administration to the lust and greed of the present administration.

"When we think one-fourth of 1,000,000 people own three-fourths of the nation's wealth, when sixty-four and three-fourths millions own only one-fourth—when 62 per cent. of the people owa not even a home—we become alarmed. Such a condition alone is enough to alarm the great mass of American voters. All who seek to have the nation kept in the lines of a republic must see it can only be done by not surrendering the control of the country entirely into the hands of the one-fourth of 1,000,000; but that the executive and lawmakers must be representatives of the sixty-four and three-fourths millions. The plea of trade must never cover and hide the plea of human rights. No party that disregard the rights of others, we are but schooling them and ourselves to disregard our own rights. We desire to stand by the principle of war only as a weapon for man's liberty, and we declare that we have millions for defense, and millions more for development, but not a dollar for conquest.

"Now, with the attempted gold standard, the seeking to destroy the greenback—the people's money—the concentration of wealth in the hands of the few, the want of reverence for equal rights as set forth in the declaration of independence, coupled with the attempt to destroy such rights, the recognition of human slavery under the American flag, the subjugation of a struggling, liberty-loving people—denying them the right of citizenship and compelling the relation of subjects, thus crushing out and destroying the equality of the people of a republic, the attempt to establish the rule of the few and the subordination of the many, raises and forces upon us for our consideration the question of imperialism, and makes it the question for us now to decide. A subject must belong to an empire. A republic has only citizens. In an empire the few rule, the many submit. In a republic 'equal rights to all, and special privileges to none,' are ever applicable.

"With this explanation we hereby notify you that at the gathering of Lincoln republicans in the silver republican convention held on last Independence day, in Kansas City, you were made their nominee.

"May we ask, as we believe in the rights of free government, that you, when elected and become president, as we fully believe you will be—that you remember in solicitude the cause of the great common people, the sixty-four and three-fourths million toilers. The people for whom Jefferson lived and labored, and for whom Lincoln lived and labored as well. The people whose arm never tires, the people whose labor produces the wealth of the nation, and whose prosperity is the prosperity of all; whose devotion never ceases; whose patriotism never falters; who are ever ready to defend and protect; they who are the rock upon which our country may safely rest; they whose strength builds, whose loyalty guards, whose patriotism defends the integrity, with their life blood, if need be, over which their country's enemy can never pass.

"Now, sir, believing in your faithfulness, integrity and wisdom to perform the duties of such high office, we hereby tender you the nomination of the Kansas City silver republican convention, and most respectfully request that you accept of the same, and become our candidate for the presidency of our beloved republic, and may your proudest plume be that you never deserted your country's welfare. With great respect, we are,

"SAMUEL W. HOPKINS, Chairman.
"SAMUEL I. HALE, Secretary.

Bryan's Acceptance Letter.

In response to the above notification Mr. Bryan on Friday, October 19, gave out the following letter:

"Hon. Samuel W. Hopkins, Chairman, and Others, Members of the Notification Committee of the Silver Lincoln Republican Party: I am in receipt of your letter formally notifying me of my nomination for the presidency by the silver Lincoln republican national convention held at Kansas City July 4 last. In accepting the nomination I beg to express my hearty appreciation of the support given our ticket by the members of your party in the campaign of 1896, and of the fidelity shown by them during the four years which have since elapsed. The evidence of confidence and good will manifested anew by the last national convention places me under renewed obligations. There is a consistency in the democratic mind which leads an individual to apply old principles to new conditions, and I was therefore not surprised to find that those who left the republican party in 1896 on the money question are now opposed to it on the trust question, which has increased in importance since 1896, and upon militarism and imperialism, the new questions which the republican party has forced upon the public within the last two years.

"Your platform, of which you inclosed a copy, in its declarations is so similar to the democratic platform adopted at Kansas City, that it is not necessary for me to take up the planks in detail. I hasten the following documents, and make them a part of this letter:

"1. My speech at Indianapolis, in reply to the democratic notification committee, dealing with imperialism, militarism and the resolution expressing sympathy for the Boers.

"2. My letter formally accepting the democratic nomination, covering other planks of the platform.

"3. My speech accepting the populist nomination, dealing with those issues upon which the democrats and populists occupy common ground.

"4. My speech delivered in St. Louis the 15th of September on the trust question.

"These documents have already been widely published in the press of the country, and the members of your party are fully informed in regard to my views upon the questions covered.

"In 1896 the money question was the question of paramount importance, but the republican party, by its disregard of the principles of our republic, and by its advocacy of policies repugnant to the doctrine of self-government, has left us no choice but to summon all lovers of the declaration of independence to the defense of that sacred document and the constitution framed in accordance with it.

"In your letter you quote several appropriate extracts from Lincoln's speeches. I find in a speech by Lincoln in 1858 a defense of the declaration of independence, accompanied by a fervent and patriotic appeal to his countrymen not to abandon the principles therein enunciated. It is so applicable to the present time and so in harmony with the references you have made to Lincoln's words that I quote the following extract:

"'Now, my countrymen, if you have been taught doctrines conflicting with the great landmarks of the declaration of independence; if you have listened to suggestions that

State News.

J. A. Holcomb, a prominent farmer of Simpson county, Ky., was seized with an attack of coughing and strangled to death.

Bourbon citizens have petitioned the County Court to appoint a Game Warden for the protection of fish and game according to law, and the signers pledge themselves to pay the salary.

Mad foxes are causing much alarm to farmers on Upper Floyd's Fork Creek. There seems to be a number of them suffering from hydrophobia. They have bitten quite a number of animals on the farms along the creek A great number of dead foxes have been found in the woods and on the creek which have died from malady. In some instances persons have been attacked by the mad animals and much alarm has been created in the neighborhood.

Crop and Stock.

A conservative estimate of Florida's orange crop this year places the yield at 1,000,000 boxes.

It is said one of the large packing companies has completed arrangements for embarking in the business of separating the whites and yolks of eggs, canning them separately, freezing them and placing them on the market for use by bakers.

The Department of Animal Husbandry of the University of Illinois has recently secured by purchase and by loan some fine specimens of the Dorset and Oxford breeds of sheep. These animals will be used by the department for purposes of class study.

The wheat crop of Great Britain according to recent returns will average thirty three bushels per acre for 1899. The previous year, the average was thirty-five bushels per acre. This more than doubles the yield per acre in the United States.

Mr. P. Watson, of Bethany has a cow that had three calves before she was thirty months old. The first one was born when she was about a year old and twins came in a little more than a year thereafter. He also has a three-legged pig that is as fat and healthy as any of his hogs.—Owen News

The Supreme Court of Oregon has decided that a mortgage on a flock of sheep does not entitle the mortgagee to the wool that may be taken off unless this is specifically provided for in the body of the mortgage. One thousand calves from Mexico were recently unloaded at Iowa City. The shipment made a full train, which was twice unloaded en route so that the young animals could have the necessary feed, rest, and exercise.

In the estimation of the most experienced men of the market, the growers are making a serious mistake rushing their tobacco to market. The trust is holding off of new tobacco and it is evident only two manfuacturers are on the market for this crop at present. Under the circumstances there is no competition on new tobacco; therefore, prices on this crop are not what might be expected. Mmaufacturers clearly show they are not ready for the new crop, and do not care to buy freely of new, when whether conditions at present are not the best, and tobacco is too soft to keep without immediate handling. The liberal offering of new is not alone affecting this crop, but the 1899 crop as well. If the Kentucky growers of todacco care to act on the side of wisdom, a waiting game will be instituted, and a liberal amount of tobacco will not be seen on the market before the last of November. December, would not be too late to send the new to market, for we are of strongly the opinion the more the manufacturers see of the new crop the better it will be for the prices as the quality is a disappointment, and old tobaccos as well as new are likely to enhance in value as the season advances.—The Weed.

CARE OF ORCHARDS.

How an orchard should be cared for is a question we are often asked, and it is a pretty large one. It is really much as though one should ask another how his family of boys and girls should be reared. Suppose, however, that an orchard has been set and started and has grown well for a year. Don't take too much advice as how to care for it, but cultivate it well for five or six years longer. Corn is a good crop to plant in it, and it is best during this interval to have the stems of the trees wrapped loosely with wire screening to keep mice, rabbits, etc., from injuring them. Go over them with a knife and trim them out some whenever they need it but never severely or down on the stems, pruning mostly on the south side and more on the north and northwest [illegible] of the fifth, year, or beginning of the sixth, seed to clover and allow the ground to settle until the trees begin bearing and a draft begins to be made upon the soil by them. Then keep the disc harrow going each season to enlarge the fruit and throw all the growth possible into the fruit in order to give size and flavor. In the case of a small orchard it would be a good thing each fall to completely cover the ground with manure. If the seasons run well as a rule and the growth of wood is heavy, the formation of fruit buds is likely to be light. In this case cease cultivation and let the ground lie seeded clover again. Investigate spraying as an art, for it has great value and if by its means one can destroy the moth and grow clean apples, free from worms and scab, a large point will have been gained. If accurate, careful and scientific work is done on the trees with the means now in hand, there is no question but what the whole crop of apples will be sold each year at a good premium even before the crop is ready to pick.— From the Homestead.

"For three days and nights I suffered agony untold from an attack of cholera morbus brought on by eating cucumbers," says M. E. Lowther, clerk of the district court, Centerville, Iowa. "I thought I should surely die, and tried a dozen different medicines but all to no purpose. I sent for a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and three doses relieved me entirely." This remedy is for sale by McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; Grant, Bellevue; Balsly, Bullittsville.

BRIEF PARAGRAPHS.

The more a man has the more he wants—unless it happens to be twins.

The trouble with a great many men is that they can't depend on what they say.

Giving a man advice and throwing stones at a dog have about the same effect.

Man is made of dust; along comes the watering cart of fame and his name is mud.

Three years undisturbed possession of a setter dog will destroy any man's veracity.

In the midst of life a man is in debt—and his creditors don't allow him to forget it.

The man who has a tendency to make an ass of himself, never lacks for ski'l or material.

When a man is beside himself he should never place much confidence in his companion.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR.

A woman's politics are shaped about like a woman's bundle.

Probably if a donkey could talk it would go around arguing that the horse's ears were too short.

By the time it comes a man's turn to die he has just about had time to learn how to live comfortably.

Some men would never be what they are if it hadn't been for women that refused them and it made them mad.

A woman's idea of a mean woman is one who wouldn't knock a bug off another woman's neck if she had anything against her.

A man has a mind; a woman has a brain.

Half of the average woman's "excuses" are only "reasons."

People can never fall so deep in love that their ears won't stick out.

When a woman is in love she can never pass a knock-kneed cat without getting tears in her eyes.

You would think by the fuss some women make that they expected you to believe they had never been kissed before except by their mothers.—New York Press.

DRILL FOR BACHELORS.

Fall in—Love with a good and industrious young lady.

Attention—Pay to her faithfully and respectfully.

Quick March—To her parents, and ask their consent.

File Right—With her to church and go through the service of matrimony.

Halt—And reflect upon the new duties you have to perform.

Right-about-face—From the haunt which you have frequented when single, and prefer your own home.

Advance Arms—To your young wife when walking with her, and never let her trail behind.

Dismiss—All foolish ideas about her being an angel, and treat her as a comrade.

An exchange says the following is related of an editor in an adjoining county when a boy, his father then running a weekly paper. One day an advance agent for a show came along and ordered some posters printed on cotton cloth. His order was filled, but for some reason he neglected to call for them, and they were left behind. The editor's wife ran across them; as cloth was then a little scarce she took them home to line a pair of pants with that she was making for the future editor, then a boy about ten years old. As the months rolled by the pantaloons grew bare and at school one day he accidentally tore the seat out, leaving about one foot of the lining exposed to view. This of itself would have made the boys smile, but they laughed until the tears came when they observed the following words standing out boldly in large type: "Doors open at 7:30; performance begins at 8:00.

A Bostonian who died recently had a peculiar fad as a collector. He restricted himself to a search for relics of John Wilkes Booth in connection with the assassination of President Lincoln. He obtained all three playbills dated on the night of the tragedy. One was used at the theater, one was printed for use and canceled and the other was a counterfeit issued by an unscrupulous printer. Autograph letters of John Wilkes Booth are rare, but there are at least seven in Boston. One covering less than two sides of a page sold for $150.

FOR SALE.
Desiring to retire from farming I offer for sale my farm of 62 acres, near Florence, this county, and known as the Allen Conner farm. About one-half of this land was never plowed, and the entire track is very fertile and under splendid fence. The dwelling of seven rooms is in excellent repair throughout. All necessary outbuildings in good order. There is abundance of good stock water in the dryest seasons. It has an orchard of 3 acres. Terms made known on application. This is one of the best farms in the county, and is well located.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1900. NO. 3.

A new use has been found for glass, says the Scientific American. It consists in packing butter in a box made of six sheets of ordinary window glass, the edges being covered with gummed paper. The closed box is then enveloped in a layer of plaster of paris one-fourth of an inch thick, and it is covered with a specially prepared paper. As the plaster is a bad conductor of heat, the temperature inside the hermetically sealed receptacle remains constant, being unaffected by external changes. The cost of packing is only about 2c per pound. It is used to a great extent in Australia. Butter has been sent from Melbourne to Kimberley, in Africa, and the butter was found to be in a perfectly sound condition. Cases are now made which hold as much as 200 pounds of butter.

A humorous cuss from Kansas wants to know "where is the state of matrimony"? says the Chicago World. Well, as near as we can locate it, this happy state is one of the United States. It is bounded by hugging and kissing on one side and cradles and babies on the other. Its chief production is population, broom sticks and staying out at night. It was discovered by Adam and Eve while trying to find a passage out of paradise. The climate is rather sultry until you pass the tropics of housekeeping, when squalling weather sets in without sufficient power to keep all hands down. For the principle road leading to this state consult the first pair of blue eyes you run up against.

What will we do when the wood is all gone? This question has been asked from the beginning of the settlement of this country, and the question has been answered as rapidly as there was the necessity for an answer. Wood passed out as fuel, and coal took its place. Wood is rapidly passing out as building material, and stone and brick and iron are taking its place. Recently the farmers have been asking what they shall do for permanent fence posts.

The answer has come in the discovery that most excellent posts can be made of sand and Portland cement, prepared the same as for sidewalk purposes, and molded to the required form. Before it hardens holes may be punched where it is desired to insert wires or slats set in, to which boards may be nailed. They are no more expensive than cedar posts.

"There are no people on the face of the earth who litter up the rooms of their homes with so much useless, and consequently bad furnishing as do the Americans," writes Edward Bok in the November Ladies' Home Journal. "The curse of the American home is useless bric-a-brac. A room in which we can freely breath is so rare that we are instinctively surprised when we see one. It is the exception, rather than the rule, that we find a restful room. As a matter of fact to this common error of overfurnishing so many of our homes, are directly due many of the nervous breakdowns of our women. The average American woman is a perfect slave to the useless rubbish which she has in her rooms. This rubbish of a costly nature where plenty exist, and of a cheap and tawdry character in homes of moderate incomes is making housekeeping a nerve-racking burden. A serious phase of this furnishing is that hundreds of women believe these knicknacks ornament their rooms. They refuse to believe that useless ornamentation always disfigures and never ornaments. Simplicity is the only thing that ornaments. Never move to dignifies. The most artistic rooms are made not by what is in them, but by what has been left out of them. One can never quarrel with simplicity, and nothing goes so make up for perfect good taste so surely as a simple effect. A tasteful effect is generally reached by what has been left undone. And this is the lesson most needed in America today: not what we can put into a room, but what we can leave out of it."

The feeling in Germany against the wholesale slaughter of birds in Italy is getting very bitter. This year very few swallows have come [illegible] and it is feared that a few years more they will be practically exterminated.—N. Y. Sun.

A few days since Carroll Payne and Sloss Smith went on a trip of exploration in the Watt's Mill Cave, about three miles from Bowlin Green. On a shelving rock they discovered almost an entire set of buffalo teeth, with indications surrounding them of the disintegration of the head of the animal. The teeth are in a most excellent state of preservation.

Slackwater from Lock No. 8 has come to stay, and the river at this point is now deep enough to float large river steamboats. Last Saturday the water covered the last vestige of the sandbar above the railroad bridge, and rendered fording a thing of the past. It will be only a short time now until the residents of Valley View will hear the hoarse whistle of the steamboat and witness the novel sight of cargoes of freight and excursionists loading and unloading at our wharf.—Valley View Argent.

County Judge P. O. Duffy sat in judgment Saturday in two of the most remarkable cases on record. The first was the case of Garfield Williams, charged with turning loose two live snakes in the Pee Ridge church, in north Todd, during a protracted meeting there Thursday night of last week. Williams carried the snakes to the altar in his hat and turned them loose, to produce screaming among the good sisters and a general stampede among the brethren. Judge Duffy gave Williams the full extent of the law, twenty days in jail and a $50 fine. The other case was that of Ike Thompson, charged with whipping his mother-in-law, Mrs. Sarah J. Segar, of near Bivinsville. Thompson was given $25 and the trimmings.—Elkton Progress.

The Thomas Fiber Company, recently organized in Trenton, N. J. may cut the cost of paper in two. The fiber company was formed to throughly test the discovery of Robert Thomas that pulp can be made from cotton seed hulls at one half the cost of the manufacture from wood pulp.

Robert Thomas, discoverer of the new use for cotton seed hulls, was for 30 years in the paper-making business in the South, and a few months ago, while operating a small mill in Florida, he learned the chemical action which will reduce the hulls to pulp.

Many attempts have been made to put cotton seed hulls to some use, but none had been successful up to the time of Mr. Thomas' discovery. [illegible]

The developments in the utilization of the products of the cotton fields have been many. The seeds were first discovered to have valuable oil; then the refuse of the seeds made good cattle feed and fertilizer. Even the plants have been utilized. Thousands of tons of hulls were thrown away in the cotton belt each year. These may now be untilized for paper making.

The cost of producing the new pulp will be about one half the cost of producing wood pulp. A curious feature of the new pulp is that its odor when burning cannot be distinguished from that of wood pulp, and it has defied experts to tell its origin by any of the known tests.

Its tensile strength is very much greater than wood fiber, which will make it valuable for bags and wrapping paper.

Cynthiana Court—A fairly good crowd in attendance court day. The hundred head of cattle on the market and all sold. Some good yearling steers sold from 4 to 4½c.; medium stuff was not in demand and sold low, from 3 to 3½t. Milch cows in fair demand from $25 to $40. But little doing in either mules or horses publicly; at the stables some sold privately at fair prices.

A representative of the News, accompanied by several others from Owenton, visited the lead mines near Gratz, Sunday afternoon, and our eye for the first time in life caught a glimpse of the glories and romance that must surround a typical western mining camp. The mines are situated about a mile down the river from Gratz, in a very romantic and picturesque spot, surrounded by a landscape as beautiful as an artist's dream, on a high cliff overlooking the mumbling and treacherous waters of the Kentucky river. Mr. M. H. Miller, the superintendent of the mines, escorted the party about the camp, explaining everything, which was quite interesting and novelistic. We also met Mr. B. A. Atkinson, of Boston, Mass., one of the promoters of the enterprise and the largest stock holder in the mines. Mr. Atkinson is a typical miner, a big jolly, jovial, genial gentleman, and always wears a welcome smile as broad and cheerful as his light sombrero for the "tenderfoot" who visits his "diggins". Mr. Atkinson says he is exceedingly well pleased and agreeably surprised with the output of ore, and he thinks it will not be long before all that vast rugged country for miles around will be developed into one of the richest and most productive lead mining districts in the world. He thinks he has located a bonanza, and will continue to improve and develop the mines as rapidly as possible. He has placed orders for 50 cottages to be erected right away, and it is only a question of a few months when West Gratz, the name selected for the new mining settlement, will in population be second to no town in the county. The large mill is fitted up with the latest and most modern machinery, which cleans the ore from the rock and dirt. The machinery has only been in operation for about ten days, and the Bonanza Mine has made one carload shipment of ore, and has about 200 tons ready for shipment now. The ore is shipped east where it goes through a process of smelting, and Mr. Atkinson informs us that he realized $15 for silver on each ton of ore, also about half that for copper. All these minerals are of the best and purest quality and commands the highest prices on the markets.—Owen News.

Transfusion of blood is a procedure that must have been employed by physicians in very early times. Ovid tells of Meadea bringing back youth to the aged by the injection into their veins of the blood of young men, and doubtless the same means was employed by physicians for less fantastic objects. The injection of the blood of one person into the veins of another was until recently done to save life after severe hemorrhage and in various forms of blood poisoning. Sometimes a direct communication was made between the veins of the donor and of the recipient by means of a tube; at other times the healthy subject was bled into a bowl, and the blood was beaten to remove the fibrin before it was passed into the blood vessels of the patient. The procedure is a dangerous one, however, although many lives have been saved by it, and it has now been almost entirely abandoned, a much easier plan being used. It is found that the blood when defibrinated is no longer a fluid, and the corpuscles it contains serve no useful purpose when injected, but rather act as foreign matter which must be got rid of. Accordingly physicians now use distilled water, in which a definite proportion of common salt and other chlorides has been dissolved. This solution is warmed, and is injected slowly into a vein at the bend of the elbow, about a quart being used. Often it is not even necessary to pour the fluid into a vein but simply to inject it through one or more hollow needles in the tissues beneath the skin of the abadomen or the thigh. This is done not only to supply an equivalent for fluid lost in hemorrhage or cholera but also in certain diseases in which blood poisoning exists. In this latter case a large amount of fluid is injected slowly, and being taken up by the blood, is almost immediately excreted through the kidneys, carrying with it much of the poison which the blood was unable to rid itself of unaided. This operation has been felicitously called "blood washing," for this is what it really is, and to the process humanity owes the savings of many lives.—Youths' Companion.

On Wednesday Maj. O. S. Tenney brought to the Herald office an ear of corn which was raised on his place, three miles from Lexington, on the Maysville road, which is one of the largest, if not the largest, of which any record is known in this country. It is a perfect ear, 12½ inches long, 9 inches in circumference, and contains 1,168 grains of corn. With land that will raise such corn as this it seems that Kentucky should not fear competition.—Lexington Herald.

Young man you are going away to college. Don't forget to write a letter home. Your parents are probably making sacrifices that you may be educated and spared the back-breaking labor of the farm or the shop. Don't let anything interfere with a duty that you owe your father and mother. Of all the letters that you write let those that are intended for home be the most chastely worded and neatly penned. The ones who gave you being, and from whom you inherit the physical and mental endowments which may some day enable you to enroll your name among the great ones of the earth are preeminently entitled to the very best that is in you. If all others should forsake you, and you were left upon the roadside to die unnoticed by the world, they would come along and gather you up and take you home and tell you of your virtures until you almost forget that your soul was disfigured by vice. No matter what adversity overtakes you, they will love you as tenderly as they did when they sat by your bed during the still watches of the night and kissed your fever parched lips.—Paris Gazette.

Copper was probably the next metal to gold which man learned to extract and reduce. It is often found in a native state; it is very widely diffused; it is quite abundant. The present state of archaeological research does not enable us to locate all the principal copper mines of the ancients, nor to compute the quantity of metal which they yielded, but it is believed that both the Hindoos and Chinese commanded supplies sufficiently ample to warrant them in making coins of this metal at a period which may be fixed approximately at about 12 centuries before our era. From that time down to the Roman period, the vicissitudes of mining and of wars, which altered the possession of mines, were such that copper was often too scarce in one or another country to warrant its sole use for coins, and other expedients had to be resorted to. But, on the whole, it maintained its ground longer and more satisfactorily everywhere than either gold or silver. Indeed, until the opening of the Saxon silver mines, in the middle ages, copper, throughout the entire civilized world, was much more truly and essentially the material of money than either of the other metals, or indeed, any other substances. Viewed from this point, says the Cambridge Encyclopaedia, its history as one of the precious metals has not received the attention which its importance deserves.

Copper was one of the greatest articles of commerce with the Phoenicians, who derived a large supply from the mines of Nubia, that at one time supplied the whole of the western world. They combined with it the tin obtained from the Island of Cyprus and Britain to make the bronze of commerce. Copper was used by some of the northern nations of Europe in the fabrication of weapons at a period and under circumstances when steel or iron appeared to be more precious than gold. This has been illustrated in Denmark by the opening of tumuli of every remote ages, from which have been collected knives, daggers, sowods, and implements of industay, many of which are preserved in the National museum at Copenhagen. Some of these implements have blades of gold and edge of iron. Some of them are formed of copper, with edges of iron. The profuse application of copper and gold, when contrasted with the parsimony evident in the expenditure of iron, seems to prove that the former were much more common products than the latter.

Six Frightful Failures.

Six terrible failures of six different doctors sent Wm. H. Mullen of Locklamd, O., to an early grave. All said that he had a fatal lung trouble and must soon die. But he was urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. After taking five bottles he was entirely cured. It is positively guaranteed to cure all diseases of Throat, Chest or lungs, including, Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Pneumonia, Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Croup, Whooping Cough. 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at McKim's, Burlington; Crooch's, Union; Oelsner, Florence.

I knew a man who trained his dog never to bark. Three years were necessary for perfect success in the making of a nonbarking dog, and my friend flattered himself that he had a novelty. But I am inclined to think that he would not have wasted those three years had he known that there are at least three varieties that never bark—the Australian dog, the Egyptian shepherd dog and the "lion headed" dog of Tibet.

In some Japanese cities a nonbarking dog would be deemed valuable for there they have a quaint law which makes the owner of a night barker liable to arrest and the penalty of a year's work for the benefit of neighbors who may have been disturbed. The fact that the barking of a dog on the earth can be heard by a balloonist at a height of about four miles does not appeal to the average man so much as the fact that that same barking can often be heard four streets away.—Chambers Journal.

The offerings in the Cincinnati tobacco market last week were small, the total number not reaching 700 hhds. The demand for all sorts of tobacco offered was hearty. Buyers were willing to pay full prices and bid freely on each hogshead offered. The market for tobaccos of decided good character was firmer and prices slightly higher. Bright trashes were wanted and better prices were bid for them. Tips and red fillers were stronger in the bidding, and prices were thought to be a shade better than for the same sorts a week ago. Bright fillers and Cutters are still wanted and are selling well.

The full census returns show that the new apportionment on Congressmen will give, unless the number in the House be increased; a gain of one vote each for Colorado, Texas, Illinois, Minnesota, Louisiana, West Virginia, New Jersey and New York, and a loss of one each for Indiana, Kansas, Nebraska, Kentucky, South Carolina, Virginia and Maine. This is a net gain of one each for the east and the middle states, and a net loss of one each for the south and the far west.

The United States is really weaker today than it was two years ago because it now has a vast quantity of outlying territory to defend which lies at the mercy of any power with a stronger navy.

(From Warsaw Independent.)

Sam Clore and John Williams have established a rabbitry here, having purchased from Indianapolis parties several Belgian hares and placed in breeding here, and they have now by increase about a dozen. This industry has been thriving in California the past year and many of the other States are taking it up with signal success. It is claimed that it is far easier and cheaper to raise rabbits than chickens and they sell as readily for as good a price, furnishing a superior quality of meat and with less trouble. It has proven quite a success in some quarters, and Messrs. Clore and Williams intend showing what can be done in that line in this quarter. They will have some of the hares for sale before long.

A TIMELY DISCOURSE

Dr. Talmage Preaches a Sermon on Religion and Politics.

The Man Faithful to God Is the Most Faithful to His Country—An Example from the Life of Daniel.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.]

This discourse of Dr. Talmage is appropriate for all seasons, but especially in these times of great political agitation. The text is, Daniel vi., 16: "Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel and cast him into the den of lions."

Darius was king of Babylon, and the young man Daniel was so much a favorite with him that he made him prime minister, or secretary of state. But no man could gain such a high position without exciting the envy and jealousy of the people. There were demagogues in Babylon who were so appreciative of their own abilities that they were affronted at the elevation of this young man. Old Babylon was afraid of young Babylon. The taller the cedar the more apt it is to be riven of the lightning. These demagogues asked the king to make a decree that anybody that made a petition to anyone except the king during a period of 30 days should be put to death. King Darius, not suspecting any foul play, makes that decree. The demagogues have accomplished all they want, because they know that no one can keep Daniel from sending petition before God for 30 days.

So far from being afraid, Daniel goes on with his supplications three times a day and is found on his housetop making prayer. He is caught in the act. He is condemned to be devoured by the lions. Rough executioners of the law seize him and hasten him to the cavern. I hear the growl of the wild beasts and I see them pawing the dirt, and as they put their mouths to the ground the solid earth quakes with their bellowings. I see their eyes roll, and I almost hear the fiery eyeballs snap in the darkness. These monsters approach Daniel. They have an appetite keen with hunger. With one stroke of their paw or one snatch of their teeth they may leave him dead at the bottom of the cavern. But what a strange welcome Daniel receives from these hungry monsters! They fawn around him; they lick his hand; they bury his feet in their long manes. That night he has calm sleep with his head pillowed on the warm necks of the tamed lions.

But not so well does Darius, the king, sleep. He has an attack of terrific insomnia. He loves Daniel and hates this stratagem by which he has been condemned. All night long the king walks the floor. He cannot sleep. At the least sound he starts, and the flesh creeps with horror. He is impatient for the dawning of the morning. At the first streak of the daylight Darius hastens forth to see the fate of Daniel. The heavy palace doors open and clang shut long before the people of the city waken. Darius goes to the den of the lions. He looks in. All is silent. His heart stops. He feels that the very worst has happened; but, gathering all his strength, he shouts through the rifts of the rock: "O Daniel, is thy God whom thou servest continually able to deliver thee?" There comes rolling up from the deep darkness a voice which says: "O king, live forever. My God has sent His angel to shut the lions' mouths that they have not hurt me." Then Daniel is brought out from the den. The demagogues are hurled into it, and no sooner have they struck the bottom of the den than their flesh was rent, and their bones cracked, and their blood spurted through the rifts of the rock, and as the lions make the rocks tremble with their roar they announce to all ages that while God will defend his people the way of the ungodly shall perish.

Learn first from this subject that the greatest crime that you commit in the eyes of many is the crime of success. What had Daniel done that he should be flung to the lions? He had become prime minister. They could not forgive him for that, and behold in that a touch of unsanctified human nature as seen in all ages of the world. So long as you are pinched in poverty, so long as you are running the gauntlet between landlord and taxgatherer, so long as you find it hard work to educate your children, there are people who will say: "Poor man, I am sorry for him. He ought to succeed, poor man." But after awhile the tide turns in his favor. That was a profitable investment you made. You thought just at the right time. Fortune becomes good humored and smiles upon you. Now you are in some department successful, and your success chills some one. Those men who used to sympathize with you stand along the street, and they scowl at you from under the rim of their hats. You have more money or more influence than they have, and you ought to be scowled at from under the rim of their hats. You catch a word or two as you pass them by. "Stuck up," says one. "Got it dishonestly," says another. "Will burst soon," says a third. Every stone in your new house is laid on their hearts. Your horses' hoofs went over their nerves. Every item of your success has been to them an item of discomfiture and despair. Just as soon as in any respect you rise above your fellows, if you are more virtuous, if you are more wise, if you are more influential, you cast a shadow on the prospects of others. The road to honor and success is within reach of the enemy's guns. Jealousy says: "Strike down or I'll knock you down." "I do not like you," says the snowflake to the snowbird. "Why don't you like me?" said the snowbird. "Oh," said the snowflake, "you are going up and I am coming down." Young merchants, young lawyers, young doctors, young mechanics, young artists, young farmers, at certain times there are those to sympathize with you, but now that you are becoming a master of your particular occupation or profession, how is it now, young lawyers, young doctors, young artists, young farmers—how is it now? The greatest crime that you can commit is the crime of success.

Again, my subject impresses me with the value of decision of character in any department. Daniel knew that if he continued his adherence to the religion of the Lord he would be hurled to the lions; but, having set his compass well, he sailed right on. For the lack of that element of decision of character so eminent in Daniel many men are ruined for this world and ruined for the world to come. A great many at 40 years of age are not settled in any respect, because they have not been able to make up their minds. Perhaps they will go west; perhaps they will go east; perhaps they will not; perhaps they will go north; perhaps they may go south; perhaps they will not; perhaps they may make that investment in real estate or in railroads; perhaps they will not. They are like a steamer that should go out of New York harbor, starting for Glasgow, and the next day should change for Havre de Grace, and the next for Charleston, and the next for Boston, and the next for Liverpool. These men on the sea of life ever-lastingly tacking ship and making no headway! Or they are like a man who starts to build a house in the Corinthian style and changes it to Doric and then completes it in the Ionic, the curse of all styles of architecture. Young man, start right and keep on. Have decision of character. Character is like the goldfinch of Tonquin. It is magnificent while standing firm, but loses all its beauty in flight. How much decision of character in order that these young men may be Christians! Their old associates make sarcastic flings at them. They go on excursions, and they do not invite them. They prophesy that he will give out. They wonder if he is not getting wings. As he passes they grimace and wink and chuckle and say: "There goes a saint." O young man, have decision of character! You can afford in this matter of religion to be laughed at. What do you care for the scoffs of these men, who are affronted because you will not go to ruin with them? When the grave cracks open under their feet, and grim messengers push them into it, and eternity comes down hard upon their spirit, and conscience stings, and hopeless ruin lifts them up to hurl them down, will they laugh then?

I learn also from my subject that men may take religion into their worldly business. This is a most appropriate thought at this season of the year, when so many men are starting out in new enterprises. Daniel had enough work to do to occupy six men. All the affairs of state were in his hands; questions of finance, questions of war, of peace; all international questions were for his settlement or adjustment. He must have had a correspondence vast beyond all computation. There was not a man in all the earth who had more to do than Daniel, the secretary of state, and yet we find him three times a day bowing before God in prayer. There are men in our day who have not a hundredth part of Daniel's engagements who say they are too busy to be religious. They have an idea somehow that religion will spoil their worldly occupation, that it will trip the accountant's pen or dull the carpenter's saw or confuse the lawyer's brief or disarrange the merchant's store shelf. They think religion is impertinent. They would like to have it very well seated beside them in church on the Sabbath, to find the place in the psalmbook or to nudge them awake when they get sleepy under the didactic discourse, or they would like to leave it in the pew on Sabbath evening as they go out, closing the door, saying: "Good night, religion; I'll be back next Sunday!" But to have religion go right along by them all through life, to have religion looking over their shoulder when they are making a bargain, to have religion take up a bag of dishonest gold and shake it and say, "Where did you get that?" They think that is an impertinent religion. They would like to have a religion to help them when they are sick, and when the shadow of death comes over them they would like to have religion as a sort of nightkey with which to open the door of Heaven, but religion under other circumstances they take to be impertinence.

Now, my friends, religion never robbed a man of a dollar. Other things being equal, a mason will build a better wall, a cabinet maker will make a better chair, a plumber will make a better pipe, a lawyer will make a better plea, a merchant will sell a better bill of goods. I say, other things being equal. Of course when religion gives a man a new heart, it does not propose to give him a new head or to intellectualize him or to change a man's condition when his ordinary state is an overthrow of the philosophical theory that a total vacuum is impossible, but the more letters you have to write, the more burdens you have to carry, the more miles you have to travel, the more burdens you have to lift, the more engagements you have to meet, the more disputes you have to settle, the more opportunity you have of being a Christian. If you have a thousand lions in the fire, you have a thousand more opportunities of serving God than if you only had one iron in the fire. Who so busy as Christ? And yet who a millionth part as help? The busiest men the best men. All the persons converted in Scripture busy at the time of their being converted. Matthew attending to his custom house duties; the prodigal son feeding swine; Lydia selling purple; Simon Peter hauling in the net from the sea; Saul spurring his horse toward Damascus, going down on his law business: Busy, busy! Daniel with all the affairs of state weighing down upon his soul, and yet three times a day worshiping the God of Heaven.

Again I learn from this subject that a man may take religion into his politics. Daniel had all the affairs of state on hand, yet a servant of God. He could not have kept his elevated position unless he had been a thorough politician, and yet all the thrusts of officials and all the danger of disgrace did not make him yield one iota of his high toned religious principle. He stood before that age, he stands before all ages, a specimen of a godly politician. So there have been in our day and in the days of our fathers men as eminent in the service of God as they have been eminent in the service of the state. Such was Benjamin F. Butler, attorney general of New York in the time of your fathers. Such was John McLean, of the supreme court of the United States. Such was George Briggs, of Massachusetts. Such was Theodore Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey—men faithful to the state, at the same time faithful to God. It is absurd to expect that men who have been immersed in political wickedness for 30 or 40 years shall come to reformation, and our hope is in the young men who are coming up, that they have patriotic principle and Christian principle side by side when they come to the ballot box and cast their first vote and that they swear allegiance to the government of Heaven as well as to the government of the United States. We would have Bunker Hill mean less to them than Cavalry, and Lexington mean less than Bethlehem, but because there are bad men around the ballot box is no reason why Christian men should retreat from the arena. The last time you ought to give up your child or forsake your child is when it is surrounded by a company of Choctaws, and the last time to surrender the ballot box is when it is surrounded by impurity and dishonesty and all sorts of wickedness.

Daniel stood on a most unpopular platform. He stood firmly, though the demagogues of the day hissed at him and tried to overthrow him. We must carry our religion into our politics. But there are a great many men who are in favor of taking religion into national politics who do not see the importance of taking it into city politics, as though a man were intelligent about the welfare of his neighborhood and had no concern about his own home.

My subject also impresses me with the fact that lions cannot hurt a good man. No man ever got into worse company than Daniel got when he was thrown into the den. What a rare morsel that fair young man would have been for the hungry monsters! If they had plunged at him he could not have climbed into a niche beyond the reach of their paw or the snatch of their tooth. They came, pleased, all around him, as hunters' hounds at the well-known whistle come bounding to his feet. You need not go to Numidia to get many lions. You all have them after you—the lion of financial distress, the lion of sickness, the lion of persecution. You saw that lion of financial panic putting his mouth down to the earth, and he roared until all the banks and all the insurance companies quaked. With his nostril he scattered the ashes on the domestic hearth. You have had trial after trial, misfortune after misfortune, lion after lion, and yet they have never hurt you, if you put your trust in God, and they never will hurt you. They did not hurt Daniel, and they cannot hurt you. The Persians used to think that spring rain falling into seashells would turn into pearls, and I have to tell you that the tears of sorrow turn into precious gems when they drop into God's bottle. You need be afraid of nothing, putting your trust in God. Even death, that monster lion whose den is the world's sepulcher, and who puts his paw down amid thousands of millions of the dead, cannot affright you. When in olden times a man was to get the honors of knighthood, he was compelled to go fully armed the night before among the tombs of the dead, carrying a sort of spear, and then when the day broke he would come forth, and, amid the sound of cornet and great parade, he would get the honors of knighthood. And so it will be with the Christian in the night before Heaven, as, fully armed with spear and helmet of salvation, he will wait and watch through the darkness until the morning dawns, and then he will take the honors of Heaven amid the great throng with snowy robes, streaming over seas of sapphire.

A Phrase in a Name.

Once, after exposing the ridiculous blunders of the editor of certain old plays, James Russell Lowell concluded with the remark: "In point of fact, we must apply to this gentleman the name of the first king of Sparta." No one remembered, of course, what this was, but when they looked it up they found it was Eudamidas.

Biggest Sturgeon Ever Caught.

The largest sturgeon on record was caught in the North sea. It weighed 525 pounds, but the delight of the fishermen was tempered by the fact that it did $750 worth of damage to the nets before it was given the soup de grace.

THE CRAB APPLE.

It Has No Superior for Preserving and Jelly Making—How to Prepare Them.

The crab apple is indigenous in most parts of the temperate zone. It is the primitive form of the apple, which, shriveled and brown with age, has been found among the relics of the lake dwellers, proving the antiquity of this fruit. And though the modern crab apple is the only form of this species of primitive apple we have, all our various pippins, spitzenbergs, greenings and other apples are believed to have descended from the humble apples which the lake dwellers and people of their generation cultivated, says the New York Tribune.

For preserving and making jelly the crab apple is superior to any other apple, though a hard, sweet "wild" apple, raised from the seed of a sweet apple, is a better fruit for sweet pickles and spicing. Crab apples are only useful for sweet preserves like jelly, marmalades and conserves of the whole fruit.

For jellies they should be wiped and have the flower and stem removed. They should be cut up without removing the skins or cores, which give an exceptionally fine flavor to the fruit. The latter can then be put in a stone jar, covered and set in a pot of water, which should be kept boiling around the jar for nine or ten hours. At the end of this time set the jar in a cold cellar to cool. In the morning strain off the juice. This is the easier way and requires less lifting of the fruit. But some cooks prefer to add a little water to the fruit and stew it in a porcelain kettle as you would any other apple. In this case you must boil the juice a little longer. Cook the juice squeezed out of the pure apple pulp for 20 minutes, and then add a pound of sugar to every pint of juice, and cook until the mixture "jellies."

To make marmalade strain the pulp through a puree sieve, put over the fire and stir continually to prevent its burning. When it has cooked for 20 minutes add sugar in the proportion of a pound to every pint of pulp and cook a little longer.

For preserving use large Siberian crab apples. Peel them with a penknife, core them and remove the stem and flower. Cut the apples into halves, and put them over the stove to boil with a pint of water to every pound of crab apple. Cook them until tender enough to be pierced with a broom splint. Then strain the water off them, pour it over the cores and peelings of the crab apples and cook for 20 minutes. Strain the juice again, and add to it a pound of sugar for every pound of crab apple. Add the crab apple halves and let them simmer in the sirup until they are clear and transparent—that is, for about ten or 15 minutes. Put them in jars, cover the jars with a layer of paraffine paper and seal them up. In sealing all preserves and jellies it is better to wait until they are cold before covering them permanently.

NOVELTIES IN NECKWEAR.

Some of the Daintiest Ruches and Ruffles That Are Now in Vogue.

Tulle bows appear under many chins, and ruffles are having wide patronage. Some novelties have been brought out in the form of ruffles in white and color, the upper ruche colored, the lower white. Far more fashionable than the black and white are the white ruffles trimmed with the color of the toilet. They are more becoming than the dead white, but not so much so as the soft black silk and chiffon ones which bear the name of Pierrot and are an exact duplicate of the ruffs worn by the heroes of that name. Such ruffs are quite charming on a tall, long-necked woman, but, unhappily, not on those having a short neck, for they are simply smothered in them, says the Washington Star.

A dainty little novelty to a lace neckband which hails from the French capital is a black cravat tied in a knot and edged with gold fringe or passed through a gold slide. Such lace looks very pretty on foulards and other thin fabrics, pointed in the front instead of straight, as in a yoke, and very often accompanying a fichu folded round the shoulder line.

The abbe stock is made of wired lace set with a couple of shaped bands of lace, like those ecclesiastics sometimes wear. Indeed, the whole thing is fashioned on the form of a priest's collar. During the hot weather many dresses have been made with no collar bands at all, the bands being replaced by a scarf placed twice around the throat. Some women use the very soft tulle and tie the bow under one ear, but this is a style that requires to be well worn. The more close fitting the collar band the more fashionable. We are veering away from the high mantle collars.

Pickled Sliced Tomatoes and Onions.

Wash and cut half peck green tomatoes in slices; also six large white onions; put both in a preserving kettle, sprinkle over half cupful salt and let them stand 24 hours, then drain them in a sieve; return the vegetables to a kettle; add half ounce ground pepper, two ounces mustard seed, one teaspoonful ground cloves, two tablespoonfuls celery seed, half cupful sugar and sufficient vinegar to cover all. Boil five minutes, counting from the time the boiling begins, and keep the kettle covered; remove and put in jars; close and set aside. — Ledger Monthly.

The New Skirt.

The general tendency this autumn is toward skirts that are snug about the hips and flare freely at the feet. Those for golf make no exception to the rule. Circular models prevail. The only variations are found in the gored front, and the double in place of the single inverted plait.—Detroit Free Press.

HOW WEAK CHILDREN ARE MADE STRONG, VIGOROUS AND WELL

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hallows, of Peckham St., Globe Village, Fall River, Mass., have cause to thank Dr. Greene's Nervura for restoring to health, and probably preserving the life of their little son. Almost from infancy Everett Hallows was troubled with Indigestion and nervous troubles, and nothing seemed to help him. Finally Dr. Greene's Nervura was recommended and tried with success. A few bottles were sufficient to effect a cure, and to-day the little one is enjoying the best of health. By the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura the sickly child was transformed into a happy, hearty, robust boy.

Dr. Greene's Nervura for the Blood and Nerves

Thousands of other children can thank Dr. Greene and his wonderful remedy for the strength and health they enjoy. Children to whom it is given have less sickness, better health, better growth, and longer and more vigorous lives. Parents should realize that it is their duty to give it to every child who is not in perfect health. There are no diseases more dreaded by parents than fits, epilepsy, and St. Vitus' dance. Yet no child would be troubled by them if Dr. Greene's Nervura were given when the first symptoms appear.

Charles L. McBay, a highly esteemed police officer, who resides at 14 Myrtle St., New Bedford, Mass., says:

"About two years ago my little daughter became run down in health and suffered from St. Vitus' dance. Soon after she was prostrated by rheumatism, which severely affected her low limbs.

"After trying various remedies without obtaining relief, she began taking Dr. Greene's Nervura Blood and nerve remedy, and experienced immediate benefit. She continued its use, and after taking five bottles her rheumatism was practically cured. Her appetite returned, her pains disappeared, she was again able to walk without lameness, her general health was restored, and she was able to attend school and to play like other children."

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, is the prescription and discovery of the well-known Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th Street, New York City, who is the most successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic complaints, and he can be consulted in any case, free of charge, personally or by letter.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS

CORN AND ITS ROOTS.

Would Equal One Mile in Length for Every Plant If Laid End to End.

A very interesting report on corn root development appears in the tenth annual report of the Kansas state board of agriculture. We give a part of it as follows:

"Prof. King, of the Wisconsin experiment station, estimates that all the roots of a healthy corn plant, if laid end to end, would equal one mile in length. The root development measures the leaf development. Fig. 1 shows the root of a corn plant uncovered on a farm in the Kaw valley, Kan. This corn grew in the track of a tree digger that, in taking up nursery stock the preceding fall, had pulverized the soil 18 inches deep and 20 inches wide. The track of the tree digger in its width and depth was a mass of fibrous roots. In the zone between the tree digger or furrows, where the ground was hard, there were few fibrous roots, and a limited number of large, smooth roots. This field yielded 84 bushels of corn per acre that year. The soil—roots [illegible] lowed

4½ fet down, but the ends were not found.

By way of contrast, see Fig. 2, on upland, never plowed over six inches deep. All the fibrous roots (food gatherers) were found in the lower two inches of the cultivated soil. A cultivator tooth, running four inches deep would leave only two inches in depth of cultivated soil in which the food gatherers might work between the rows—entirely too limited an area to secure good results. The root development was small and only two joints were covered sufficiently to send down subsoil roots. The yield was under 40 bushels per acre.

In our illustration the white lines

are one foot apart. It will readily be seen how limited is the root area on the unsubsoiled plats. It should, however, be remarked that the composition of the soil determines to a great extent the value of the subsoiling. Some soils are so loose that subsoiling would be of no benefit.

Sitters and Non-Sitters.

Where the main object in keeping hens is to furnish a supply of eggs, the inveterate sitters, such as Brahmas, Cochins, Plymouth Rocks and Langshans, should be made to work for nearly all they receive. If eggs only are wanted, it is well to have the non-sitting varieties, which saves a great deal of labor. For more people prefer the non-sitters at the present time than formerly. Leghorns, Minorcas, Hamburgs and Houdans are kept very largely, as they are non-sitters. There is one difficulty or drawback with the non-sitters, which is that they lay white eggs, which are not preferred in some markets; but in other places the white eggs are accepted as readily as are those that are dark.—Farm and Fireside.

Test in Wintering Bees.

In the fall of '98 I had about 25 colonies in the bee cellar in tenframe Langstroth hives. The supers were filled with chaff and leaves. They all lived through the winter, but in the spring the combs were damp and moldy and the bees were very weak and much reduced in numbers. There was no ventilation in the top of the hives, which, in my opinion, was the cause of the trouble, says the N. E. Homestead. My cellar was dug three feet in the ground, and the roof covered with boards, chaff and earth. I now have the cellar seven feet under ground, with poles laid across the top and covered with 2½ feet of earth. I like this very much better. The temperature is about 45 degrees. As an experiment I tried keeping two colonies last winter in the same way, and they came out stronger than any.

All signs point to a big feed of sheep and lambs this fall, especially in Nebraska, where many of the cattle feeders are going over to sheep.

THE LIVE STOCK TRADE.

Farmers Who Would Be Successful Must Note the Changing Wants of the Market.

The changing waste of the live stock market go on almost imperceptibly, but they are followed more closely in sharp competitive times like the present, than in the past, when the volume of live stock was so large that dealers were not obliged to note closely trivial features of the market. For instance, a few years ago, hogs averaged heavier than they do now, and the heavy or lard-making kind were more salable because the lard was in good demand at comparatively better money-making prices than at the present. The use of cotton seed oil with lard has helped to keep down lard prices. People used more clear pork years ago; now the general demand is for Yorkers and medium weight hogs. For some time there has been a scarcity of bacon and prices have held rather firm with a good demand. One reason for this is that bacon hogs are not so easy to get, as they must be long and fleshy, but not fat, and average 150 to 180 pounds. These conditions depend on the feed. In Canada the farmers feed peas and pea meal so generally in preference to corn, which is higher for them than for us, that they produce bacon hogs and they get a better price for them. The cured bacon brings a higher price in Canada by three to four cents than it does here.

The point to be remembered by the producer is to mark well the changing conditions of the trade and to follow them very closely by every means of information possible. You can't get too much information about a market. You may pride yourself on the fine quality of the hogs you feed and on your skill, otherwise on your farm, but if you fail, from lack of market knowledge, to get a fair price for your products, you are throwing away money that you might just as well save. A study of the conditions of the live stock trade shows that there are many changes, and, surprising as it may seem, that many shippers will persist in ignoring the facts after they are repeatedly instructed. Don't be backward about grasping the situation, loading yourself with facts in regard to markets to which you ship, and you will then discover why some of your bright friends get better prices sometimes than you do.—Sherwood, in Ohio Farmer.

PUTTING AWAY ICE.

Description of an Economical Way of Storing Up a Good Crop in the Country.

Level a slightly elevated piece of ground and cover the space with two layers of rails, placing the top layer crosswise of the first and laying the rails close together. Build a rail pen, with this double layer of rails for the floor, and around the pen set boards on end close together. Cover the bottom of the pen one foot deep with sawdust, then put in the ice, leaving a space 18 inches between the ice and the pen. Fill this space with sawdust, tamping it down well. Care must be taken to keep the boards in place, so the sawdust will not work. When you have filled in ice to the top of the boards, build the pen higher and put on a second tier of boards, filling in with sawdust as before. Build the ice-house, or icepen, as high as desired, then cover with 2½ feet of sawdust, put on a roof that will not leak, and you can keep ice through the hottest weather. When sawdust cannot be obtained for packing, chaff will do, but the space between the ice and sides of the pen will have to be increased to 2½ feet, and the chaff will have to be packed very hard to exclude the air. If sand or fine earth is mixed with the chaff, it may be packed tighter. Do not allow any of the chaff to get between the layers of ice, as it will prevent the cakes from sticking together. When you wish to take out ice, begin at one corner, at the top, remove the sawdust or chaff, saw down as deep as desired, then drive a flat wedge between the layers. Put back the sawdust or chaff and tamp down to keep out the air. I have known of sufficient ice being kept in this way to pack and ship 1,000 pounds of fish per week during the summer season. This is the cheapest way I know of to put up ice where the timber for the rail may be had. Where planks are cheaper than rails, set four posts and nail up the planks as you put in the ice, using sawdust or chaff for packing as with the other method. Where a lake or pond is convenient, one can put up a large stock of ice with very little labor and expense.—J. N. Parker, in Prairie Farmer.

TO SEARCH FOR POLE.

Wealthy New Yorker Who Proposes to Spend Millions in Effort to Reach Most Northern Point.

"I intend to plant the stars and stripes on the north pole if it costs me a million dollars to do it!" was the declaration made the other night by William Ziegler in the parlor of his residence, 624 Fifth avenue, New York city. "The pole can be reached," continued Mr. Ziegler, "and I am fully determined that so far as I am able to forward the enterprise, with all the means at my command, the glory of reaching it shall rest with America."

Mr. Ziegler is many times a millionaire. He was formerly a resident of Brooklyn.

He expressed regret that publicity should be given to his plans at the present time. He frankly admitted, however, that he had made preparations for an attempt to reach the north pole, and that the expedition would be an entirely American enterprise.

He said it was his intention to purchase and equip two ships, which will go north in company, with the understanding that one of them shall remain during the first winter in the highest attainable latitude, while its consort returns to load with fresh supplies and act, if necessary, as a relief ship.

The expedition will be under the command of Evelyn B. Baldwin, of Illinois, who was a member of the Peary expedition in 1893-94. Mr. Baldwin was also a member of the Walter Wellman expedition, which spent the winter of 1898-99 in Franz Josef Land. He is the author of a book on arctic exploration.

WILL BUILD ODD FACTORY.

Carl Dryden Browne Starts an Institution for Making His Airships.

In the presence of a crowd of about 200 people a cornerstone for a flying machine factory to manufacture an airship by Carl Dryden Browne was formally laid the other afternoon at Freedom Labor Exchange colony, a socialistic settlement 18 miles northwest of Fort Scott, Kan. Some prominent men from abroad were guests of the colonists for the day.

The service was preceded by a banquet, which was tendered by the women, the bill of fare consisting almost exclusively of the products of the colony, cooked with coal from the colony mine. The table was spread at the home of E. Z. Ernst, manager of the unique settlement.

The cornerstone was laid close to the little cabin occupied by Carl Browne and his girl wife, the daughter of Gen. Coxey, who is now rich, but has disinherited her for marrying Browne at the age of 14.

A crude miniature of the flying machine was exhibited and the inventor in an address which was included in the ceremony explained the mechanism and scientific theory of it, asserting that the discovery of the mystery of air cleavage and vacuum formed by the flapping of a bird's wings in flight had solved the problem, an aerial navigation which would soon make flying machines almost as common as railroad trains.

LOVE STORY WELL TOLD.

A Young Man's Clever Method of Winning a Confession from His Adored One.

She was pouring at a tea that afternoon and she looked unusually bewitching, says the Smart Set. He was sitting at her left, in a bower of palms that almost concealed him. He was holding one of her hands under cover of the tablecloth, while she tried to pour with the other. She did not look at him as he talked, but he knew by her color and the little quiver of the hand he was holding that she heard everything he said. "Dearest," he murmured, as she sent one cup off without a spoon and another filled only with whipped cream, "dearest, if you don't mind my saying all this to you, just drop a spoon. Couldn't you manage it?" A clatter of silver and more color in the girl's face, as in stooping to pick up the spoon he kissed her hand. Spurred by this success, he went on: "Dearest, if—if you return it—that is, if you love me, you know—just put three lumps of sugar into the next cup you pour—Y-e-s. Or, if you don't, two, to spell N-o." One, two, three! The tiny cup was almost full, and in her haste to hide her confession she covered the three lumps hastily with chocolate and cream and sent them off. He asked his mother as they drove home if she had enjoyed herself. "Oh, no!" was her disgusted reply. "Such horrible stuff to drink as they gave one. Why, my cup was half full of sugar!"

Made Her Hair Curl.

"Since marriage I have had no need of curling irons," said Mrs. De Tanques.

"But still your hair is perfectly dressed. What's the reason?"

"Well, when you've got a husband you'll find that he can come home at any old hour in the morning with an excuse that would make your hair curl."—Kansas City Star.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

How shall a mother who is weak and sick with some female trouble bear healthy children?

How anxious women ought to be to give their children the blessing of a good constitution!

Many women long for a child to bless their home, but because of some debility or displacement of the female organs, they are barren.

Preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound more successfully than by any other medicine, because it gives tone and strength to the parts, curing all displacements and inflammation.

Actual sterility in women is very rare. If any woman thinks she is sterile, let her write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., whose advice is given free to all expectant or would-be mothers.

Mrs. A. D. Jarret, Belmont, Ohio, writes:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I must write and tell you what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. Before taking your medicine I was unable to carry babe to maturity, having lost two—one at six months and one at seven. The doctor said next time it would die, but thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I did not die, but am the proud mother of a six months old girl baby. She weighs nineteen pounds and has never been a sick day in her life. She is the delight of our home."

Mrs. Whitney's Gratitude.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—From the time I was sixteen years old till I was twenty-three I was troubled with weakness of the kidneys and terrible pains when my monthly periods came on. I made up my mind to try your Vegetable Compound, and was soon relieved. The doctor said I never would be able to go my full time and have a living child, as I was constitutionally weak. I have had a baby six seven months and half. The next time I continued to take your Compound; and I said then, if I went my full time and my baby lived to be three months old, I should send a letter to you. My baby is now seven months old, and is as healthy and hearty as any one could wish. I cannot express my gratitude to you. I was so bad that I did not dare to go away from home to stay any length of time. Praise God for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and may others who are suffering do as I did and find relief. Wishing you success in the future as in the past, and may many homes be brightened as mine has been."—Mrs. L. Z. Whitney, 4 Flint St., Somerville, Mass."

A TIMELY DISCOURSE

Dr. Talmage Preaches a Sermon on Religion and Politics.

The Man Faithful to God Is the Most Faithful to His Country—An Example from the Life of Daniel.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.]

This discourse of Dr. Talmage is appropriate for all seasons, but especially in these times of great political agitation. The text is, Daniel vi., 16: "Then the king commanded, and they brought Daniel and cast him into the den of lions."

Darius was king of Babylon, and the young man Daniel was so much a favorite with him that he made him prime minister, or secretary of state. But no man could gain such a high position without exciting the envy and jealousy of the people. There were demagogues in Babylon who were so appreciative of their own abilities that they were affronted at the elevation of this young man. Old Babylon was afraid of young Babylon. The taller the cedar the more apt it is to be riven of the lightning. These demagogues asked the king to make a decree that anybody that made a petition to anyone except the king during a period of 30 days should be put to death. King Darius, not suspecting any foul play, makes that decree. The demagogues have accomplished all they want, because they know that no one can keep Daniel from sending petitions before God for 30 days.

So far from being afraid, Daniel goes on with his supplications three times a day and is found on his housetop making prayer. He is caught in the act. He is condemned to be devoured by the lions. Rough executioners of the law seize him and hasten him to the cavern. I hear the growl of the wild beasts and I see them pawing the dirt, and as they put their mouths to the ground the solid earth quakes with their bellowings. I see their eyes roll, and I almost hear the fiery eyeballs snap in the darkness. These monsters approach Daniel. They have an appetite keen with hunger. With one stroke of their paw or one snatch of their teeth they may leave him dead at the bottom of the cavern. But what a strange welcome Daniel receives from these hungry monsters! They fawn around him; they lick his hand; they bury his feet in their long manes. That night he has calm sleep with his head pillowed on the warm necks of the tamed lions.

But not so well does Darius, the king, sleep. He has an attack of terrific insomnia. He loves Daniel and hates this stratagem by which he has been condemned. All night long the king walks the floor. He cannot sleep. At the least sound he starts, and the flesh creeps with horror. He is impatient for the dawning of the morning. At the first streak of the daylight Darius hastens forth to see the fate of Daniel. The heavy palace doors open and clang shut long before the people of the city waken. Darius goes to the den of the lions. He looks in. All is silent. His heart stops. He feels that the very worst has happened; but, gathering all his strength, he shouts through the rifts of the rock: "O Daniel, is the God whom thou servest continually able to deliver thee?" There comes rolling up from the deep darkness a voice which says: "O king, live forever. My God has sent His angel to shut the lions' mouths that they have not hurt me." Then Daniel is brought out from the den. The demagogues are hurled into it, and no sooner have they struck the bottom of the den than their flesh was rent, and their bones cracked, and their blood spurted through the rifts of the rock, and as the lions make the rocks tremble with their roar they announce to all ages that while God will defend his people the way of the ungodly shall perish.

Learn first from this subject that the greatest crime that you commit in the eyes of many is the crime of success. What had Daniel done that he should be flung to the lions? He had become prime minister. They could not forgive him for that, and behold in that a touch of unsanctified human nature as seen in all ages of the world. So long as you are pinched in poverty, so long as you are running the gantlet between landlord and taxgatherer, so long as you find it hard work to educate your children, there are people who will say: "Poor man, I am sorry for him. He ought to succeed, poor man." But after awhile the tide turns in his favor. That was a profitable investment you made. You thought just at the right time. Fortune becomes good humored and smiles upon you. Now you are in some department successful, and your success chills some one. Those men who used to sympathize with you stand along the street, and they scowl at you from under the rim of their hats. You have more money or more influence than they have, and you ought to be scowled at from under the rim of their hats. You catch a word or two as you pass them by. "Stuck up," says one. "Got it dishonestly," says another. "Will burst soon," says a third. Every stone in your new house is laid on their hearts. Your horses' hoofs went over their nerves. Every item of your success has been to them an item of discomfiture and despair. Just as soon as in any respect you rise above your fellows, if you are more virtuous, if you are more wise, if you are more influential, you cast a shadow on the prospects of others. The road to honor and success is within reach of the enemy's guns. Everybody says: "Stay down or I'll knock you down." "I do not like you," says the snowflake to the snowbird. "Why don't you like me?" said the snowbird. "Oh," said the snowflake, "you are going up and I am coming down." Young merchants, young lawyers, young doctors, young mechanics, young artists, young farmers, at certain times there are those to sympathize with you, but now that you are becoming a master of your particular occupation or profession, how is it now, young lawyers, young doctors, young artists, young farmers—how is it now? The greatest crime that you can commit is the crime of success.

Again, my subject impresses me with the value of decision of character in any department. Daniel knew that if he continued his adherence to the religion of the Lord he would be hurled to the lions; but, having set his compass well, he sailed right on. For the lack of that element of decision of character so eminent in Daniel many men are ruined for this world and ruined for the world to come. A great many at 40 years of age are not settled in any respect, because they have not been able to make up their minds. Perhaps they will go west; perhaps they will go east; perhaps they will not; perhaps they will go north; perhaps they may go south; perhaps they will not; perhaps they may make that investment in real estate or in railroads; perhaps they will not. They are like a steamer that should go out of New York harbor, starting for Glasgow, and the next day should change for Havre de Grace, and the next for Charleston, and the next for Boston, and the next for Liverpool. These men on the sea of life everlastingly tacking ship and making no headway! Or they are like a man who starts to build a house in the Corinthian style and changes it to Doric and then completes it in the Ionic, the curse of all styles of architecture. Young man, start right and keep on. Have decision of character. Character is like the goldfinch of Tonquin. It is magnificent while standing firm, but loses all its beauty in flight. How much decision of character in order that these young men may be Christians! Their old associates make sarcastic flings at them. They go on excursions, and they do not invite them. They prophesy that he will give out. They wonder if he is not getting wings. As he passes they grimace and wink and chuckle and say: "There goes a saint." O young man, have decision of character! You can afford in this matter of religion to be laughed at. What do you care for the scoffs of these men, who are affronted because you will not go to ruin with them? When the grave cracks open under their feet, and grim messengers push them into it, and eternity comes down hard upon their spirit, and conscience stings, and hopeless ruin lifts them up to hurl them down, will they laugh then?

I learn also from my subject that men may take religion into their worldly business. This is a most appropriate thought at this season of the year, when so many men are starting out in new enterprises. Daniel had enough work to do to occupy six men. All the affairs of state were in his hands; questions of finance, questions of war, of peace; all international questions were for his settlement or adjustment. He must have had a correspondence vast beyond all computation. There was not a man in all the earth who had more to do than Daniel, the secretary of state, and yet we find him three times a day bowing before God in prayer. There are men in our day who have not a hundredth part of Daniel's engagements who say they are too busy to be religious. They have an idea somehow that religion will spoil their worldly occupation, that it will trip the accountant's pen or dull the carpenter's saw or confuse the lawyer's brief or disarrange the merchant's store shelf. They think religion is impertinent. They would like to have it very well seated beside them in church on the Sabbath, to find the place in the psalmbook or to nudge them awake when they get sleepy under the didactic discourse, or they would like to leave it in the pew on Sabbath evening as they go out, closing the door, saying: "Good night, religion; I'll be back next Sunday!" But to have religion go right along by them all through life, to have religion looking over their shoulder when they are making a bargain, to have religion take up a bag of dishonest gold and shake it and say: "Where did you get that?" They think that is an impertinent religion. They would like to have a religion to help them when they are sick, and when the shadow of death comes over them they would like to have religion as a sort of nightkey with which to open the door of Heaven, but religion under other circumstances they take to be impertinence.

Now, my friends, religion never robbed a man of a dollar. Other things being equal, a mason will build a better wall, a cabinet maker will make a better chair, a plumber will make a better pipe, a lawyer will make a better plea, a merchant will sell a better bill of goods. I say, other things being equal. Of course when religion gives a man a new heart, it does not propose to give him a new head or to intellectualize him or to change a man's condition when his ordinary state is an overthrow of the philosophical theory that a total vacuum is impossible, but the more letters you have to write, the more burdens you have to carry, the more miles you have to travel, the more burdens you have to lift, the more engagements you have to meet, the more disputes you have to settle, the more opportunity you have of being a Christian. If you have a thousand irons in the fire, you have a thousand more opportunities of serving God than if you only had one iron in the fire. Who so busy as Christ? And yet who a millionth part as holy? The busiest men the best men. All the persons converted in Scripture busy at the time of their being converted. Matthew attending to his custom house duties; the prodigal son feeding swine; Lydia selling purple; Simon Peter hauling in the net from the sea; Saul spurring his horse toward Damascus, going down on his law business: Busy, busy! Daniel with all the affairs of state weighing down upon his soul, and yet three times a day worshiping the God of Heaven.

Again I learn from this subject that a man may take religion into his politics. Daniel had all the affairs of state on hand, yet a servant of God. He could not have kept his elevated position unless he had been a thorough politician, and yet all the thrusts of officials and all the danger of disgrace did not make him yield one iota of his high toned religious principle. He stood before that age, he stands before all ages, a specimen of a godly politician. So there have been in our day and in the days of our fathers men as eminent in the service of God as they have been eminent in the service of the state. Such was Benjamin F. Butler, attorney general of New York in the time of your fathers. Such was John McLean, of the supreme court of the United States. Such was George Briggs, of Massachusetts. Such was Theodore Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey—men faithful to the state, at the same time faithful to God. It is absurd to expect that men who have been immersed in political wickedness for 30 or 40 years shall come to reformation, and our hope is in the young men who are coming up, that they have patriotic principle and Christian principle side by side when they come to the ballot box and cast their first vote and that they swear allegiance to the government of Heaven as well as to the government of the United States. We would have Bunker Hill mean less to them than Cavalry, and Lexington mean less than Bethlehem, but because there are bad men around the ballot box is no reason why Christian men should retreat from the arena. The last time you ought to give up your child or forsake your child is when it is surrounded by a company of Choctaws, and the last time to surrender the ballot box is when it is surrounded by impurity and dishonesty and all sorts of wickedness.

Daniel stood on a most unpopular platform. He stood firmly, though the demagogues of the day hissed at him and tried to overthrow him. We must carry our religion into our politics. But there are a great many men who are in favor of taking religion into national politics who do not see the importance of taking it into city politics, as though a man were intelligent about the welfare of his neighborhood and had no concern about his own home.

My subject also impresses me with the fact that lions cannot hurt a good man. No man ever got in worse company than Daniel got when he was thrown into the den. What a rare morsel that fair young man would have been for the hungry monsters! If they had plunged at him he could not have climbed into a niche beyond the reach of their paw or the snatch of their tooth. They came, pleased, all around him, as hunters' hounds at the well-known whistle come bounding to his feet. You need not go to Numidia to get many lions. You all have them after you—the lion of financial distress, the lion of sickness, the lion of persecution. You saw that lion of financial panic putting his mouth down to the earth, and he roared until all the banks and all the insurance companies quaked. With his nostril he scattered the ashes on the domestic hearth. You have had trial after trial, misfortune after misfortune, lion after lion, and yet they have never hurt you, if you put your trust in God, and they never will hurt you. They did not hurt Daniel, and they cannot hurt you. The Persians used to think that spring rain falling into seashells would turn into pearls, and I have to tell you that the tears of sorrow turn into precious gems when they drop into God's bottle. You need be afraid of nothing, putting your trust in God. Even death, that monster lion whose den is the world's sepulcher, and who puts his paw down amid thousands of millions of the dead, cannot affright you. When in olden times a man was to get the honors of knighthood, he was compelled to go fully armed the night before among the tombs of the dead, carrying a sort of spear, and then when the day broke he would come forth, and, amid the sound of cornet and great parade, he would get the honors of knighthood. And so it will be with the Christian in the night before Heaven, as, fully armed with spear and helmet of salvation, he will wait and watch through the darkness until the morning dawns, and then he will take the honors of Heaven amid the great throng with snowy robes, streaming over seas of sapphire.

A Phrase in a Name.

Once, after exposing the ridiculous blunders of the editor of certain old plays, James Russell Lowell concluded with the remark: "In point of fact, we must apply to this gentleman the name of the first king of Sparta." No one remembered, of course, what this was, but when they looked it up they found it was Eudamidas.

Biggest Sturgeon Ever Caught.

The largest sturgeon on record was caught in the North sea. It weighed 525 pounds, but the delight of the fishermen was tempered by the fact that it did $750 worth of damage to the nets before it was given the coup de grace.

THE CRAB APPLE.

It Has No Superior for Preserving and Jelly Making—How to Prepare Them.

The crab apple is indigenous in most parts of the temperate zone. It is the primitive form of the apple, which, shriveled and brown with age, has been found among the relics of the lake dwellers, proving the antiquity of this fruit. And though the modern crab apple is the only form of this species of primitive apple we have, all our various pippins, spitzenbergs, greenings and other apples are believed to have descended from the humble apples which the lake dwellers and people of their generation cultivated, says the New York Tribune.

For preserving and making jelly the crab apple is superior to any other apple, though a hard, sweet "wild" apple, raised from the seed of a sweet apple, is a better fruit for sweet pickles and spicing. Crab apples are only useful for sweet preserves like jelly, marmalades and conserves of the whole fruit.

For jellies they should be wiped and have the flower and stem removed. They should be cut up without removing the skins or cores, which give an exceptionally fine flavor to the fruit. The latter can then be put in a stone jar, covered and set in a pot of water, which should be kept boiling around the jar for nine or ten hours. At the end of this time set the jar in a cold cellar to cool. In the morning strain off the juice. This is the easier way and requires less lifting of the fruit. But some cooks prefer to add a little water to the fruit and stew it in a porcelain kettle as you would any other apple. In this case you must boil the juice a little longer. Cook the juice squeezed out of the pure apple pulp for 20 minutes, and then add a pound of sugar to every pint of juice, and cook until the mixture "jellies."

To make marmalade strain the pulp through a puree sieve, put over the fire and stir continually to prevent its burning. When it has cooked for 20 minutes add sugar in the proportion of a pound to every pint of pulp and cook a little longer.

For preserving use large Siberian crab apples. Peel them with a penknife, core them and remove the stem and flower. Cut the apples into halves, and put them over the stove to boil with a pint of water to every pound of crab apple. Cook them until tender enough to be pierced with a broom splint. Then strain the water off them, pour it over the cores and peelings of the crab apples and cook for 20 minutes. Strain the juice again, and add to it a pound of sugar for every pound of crab apple. Add the crab apple halves and let them simmer in the sirup until they are clear and transparent—that is, for about ten or 15 minutes. Put them in jars, cover the jars with a layer of paraffine paper and seal them up. In sealing all preserves and jellies it is better to wait until they are cold before covering them permanently.

NOVELTIES IN NECKWEAR.

Some of the Daintiest Ruches and Ruffles That Are Now in Vogue.

Tulle bows appear under many chins, and ruffles are having wide patronage. Some novelties have been brought out in the form of ruffles in white and color, the upper ruche colored, the lower white. Far more fashionable than the black and white are the white ruffles trimmed with the color of the toilet. They are more becoming than the dead white, but not so much so as the soft black silk and chiffon ones which bear the name of Pierrot and are an exact duplicate of the ruffs worn by the heroes of that name. Such ruffs are quite charming on a tall, long-necked woman, but, unhappily, not on those having a short neck, for they are simply smothered in them, says the Washington Star.

A dainty little novelty to a lace neckband which hails from the French capital is a black cravat tied in a knot and edged with gold fringe or passed through a gold slide. Such lace looks very pretty on foulards and other thin fabrics, pointed in the front instead of straight, as in a yoke, and very often accompanying a fichu folded round the shoulder line.

The abbe stock is made of wired lace set with a couple of shaped bands of lace, like those ecclesiastics sometimes wear. Indeed, the whole thing is fashioned on the form of a priest's collar. During the hot weather many dresses have been made with no collar bands at all, the bands being replaced by a scarf placed twice around the throat. Some women use the very soft tulle and tie the bow under one ear, but this is a style that requires to be well worn. The more close fitting the collar band the more fashionable. We are veering away from the high mantle collars.

Pickled Sliced Tomatoes and Onions.

Wash and cut half peck green tomatoes in slices; also six large white onions; put both in a preserving kettle, sprinkle over half cupful salt and let them stand 24 hours, then drain them in a sieve; return the vegetables to a kettle; add half ounce ground pepper, two ounces mustard seed, one teaspoonful ground cloves, two tablespoonfuls celery seed, half cupful sugar and sufficient vinegar to cover all. Boil five minutes, counting from the time the boiling begins, and keep the kettle covered; remove and put in jars; close and set aside.—Ledger Monthly.

The New Skirt.

The general tendency this autumn is toward skirts that are snug about the hips and flare freely at the feet. Those for golf make no exception to the rule. Circular models prevail. The only variations are found in the gored front, and the double in place of the single inverted plait.—Detroit Free Press.

HOW WEAK CHILDREN ARE MADE STRONG, VIGOROUS AND WELL

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hallows, of Peckham St., Globe Village, Fall River, Mass., have cause to thank Dr. Greene's Nervura for restoring to health, and probably preserving the life of their little son. Almost from infancy Everett Hallows was troubled with indigestion and nervous troubles, and nothing seemed to help him. Finally Dr. Greene's Nervura was recommended and tried with success. A few bottles were sufficient to effect a cure, and to-day the little one is enjoying the best of health. By the use of Dr. Greene's Nervura the sickly child was transformed into a happy, hearty, robust boy.

Dr. Greene's Nervura for the Blood and Nerves

Thousands of other children can thank Dr. Greene and his wonderful remedy for the strength and health they enjoy. Children to whom it is given have less sickness, better health, better growth, and longer and more vigorous lives. Parents should realize that it is their duty to give it to every child who is not in perfect health. There are no diseases more dreaded by parents than fits, epilepsy, and St. Vitus' dance. Yet no child would be troubled by them if Dr. Greene's Nervura were given when the first symptoms appear.

Charles L. McBay, a highly esteemed police officer, who resides at 14 Myrtle St., New Bedford, Mass., says:

"About two years ago my little daughter became run down in health and suffered from St. Vitus' dance. Soon after she was prostrated by rheumatism, which severely affected her low limbs.

"After trying various remedies without obtaining relief, she began taking Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and experienced immediate benefit. She continued its use, and after taking five bottles her rheumatism was practically cured. Her appetite returned, her pains disappeared, she was again able to walk without lameness, her general health was restored, and she was able to attend school and to play like other children."

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, is the prescription and discovery of the well-known Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th Street, New York City, who is the most successful specialist in curing all forms of nervous and chronic complaints, and he can be consulted in any case, free of charge, personally or by letter.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

CORN AND ITS ROOTS.

Would Equal One Mile in Length for Every Plant If Laid End to End.

A very interesting report on corn root development appears in the tenth annual report of the Kansas state board of agriculture. We give a part of it as follows:

Prof. King, of the Wisconsin experiment station, estimates that all the roots of a healthy corn plant, if laid end to end, would equal one mile in length. The root development measures the leaf development. Fig. 1 shows the root of a corn plant uncovered on a farm in the Kaw valley, Kan. This corn grew in the track of a tree digger that, in taking up nursery stock the preceding fall, had pulverized the soil 18 inches deep and 20 inches wide. The track of the tree digger in its width and depth was a mass of fibrous roots. In the zone between the tree digger or furrows, where the ground was hard, there were few fibrous roots, and a limited number of large, smooth roots. This field yielded 84 bushels of corn per acre that year. The subsoil roots were followed

4½ fet down, but the ends were not found.

By way of contrast, see Fig. 2, on upland, never plowed over six inches deep. All the fibrous roots (food gatherers) were found in the lower two inches of the cultivated soil. A cultivator tooth, running four inches deep would leave only two inches in depth of cultivated soil in which the food gatherers might work between the rows—entirely too limited an area to secure good results. The root development was small and only two joints were covered sufficiently to send down subsoil roots. The yield was under 40 bushels per acre.

are one foot apart. It will readily be seen how limited is the root area on the unsubsoiled plats. It should, however, be remarked that the composition of the soil determines to a great extent the value of the subsoiling. Some soils are so loose that subsoiling would be of no benefit.

Sitters and Non-Sitters.

Where the main object in keeping hens is to furnish a supply of eggs, the inveterate sitters, such as Brahmas, Cochins, Plymouth Rocks and Langshans, should be made to work for nearly all they receive. If eggs only are wanted, it is well to have the non-sitting varieties, which save a great deal of labor. For more people prefer the non-sitters at the present time than formerly. Leghorns, Minorcas, Hamburgs and Houdans are kept very largely, as they are non-sitters. There is one difficulty or drawback with the non-sitters, which is that they lay white eggs, which are not preferred in some markets; but in other places the white eggs are accepted as readily as are those that are dark.—Farm and Fireside.

THE LIVE STOCK TRADE.

Farmers Who Would Be Successful Must Note the Changing Wants of the Market.

The changing wants of the live stock market go on almost imperceptibly, but they are followed more closely in sharp competitive times like the present, than in the past, when the volume of live stock was so large that dealers were not obliged to note closely trivial features of the market. For instance, a few years ago, hogs averaged heavier than they do now, and the heavy or lard-making kind were more salable because the lard was in good demand at comparatively better money-making prices than at the present. The use of cotton seed oil with lard has helped to keep down lard prices. People used more clear pork years ago; now the general demand is for Yorkers and medium weight hogs. For some time there has been a scarcity of bacon and prices have held rather firm with a good demand. One reason for this is that bacon hogs are not so easy to get, as they must be long and fleshy, but not fat, and average 150 to 180 pounds. These conditions depend on the feed. In Canada the farmers feed peas and pea meal so generally in preference to corn, which is higher for them than for us, that they produce bacon hogs and they get a better price for them. The cured bacon brings a higher price in Canada by three to four cents than it does here.

The point to be remembered by the producer is to mark well the changing conditions of the trade and to follow them very closely by every means of information possible. You can't get too much information about a market. You may pride yourself on the fine quality of the hogs you feed and on your skill, otherwise on your farm, but if you fail, from lack of market knowledge, to get a fair price for your products, you are throwing away money that you might just as well save. A study of the conditions of the live stock trade shows that there are many changes, and, surprising as it may seem, that many shippers will persist in ignoring the facts after they are repeatedly instructed. Don't be backward about grasping the situation, loading yourself with facts in regard to markets to which you ship, and you will then discover why some of your bright friends get better prices sometimes than you do.—Sherwood, in Ohio Farmer.

PUTTING AWAY ICE.

Description of an Economical Way of Storing Up a Good Crop for the Country.

Level a slightly elevated piece of ground and cover the space with two layers of rails, placing the top layer crosswise of the first and laying the rails close together. Build a rail pen, with this double layer of rails for the floor, and around the pen set boards on end close together. Cover the bottom of the pen one foot deep with sawdust, then put in the ice, leaving a space 18 inches between the ice and the pen. Fill this space with sawdust, tamping it down well. Care must be taken to keep the boards in place, so the sawdust will not work. When you have filled in ice to the top of the boards, build the pen higher and put on a second tier of boards, filling in with sawdust as before. Build the ice-house, or ice-pen, as high as desired, then cover with 2½ feet of sawdust, put on a roof that will not leak, and you can keep ice through the hottest weather. When sawdust cannot be obtained for packing, chaff will do, but the space between the ice and sides of the pen will have to be increased to 2½ feet, and the chaff will have to be packed very hard to exclude the air. If sand or fine earth is mixed with the chaff, it may be packed tighter. Do not allow any of the chaff to get between the layers of ice, as it will prevent the cakes from sticking together. When you wish to take out ice, begin at one corner, at the top, remove the sawdust or chaff, saw down as deep as desired, then drive a flat wedge between the layers. Put back the sawdust or chaff and tamp down to keep out the air. I have known of sufficient ice being kept in this way to pack and ship 1,000 pounds of fish per week during the summer season. This is the cheapest way I know of to put up ice where the timber for the rail may be had. Where planks are cheaper than rails, set four posts and nail up the planks as you put in the ice, using sawdust or chaff for packing as with the other method. Where a lake or pond is convenient, one can put up a large stock of ice with very little labor and expense.—J. N. Parker, in Prairie Farmer.

Test in Wintering Bees.

In the fall of '98 I had about 25 colonies in the bee cellar in ten-frame Langstroth hives. The supers were filled with chaff and leaves. They all lived through the winter, but in the spring the combs were damp and moldy and the bees were very weak and much reduced in numbers. There was no ventilation in the top of the hives, which, in my opinion, was the cause of the trouble, says the N. E. Homestead. My cellar was dug three feet in the ground, and the roof covered with boards, chaff and earth. I now have the cellar seven feet under ground, with poles laid across the top and covered with 2½ feet of earth. I like this very much better. The temperature is about 45 degrees. As an experiment I tried keeping two colonies last winter in the same way, and they came out stronger than any.

All signs point to a big feed of sheep and lambs this fall, especially in Nebraska, where many of the cattle feeders are going over to sheep.

TO SEARCH FOR POLE.

Wealthy New Yorker Who Proposes to Spend Millions in Effort to Reach Most Northern Point.

"I intend to plant the stars and stripes on the north pole if it costs me a million dollars to do it!" was the declaration made the other night by William Ziegler in the parlor of his residence, 624 Fifth avenue, New York city. "The pole can be reached," continued Mr. Ziegler, "and I am fully determined that so far as I am able to forward the enterprise, with all the means at my command, the glory of reaching it shall rest with America."

Mr. Ziegler is many times a millionaire. He was formerly a resident of Brooklyn.

He expressed regret that publicity should be given to his plans at the present time. He frankly admitted, however, that he had made preparations for an attempt to reach the north pole, and that the expedition would be an entirely American enterprise.

He said it was his intention to purchase and equip two ships, which will go north in company, with the understanding that one of them shall remain during the first winter in the highest attainable latitude, while its consort returns to load with fresh supplies and act, if necessary, as a relief ship.

The expedition will be under the command of Evelyn B. Baldwin, of Illinois, who was a member of the Peary expedition in 1893-94. Mr. Baldwin was also a member of the Walter Wellman expedition, which spent the winter of 1898-99 in Franz Josef Land. He is the author of a book on arctic exploration.

WILL BUILD ODD FACTORY.

Carl Dryden Browne Starts an Institution for Making His Airships.

In the presence of a crowd of about 200 people a cornerstone for a flying machine factory to manufacture an airship by Carl Dryden Browne was formally laid the other afternoon at Freedom Labor Exchange colony, a socialistic settlement 12 miles northwest of Fort Scott, Kan. Some prominent men from abroad were guests of the colonists for the day.

The service was preceded by a banquet, which was tendered by the women, the bill of fare consisting almost exclusively of the products of the colony, cooked with coal from the colony mine. The table was spread at the home of E. Z. Ernst, manager of the unique settlement.

The cornerstone was laid close to the little cabin occupied by Carl Browne and his girl wife, the daughter of Gen. Coxey, who is now rich, but has disinherited her for marrying Browne at the age of 14.

A crude miniature of the flying machine was exhibited and the inventor in an address which was included in the ceremony explained the mechanism and scientific theory of it, asserting that the discovery of the mystery of air cleavage and vacuum formed by the flapping of a bird's wings in flight had solved the problem, an aerial navigation which would soon make flying machines almost as common as railroad trains.

The Star Boarder Again.

As he leaves England Mark Twain complains of the hotels over there. Some enterprising boniface could make a hit now, says the Chicago Times-Herald, by giving Mark free accommodations for the winter and getting him to furnish a testimonial.

A Paying Investment.

A large sale can safely be predicted for the shah of Persia's book, declares the Chicago Record, for no matter how bad it may be there is not a subject of his majesty who would not rather buy the book than lose his head.

LOVE STORY WELL TOLD.

A Young Man's Clever Method of Wooing a Confession from His Adored One.

She was pouring at a tea that afternoon and she looked unusually bewitching, says the Smart Set. He was sitting at her left, in a bower of palms that almost concealed him. He was holding one of her hands under cover of the tablecloth, while she tried to pour with the other. She did not look at him as he talked, but he knew by her color and the little quiver of the hand he was holding that she heard everything he said. "Dearest," he murmured, as she sent one cup off without a spoon and another filled only with whipped cream, "dearest, if you don't mind my saying so, this is not just drop a spoon. Couldn't you manage it?" A clatter of silver and more color in the girl's face, as in stooping to pick up the spoon he kissed her hand. Spurred by this success, he went on: "Dearest, if—if you return it—that is, if you love me, you know—just put three lumps of sugar into the next cup you pour—Yes, that, if you don't, two, to spell 'N-o.'" One, two, three! The tiny cup was almost full, and in her haste to hide her confession she covered the three lumps hastily with chocolate and cream and sent them off. He asked his mother as they drove home if she had enjoyed herself. "Ugh, no!" was her disgusted reply. "Such horrible stuff to drink as they gave one. Why, my cup was half full of sugar!"

The Chinese Situation.

The cause for the present Chinese entanglements is not religious differences, but the abuse of the Chinese immigrants by the foreign powers. Another great revolution comes from the abuse of the stomach. Overtaxed digestion produces constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia and flatulency. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is the best medicine to take. It will restore a healthy tone to the entire system, and thus prevent nervousness, sleeplessness or despondency. Don't fail to give it a trial.

"Since marriage I have had no need of curling irons," said Mrs. De Tanques.

"But still your hair is perfectly dressed. What's the reason?"

"Well, when you've got a husband you'll find that he can come home at any old hour in the morning with an excuse that would make your hair curl."—Kansas City Star.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases of ot ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

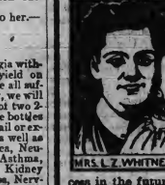
How shall a mother who is weak and sick with some female trouble bear healthy children?

How anxious women ought to be to give their children the blessing of a good constitution!

Many women long for a child to bless their home, but because of some debility or displacement of the female organs, they are barren.

Preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound more successfully than by any other medicine, because it gives tone and strength to the parts, curing all displacements and inflammation.



Actual sterility in women is very rare. If any woman thinks she is sterile, let her write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., whose advice is given free to all expectant or would-be mothers.

Mrs. A. D. Jarret, Belmont, Ohio, writes:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I must write and tell you what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. Before taking your medicine I was unable to carry babe to maturity, having lost two—one at six months and one at seven. The doctor said next time I would die, but thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I did not die, but am the proud mother of a six months old girl baby. She weighs nineteen pounds and has never seen a sick day in her life. She is the delight of our home."

Mrs. Whitney's Gratitude.

"Dear Mr. Pinkham:—From the time I was sixteen years old till I was twenty-three I was troubled with weakness of the kidneys and terrible pains when my monthly periods came on. I made up my mind to try your Vegetable Compound, and was soon relieved. The doctor said I never would be able to go my full time and have a living child, as I was constitutionally weak. I had lost a baby at seven months and half. The next time I determined to take your Compound; and I said then, if I went my full time and my baby lived to be three months old, I should send a letter to you. My baby is now seven months old, and is as healthy and hearty as any one could wish. I cannot express my gratitude to you. I was so bad that I did not dare to go away from home to stay any length of time. Praise God for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; and may others who are suffering do as I did and find relief. Wishing you success in the future as in the past, and may many homes be brightened as mine has been."—Mrs. I. Z. Whitney, 4 Flint St., Somerville, Mass.

Mrs. Motley Davis of Cincinnati came Sunday morning to visit her sister for a day and night, accompanied by the Misses Clara and Lydia Davis who came to visit their aunts Mrs. Scothorn and Miss Adelia Dimmick. They will return to the city Monday.

Transcribed very hastily at 4:30 Mike Munts's on Saturday night attending the political meeting being held there. We have heard no particulars so can give no account of it.

Last Wednesday afternoon as Mr. Munts was returning from the river with the wedding party he found a sick woman acting strangely on the road side, whom he very kindly cared for and brought to the house of Ben Hedges (colored) Dr. Sayre of Hebron was sent for and he and his wife came and did all that could be done for her. Mrs. Bessie Goodridge, and others made up some money for her and sent her to Louisville she claiming that as the best place for her to go. She seemed to be 35 or 36 years of age, tall and delicate looking. She said her home was in Cincinnati and that she had a husband and two children there. She may answer the description of a woman given in Saturday's Enquirer and Friday's Post.

There will be services at Sand Run on Sunday and Sunday night the 11th of this month and on the Saturday night preceding at 7 p. m.

Limaburg.

John Rouse and wife of Gunpowder were guests of Moses Rouse, of Kidwills, Sunday.

Cherry trees are in bloom.

Wheat looks fine.

Corn is not yielding as well as was expected.

Geo. Rouse was the first man in this neighborhood to get through gathering corn.

James M. Uts caught a 17 inch blue cat fish in Gunpowder.

Born on the 19th ult., to Walter Garnett and wife, a fine girl.

Miss Anna Crigler sold a fine cow and calf for $50.

Miss Dora Baker sold a good cow and calf for $50.

Eddie Wilhoit, of Missouri, was visiting his father and mother at W. R. Rouse's last week.

Henry Gergen enjoyed, recently, a two weeks' visit with his sister in Illinois.

E. J. Uts has cought 84 moles on his farm this season.

Hathaway.

Farmers are husking their shock corn.

Corn selling at 30 cents.

F. J. Rue made a trip to Rising Sun last Friday.

Leander Moore had a valuable horse to get its le... broken last week.

The farmers of this neighborhood are posting their lands against hunters and dogs.

Mrs. James White and two little sons spent last Saturday and Sunday visiting on Gunpowder.

Mr. William Slusey, a stone cutter from Lawrenceburg, was doing some work at the Big Bone cemetery a couple of days last week.

The protracted meeting is still in progress at Big Bone. Bro. O. M. Huey is doing some excellent preaching. There have been 5 additions.

Miss Berdie Rouse, teacher of our public school was summoned to her home on the account of her sister's illness. She has typhoid fever.

D. H. Ryle, our Postmaster, we regret to say, was stricken with paralysis last Friday morning a week, and was in a serious condition when found lying on the roadside near Robert Adam's. He had been at his neice's to spend the night and was returning to his office when stricken. When found he was trying to get up but was unable to do so. He was taken to David Clements' and was cared for until he was able to be removed to his sister's Mrs. Ines Conley, where he is still in a bad condition.

A sad event occurred at Big Bone church last Sunday at 11 a. m., resulting in the death of Mrs. Fannie Huey, colored. She came to the church to attend the morning service when she took ill and was taken to a house near by and in a few minutes died of heart disease.

The Republicans are the people who are in excellent humor to-day.

Charles White started to market with a lot of hogs this morning.

B. W. Adams is having corn hauled from near the mouth of Gunpowder.

It was a fine day for the election. Nearly every vote in this precinct was polled.

Dr. Furnish came home Monday and left for Lakeland again soon after he voted.

The Bullittsville Judge and Sheriff were the first to deliver the ballot box and stub books.

The county clerk is busy receiving and receipting for ballot boxes and pool books, to-day.

Several of our corrospondents forgot us this week. Probably they were too much interested in the election to do any writing.

The election is over, now let everybody get down to business. Democrats can live under any government that Republicans can.

Hons. A. S. Berry, of Newport, and J. Willard Mitchell, of Nicholasville were entertained at dinner, Monday, by Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Castleman.

The voting began close to six o'clock yesterday morning, and lagged only at intervals during the day. A great many came to town, cast their vote and went immediately home.

Russell Smith killed the other fox, last Sunday afternoon, that escaped from J. F. Blyth about ten days ago. It was about three o'clock when Russell discovered the animal close to his father's residence, and got the gun and shot it.

Our lands are posted and all trespassing thereon is positively forbidden. All dogs running over our lands unless owners are with them, will be shot.

John S Mason, N. H. Clements, David Clements, S. H. Marshall, Wm. S. White, T. L. Uts, G. L. Smith, R. F. Adams, C. B. Mason, B. D. Adams, F. J. Rice and P. P. Neal.

Gooch's majority, 1528.

Tuesday was Republican day all over the country.

Nebraska went Republican. Indiana is claimed by both sides.

Florence was the last precinct in the county to be heard from last night.

In the total vote received in the county, Beckham ran only 14 votes behind Bryan.

This county gave Beckham 300 majority more than it gave Goeble one year ago.

McKinley's majority in New York and several other State is overwhelming.

The election news was received here by telephone from the Western Union lines at Verona.

There is no record of there ever being a larger vote cast in this county than that polled yesterday.

McCreary says Kentucky is safely Democratic by from 10,000 to 20,000. The Republicans claim the State by 1,000.

A telephone wire was run into the court house and the election returns were displayed on a canvas as they were received.

That cream sauce is very much improved by a thorough beating.

Healthy Mothers

Few mothers are healthy, because their duties are so exacting. The anxiety of pregnancy, the shock of childbirth, and the care of young children, are severe trials on any woman. But with Wine of Cardui within her grasp, every mother—every woman in the land—can pay the debt of personal health she owes her loved ones. Do you want robust health with all its privileges and pleasures? Wine of Cardui will give it to you.

WINE of CARDUI

strengthens the female organs and invigorates weakened functions. For every female ill or weakness it is the best medicine made. Ask your druggist for $1.00 bottle Wine of Cardui, and take no substitute under any circumstances.

Miss Edith Cook, Chester, Mich., "When I commenced using Wine of Cardui I was hardly able to walk across the room. Two months after I had used a bottle and visited Grandmother. Many people, old and young, remarked how fine I looked and how much I had improved in health. I gave Wine of Cardui to a lady friend of mine who is a victim of female troubles, with the best results, and I have plenty of faith in it. You are at liberty to use this letter in any manner you see fit, as I am thankful for what Wine of Cardui has done for me."

TEACHERS' MEETING.

The meeting was called to order at 1 p. m. by singing "Come, Thou Almighty King, to our Work." The Superintendent then gave a talk.

"U. S. Flag—its History," was assigned Mr. Elliott, who gave an excellent talk on the subject. Subject was then open for discussion, but no one responded.

"Current Events" was introduced by Carl Grant, who read a well prepared paper on the subject. Superintendent Voshell followed with a short talk on the subject.

Miss Eleanor Gordin read a most excellent paper on "The Modern Novel," which was followed by a few short talks.

Dinner was prepared and ready at 12 m., when the meeting adjourned until 1 p. m.

A committee was appointed to arrange a program for the afternoon, as the regular program had failed to appear. Mary Gaines, William Gaines and Lulu Souther were appointed as that committee.

The Association was called to order at 1 p. m. by singing "There's Much We Can Do."

"The Monroe Doctrine" was introduced by Herbert Grant, who also read a paper on its origin—violation in the [illegible]

"School Discipline" was introduced by William Gaines, who handled the subject well. The subject was discussed by Mr. Elliott and Mary Gaines, who favor a few rules in school.

The Superintendent gave a talk on "What Constitutes History, Manner of Assigning a Lesson and Conducting a Recitation."

"Drills, Reviews and Examinations, Primary Work," was assigned Miss Ethel Terrill, who gave a short but interesting talk, followed by talks by the Superintendent and Mary Gaines.

Recitation, "Don'ts," by Harmon Houston.

Recitation by Harmon Jones.

"Reading—Advanced," Miss Lucy Clayton. The discussion was introduced by Miss Clayton, who gave her experience. She was followed by Mary Gaines and Eleanor Goodin.

Instrumental duette, by Mrs. Fannie Riley on the organ and Master Duncan Riley on violin.

"Two Pilgrims," recitation by Edna Riley.

Select reading, "Drafted," by Callie Lee Clore.

Superintendent Voshell addressed the meeting, referring to the interest Miss Mary Gaines and her pupils had taken in the meeting by preparing a short program to entertain their friends.

Everyone did their part most excellently.

"God be with you," was sung and the Association adjourned to meet with Pt. Pleasant school, November 24th, 1900.

The following program was arranged for the next meeting, by the committee, John Elliott, Ethel Terrill and Lucy Clayton:

Omer Henry—Kentucky History.
Margarette Marble—Physiology.
Mr. Griffin—School Fund.
Flora Youell—How to Maintain Order.
Marie Corn—Written Spelling.
Laura Wolfe—Music in the Public School.
Marietta Riley—Primary Work.
Kate Booker—How Interest the Careless Pupil.
Ella Norman—Primary Grammar.

MARY J. GAINES, Secretary.

Local News.

...the preceding morning.

Mr. Gaines took some nice cattle to the city yesterday.

The crowd began showing up in town at an early hour, Monday.

The light showers have been very beneficial to the young wheat.

The nice weather cannot last much longer—be prepared for the break.

The fly is said to be getting in its work pretty lively on some of the growing wheat.

Several prospective candidates for county offices were among those in town, Monday.

W. F. Grant was in town, Monday, the first time since he was stricken with fever several weeks ago.

A great many persons went from Burlington to Petersburg, Sunday, to attend the funeral of Charles Schramm.

...can take a ...now. Some of them have been doing faithful work and deserve a period of quiet.

Quite a large number of ladies came to town Monday to hear the political speeches. They were as attentive as were the voters.

FOR SALE:—A fine saddle, harness and buggy horse, cheap; also nice Jersey heifer. A. G. WILSON, Hebron, Ky.

For anything in the line of granite or marble work do not fail to call on Lawrenceburg Granite and Marble Works, Lawrenceburg, Indiana.

For Sale—Pure Barred Plymouth Rock cockerels, sired by a prize winner; also mommouth Bronze turkeys. R. O. Smith, Union, Ky. (stone house).

The county clerk began distributing the election outfit Saturday morning, and he had to get a pretty considerable move on to get everything placed.

Halloween was duly observed here last Wednesday night, and benches, gates and nearly everything else movable about town was given a shaking up.

Monday was political day in Burlington, speeches being made by J. Willard Mitchell, of Nicholasville, Congressman Berry, Joel Clore, J. E. Elliston and Clif Nadaud.

Mr. Hoover accompanied by his son and Miss Jude Duncanson, returned from Virginia, last Saturday. Mrs. Hoover, whose mother died a few days before, remaining in Virginia.

We crossed Woolper on the new iron bridge at Grant's ford, Sunday. The bridge appears to be a good, substantial structure. It has made a safe crossing of the most dangerous fords in the county.

On the 24th of this month the Walton Graded Common School District will vote on the proposition to incur a bonded indebtedness of $10,000, for the purpose of buying additional land and erecting a school house. The bonds are to run twenty years.

As Col. John Moody was riding across his farm, last Wednesday morning, to the river to extinguish the government beacon light, of which he has charge, a careless hunter sprinkled him and his horse with a load of shot, and the horse took a circle in the large field so furiously that those who saw the Colonel took him to be Teddy Roosevelt entering on a political tour of Kentucky.

We are in receipt of a copy of "Stringtown on the Pike," by John Uri Lloyd. It deals with negro superstition and feuds of the mountains, and is written in excellent style. The reader becomes interested before the first chapter is completed, and his interest increases as he progresses. Mr. Lloyd is a native of this county, and it is understood that Florence is the "Stringtown on the Pike." The book contains several engravings that are at once recognized by a Boone county reader.

Mrs. Elizabeth Bradberry, the venerable mother of James Jones, who resides down on Gunpowder, died Sunday morning, and was interred in the family burying ground at W. H. Pope's on Middle creek, Monday. Mrs. Bradberry had been in very poor health for some time. She was a daughter of the late Lawrence Pope. She was married twice, her first husband being Gabriel Jones, her second husband was Geo. W. Bradberry. Both preceded her to the grave.

A telephone cable across the river at Petersburg connects the system of this county with that of Green Bros., of Rising Sun, and the people of this county can converse with their Indiana neighbors at Lawrenceburg, Aurora, Rising Sun, Patriot, Vevay and about 50 other Indiana towns. The connection of the two systems was made last Friday. Green Bros. are truly enterprising men, and it is hoped that their venture in the telephone business will prove a source of great profit to them.

The news of the death of Charles Schramm, last Thursday morning was a great shock to his acquaintances at this place, all of whom recognized in him a big-hearted, able man, the equal of whom is not known in this county. He was the embodiment of everything that goes to make a man honored and loved by his associates. An object of charity was never turned away by him empty handed, and he always responded promptly and liberally when approached on behalf of charity, or a public enterprise. His purse was always open for the assistance of his fellow-man, and friends in the particular has reared for him a monument as enduring as time. In Mr. Schramm's death a void is created that can not be supplied. To know Chas. Schramm was to be acquainted with one who was a gentleman in every sense of the word. Let us hope that our loss is his gain.

SLEPT

That Knows No Waking Comes to Chas. Schramm, Citizen and Friend.

A Good Man Gone to His Reward.

If each man, woman and child in the little town of Petersburg, had received intelligence that a father, mother or near relative had passed beyond the river of Death, there would not have been more profound sorrow made manifest than the sad, sad news that the spirit of Charles Schramm, whom everybody loved, had been summoned to its maker, caused here. On every street corner could be seen strong men weeping over the death of their friend, Charley, as he was lovingly called by all.

It was 7 a. m., November 1st, that M. F. Wingate, Charley's bosom friend, received a telegram from Mr. M. E. Leming, at Cincinnati, stating that Mr. Schramm died at the Stratford Hotel at 5 o'clock that morning. Mr. Leming is a resident of Cape Guirdau, Mo., and was a partner of Mr. Schramm in the lumber business in Lawrenceburg, Indiana.

It was about 4:45 when Mr. Leming was aroused by the death rattle in the throat of his companion, and he attempted to arouse him but in vain. He then hastily summoned a doctor who boarded at the hotel, but the Death Angel had performed its mission before the physician could reach the bed side of its victim. It is supposed death was due to heart disease, to which he had been subject for years.

Mr. Schramm, in company with several friends, went to Cincinnati Tuesday afternoon to hear Bryan at night, and he was in his usual health, and was with his friends until midnight talking of, and rejoicing over, the great enthusiasm manifested at the meeting, and appeared to be extraordinarily happy, and little did he or his friends think before five hours had passed, death would have entered the crowd of light-hearted men, and converted smiles into tears.

The deceased was a man of great activity, and had just passed the half century mark. He had been engaged in mercantile pursuits since early manhood, and for ten or more years he had been engaged in the lumber business at Lawrenceburg with M. E. Leming & Co., and in his death Lawrenceburg loses one of her best and most influential business men, and our city and county loses a friend to all, both rich and poor. He leaves three sisters, Mrs. Charles Runk, of Cincinnati, and Misses Mary and Margaret, who reside here.

Mr. Schramm's personality was that of true manhood, and commanded the admiration of all his acquaintances. He was a man well informed on the topics of the day. He made friends of all with whom he came in contact.

The remains were brought to his home here Thursday afternoon, and the funeral took place from the residence Sunday at 11 a. m., being conducted by Masons, Odd-Fellows and Knights of Pythias, he being a prominent member of each order. About three hundred fraternity members were in the procession, while many hundreds of other persons were present to pay the last and tribute to one they loved so dearly in life. The floral offerings on the part of the lodges and friends were numerous and beautiful. The pallbearers were M. F. Wingate, Dr. J. M. Grant, T. B. Mathews, J. W. Berkshire, R. A. McWethy, M. E. Leming.

The funeral was probably the largest ever witnessed in this county, and our town and surrounding county appreciates the irreparable loss. E. H.

A Village Blacksmith Says His Little Son's Life.

Mr. H. H. Black, the well known village blacksmith at Grahamsville, Sullivan county, N. Y., says: "Our little son, five years old, has always been subject to croup, and so bad have the attacks been that we have feared many times that he would die We have had the doctor and used many medicines, but Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is now our sole reliance. It seems to dissolve the tough mucus and by giving frequent doses when the croupy symptoms appear we have found that the dreaded croup is cured before it gets settled." There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains no opium or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to a babe as to an adult. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Grant, Bellevue; McWethy & Berkshire, Petersburg; Baisly, Bullittsville.

Sensational newspapers do not enjoy the immunity from retribution in Russia which they do in this country. Two dailies of St. Petersburg which published the current false and exaggerated accounts of affairs in China during the siege of Peking have been severely reprimanded by the censor and their numerous extra editions considerably curtailed.

A new use has been found for paper. An ingenious fabric that shall be a substitute for carpet and supplant the Chinese matting so generally used. The new fabric has a cotton warp and a paper filling, a tough variety of tissue paper being used. The fabric may be dyed and produced in variegated designs similar to any ingrain carpet patterns now in the market.

An entire town has recently been discovered in the dominion of the Czar of the existence of which no one seems to have had any idea. Deep in the forests of the Ural lies a flourishing city, the inhabitants of which speak a curious language of their own, and seem to form a sort of ideal commonwealth, in which taxes and taxgatherers, among other troublesome things, are unheard of.

The flying machine seems at last in sight. Count Zeppelin the other day went up a thousand feet in his airship, traveled a distance of sixty-eight miles, turned about and landed at the spot from which he started, after which he made another ascent of five-eighths of a mile and executed various evolutions. Already the nations are talking about the availability of the Zeppelin airship in war.

Consul Roosevelt writes from Brussels: "Several of the leading newspapers of Brussels use typesetting machines of various makes and of English, Dutch and German origin. As far as I can learn, no American typesetting machine is used here. The machines at present enjoying greatest favor, is the English linotype duplex machine, costing, with accessories, special material for type not included £624 ($3,036.99).

The patterns for castings used in foundries are made of wood, and frequently a number of articles are made from the same model. In such case if the same pattern is continuously employed its edges are apt to suffer, and it must either be repaired or renewed. It has been recently suggested that aluminum would be available for this purpose, and that from an original pattern in wood one of two copies could be cast.

Game Warden Johnson, of Colorado, is on record as declaring that larger herds of deer have been reported to him this season than ever before. His statement is corroborated by that of wardens in the northwestern portion of Colorado, as the movements of game southward has begun. The herds are exceptionally large and show a gratifying increase over those of last year, and last year, it may be remembered, was generally considered a record breaker.

Small lots of Florida oranges have appeared on the market of late, and reports from prominent growers South are to the effect that considerable fruit will be marketed this year. The crop is expected to be about 40 per cent. larger than last year, and many groves will ship fruit this season for the first time since the big freeze. Stock received so far has been green, and in most cases it has had to be put in warm rooms to ripen up sufficiently to attract buyers.

The French naval department has an exhibit in the Paris Exposition giving a graphic view of the development of oyster cultivation in France. During 1879-87 the yearly average production of French oysters amounted to $2,120,000, gradually increasing to $4,825,000 for the year 1898, when 15,500,000 French and 3,000,000 Portuguese oysters were sold along the French coasts. The bivalves are a great luxury in Europe, and so dear that only the wealthier classes can afford to eat them.

For several seasons football players have worn long hair to protect their heads. This year it is said they will wear short hair for the same reason. Long hair is very little protection, since baldheaded players get hurt no worse than their chrysanthemum companions. On the other hand long locks flaunting in the face of an opposing college Indian furnish a good argument for the use of the shears, and no doubt many a player who would be ruled out of the game for slugging [illegible] actually by [illegible]

BUCKET SHOPS.

Dealing in One of These Institutions and on the Board of Trade Practically the Same.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—Judge Vail Thursday in open court created a sensation by declaring that in his opinion dealing on the Chicago board of trade and dealing in one of the institutions which the members of the board of trade had stigmatized as a quota "Bucket Shop," were practically the same. He stated that the same thing was called "gambling" in the bucket shops, and "speculation" on the board of trade, but that both were "betting pure and simple."

The occasion for these remarks was furnished in the closing of the case brought by the Central Stock and Grain Exchange against the board of trade for an injunction to prevent the board from stopping it from receiving quotations. Judge Vail postponed a formal decision pending the submission of briefs by the contending attorneys.

GOVERNMENT PRISONERS.

Three of Them Make Their Escape From the Military Prison on Alcatraz Island.

San Francisco, Nov. 2.—Three prisoners have escaped from the United States military prison on Alcatraz island. One of the escaped prisoners was Frank Kinne, who was under a sentence of 15 years for desertion and treason. Kinne was brought here a few months ago in irons from Manila. He had deserted his command and accepted a commission from the Filipino army. He was caught by the American troops leading a charge of the insurgents. Kinne claimed to be a prisoner of the Filipinos, but the Americans who were with the party as prisoners declared this to be a falsehood, and denounced the man as a traitor and a rebel.

The others who escaped with Kinne were C. J. Huntington, under sentence of ten years, and J. M. Potts, serving five years. [illegible] declined to give answers concerning the prospects for gold, while others admitted they were taking out only from $4 to $6 a day. The beach was practically worked out last year. The tundra is believed to be rich, but it would require large capital to produce results.

There is a large area of country which has not been prospected, where gold can be found, but it requires men of experience to develop such a country. Gen. Randall discusses the various points where mining operations have been in progress.

He says it has been decided to establish a permanent military post on the island of St. Michaels. He recommends the purchase of two stern wheel steamers for operations on the Yukon and that all coal, forage and building material intended for Alaskan posts be started from Seattle not later than June 15 and shipped in sailing vessels for economy; also that a cable be laid from Seattle, via Juneau and Skagway.

BUFORD AND KILPATRICK.

The Two Transports, About to Sail for Manila With United States Troops, Inspected.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Gen. Ludington and Col. Bird, of the quartermaster's department, returned Thursday from a visit to New York where they made a thorough inspection of the transports Buford and Kilpatrick which are about to start for Manila with 2,000 recruits for Gen. MacArthur's army.

Gen. Ludington said he was very much pleased with the condition and equipments of the vessels and was confident that they will render most efficient service. Each ship is provided with 1,000 berths and it is expected that each will take its full complement of soldiers to the Philippines. The Buford will start on her long voyage on the 7th inst. and will be followed by the Kilpatrick a week later.

IN FAVOR OF PLAINTIFF.

Railroads Responsible for Safety of Passengers While in Their Depots for a Reasonable Time.

Chicago, Nov. 2.—According to a decision handed down by the United States court of appeals in the case of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad Co. against Nancy A. Wood, railroads are responsible for the safety of their passengers while in their stations for a reasonable time after descending from trains, and the relations of carrier and passenger taken until a passenger quits station or depot.

Suit was brought by Mrs. Wood in the lower United States court to recover damages for bodily injuries she received waile in a railroad station belonging to the Rock Island just after leaving a train. She won the suit in the lower court and an appeal was taken on a writ of error

DIED SUDDENLY.

Dr. Louis W. Read, a Noted Army Surgeon, Succumbs to Heart Failure, Aged 72 Years.

Norristown, Pa., Nov. 2.—Dr. Louis W. Read, aged 72 years, died suddenly Thursday of heart failure. He was surgeon general of the Pennsylvania national guard for 25 years. He served as a surgeon during the Crimean war and was at Sebastopol during its siege by the allied forces. In December, 1863, he successfully removed a bullet from the body of Gen. Hancock, who had been wounded at Gettysburg, when other physicians had failed.

On Gen. Otis' Staff.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Maj. C. N. Murray, inspector general, United States volunteers, has been relieved from duty in the office of the inspector general of the army in Washington and ordered to Chicago for duty on the staff of Gen. Otis commanding the department of the lakes.

Has Yellow Fever.

Havana, Nov. 2.—Col. William L. Haskins, of the 2d United States artillery, stationed at El Vegado, is suffering, it is reported, from yellow fever in a light form. Two privates of the regiment have also been attacked.

Returns to Rio Janeiro.

Buenos Ayres, Nov. 2.—Dr. Campos Salles, president of Brazil, who has been visiting Gen. Roca, the president of Argentina, left here Thursday on his return trip to Rio Janeiro.

AFFAIRS IN ALASKA.

Annual Report of Brig. Gen. Geo. Randall, Commander.

There is a Large Area in the Territory Which Has Not Been Prospected Where Gold Can Yet Be Found.

Washington, Nov. 5.—Brig. Gen. George M. Randall, commanding the Department of Alaska, under date of September 20, at St. Michael, has submitted his annual report. A great deal of the report is devoted to conditions at Nome, which he found upon his arrival at a critical stage. It was difficult to obtain convictions by a jury trial in the United States commissioner's court, which emboldens the lawless. Labor organization prevented the men from working for less than $1 an hour.

Fully 18,000 people arrived at Nome in June. Claim jumping was the order of the day. Nearly every one seemed to think he had a Divine right to take possession of a claim or town lot which he found. Many property owners were disposed to defend their rights by taking the law in their own hands. The arrival of troops prevented bloodshed and serious disorder. On the request of the chamber of commerce, the military took charge, thoroughly examined into all complaints, and where the rights of property could be determined placed it in the possession of the lawful owner. Capt. W. A. Bethel, who acted as judge advocate in these cases, is highly praised by Gen. Randall.

The sanitary conditions were placed under control of Maj. Chas. E. Bert, surgeon, who has heretofore reported upon conditions. The energetic efforts of the military improved these conditions during the summer.

There were about 500 men working on the beach at Nome with machin[illegible] on [illegible]

SENATOR C. K. DAVIS.

He is Decidedly Worse, and Grave Fears Are Entertained for His Ultimate Recovery.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 5.—The condition of Senator C. K. Davis was reported as decidedly worse Sunday and grave fears are entertained that if his life is saved it may be at the cost of his foot or possibly his right leg. The pus which had formed in the fore part of his foot, and for the removal of which two surgical operations were performed, has now gathered further back toward the heel, and indications are that it is permeating the entire limb. The fever with which the distinguished patient was suffering on Friday has returned and does not yield as readily to treatment as formerly. The surgeons in attendance held a consultation Sunday and it was decided to send at once to Chicago for the best specialist to be had. The senator was very restless and suffered much pain Sunday. He has not been told of the serious nature of his ailment and chafes greatly under the enforced confinement.

Two Steamers Aground.

Hamburg, Nov. 5.—The Hamburg-American line steamers Feurst Bismarck, bound from this port for New York, via Southampton and Cherbourg, and the Pretoria, from here, bound for New York, via Boulogne and Plymouth, both went aground, while passing down the Elbe at Schulau, about 13 miles from here. Assistance has been sent from here to help the stranded vessels off.

Construction Stopped.

Hermosillo, Mexico, Nov. 5.—The construction of the branch line of the Sonora railroad, which is a part of the Southern Pacific, to the San Marcial coal fields, in this state, has been stopped, and it is reported that the project is to be abandoned. The building of this road was one of the pet projects of C. P. Huntington during the later years of his life.

Stolen Title Deeds Found.

Rome, Nov. 5.—Searches made at Genoa, Milan and Florence have resulted in the discovery of title deeds, stolen from the Vatican, valued at 20,000 francs. A man and a woman were arrested at Genoa, and a search of their house disclosed a quantity of American title deeds.

ST. PAUL DISABLED.

An Accident That Will Require Five Months to Repair and Cost From $250,000 to $300,000.

New York, Nov. 5.—The steamship St. Paul, of the American line, Capt. Roberts in command, arrived in port Sunday 24 hours late, with her starboard propeller gone and her engine room badly damaged. Statements of different officials vary as to the cause of the accident, but the damage sustained by the steamship will probably amount to several hundred thousand dollars.

The St. Paul left Southampton and Cherbourg on October 27 with a full cargo, 316 cabin passengers and 245 in the steerage.

Samuel Bettle, the acting manager of the American line, said Sunday, after consultation with Chief Engineer Hunter:

"At 3:06 o'clock on Wednesday, while the ship was running at full speed, under the most favorable conditions, although she was pitching and rolling a good deal, the St. Paul's propeller probably struck a derelict. The tail shaft broke just inside the ship and the extreme end of the propeller dropped into the sea and serious damage was done to the starboard engine, which was stopped within ten seconds. None of the crew was injured and there was no excitement among the passengers, many of whom remained undisturbed at dinner, unaware that an accident had occurred."

One of the engineers of the St. Paul made the following statement Sunday night:

"It will take five months to repair the damage, which is to the extent of from $250,000 to $300,000. The starboard engine is a wreck. The ship did not strike a derelict, but an unusually big sea struck her, throwing the stern out of water, and the propellers, having no resistance, made frightfully rapid revolutions which caused the starboard engine to race, and the starboard tail shaft broke in two and with the wheel fell into the water. The amount of damage done is not surprising when you take into consideration the sudden liberation of 10,000 horse power.

The St. Paul will leave on Tuesday for the Cramps shipyard, Philadelphia, where the necessary repairs will be made. Meantime the Friesland, which sails on Wednesday for Antwerp, will take the St. Paul's passengers, mail and freight to Southampton.

ACTIVE SCOUTING.

Several Bands of Filipinos Were Worsted—Great Excitement Over Presidential Election.

Manila, Nov. 5.—Last week was devoted to scouting. The insurgents, having failed to crush a single garrison, are now experiencing a reaction.

Lieuts. Wilson and Dority, of the 45th volunteer infantry, destroyed large stores of rice, four granaries and a barracks near Bato.

Capt. Atkinson, with 34 men of the 37th volunteer infantry, attacked 100 insurgents under Col. Valencia, recovering two American prisoners and capturing a considerable quantity of ammunition and supplies.

A native orchestra lured the United States troops from their quarters near Dagupan, while the insurgents attacked the rear, killing two Americans and wounding three.

Sunday Senor Buencamino, representing the principal insurgents in Manila, requested Judge Taft to forward to Washington a signed expression of their loyalty.

There is considerable excitement over the presidential election, with a good deal of betting on the result.

CABINET CHANGES.

Mr. George Wyndham Will Probably Be Appointed Chief Secretary For Ireland.

London, Nov. 5.—The Times announced Monday morning that Mr. George Wyndham, who was parliamentary under secretary of war in the late cabinet, will probably be appointed chief secretary for Ireland. It says it is also likely that Mr. Walter Hume Long, who was president of the board of agriculture, will become president of the local government board, and that Mr. Robert William Manbury, who was financial secretary to the treasury, will be given the postmaster generalship, with a seat in the cabinet.

According to the same authority, the Marquis of Londonderry will be appointed president of the board of agriculture and Mr. Chamberlain will be removed from the post of civil lords admiralty to that of official secretary to the treasury.

Football Player Paralyzed.

Berkeley, Cal., Nov. 3.—Lee Calhoun Dutt, substitute center on the freshmen eleven of the University of California, is totally paralyzed from the shoulders down as a result of an injury received in football practice last week.

Must Remove Their Hats.

Ft. Worth, Tex., Nov. 3.—The city council passed an ordinance compelling women to remove their hats at all public entertainments where a fee is charged. The ordinance provides a fine of $5 or expulsion from the entertainment.

Vermont's Population.

Washington, Nov. 5.—The population of the state of Vermont, as announced by the census bureau, is 343,641, against 332,422 in 1890. [illegible]

PROTECT THE INDIANS

White Men Intrude and Secure Their Prospective Allotments.

The Total Population of the "Five Civilized Tribes" is Estimated at 84,750—Several Recommendations Made.

Washington, Nov. 5.—United States Indian Agent Shoenfeldt, in charge of the Union agency, whose jurisdiction comprises the five civilized tribes, protests in his annual report against unlawful occupation of the Indian lands and urges rigid congressional legislation to protect the Indian citizen against the encroachments of aggressive and grasping whites. Of 2,000 complaints filed against noncitizens by Indians in the past fiscal year a large majority were against white men who in the past had intruded themselves upon the Indians and had gained their confidence to a sufficient degree to secure possession of their prospective allotments, and, after having secured possession, refused either to pay rent or to vacate, thus preventing the Indians from receiving any rents or profits therefrom.

Many of the Indians are too poor to institute suit for the possession, and, therefore, are left helpless. The total population of the five civilized tribes is estimated at 84,750, comprising 20,250 Choctaws and Freedmen, 10,500 Chickasaws and Freedmen, 10,900 Creeks and Freedmen, 35,000 Cherokees and Freedmen and 3,000 Seminoles, and their lands comprise a total of 19,776,286 acres.

The agent says that there is now every reason to believe that the Indian depredations and disturbances in the five tribes region are at an end. A few full-blooded Creeks are strenuously opposing the allotments of lands, and have banded together and refuse to appear to select their allotments.

A large majority of the Creeks, however, have actually made their selections. The report recommends that congress appropriate out of the Cherokee funds a sufficient amount to pay the indebtedness of the nation; that a law be passed compelling the five tribes to adopt a uniform system of taxing noncitizens residing and doing business in the limits of their nation, and that a workhouse or reformatory be established.

THE CARNOT MONUMENT.

No Disorders Marred the Ceremony Of Its Unveiling at Lyons, France.

Lyons, France, Nov. 5.—No disorder marred the ceremony of unveiling the monument to the late President Carnot here Sunday or the luncheon tendered President Loubet by the Chamber of Commerce, which followed the unveiling, although the Socialist committee had posted bills calling upon their followers to make the demonstration in protest against the Chamber of Commerce, which is regarded by them as clerical and reactionary.

M. Loubet was greeted with overwhelming acclamation, although occasionally along the route cries of "Vive la socialc revolution" were heard, mingled with denunciations of the clerical party. A few groups were dispersed by the police, but nothing in the nature of any organized demonstration developed.

DROPPED TWELVE FEET.

Died From Injuries Received While Being Hazed at the Porter Military Academy.

Charleston, S. C., Nov. 5.—Thomas Finlay Brown, a 12-year-old boy, is dead from injuries received while being hazed at the Porter military academy last Friday. Brown was new at the academy and the older boys, following their former custom, dropped him into a cemented swimming basin 12 feet deep. The basin was dry at the time and the lad received internal injuries from the fall. Before he died he did not give the names of the cadets who had ill treated him, and it is said no action will be taken.

Chilian Cabinet Crisis.

Valparaiso, Nov. 5.—The cabinet crisis was terminated Sunday by the formation of a coalition ministry, made up in part as follows: Premier and minister of the interior, Mariano Sanchez Fontecna; minister of foreign affairs, Alberto Gonzales Errazuriz; minister of finance, Manuel Covarrubias; minister of war, Arturo Rosa.

Not Related to Carlist Movement.

Madrid, Nov. 5.—There is no foundation whatever for the suggestion made by certain Spanish papers that the departure from Barcelona of Mr. Julius G. Lay, United States consul general there, for Majoria was in some way related to the Carlist movement. Mr. Lay wires from Port Mahon that his journey is "solely connected with affairs of the consulate."

Won the 15-Mile Match.

New York, Nov. 5.—Johnny Ring got the better of W. F. Wahrenburger in the 15-mile paced match, which Sunday figured as the feature at Vailsburg, N. J. Ring led from the outset, gradually increased his advantage and won by over three-quarters of a mile.

It is Incomparable.

About six years ago Mr. A. E. Magoffin, of Lyons, Kansas, wrote: "I have been selling and recommending your Lotion ever since 1896, (a period of eight years), and I have never found anything to compare with it for curing Pimples, Tetter, Eczema, Erysipelas and the like. Many of my friends and customers are never without it." Palmer's Lotion was introduced to the public by its present proprietor in 1848 and the millions who have used it cheerfully recommend it. THE BOERS' REVIVAL.

It is Far More Serious Than Has Hitherto Been Believed.

The Transvaalers Well Armed and Abundantly Supplied With Ammunition—The Campaign Likely to Last for Six Months.

London, Nov. 3.—The South African situation is improving and Lord Roberts will shortly return to England with a majority of his staff. Arrangements are being made in Cape Town to send the first batch of refugees back to Johannesburg and accommodation is being provided at Bloemfontein for a garrison of 7,000. Nevertess the activity of the Boers continues. On October 26 a commando of 300 captured a garrison of 30 men at Reddersburg but afterwards released them. Trains from the south to Pretoria are attacked by the Boers almost daily. On October 24 the Burghers occupied Koffyfontein.

On the other hand Gen. Knox has inflicted a reverse on Gen. DeWet's forces near Parys, capturing two guns one of them a weapon lost by the British in the Sannas Post affair.

The daily tale of British casualties is heavy. During the month of October the British lost 167 killed in action, including 15 officers, 71 who died of wounds, 367 who died of disease, 22 who died of accidents and 97 captured or missing, a total almost equal to the monthly average for the duration of the war.

The Daily Express publishes sensational statements that the Boer revival is more serious than has hitherto been believed and that in consequence Lord Roberts return is likely to be still further postponed.

It also says that no considerable party of troops will return before January or February, while the regimental drafts from England will continue and 5,000 horses will be sent out.

The paper definitely declares that the Boers are well armed and abundantly supplied with ammunition and that the campaign is likely to last another six months. In the best informed quarters, however, it is asserted that there is no ground for the pessimism of the Daily Express.

MILITIA ORDERED OUT.

They Go to Jefferson, Ga., to Protect the Life of Gus Fellows, Charged With Assault.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 3.—Another company of the Georgia militia was ordered from here Friday night by Gov. Candler, under command of Maj. Nash, of the 5th Georgia regiment, with instructions to proceed to Jefferson, in Jackson county, this state, for the purpose of protecting the life of Gus Fellows, a Negro, charged with an assault on Miss Dora Hood, a prominent young lady of Harmony Grove. A mob of 300 is reported there with the intention of lynching the Negro. Fellows was taken from Atlanta Friday morning under military escort to Jefferson for trial. It was expected that one company of troops would be sufficient to protect him and the call Friday night upon the adjutant general and the governor for more troops caused considerable apprehension as to the situation. Details are not yet obtainable.

PENSIONING EMPLOYES.

The New System Will Go Into Effect January 1, 1901, on the Pennsylvania Lines.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 3.—Official notices were posted Friday of the inauguration of a pension system for the employes of all the Pennsylvania lines. The new system will go into effect on January 1, 1901. Employes aged 70 years or more will be given the option of retiring from service on half pay. Another provision also stipulates that if an employe has been crippled in the service of the road, he can retire at the age of 65 years. The system has been in vogue on the Pennsylvania railroad for some time, and has met with the approval of the employes.

TO BE COMMISSIONED.

The Briceson, Cushing and Dupont Will Be a Part of the Torpedo Boat Flotilla.

Washington, Nov. 3.—The navy department has ordered Adm. Farquhar, commanding the North Atlantic squadron, to commission the Ericsson, Cushing and Dupont. This is part of the torpedo boat flotilla which will accompany the squadron on its winter cruise. The Atlanta probably will sail on Sunday for South Africa. She takes the place of the Machias in Adm. Schley's South Atlantic squadron. The Manila arrived at Cavite Friday. The Philadelphia and the Iowa have arrived safely at San Pedro.

Jockey Buchanan Reinstated.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Jockey Buchanan, of California, suspended recently at Harlem for rough riding, was reinstated Friday by Judge Hamilton. The jockey will be allowed to take mounts only for his employer, Barney Schreiber.

Ex-Mayor Strong Dead.

New York, Nov. 3.—Ex-Mayor William L. Strong, of New York city, died early Friday morning at his residence, 13 West Fifty-seventh street. He was born on a farm in Richland county, Ohio.

PUBLIC DEBT STATEMENT.

The Total Debt is $1,321,467,853—There Is a Cash Balance on Hand of $287,005,023.

Washington, Nov. 2.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business October 31, 1900, the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $1,104,462,320, a decrease, as compared with last month, of $1,754,331.

The debt is recapitulated as follows: Interest-bearing debt, $1,001,409,750; debt on which interest has ceased since maturity, $3,430,030; debt bearing no interest, $380,447,571; total, $1,391,407,352.

This amount, however, does not include $740,965,679 in certificates and treasury notes outstanding which are offset by an equal amount of cash on hand. The cash in the treasury is classified as follows: Reserve fund, $150,000,000; trust funds, $740,965,679; general fund, $123,629,053.

In national bank depositories to the credit of the treasurer of the United States, $89,918,485; to credit of disbursing officers, $6,559,658. Total, $1,111,071,877, against which there are demand liabilities outstanding, amounting to $824,066,844, which leaves a cash balance on hand of $287,005,032.

A GOOD SHOWING.

Report of the Commerce of the Island of Cuba for the Ten Months Ending April 30.

Washington, Nov. 2.—The department of customs and insular affairs, war department, made public Thursday a summary of its regular monthly bulletin, showing the commerce of the island of Cuba for the ten months ended April 30.

This statement shows that the value of all the merchandise imported during the period was $29,925,339 and of gold and silver $5,105,287, giving a total importation of $65,030,626. Of this amount $29,386,588 worth was sent from the United States, $2,447,456 came from Porto Rico.

The total exportation of merchandise amounted to $45,404,421, of which agricultural products formed the greater part.

The export of gold and silver was $3,299,553, making the total value of all exports from Cuba $38,703,974. The United States took $23,936,252 worth of these exports and $80,157 worth went to Porto Rico.

FOUGHT ON A TRAIN.

Mr. Hardin Was Stabbed By Senator Hemrick—Others Received Slight Injuries.

Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 2.—A special from Valdosta, Ga., says:

It leaked out Thursday that a fight occurred Wednesday night on the special train bringing the Georgia legislators here to attend the state fair. There was a difficulty between some of the members and it is understood that Mr. Hardin, of Wilkes, was stabbed by Senator Hemrick. Mr. Hardin was put off the train at Forsyth for medical treatment. Several other members including Mr. Cann, of Chatham, received slight injuries in the effort to seperate the belligerents. It is said that the men were the best of friends and whisky is given as the cause of the trouble. The party very much regretts the affair and none of them can be induced to talk about it.

MAJ. DAVIS DEAD.

He Died in the Philippines of Chronic Bright's Disease—A Veteran of the Rebellion.

Washington, Nov. 2.—Gen. MacArthur, at Manila, notified the war department Thursday that Maj. John G. Davis, U. S. V., died at Manila Thursday morning of chronic Bright's disease. Maj. Davis was a native of Illinois and a veterun of the war of the rebellion. At the outbreak of the Spanish war he was appointed major and surgeon of the 7th United States volunteer infantry and remained in the volunteer medical establishment up to the time of his death.

In the early part of 1899 Maj. Davis was the chief sanitary officer of Havana. At the time of his death he was chief surgeon of the Third district of Southern Luzon.

DEMAND AN APOLOGY.

French Officers Forcibly Ejected From a Special Train Carrying United States Soldiers.

Tien-Tsin, Nov. 1 (via Shanghai, Nov. 2),—Wednesday at Yeng Taul a party of French officers occupied a coach of the special train assigned to carry the 14th United States infantry to Tong Ku, and declined to leave when requested to do so. Col. Daggert, of the 14th, called the American guard and forcibly ejected the officers. The French are greatly incensed over the incident and demand an apology.

Pencils for Europe.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Nov. 2.—A local manufacturing company Thursday shipped 1,000,000 slate pencils to London, and began work on an order of 2,000,000 for Paris. Heavy shipments were recently made to India and Australia by the same company

The Russian Crops.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 2.—The minister of agriculture estimates Russian crops for 1900 as being considerable below the average. These estimates are based on the reports of 7,100 correspondents.

PEACE COMMISSION.

Li Kun Yi and Chang Ti Tung Added to It by the Emperor.

The Railroad From Pao Ting Fu to the Capital Nearly Completed—The Line Being Guarded By French Soldiers.

London, Nov. 3.—The Shanghai correspondent of the Times says that an imperial edict appoints Liu Kun Yi, viceroy of Nankin, and Chang Chi Tung, viceroy of Hankow, to be additional peace commissioners on behalf of China.

Berlin, Nov. 3.—Official telegrams from Count Von Waldersee show that all the German troops have arrived in China and been distributed. The 1st and 2d marines, the 1st infantry brigade and a small force of cavalry and artillery are stationed at Peking. The 2d infantry brigade with a corresponding force of artillery, engineers and cavalry, is at Pao Ting Fu. One battalion is at Shan Hai Kwan. The third infantry brigade, with a company of sharpshooters, two squadrons of cavalry and several batteries, is at Tien-Tsin. One battery and several howitzers are at Taku, and a force of troops is distributed along the railway from Peking to Yan Tsun, superintending the work of construction.

A special dispatch to the Hamburg Correspondenz says: "In a well situated in the imperial palace precincts in Peking was found the body of Emperor Kwang Su's favorite wife, Shen Ti, whom the empress dowager caused to be drowned before the flight of the court from the capital. The second favorite, Shing Fi, and 100 ladies belonging to the imperial harem are prisoners in the hands of the allies."

A dispatch from Pao Ting Fu, dated Thursday, says: "Telegraphic connection has been completed with Peking entirely by the Germans. The railway from Tien Tsin to the capital is nearly completed. French detachments are guarding the line.

Another batch of letters from German soldiers in China appear Friday in a number of papers, among them the Hanover Courier, which editorially demand official statements with reference to the details given by the writers of the cruelties alleged to have been committed by German troops in China.

Berlin, Nov. 2.—Considerable impatience at the meagerness of news from China is finding expression here. The inference is that German censorship over such information is very strict. Letters from privates in China begin to find their way into the social democratic papers, showing that the German troops give no quarter. The Bremen Buerger Zeitung publishes a letter from a soldier in Peking who said he witnessed the following scene:

"Sixty-eight captives, some of them not yet adults, were tied together by their pig tails, beaten bloody by the Germans, compelled to dig their own graves and shot en masse."

The Halberstadter Volks Zeitung prints a communication from Peking in which the writer says: "No prisoners are taken. All are shot, or, preferably, sabered to save ammunition. On Sunday afternoon we had to bayonet 74 prisoners. They had killed one of our patrolmen. An entire battalion pursued them and captured 74 alive. It was cruel. It was indescribable."

The Post, of this city, semi-officially, made the following announcement Thursday. "As the third clause of the Anglo-German agreement is intended to operate in the event of one power acting in opposition to the principles laid down, it ceases to be important, all the powers accepting it."

London, Nov. 5.—Dr. Morrison, wiring to the Times from Peking November 1, says:

"The evidence in the Pao Ting Fu trial to fix the responsibility for the massacre showed that an American lady, before execution, was led naked through the city, and that her breasts were cut off. The destruction of two temples is not adequate punishment for such inhumanity."

"Advices from Tien Tsin," says the Shanghai correspondent of the Times, wiring Sunday, "show that disorganization and absence of security are the chief characteristics of the allied occupation."

St. Petersburg, Nov. 5.—The Rooskiya, a newspaper of wide circulation, again emphasizes the importance of Russia's separate interests in China and demands that she should definitely abandon the concert of powers and negotiate a separate peace.

Sank a Fishing Schooner.

Queenstown, Nov. 5.—The Cunard liner Saxonia, Capt. Pritchard, from Boston October 27, which arrived here Sunday morning, brought 15 members of the crew of the fishing schooner Mary Mosquito, which the Saxonia sank off Gloucester on the day of her departure from Boston. One member of the crew was drowned. The Cunarder was not damaged.

Treasury's Condition.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Friday's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption shows: Available cash balance, $137,305,813; gold $929,346,077.

Forty-Five Converts.

London, Nov. 3.—Dr. Dowie concluded his first installment of his London campaign and baptized in secret 45 converts. He left for a tour of the provinces Friday, and early in December will storm Paris.

CENSUS REPORT.

The Population of the United States, Official and Estimated, Is 76,295,220.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Following is the official announcement of the population of the United States in 1900 by states. In the figures the first column represents the census for 1900 and the second for 1890. The third column, when given, represents the number of Indians not taxed:

ALVORD'S BAIL.

Fixed So High He Is Unable to Give It—Appraisement of the Contents of His House.

New York, Nov. 3.—Cornelius L. Alvord, defaulting note teller of the First national bank, was arraigned Friday morning before United States Commissioner Shields. He was accompanied by his counsel, Jacob F. Miller, and appeared to be very nervous.

Application was made for bail and it was fixed at $150,000. Alvord was unable to give it.

He was delivered over to the possession of United States Marshal Henkel and taken to the Ludlow street jail.

The appraisers appointed to make an inventory of the contents of the house of Cornelius L. Alvord, under the attachment of the First national bank of New York, have completed their work and appraise the value of them at $5,438. Sheriff Molloy, of Westchester county, will summon a sheriff's jury on Monday to decide to whom the property attached belongs. The Alvord residence is still in charge of deputy sheriffs.

BRAVE WOMAN.

Mrs. Lottie Lyons, Attacked By Two Robbers, Knocked Down One of Her Assailants.

Austin, Minn., Nov. 3.—Mrs. Lottie Lyons, while crossing the big bridge here Friday night, was attacked by two men who endeavored, after robbing her of $1,900 that she was carrying, to throw her over the bridge. Mrs. Lyons made a brave fight and finally knocked down one of her assailants. He was helped to his feet by his companion, and both men escaped, carrying with them the woman's money.

OVATION TO MITCHELL.

Seven Thousand People Attend a Meeting in Nanticoke—The Mine Workers' President Spoke.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Nov. 3.—President Mitchell made his last speech to the United Mine Workers of the anthracite region at Nanticoke Friday night previous to his departure for national headquarters at Indianapolis.

Two thousand people packed the opera house in which the meeting was held and 3,000 thronged the street in the vicinity of the hotel, where an overflow meeting was held later. A parade of members of various trade unions was also held.

American League Clubs.

Baltimore, Md., Nov. 3.—It is stated here on good authority that Baltimore and Washington had agreed to join the Ban Johnson league, with the understanding, however, that the league was to be independent of the National league.

Capital of Australia.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 3.—Australian advices indicate the probable election of Albury, N. S. W., as the capital of Federated Australia. Lord Hopetown, the first governor general, will arrive in Sydney December 3.

STATE ODDS AND ENDS.

MURDER AND RIOTING.

One Man Dead and Ten Men in Jail at Lexington—Wanted to Burn a Saloon.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 5.—As the aftermath of a riotous night in Yellmantown, a northwestern suburb of the city, George Broadus, colored, is dead and David Thomas, Charles Downing, Lige Johnson, Will Johnson, Beauchamp Collins, Wilburt Kelley (all white), Sam Hope, Louis Stevenson, Frank Frazier and "Red Tom" Davis (all colored) are in jail on charges of murder and rioting.

David Thomas, for three years an employe on the thoroughbred farm of Col. Milton Young, came to the city about three weeks ago and opened a cheap drink house in Yellmantown. He wanted the negro trade of the place, and as an inducement treated them liberally. Business was so rushing by last midnight that Thomas called Lige Johnson and Charles Downing to help him behind the bar.

Tom Davis started an argument with Sam Hope. Thomas got a shotgun, and as he laid it on the shelf beneath the bar he said: "Now, you Negroes, keep quiet in here or I'll blow some of your lights out with this gun."

Davis quieted for a few minutes, but later made a motion as if to draw a weapon. Thomas was raising a glass of beer to his lips, but instead of transferring the beverage to his stomach, he fired glass and all into Davis' face. He reached for the shotgun, but Charles Downing had beaten him to it. Raising the gun over the level of the bar, Downing discharged one of the loads. It entered [illegible] into the head of Geo. Broadus, who fell forward on the bar counter. This shot proved the signal for one of the worst riots that the city has known for years. No less than a dozen pistols were whipped out by the people in the barroom, and many shots were fired.

SPREE OF HIS LIFE.

Package of Five-Dollar Gold Pieces Instead of Nickels Given Him When He Secured "Change."

Morganfield, Ky., Nov. 3.—Thursday a Negro workman of Uniontown, Ky., after finishing a job of work at which he had earned a silver dollar, presented this to the cashier of the Pike Morgan Banking Co., asking for small change. The cashier, mistaking a package of five-dollar gold pieces for a roll of nickels, handed over the roll of gold. The Negro got together several congenial companions and enjoyed the spree of his life. He has since been arrested, though the bank officials are puzzled to determine what kind of a charge to bring against him.

TOOK STRYCHNINE.

Edward Nichols, of Cynthiana, Was Out of Employment and Had Been Drinking Hard.

Cynthiana, Ky., Nov. 3.—Edward Nichols, aged 28, of this city, committed suicide by taking strychnine. He attempted to take the drug in the bar of the Columbia hotel, but was seen by the bar tender, who snatched it from him. He then went into another saloon and succeeded in the second attempt. On his way home he took a second dose and died about 11 o'clock.

No cause for the act is known, except that he has been out of employment and was drinking hard of late.

Gets an Extension of Time.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 2.—Attorneys Brown and Sims, counsel for Caleb Powers, Thursday morning entered a motion in the court of appeals for an extension of the time granted to file their appeal from the decision of the Scott circuit court and for an order directing the Scott circuit clerk to turn the record over to them without the payment of the regular fees. The clerk, through his attorney, Victor Bradley, filed objection, but he was overruled and the order entered. The time was extended to file the record until November 8 next.

Castleman Resigns.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 5.—Gen. John B. Castleman has tendered his resignation as adjutant general to Gov. Beckham. Gen. Castleman took the step for the reason that his duties are now purely nominal, but he does not wish any responsibility.

Shot and Killed.

Louisville, Nov. 5.—Charles Dickey, colored, was shot and instantly killed by Herman Clay, also colored, here Sunday night. The men quarreled in a crap game and the shooting was justifiable. Clay surrendered.

Ball Player Hurt.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 3.—Pelham Johnson, of state college first team, at practice Friday, batted into Dwyer, of the second team. The doctor took six stitches in the abrasion over his eye and his head had to be bandaged to keep down the swelling.

Both Arms Broken.

Covington, Ky., Nov. 3.—Mrs. Christian Connelly, aged 73, of 93 East Robins street, fell down a flight of stone steps while leaving St. Mary's cathedral Friday night, and broke both of her arms below the elbows.

MANY INVITATIONS.

The Wedding of Gov. J. C. W. Beckham and Miss Jean Fuqua Takes Place November 21.

Owensboro, Ky., Nov. 5.—The invitations to the wedding of Gov. Beckham and Miss Jean Fuqua, of this city, will be formally issued next week. About 1,500 will be sent out. They are as follows:

"Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Anderson Fuqua request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Jean Raphael, to Mr. John Crepps Wickliffe Beckham, on Wednesday evening, November 21, 1900, at 8:30 o'clock. First resbyterian church, Owensboro, Ky."

The ceremony will be performed by Rev. Leslie Hudson, of Owensboro, and Rev. W. E. Patterson, of Bardstown, Ky. A reception will be held after the ceremony at the residence of Col. Fuqua, the bride's father, in South Fredrica street. Gov. Beckham and his bride will leave at midnight for Chicago on the special car of the former's brother-in-law, W. B. Kinskern, general passenger agent of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad. W. H. Newman, president of the Lake Shore road, and Mrs. Newman, with other guests, will be members of the Kinskern party. Gov. Beckham will return almost immediately to Kentucky, and will go to New Orleans and southern points on a wedding journey later on.

SENT TO JAIL.

W. T. Nugent, Son of E. B. Nugent, a Bankrupt Merchant, Ordered There By the Federal Court.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 2.—W. T. Nugent, son of E. B. Nugent, a bankrupt merchant, was ordered sent to jail Thursday by Judge Evans, in the United States court, to remain until he pays over to the trustee of the creditors of his father, $14,233.45. It is charged that the elder Nugent gave this amount to his son, having used it on a stock of dry goods and by mortgaging his home shortly before filing a bankruptcy petition. Nugent will appeal.

Distillers Sued.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 2.—James E. Pepper & Co., distillers, were sued for $65,000 Thursday by J. Hull Davidson & Co., of New York. The petition recites that on October 11, 1897, Davidson & Co. contracted with Pepper & Co. for the exclusive sale of Pepper cased whisky in Greater New York without a limit, and further that Pepper & Co. were to accept Davidson & Co.'s paper for $1,000. Davidson & Co. allege that Pepper & Co. violated the contract and that they have been at an expense of $15,000 for advertising and have sustained a further loss of $50,000 by profits they would have made.

Judge Garrett to Be Married.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Nov. 3.—Invitations have been issued to the marriage of Judge James B. Garnett and Miss Mary Gunn, both of Cadiz, Trigg county, which will take place at the bride's home Wednesday morning, November 7. The bride-to-be is a daughter of Mrs. Martha Addie Gunn. Judge Garnett, for 18 years commonwealth's attorney for the Third judicial district, is one of the most prominent lawyers in Western Kentucky.

Worked on Sunday.

Louisville, Nov. 5.—An interesting point of law was decided by Judge Miller in the case of Walter C. Graves, who sued to enforce a mechanic's lien for $151 for repairs on an engine in a veneer mill. The work was done on Sunday. Judge Miller held that the lien does not hold, as the law does not recognize work on Sunday, except under great necessity.

Mild Cases of Varioloid.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 2.—Dr. Edward J. Barcal, who has been at Caney, Morgan county, since August with one of the Ohio and Kentucky construction companies, was in Lexington Thursday, and said that the cases reported at Caney are not smallpox, in his opinion, but merely mild attacks of varioloid.

Three Slayers Sentenced.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 5.—Ward Taylor, colored, who killed his brother Leonard, was given 15 years in the penitentiary; Charles Carter, colored, was given 10 years for killing his mistress, Maggie Thomas, and George Cole, who killed his friend in a row, was given ten years.

Bride of Five Weeks Dead.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Nov. 3.—The wife of Dr. Bush died at her home, at Judy, this county, after a short illness. Mrs. Bush was the daughter of Mr. Jack Clark, one of the wealthiest farmers in the county, and had been married five weeks.

Run Over By a Train.

[illegible], Ky., Nov. 3.—Tom Williams, aged 24, was taking coal off a freight train near the depot Thursday, when the train moved, throwing him under the wheels. A leg and arm were torn off, his head crushed and he received fatal injuries.

An Editor Under Arrest.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 2.—Messrs. B. G. Boyle, managing editor of a local paper, and Hence Morton, a prominent young man of this city, were arrested Thursday afternoon for shooting quail in the closed season.

[illegible] AND THE HESSIAN FLY.

Trouble and the Hessian fly did considerable damage to the wheat crops in Pennsylvania and neighboring States this year, and also in 1887. The fly pest is one that demands consideration at the meetings of all farmers' organization, as individual effort can accomplish but little unless supported by co-operation. The Hessian fly is an old pest that is so well known and has done so much harm that farmers should have organized years ago for its extermination. The adult insect is about the size of a mosquito, and in this section the females deposit their eggs upon the fall wheat. It will also attack rye and barley. The eggs are deposited upon the under surface of the leaves and hatch in about four or five days the maggots then working their way down between the sheaths to points or the stalks near the ground, where the "puparium," or "flai seeds" are formed. The larvae remain inactive on the stubble during the winter, but issue as adults in the spring. They then lay eggs for the summer brood, which form the familiar "flax seed," before harvest time, remaining on the stubble during the summer and producing adults in the fall. Their work weakens the stalk and causes the wheat to lodge. The swelling on the young wheat near the base of the stalk indicates their presence. Some fields seem to escape the fly, while others are attacked, and the amount of moisture is a factor. The destruction caused by this enemy of wheat is enormous in some sections, Pennsylvania farmers having their yields of wheat so greatly reduced this year as to cause them a loss. But this reduction not only affects the farmers, but also reduces the wheat supply of the country, as the fly is known over a large area, and any danger to the bread supply is a matter of concern to all classes.

As the insect remains in the stubble the duty of every farmer, after he has harvested his field, is to plow the land or burn it over, if possible. The land should be rolled with a heavy roller after plowing. All chaff and screenings should be burnt. Wet weather favors the development of the insects. There are parasites which prey upon the pests and they cannot escape destruction unless the burning of the field is done somewhat late. The best mode of preventing damage is to sow or drill the seed as late as possible. Such advice may not be applicable just now, but it is not out of place to keep that fact in view. Farmers should examine their field and notice if there are any indications. Many of them are under the impression when the Hessian fly appears that it comes suddenly, when in fact it begins on wheat in the fall and remains until ready for work. The burning of the stubble field after harvest, or plowing and rolling, should never be neglected. Co-operative effort in a community will rid the farming community of the pest if the work is done systematically. It is the careless one, here and there who propagates the insects and turns them loose upon the community. A single season's work upon the extermination of the Hessian fly would clear the State of the nuisance, and it is not at all difficult to get rid of it if all farmers will unite in the matter.

Where wheat has been seeded down late this year, in order to avoid the fly, and it has not made desirable growth, there may be favorable weather between now and the severely cold period. Should the ground be covered with snow it will afford protection against cold. But, whether wheat starts off well or not, there is one special fertilizer that will give the plants almost new life in the spring, which is nitrate of sode. An application of 100 pounds per acra, after danger of frost is over in spring, will give a deep green color to the plants, and they will grow rapidly. The cost of the nitrate will be returned in the increased yield of the crop, as well as save a sickly lot of plants from destruction. Some farmers go over their fields in the spring with a smoothing harrow, and if necessary the field is rolled. When applying nitrate it will be an advantage to harrow before so doing. The drouth is not so damaging to wheat if the preparation of the land was thorough at time of drilling the seed, nor are the plants thrown out of the ground if the land is well drained. A good wheat crop pays as well now as formerly, even with lower prices, as labor-saving machinery reduces the expense, but where farmers made the principal mistake is not applying fertilizers more liberally, as well as using manure, for, according to statistical reports, the use of fertilizers is not general, considering the number of [illegible]—Philadelphia Record.

THINGS TO REMEMBER.

That a very pleasing addition to the ordinary nut cake is a cup of raisins.

That potato salad is much more savory if mixed with the salad dressing while hot.

That the use of a thermometer on the oven of a practical woman is an assurance of success in baking.

That jelly keeps much better if hot paraffine is poured over each tumbler than when covered with paper.

That although hunger is the best sauce, a daintily garnished dish is the next best.

That fruit, to be appetizing and luscious, should be kept in a cool; dry place and not on ice.

That sour milk and soda make a more delicate devil's food cake than [illegible] sweet milk and baking powder.

That hollowed out apples beets make artistic and pretty cups to hold salad.

That four or five ounces of sugar is all that an adult in good health should eat with impunity in the course of a day.

That corn meal is an excellent food for winter, as it contains so much fat, and when eggs and milk are added to it, it has a high nutritive value.

That ham has a much better flavor if it is boiled for one hour and then baked two hours, with brown sugar sprinkled for the last 15 minutes.

That the success of whipped cream depends upon the fact that the dish, the beater and the cream are thoroughly chilled in advance.

That white grapes, asparagus tips and English walnuts with whipped cream dressing, make a novel and dainty salad.

That baking powder biscuits require much more heat than bread; 440 degrees Fahrenheit is right for biscuit, while a temperature of 380 degrees is better for bread.

That there is more need of common sense in culinary science than is ordinarly supposed, for we cannot become a strong people mentally unless our physical beings are well nurished.

That a pound of lean beef and a quart of milk contain about the same amount of nourishment, but the meat although it cost more, is more valuable for food as it contains the nutriments in more suitable proportions.

That the popular notion that fish is a brain food is a mistake, for eminent physiologists tell us that fish no more than any other nitrogenous food contributes to brain work and development. All nitrogenous foods, such as fish, meat, eggs and so on, repair the waste tissues of the body, but fish is of no more importance than the others.

The question of the spontaneous combustion of hay has recently been investigated by one of the officials of the Weather Bureau, who states that fermentation within moist hay may raise the temperature to 374° F, at which temperature clover hay will ignite. The best preventive to spontaneous combustion is a rapid and complete ventilation by which the oxidization and fermenting substances are kept cooled down below the point of ignition.—Scientific American.

Sir William Banks advances the theory that overeating or eaven a high standard of general nutrition may predispose to cancer, which he believes to be emiently a disease of the healthy and robust. From this point of view the abundance of food, which is a result of national prosperity and on the whole a powerful factor in the improvement of public health, is not without its drawbacks. Sir William points out that the increase of cancer in Great Britain coincides with an increase throughout the cuntry. Ever since the passing of the corn laws bread has been cheap and plentiful, while during the last 20 years the importation of anim al food from other countries has been enormous. The increased wages and profits of all classes have enabled them to buy freely of the best things to eat and drink. The working classes fare admirably. The better classes eat a great deal too much, taking animal food at breakfast, lunch and dinner. Fortunately the people are of athletic tendency, and there is a general pasion for games and exercises; other wise this overstuffing would before now have proved very dangerous. Sir William Banks is convinced that when a man is over 45 exces in food is actually worse for him than excess in drink and believes one of the results of too nourishing food is the production of a widely spread second rate kind of gout, a modification, in fact, of the acute and furious attacks produced in former days by the copious drinking of beer and port wine.

NOTES.

Pullets that do not begin to lay by November seldom pay for their raising.

Small chickens should now be separated from the older fowls and hustled along for the fall market.

Moulting hen should be given free range, as the bugs and insects which they gather will help them grow new feathers.

Don't keep a lot of male birds in the flock during the winter. Keep those needed for next season in separate yards.

Don't let your hunting dogs worry your hens.

It is not too late to sow a small patch of rye near the poultry house and the fowls will enjoy it during the winter.

Don't forget to buy a supply of grit so that the fowls may not suffer after cold weather sets in.

Egg shells broken in small pieces are relished by the hens and are very good for them.

Don't forget to give fresh water to the fowls every day.

Stale bread makes a good food for laying hens, and will not produce an over-abundance of fat.

Select a few of the very best ewe lambs to take the place of some of the ewes that are getting old. It does not pay to keep an old sheep.

When lambs are fed grain continually, from birth, they are always fit for market, and can be sold when prices are best.

When on good pasture or clover hay an exclusive corn grain ration is often found the most economical for fattening lambs or sheep. But for breeding stock it does not develop sufficient bone and muscle.

Do not let the sheep crop the pastures too close in the fall. If the grass roots are left bare they will be [illegible] during the winter. Leave sufficient growth to the pasture to protect the roots.

Keep the calves growing. They will need a little extra care now, but the return next year will more than make up for the grain and grooming you give them.

Much as has been said about keeping cows out of the cold and storms in the fall, we frequently see herds wandering about in the wind and rain, struggling to get a bite of grass, or lying on the ground when everything is covered with frost. The cow is endowed with common sense. She knows if she does not keep herself warm under such circumstances, no one will help her; and she takes every day a certain amount of all she is given to eat and applies toward maintaining the heat of her body. If anything is left for the farmer, well and good. If not, the cow is blamed, but she ought not to be; she is simply working out her own plans of self-preservation.

To run a creamery successfully help must be efficient to prevent any man having to do double duty. When a creamery is run shorthanded some of the vital things are neglected. The man at the weigh can may be conscientious, but if he has to leave his position to look after the boilers he will have to take some things for granted in the quality of milk he is receiving. It is a short-sighted policy to attempt to save a few dollars per month on wages and lose it at the selling price of the butter.—Farmers' Review.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 14, 1900. NO. 4.

—VERY much disfigured but still in the ring—the Democratic party.

BECKHAM'S majority is about 3,500. The Republican cry of fraud is buncombe.

THE Republican who has not been supremely happy for the last week, is a peculiar combination.

AFTER the first of next January the court of appeals will be composed of [illegible] and three Democrats.

AS usual there are a thousand and one causes assigned—each of which is the cause—for the Republican land slide.

THE census shows that there are 9,000,000 less cattle, 4,000,000 less hogs and 3,000,000 less sheep than in 1890.

THOSE who predicted a political land-slide on the 6th inst., predicted correctly that far, but some of them were most woefully off as to the direction in which the sliding was to be done.

HANNA says he does not want to be President at the close of President McKinley's next term. He is evidently going to profit by the experience of Gen. Grant, who was ambitious for a third term.

THE Republicans have this country in a sling, and the only thing there is to annoy them is the scarcity of ounces—there not being enough to go around. But every one, nearly, lives and votes hoping to get a hold on the public teat at some time.

MR. BRYAN says he will not be a candidate for United States Senator before the Nebraska legislature—that he ran for President and was defeated, and does not intend to interfere with his neighbors who are candidates for that office and deserve it.

KENTUCKY is the only doubtful State the Republicans did not carry by a pronounced majority, but she chose a decidedly Republican year in which to return to the Democratic column. State issues were plainly drawn, the voters clearly understanding their relations to good government.

IT was said all during the campaign that the Philippine war would soon be over if McKinley was relected, but the proposition to send a hundred thousand additional soldiers over there, indicates that those in a position to know the real facts in regard to Philippine matters consider things in a bad shape over there, and that the is on for some time yet to come.

The boundary line between the United States and Mexico has recently been resurveyed and marked by stone monuments in the form of obelisks located about 5 miles apart. The shafts are ten feet high, four feet square at the base and two feet at the top, built on foundations five feet square and rising six incher above the ground.

THE day after the election the beef trust of Chicago sent President McKinley a congratulatory message, and forty-eight hours later it raised the price of all meats five cents a pound. It is said that that trust contributed $250,000 to the McKinley campaign fund, but the advance in the prices of its meats will make it back two or three times before the President is reinaugurated.

MR. A. B. ROUSE, Chairman of the County Democratic Campaign Committee, deserves much credit for the manner in which he conducted the campaign in this county. His first step was the organization of a county campaign committee composed of influential, working Democrats, and after that was accomplished the campaign work was begun, and was pushed until the polls closed. When the internal troubles with which the party in this county has been annoyed for the past year are considered, the Democratic vote polled in the county on the 6th inst. shows that Mr. Rouse and his committeemen did efficient work on behalf of the party. The local speakers who took an active part in the campaign are also entitled to much credit for the Democratic enthusiasm that was worked up in this county.

J. M. LASSING.

Mr. Lassing was secretary of the Democratic Campaign Committee during the campaign just closed, and in that position he distinguished himself for efficiency in the work, to which he gave his closest attention from the time the committee was organized until the campaign was closed, and he is entitled to a full share of the credit for Kentucky's political redemption at a time when the opposite party took everything by storm. Mr. Lassing is in close touch with the leading politicians of the party, and is very apt to be a candidate for the nomination for some State office, when the time comes to make up the next State ticket.

Under the following resolution, adopted by the State Democratic Convention at Louisville, June 14, 1900, the Democratic voters of the several counties will meet at their several voting places Monday, November 19, 1900, at 1 o'clock p. m. and proceed to select a precinct committeeman.

Resolution: On the third Monday in November, 1900, the Democrats of this State shall meet at their various voting precints at 1 o'clock p. m., and proceed to select a committeeman to serve a term of four years, and that on the Monday following such precinct committeemen shall meet at their various county seats and organize by selecting a chairman and secretary of said county or district committee who may or may not be a member of said committee. The chairman or any member of said committee may be removed for cause by a majority thereof.

The chairman or a majority of said committee may call a meeting of the same whenever they deem it necessary.

If, after notice, as aforesaid, there shall be no election held in any precinct, then the State Central Committeeman of the district on recommendation of the chairman, or in the event he does not act within ten days after such failure of election, on recommendation of a majority of the committee of the county, fill such vacancy by the appointment of a Democrat of such precinct.

In pursuance of the foregoing, the Democrats of Boone county are hereby notified to meet at the voting place in their respective precincts, at 1 p. m., Nov. 29th, for the purpose of choosing precint committeemen. The present committeeman in each precint will call the meeting to order and preside. If he should be not present the Democrats present will select a chairman.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
Chairman, Boone Co. Dem. Com.

THE Georgetown News goes after Leslie Combs in the following very lively manner. It says: "Leslie Combs, Chairman of the State Republican Campaign Committee, has published broadcast over this State that there were gross frauds committed in Scott county, and that the returns were padded. When Mr. Combs published that statement he knew at the time, and every Republican in Scott county will bear us out, that he deliberately, knowingly, wilfully, maliciously published that which was false. Will any Republican corroborate Mr. Comb's statement?"

In this county the Republicans were confident that they would poll at least nine hundred votes at the election on the 6th inst., while some of the Democrats were conceding them from eight hundred to eight hundred and fifty, but when the returns were all in the Republicans were chagrined and the Democrats agreeably surprised at the fact that McKinley had not increased his vote over that of 1896, notwithstanding the political conditions existing in this county for the twelve months last past had been construed by both parties as very favorable to an increase of Republican votes; but instead there was a falling off of 26 votes, McKinley polling only 759 votes, whereas in 1896 he polled 785. It seems that most of the boys who were thought to be wavering could not go back on that familiar emblem that confronted them when they unfolded their ballot in the polling both, and they simply applied the stencil in the circle beneath the rooster and let it go at that.

NEXT Monday the Democrats of each voting precinct in the county are to meet to select a member of the County Democratic Executive Committee. This method of selecting committeemen was ordered by the Democratic State Committee in order that the voters might select such of their number as they think the best suited and are the most likely to perform the duties of committeemen fairly, honestly and to the best interests of the party, and to abolish all appearance of bossism. The County Committee manages the county affairs of the party generally, calls primary elections, makes rules regarding who may vote at such elections, calls mass conventions, etc., and the importance of having the committee of the very best material to be had, is apparent to all. Strong, honest, sensible men—men who will be fearless in doing the right thing for each and every candidate, and manage the business of their position to the best interests of the party, regard less the dictation of any person as to what is wanted are the men to be desired as committeemen. No one who would use his position as a committeeman to further the interest of any particular candidate as against another candidate, is worthy of the position. A composed of such men would disorganize and disrupt the party.

THERE will be no reorganization of the Democratic party by those who have been contributing to its defeat in recent years.

WEST VIRGINIA LETTER.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Many Kentucky friends requested us to write them when we arrived at our new home, and as we are kept very busy trying to get things straightened out we will ask you to insert one letter in the Recorder which so many see, and thus all can hear without so much effort. Mrs. L. and two children left for Taneytown, Md. Oct. 16, and Hualpha and myself were supposed to leave the 22nd of the same month, but after we were loaded at Erlanger we were allowed to wait there until two o'clock next morning. We were then promptly taken to the stock yards in Cincinnati where we were kept until nine o'clock. Many farmers were there to buy and sell but not one from Boone county. It took us until night to reach Chillicothe, O. There we learned to our dismay that we were to be shipped via Kenova, W. Va., and Roanoke, Va. After eight hours delay we started again and made better time for a few days. We rode nearly all the time in the box car with our goods. That allowed us to sleep in peace while we were having long night delays and gave us ready access to our commissary which we stocked with food the first opportunity we had.

At Kenova, W. Va., a poor fellow came along and begged me to let him ride, saying in explanation that some one had run off with his girl and that he wanted to overtake him, and there would be no passenger train for hours. We refused as we did not want to start a rival passenger line and thought we might get into trouble. Besides we did not have much notion of helping to catch a girl that would run away with another fellow. It would seem much better to catch a girl that would not run away.

After other things were packed a large bundle of carpet turned up and it was decided to wire that to the roof of the car over the place we were to sleep. There was some objection that was met with the assurance that it would be perfectly safe. About the first good lunge the car made, down came the carpet, but Providence and a stronger wire kept both ends from coming at once so that the bed occupant escaped serious injury, but it makes me feel a little shaky yet to think of the one hundred and fifty pounds of carpet coming down there so carelessly. There was a great amount of shaking and sliding and moving in various ways. We drove nails, twisted wire and tied cord from time to time, but do what we would, we could not make things indulge in any decent behavior. It seemed like we were approaching election time and everything was a little tipsy.

At Roanoke, Va., late in the afternoon of the 25th I left Hualpha alone with the car and made preparations to go straight on to Norfork, Va., to attend the Virginia Synod. Hualpha had a wait of more than eight hours before the car again moved on its way, but after starting it made good time and the next afternoon he arrived in Sheperdstown, where friends were waiting for him. Everything was carefully removed to the parsonage to await our coming. After a pleasant time at Norfork, I left Friday night for my father's in N. C. By morning I saw that the late train would break my connection at Charlotte and I telegraphed for some one to meet me at Statesville. By eleven o'clock that night I was at home having been on the train the whole of five nights in succession and in the buggy that night until eleven. Next morning I attended old Liberty church where I had often been when a boy. Fully one thousand people were present and not half of them could get into the church. It was a little difficult for me to preach for I was not only affected by being at home, but I was still more deeply affected by recent events and sad partings. At night I preached to a large audience at another church and was thus privileged to meet many friends of other days.

In company with my youngest daughter, Mary, I left my Father's Oct. 30, hoping to take a train at Mooresville, N. C., next afternoon that would make good connections through. But, alas, that train was over four hours late and we were much put out all the way here. Still the annoyances were of minor consequence and at last we reached here Nov. 1 about ten in the morning. One glad boy at least was here. Mrs. L. and the other children came at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Kind friends had done what they could to make our coming pleasant. Soon after we were together they sat us down to a smoking supper and then quietly and thoughtfully left us with a well stocked larder and fuel and other things for comfort to greet each other and have an experience meeting over the events of recent weeks. The next day there was help for work and we have been very busy ever since trying to get things into shape and make believe that we were at home again.

Our goods had been very carefully packed and practically nothing was broken—not a single dish or glass having been injured. A few things had rubbed in the car, the buggy and surrey being the worst sufferers. They were not crated and we will keep that in mind for future use. There is nothing like an old box car shaking and rubbing things that are loose.

We have been very kindly received and yesterday we had large audiences and very pleasant services. We all have suffered more or less from nostalgia, the attack being rather more severe with the oldest and growing lighter down the line. Otherwise all have been well except a little brash with the writer which had a humorous though annoying ending. Severe pain in the cardiac region kept him from work and began to look a little serious. Mrs. L. insisted on applying a mustard plaster, but she was kept from her purpose until bedtime. Then she applied mustard fore and aft and as it did not seem to have any result the patient went to sleep as alas did the doctress also. An hour later there was a scene. Now if we had to write with chest or back there would be little success as there is too much skin missing for comfort. The "pain" is better.

As William will be elected president before this will reach your readers it will not be necessary to say anything about the excitement seen or heard in the six states traversed.

A friend when packing wrote a few pathetic words and sent them along. We all gathered around to read them and tears were in every eye. The paper was carefully laid away and soon after when one came in the room in tears inquiry was made as to the cause of weeping and the paper was pointed to. There have been sighs and wishes in abundance. We believe more firmly than ever that "Kind hearts are more than coronets,

"And simple faith more than Norman blood."

There is a bright sun here, a good work, kind friends who promise well and we are pleasantly located. The children started to school to day and they are getting acquainted faster than their elders.

Now let the friends who read this write a line of recognition and we will correspond with them direct. Please take this as the first letter and if more correspondence is desired let us hear, as we will not ask the Recorder for more space. With love and kind greetings to all.

H. MAX LENTZ.
Sheperdstown, W. Va. Nov. 5, 1900.

At a meeting of the tobacco growers of Harrison county after a canvass it was found that three fourths of the growers have signed agreements not to raise any tobacco next year on condition that all growers will sign the same contract. The leaders of the scheme think they can arrange for no crop in the tobacco section of the State next year, thus greatly enhancing the value of the weed the year following.

L. J. Bradford, who resides on Mrs. Colvin's farm near McKinneysburg, breaks the record for sweet potato raising in this section. From 132 plants he raised 5 bushels. The potatoes are of the large yellow variety and yielded from 11 to 12 to the hill.—Pendletonian.

JOIN THE CHORUS CLASS.

Many medical men are now recommending their patients to study singing, which is a most salutary exercise, both by virtue of its influence on the emotions, on the respiratory movements, and on the development of the lungs. Nothing better shows the beneficial influence of singing in developing the chest and warding off lung diseases than the freedom from pulmonary affections among professional singers. Moreover, their general health is exceptionally good, and this is probably in a large measure attributable, not only to their necessary careful plan of living, but also to the exercise of their calling. Some physicians maintain that for defective chest development, and in chronic heart trouble, singing is an unequaled exercise. The singer should be clad so as to allow absolute freedom of the chest movements; there should be no constriction of the neck or waist; the collar should be low and ample, and if corsets are worn, they should be roomy and loose. One error into which singers, and especially amateurs, fall, is to practice too much. The length of time to be given to the exercise depends much upon the character and condition of the voice. Specific rules cannot be given. Melba, when asked how many hours of practice a day she would advise for a pupil, said: "No hours for a beginner, but minutes. I, myself, never practice more than one hour a day, and usually much less." Dr. H. Holbrook Curtis considers forty minutes or an hour of actual voice practice daily is quite sufficient to develop most voices. This time should be divided into periods of ten or fifteen minutes each. Regularity, and not long practice hours, which only fatigue the voice and wear it out, is the greatest aid to advancement. The voice develops very gradually, and any attempt to force its growth is a fatal mistake.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Brave Explorers,

Like Stanley and Livingstone, found it harder to overcome Malaria, Fever and Ague, and Typhoid disease germs than savage cannibals; but thousads have found that Electric Bitters is a wonderful cure for all malarial diseases. If you have chills with fever, aches in back of neck and head, and tired and worn out feeling, a trial will convince you of their merit. W. A. Null of Webb, Ill., writes: "My children suffered for more than a year with chills and fever; then two bottles of Electric Bitters cured them." Only 50 cents. Try them. Guaranteed. The advocacy of deep plowing of many soils in the sense that the soil lying eight or ten inches below the surface should be thrown out on top, is one that has undergone considerable modification in the mind of most intelligent cultivators of late years. Experiment has shown that such a course on some soils is not only not beneficial but the reverse. It is safe to say, however, that there is no soil but would be benefitted for the growth of most crops by being deeply stirred by subsoiling, which loosens without turning out the subsoil and the deeper this is done the more benefit received. Aside from any additional plant food that may thus become available, the mechanical condition permitting excess of moisture to rapidly settle away from the surface where at times it is so detrimental and its retention in reach of the roots of the crop at a time when it is absolutely necessary for the proper perfection of the same, are both of sufficient importance to make very deep subsoiling much more generally practiced than it is at this time.—From the Journal of Agriculture.

"I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and find it to be a great medicine," says Mr. E. S. Fupps, of Poteau, Ark. "It cured me of bloody flux. I cannot speak too highly of it." This remedy always wins the good opinion, if not praise, of those who use it. The quick cures which it effects even in the most severe cases make it a favorite everywhere. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McVeety, Petersburg; Grant, Bellevue; Bailey, Bullittsville.

Light a piece of wood (not a match, because of the sulphur in it), and with it burn the stalks. Flowers thus treated will last fresh for several weeks—no small consideration when the beautiful blossoms are dear.

From the flowery land of Japan there is a wrinkle to be learned about the keeping of their national flower. The chrysanthemum is with us in profusion now, and will be during the next three months. So let us take the advice of our little Jap friends as to the keeping of the cut flowers.

To Manchester, England, there were shipments made a few days ago of forty-one steel cars, valued at $39,305; metal-working machinery to the extent of $10,000 worth, cotton [illegible] were shipped [illegible] to the value of $37,000. In each of these articles subsequent shipments this month will be still larger.

Paris is said to be the cleanest city in the world. Every morning 2,000 male and 600 female scavengers, divided into 149 brigades, turn out to perform the toilet of the capital. The men work from 4 in the morning till 4 in the evening, less two hours off for meals, or 10 hours a day. The women are engaged in the morning only.

A common sight in China is the exposed coffin or casket, containing, of course, the corpse of some departed Celestial, without any covering of earth or inclosing tomb. The first and highest ambition of every Chinaman is to have a splendid coffin, and he will half starve himself and family for years in order to acquire the coveted casket.

It is not generally known even in England, that the famous walking stick used by her majesty, the queen, was once the property of Charles II., to whom it was presented by a citizen of Worcester. This royal staff was originally a branch of the tree in Boscobel in which Charles I. hid when Cromwell's men were in hot pursuit of him.

Among curious articles of commerce are toothpicks made of walrus whiskers, vast quantities of which are shipped from Alaska to Europe. Those who ship them pull them out one by one with special tweezers. They are used principally by the wealthier classes in China and Russia, and are also beginning to come into favor in the most noted clubs in London.

After months of experiments it has been decided to establish telephonic communication between England and Belgium, to be opened to the public about February 1, 1901. The Belgium line will start from La Panne, near the French frontier, and will be about seventy-four kilometers (forty-five miles) long. The tariff is fixed at ten francs ($1.93) per three minutes.

Bound for the west coast of Africa to teach natives the art of cotton raising, four young colored men sailed from New York recently on the Hamburg-American line steamer Graf Waldersee. They are from Booker T. Washington's school at Tuskeegee, Ala., and take with them ten bushels of cotton seed, a cotton gin and a full work will be under the auspices of outfit of agricultural tools. The just completed census of the Ottoman government shows the total number of Mussulmen to be 196,500,000, of whom 18,000,000 belong to Turkey in Europe, 99,000,000 in Asia Minor, Beluchistan and the Indies, 20,000,000 to China, 36,500,000 to the north and northeast of Africa and 23,000,000 spread in groups more or less numerous throughout the other countries of the world.

The mileage of the blood circulation reveals some astonishing facts in our personal history. Thus it has been calculated that, assuming the heart to beat 69 times a minute at ordinary heart pressure, the blood goes at the rate of 207 yards in the minute, or seven miles per hour, 168 miles per day, and 61,320 miles per year. If a man of 84 years of age [illegible] has one single blood corpuscle floating in his blood all his life it would have traveled in that same time 5,150,880 miles.

A. T. Stewart's famous mansion, at the northwest corner of Fifth avenue and 34th street, New York, may very soon become the property of a member of the Astor family. The mansion took seven years to build and cost at least $1,000,000, exclusive of the ground. Tons and tons of the purest marble were brought from Tuckahoe for the outer walls, while for the interior Mr. Stewart purchased marble in Italy, cut according to the directions of his architect, piece by piece, all polished and ready to set.

If there were no moon there would be no tides, and this country would lose half her seaports. Instead of the great depth of water at high tide in the great harbors there would be an unvarying depth of about a third of what there is at present. This would mean that the mighty docks of the big ports would be nearly high and dry, and of no use whatever. There would be hardly a harbor that any little ships could enter, and altogether the most enlivening commerce of the natio—sea trade—would [illegible] 90 per cent.

THE CABINET MEETING

Secretary Hay's Action in the Chinese Trouble Ratified.

Gen. MacArthur is Expected to Renew the Campaign Against the Rebellious Filipinos With the Greatest Energy.

Washington, Nov. 10.—The cabinet was in session three hours Friday and two of them were occupied in a discussion of foreign affairs, necessitated in part by the fact that the president intends exhaustively to treat on this subject in his forthcoming message to congress. Reference was made to the expressions in portions of the European press that the United States policy regarding China would undergo marked change immediately after election, and it is authoritatively announced that after a most exhaustive review of every step of the Chinese difficulty, from its inception up to the present moment delivered by Secretary Hay, the cabinet ratified every detail and moreover unanimously expressed its judgment that the policy so far pursued should be continued without condition to its logical conclusion.

Accordingly the present legation guard at Peking will be maintained and such troops as yet remain to be withdrawn, according to the original program, will be shipped to Manila. With this addition to his forces, Gen. MacArthur is expected to renew the campaign against the rebellious Filipinos with the greatest energy. Administration officials here think that as soon as the result of the election becomes known throughout the Philippines the resistance to the authority of the United States will be overcome.

Canton, Thursday, Nov. 8.—The reformer, Szki-Nu (the leading man in the anti-dynastic party organized by Sun Yat Sen) who was sentenced to death in connection with the recent Yamen explosion here, was repeatedly tortured in order to extort a confession from him but he refused to make a statement in regard to the explosion.

Hong-Kong, Nov. 10.—The United States marine ship Monterey has returned here, having failed to reach Canton owing to an accident to her machinery.

Shanghai, Nov. 10.—A Peking dispatch dated November 6 says Ting Yang, acting viceroy of Pechili province; Gen. Kusi Hing and two other leading officials of Paoting Fu were executed on the 5th inst., in accordance with the sentence imposed by the tribunal of the allies. Discredited reports of the death of the dowager empress are again in circulation at the capital.

INCREASE IN RANK.

Senor Don Cuestas, Minister Resident of Uruguay to Washington, Made Minister Plenipotentiary.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Senor Dr. Don Cuestas, the minister of Uruguay to Washington, has been advised that his government has honored him with an increase of diplomatic rank, from minister resident to that of minister plenipotentiary, and also has appointed him minister to Mexico. The latter appointment carried with it the representation of Uruguay at the Pan-American congress which assembles at Mexico City next summer, and will be especially important in view of the discussion of commercial and political unity among the western republics.

THE RAINBOW.

Cornelius Vanderbilt's Seventy-Foot Yacht Broke From Her Moorings in a Storm and Went Ashore.

Bristol, R. I., Nov. 10.—Cornelius Vanderbilt's 70-footer Rainbow Friday night broke away from her moorings off the Herreshoff shops during a heavy gale and went ashore near the dock in a few minutes. The boat is not in a very bad position.

The Rainbow had been brought here for extensive overhauling made necessary from heavy work done in the races this last season and she had not been hauled out at all.

Gov. Tanner for the Senate.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Gov. John R. Tanner has declared himself a candidate for the United States senate, to succeed Senator Cullom. Congressman Joseph G. Cannon, of Danville, may be a candidate later. He said Friday that he would look the ground over and if he found the situation favorable he would become a candidate.

Gen. Buller at Southampton.

Southampton, Nov. 10.—Gen. Sir Redvers Buller, on the Dunvegan Castle, from Cape Town, reached the quay at Southampton Friday evening at 8:30. He was greeted by Lord Wolseley and his staff, as well as an immense assembly of townspeople. At 9 o'clock he sat down to the mayoralty banquet, the first of a long series of functions in his honor.

Muscatine, Ia., Nov. 10.—Maj. Henry O'Connor, once attorney general of Iowa, and later connected with the state department under Secretary Blaine, was buried here Friday. He died at the Iowa soldiers' home at Marshalltown.

Many Houses Burned at Biloxi.

New Orleans, Nov. 10.—Upwards of 75 houses have been destroyed by fire at Biloxi, a well-known summer resort and business center on the Mississippi sound, 80 miles from New Orleans.

AN APPEAL FOR AID.

Hundreds of Indians at Cook's Inlet, Alaska, Are Slowly Dying of Starvation.

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 12.—Mrs. James Smith, just returned from Cook's Inlet, Alaska, says that fully half of the thousand Indians in that section, comprising five tribes, are slowly dying of starvation. The influx of white prospectors has resulted in the killing of much game, and the Indians are thus deprived of food and of furs for clothing. They dried salmon last summer, but not enough to go around, and winter finds 400 to 600 of them without enough food to last until December.

Mrs. Smith, who is the wife of a wealthy miner, divided her stock of provisions with the destitute Indians, and now appeals for further aid. Most of these Indians belong to the Russian church, but it is powerless to help them. Unless provisions are sent in by steamer at once, she says, hundreds will surely die. While living at Gray's Harbor, eight years ago, Mrs. Smith—then Mrs. Martha White—swam into the surf and rescued three shipwrecked sailors from drowning, for which congress voted her a medal.

SOUTHERN YARN MILLS.

A Plan For Controlling the Sales of Their Products By Special Agents.

Charlotte, N. C., Nov. 12.—The great majority of the yarn mills of the south have entered into the plan of controlling the sale of their products by specially appointed agents. Mills representing an aggregate of 495,097 producing spindles have signified their agreement to the now well-known concentration plan proposed by the special committee and endorsed by the board of governors of the Southern Cotton Spinners' association. The object of the plan is that the selling of southern cotton yarns be placed in the hands of a limited number of northern commission merchants—ten or eight—with a view to the reduction of selling costs and the prevention of speculation in the product of southern yarn mills by the middlemen or commission merchants.

The fact that mill men representing so great a number of spindles have agreed practically assures the success of the plans of the Southern Cotton Spinners' association.

OUR EXPORTS.

Monthly Statement Issued By the Bureau of Statistics—Comparison With Last October.

Washington, Nov. 12.—The monthly statement of the exports of domestic products, issued by the bureau of statistics, shows that during October the exports were as follows, comparisons being made with October, 1899:

Breadstuffs, $21,913,832, decrease, $2,128,000; cattle and hogs, $2,892,351, increase, $652,000; provisions, $13,934,320, decrease, $714,000; cotton, $60,391,107, increase, $32,043,000; mineral oils, $6,120,079, decrease, $463,000. Total for the month, $105,260,689, net increase $29,398,994. For the last ten months the total was $853,918,873, an increase, as compared with the corresponding period in 1899, of $82,055,000.

ELECTRIC PLANT BURNED.

The Street Car System at Norfolk, Va., Badly Crippled By a Disastrous Fire.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 12.—The car sheds and electric plant of the Norfolk Railway and Lighting Co., in Huntersville, a suburb of Norfolk, was totally destroyed by fire early Sunday morning. Fifty-two cars and the electrical machinery were destroyed. The loss is $150,000, covered by insurance. The street car system was badly crippled Sunday. A fuse from a car in the barn is supposed to have started the fire. The fire department saved the local distributing depot of the Standard Oil Co., which adjoins the sheds.

TRAINS COLLIDE.

Eight Persons Were Killed and Fifteen Wounded at Choisey Leroi, France.

Paris, Nov. 12.—Eight persons were killed and 15 wounded in a collision between a suburban train and an express Saturday mornig at Choisey Leroi. The suburban train was entering the station to allow the express to pass, and the accident occurred then, the suburban train being telescoped. The wreckage was complete, and the line was blocked for hours.

The Arkansas Launched.

Newport News, Va., Nov. 12.—The monitor Arkansas was launched at the shipyard. The event was very successful and the ship rode out on the James river without leaning to starboard or port. Miss Bobbie Newton Jones, daughter of Gov. Jones, of Arkansas, christened the monitor as it started down the ways.

American Vessel Ashore.

London, Nov. 12.—According to the Hong-Kong correspondent of the Daily Mail, the American ship Benjamin Sewall, Capt. A. M. Sewall, which arrived at Hong-Kong prior to September 29 from Freemantle, where she left August 9, was driven ashore during the typhoon Friday night.

Sugar Refinery Burned.

New Orleans, Nov. 10.—The Meeker sugar refinery at Meeker, 18 miles from Alexander, was destroyed by fire Friday. Loss $260,000; insurance $140,000.

THE INDIAN SERVICE.

Total Expenditures From 1789 Up to 1900, $368,358,217.

The Population of the Redskins in the United States is About 207,900, of Whom 45,270 Receive Daily Rations.

Washington, Nov. 12.—The total expenditure by the government on account of the Indian service from March 4, 1789, up to and including July 30, 1900, has been $368,358,217, according to the annual report of Commissioner of Indian Affairs William A. Jones. The expenditures for the fo $10,175,107. Of this amount at least fiscal year ended last July amounted $3,330,000 was devoted to the cause of Indian education. The report reviews the change in the system of transportation of supplies, by which the supplies are shipped in the open market by common carrier at tariff or better rates, and estimates that this saves 20 per cent. in cost.

Under the head of obstacles to self-support of the Indians the report deprecates the ration system, annuity payments and the leasing of allotments. The ration system, says the report, is the corollary of the reservation system. The Indian population of the United States is about 267,990, of which 45,270 receive a daily ration.

The ration issued and its value vary according to the tribe. Nearly two-fifths of the number receiving rations belong to the great Sioux nation. The ration has been gradually reduced in the past few years, in accordance with the policy of the Indian bureau. If the Indian's claim for full rations as a right is conceded, the commissioner predicts that the time when they will be self-supporting lies in the very distant future, if it comes at all. A number of the Indians also are assisted by occasional issues, and at several agencies the old and indigent are provided for. These aggregate about 12,500. Altogether there are 57,570 Indians receiving subsistence in some degree, exclusive of Indian children in boarding schools.

Annuities distributed last year aggregated $1,507,543, the per capita ranging from $235 down to 50 cents. The report says that large money payments to the Indians "are demoralizing in the extreme. They degrade the Indians and corrupt the whites; they induce pauperism and scandal and crime; they nullify all the good effects of years of labor. Unscrupulous people induce the Indian to go into debt, and then, when the debt has accumulated and the Indian's credit is gone, pressure is brought to bear by the creditors upon the government to pay the Indian, so that he can pay his honest (?) debts." The state of affairs growing out of this around some of the agencies is a scandal and a disgrace."

There were 250 Indian schools of all kinds conducted by the government and an increase of 1,412 pupils in enrollment and 1,142 in average attendance shown over the previous year. About 3,000 of the 34,000 eligible school children are provided for.

Compulsory education of the Indian children is strongly indorsed and congress is urged to authorize the commissioner to place every one of school age in some school, the selection of the school to be left largely to educated Indians' parents.

The report controverts the commonly accepted theory that by constant contact with the whites the extinction of the Indian is only a matter of time. It says it can be stated with a great degree of confidence that the Indian population of the United States has been very little diminished from the days of Columbus, Coronado, Raleigh, Capt. John Smith and other early explorers.

The first reliable Indian census was in 1870 and certainly since then the Indian population has been nearly stationary, whatever decrease there is being attributable to Indians becoming citizens.

Reviewing Indian Territory affairs, the report says there are 50,000 children of white parents there who should have schools, and that thousands of these children thus deprived of education are growing up in vice and ignorance, already feeding the United States jails at Muscogee and other points with youthful criminals. The cost of education will not be excessive compared with results. School benefits also should be extended to the 4,250 Choctaw freedmen. Government control of the schools in the Chickasaw nation is advocated.

Girl Students Poisoned.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 12.—Two hundred and fifty girls, pupils of the Smolny institute, a boarding school patronized exclusively by the nobility, were taken sick with evident symptoms of poison after dinner Friday evening. It is reported that two have died, but that the others have recovered. The poisoning is attributed to faulty metallic cooking utensils.

Will Attend the Inauguration.

Jacksonville, Fla., Nov. 12.—Democratic Gov.-elect William S. Jennings has been informed that his cousin, William J. Bryan, will visit him at his home in Brookaville, Fla., and be present at the inauguration at Tallahassee on the first Tuesday in January.

British Reoccupy Philippolis.

Pretoria, Nov. 12.—The British have occupied Philippolis after four hours fighting. Gen. French will take command of the Johannesburg district. The condition of Miss Roberts, daughter of Lord Roberts, is more serious.

CHEAPER THAN A FUNERAL.

He Concluded to Pay the Doctor's Bill as an Economical Move.

A well-known North Dakota magistrate tells the following story, for the truth of which he vouches: At a small town in the state there were two doctors, one of whom had a great reputation for the cures he effected, and the other was not believed to be "much good." The favored doctor found his services in great request, but as payment was not always forthcoming he made a rule that a certain class of his patients should pay in advance.

One winter's night he was roused by two farmers from a hamlet ten miles away, the wife of one of whom was seriously ill. He told them to go to the other doctor, but they refused, saying they would prefer his services. "Very well," replied the medico, "in that case my fee is ten dollars, the money to be paid now."

The men remonstrated, but the doctor was obdurate, and shut down his window. He waited, however, to hear what they would say. "Well, what will we do now?" asked the farmer whose wife was ill. And the reply that was given must have been a gratifying as it was amusing to the listening doctor. It was:

"I think you would better give it. The funeral would cost you more."

A New Fire-Extinguisher.

A scientist suggests that milk be used to extinguish the flames of burning kerosene, because "milk forms an emulsion with the oil, which makes it accomplish its object more quickly." The best medicine to quickly cure constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness or flatulency, is Hostetter's stomach remedy, and has a record of over stomach remedy and has a record of over fifty years of cures. Try it also for malaria, fever and ague, and be convinced.

He Snored in Two Keys.

The night clerk of a leading hotel of Washington, D. C., says that last winter a southern congressman came to him and demanded that his room be changed. When asked what displeased him, he replied, angrily: "Well, that German musician in the next room and I don't get along well. Last night he tooted away on his cartonet so that I thought I never would go to sleep. After I had caught a few winks I was awakened by a pounding at my door. 'What's the matter?' I asked. 'If you please,' said the German, 'dot you would schange dot same key. You vas go from B flat to G, and it spoils der moosic.'"

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. WOMEN MUST SLEEP.

Avoid Nervous Prostration.

If you are dangerously sick what is the first duty of your physician? He quiets the nervous system, he deadens the pain, and you sleep well.

Friends ask, "what is the cause?" and the answer comes in pitying tones, nervous prostration. It came upon you so quietly in the beginning, that you were not alarmed, and when sleep deserted you night after night until your eyes fairly burned in the darkness, then you tossed in nervous agony praying for sleep.

MRS. A. HARTLEY.

You ought to have known that when you ceased to be regular in your courses, and you grew irritable without cause, that there was serious trouble somewhere.

You ought to know that indigestion, exhaustion, womb displacements, fainting, dizziness, headache, and backache send the nerves wild with affright, and you cannot sleep.

Mrs. Hartley, of 221 W. Congress St., Chicago, Ill., whose portrait we publish, suffered all these agonies, and was entirely cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; her case should be a warning to others, and her cure carry conviction to the minds of every suffering woman of the unfailing efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Delicious Desserts.

Burnham's Hasty Jellycon makes the finest dessert, quick—clear and sparkling and deliciously flavored. Prepared in a minute. It is only necessary to dissolve in hot water and set away to cool. Flavors: orange, lemon, strawberry, raspberry, peach, wild cherry and unflavored "calf-foot" for making wine and coffee jellies. All grocers sell it.

PURE BLOOD AND STRONG NERVES

With glowing health all things are possible, small annoyances fade into nothingness and real troubles are battled with successfully. Women who are blessed with perfect health are a constant joy to themselves and all around them. The beauty which health alone can make permanent is a crown which raises a woman above other women. Such beauty is always accompanied by a sweet disposition, for snappishness is a sure sign of ill-health and leaves its mark quickly on the features.

It seems to be the fashion for women to ignore health and sacrifice it to the little every-day trials, or offer it up on the altar of devotion to daily tasks. Then again the nervous organization of women is constantly attacked by woman's natural experiences, so that it is practically impossible for her to retain the beauty which nature gave her, unless she has discriminating advice and right support.

Dr. Greene's Nervura
for the Blood and Nerves.

Trials and troubles are easily overcome by the women whose strength is the genuine strength of perfect health. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, bridges the chasm that separates the sickly woman from happiness. It fills her veins with blood that is pure and clean.

MRS. WM. E. BOSSE, of 85 Farrington St., Flushing, L. I., says:

"In regard to myself, I have suffered for years with disease, having been troubled with great nervousness, female complaints, indigestion, and great weakness and prostration. I did not have strength to do much of anything. Knowing the great value of health and strength I consulted doctors and took many medicines, but they all failed to cure me, and I grew worse rather than better.

I happened to see in the papers how much good Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, was doing in restoring to health everybody who took it, and I thought I would try a bottle. I used it and to my surprise I began to gain strength every day. I am so thankful that I tried it! It is certainly the most excellent tonic and strength giver. I recommend it very highly and wish that other people who are troubled in any way would take warning and use it."

TO PRESERVE WOMANLY BEAUTY

At all the stages of a woman's life Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, is shown to be efficient to ward off the results of nervousness, or overwork, or impure blood. From early girlhood to advanced years, this world-renowned medicine builds up the forces destroyed by disease, grief, or overexertion, and the effects of this great medicine are quickly felt and permanently retained. Let women guard well their health, and consult Dr. Greene freely. Nothing they can possibly do will so surely keep them strong and well, or repair the exhaustion from acute illness, nothing will work so continually to the preservation of beauty as the great health-giving Nervura. Dr. Greene's office is at 35 West 14th Street, New York City, where he may be consulted either by personal call or by letter. Women may write in perfect confidence, and get Dr. Greene's advice free.

M'KINLEY RE-ELECTED

He Carried the Country By a Larger Majority Than in 1896.

Next Senate Likely to Be 49 Republicans, 37 Democrats and 9 Independents. With Legislatures in Three States in Doubt.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—McKinley and Roosevelt have swept the country.

The republican candidates have secured a much larger vote in the electoral college than they had in 1896

Four years ago the party and its allies carried 24 states, with a total electoral vote of 271. Now the republican candidates carry 29 states, with a total electoral vote of 295.

Both branches of the new congress have been made decisively republican in the great sweep, embracing the whole of the north, saving only three small states in the mountain region of the far north.

All the border states, which were republican four years ago, are republican now—Delaware, Maryland, and West Virginia. One or two southern states have come very near joining the procession.

In the great west, beyond the Missouri, the republicans make tremendous gains.

They have held California, Oregon and North Dakota, which they carried four years ago.

They have swept Nebraska, Kansas, South Dakota, Washington, Utah, Wyoming and Idaho, all of which were for Bryan in 1896.

Of the 45 states of the American Union, McKinley and Roosevelt carry no less than 29, Bryan and Stevenson 15 or 16.

The next United States senate will probably be, republicans 49, democrats 37, independents 9. The legislature in three states are doubtful.

KENTUCKY.

The Courier-Journal Puts Bryan's Majority in Kentucky at 7,635 and Beckham's at 4,110.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 10.—With unofficial returns from every precinct in Kentucky, the Courier-Journal puts Bryan's majority at 7,635 and Beckham's at 4,110. The county boards canvassed the returns in every county in the state Friday, and 50 counties out of 119 in the state, whose official returns had been received Friday night, did not materially change the majorities given in the foregoing, though there is no doubt that the full official returns will vary somewhat from the unofficial figures. It is hardly possible that majorities of 7,635 and 4,110 shall be wiped out, however, unless the unexpected should happen in the counties whose official returns are not in.

Chairman Leslie Combs, of the republican campaign committee, Friday night said he wished to state his position as to contests and correct some erroneous impressions.

He does not want to be understood as saying authoritatively that the Kentucky election will be contested. He says he will advise with national and state leaders as to whether or not contests should be made. He does not say that contests will be made over the Third, Ninth and Tenth congressional districts, but says that if his information about the election in those districts is correct, contests should be made. He is in favor of contesting the electoral vote of the state, not because Kentucky's vote is needed by the McKinley electors, but for a precedent. "If we allow this election to pass uncontested," says Chairman Combs, "we only foster more frauds for the future."

Chairman Combs, of the republican state campaign committee, was quoted Thursday as follows:

"We have discovered that not only have systematic frauds been practiced all over the state, but in some counties there was wholesale exclusion of voters from the polls. In Fayette county, for instance, in two precincts 500 voters were kept from voting. In Breathitt 600 persons were kept from voting. Challengers and inspectors were also excluded from the booths. In numbers of counties the returns were padded by the democrats, notably in Franklin and Owen counties."

NEBRASKA.

Incomplete Returns Give McKinley a Plurality of Over 6,000—General Assembly Republican.

Omaha, Neb., Nov. 10.—Almost complete returns give McKinley a plurality in Nebraska of over 6,000. The republican state ticket is apparently elected by from 1,500 to 2,000. The republicans elect congressmen in the First and Second, and the fusionists in the Third, Fourth, Fifth and Sixth districts.

The legislature, the returns on which are not yet completed, will probably stand: Senate—Republicans, 16; fusionists, 16; vacant, 1. House—Republicans, 51; fusionists, 49.

San Francisco Bank to Be Absorbed.

San Francisco, Nov. 10.—It became known in this city Friday that the bank of British Columbia, a local institution, is to be absorbed by the Canadian Bank of Commerce. The amalgamation will take place at an early date.

Mark Twain's Daughter.

New York, Nov. 10.—Miss Clara Clemens, daughter of "Mark Twain," has decided to become a professional singer. She will be heard in concerts and recitals in this city during the present season.

NAVAL EXPENSES.

Over a Million and a Half Dollars Was Paid to the Marine Corps Last Year, and $56,983 to the Naval Militia.

Washington, Nov. 10.—The annual report of Paymaster General Kenney, of the navy, deals in large figures. He shows that last year he spent $10,659,000 on account of construction and purchase of ships, $3,935,000 for repairs to ships, $11,715,000 to keep ships in commission, including $1,589,000 pay for the marine corps and $56,983 for the naval militia.

The paymaster general says that the naval storehouse at Cavite has proved of great value as a supply base and the bureau intends to meet the demands of the fleet for supplies without purchasing on the station as far as possible. The refrigerator ships have been employed with the most satisfactory results and have been a veritable boon to the men.

The paymaster general makes an urgent plea for the creation of an inspection division in his office to look after the various yards and stations. He also asks for an increase of the pay corps and for recognition for the paymaster's clerks, including retirement. In conclusion the report suggests that the department be authorized to accept certified checks in lieu of bonds from contractors, and sets out the need for additional storehouse buildings at Portsmouth, N. H., Boston, League Island, Norfolk, Key West and Mare Island.

THE MAINE WRECK.

A Protest Against Its Removal From the Harbor at Havana By Explosives.

Havana, Nov. 10.—Capt. of the Port Young has asked the government to refuse any and all proposals looking to a removal of the United States battleship Maine by explosives. Last year three firms offered to remove the hull of the battle ship in return for the material, but there has always been a strong objection to the use of dynamite because of the probability that there are portions of bodies still in the wreck, and the authorities of course shrink from the idea of desecration.

A scheme has been submitted involving the construction of a coffer dam, the pumping out of the water and taking of the wreck apart in pieces; and work on this line will probably begin next month.

UNEXPECTED RISE.

A Flat Increase of One Cent a Pound Put on Beef, Pork and Mutton at Chicago.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—A flat increase of one cent a pound was put upon beef, pork and mutton Friday by Chicago packers. In one year the additional cent will yield to the Chicago packers, basing the estimate upon last year's business, the following sums: Dressed beef, $15,000,000; dressed pork and pork products, $20,000,000; mutton, $4,000,000. Total addition to incomes, $39,000,000.

Retailers of meats were thrown into a panic by the unexpected rise in prices. In six months the price of meat stuffs has gone up $2.50 per 100 pounds. There has been no corresponding advance in the price of cattle, hogs and sheep.

FIRE IN A MINE.

The Peck Tunnel of the Great Iron Mine Near Redding, Cal., Is Burning—No One Injured.

Redding, Cal., Nov. 10.—A fire, the origin of which is attributed to chemical action, is burning in the Peck tunnel of the Great iron mine. The drift has been closed and the 100 men employed there have been laid off. Work is still in progress, and it is thought the fire can be confined to the place where it started. The ore is believed to be on fire, but an explosion is not anticipated.

The Trouble Adjusted.

Pittsburgh, Nov. 10.—Officials of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers announced the settlement Friday of the strike at the Riverside Iron works of the National Tube Co., and the Bessemer, Ala., plant of the Tennessee Iron, Steel and Railroad Co. The resumption of the two plants will give employment to 8,000 men.

Convicted of Perjury.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 10.—Rev. Alonzo Rich, over 60 years old, formerly of Michigan, was convicted of perjury in the federal court Friday. He made false statements, in the form of an affidavit before a United States pension examiner to secure reinstatement on the pension rolls of one Mary E. Morgan.

Secretary Root Going to Cuba.

Washington, Nov. 10.—Secretary Root left Friday for New York and sailed Saturday for Cuba. He intends to visit Clenfuegos and Santiago and other points on the eastern and southern coast of the island which he did not see on his last trip.

Mines Prove Failures.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 10.—The iron mines discovered a year ago in the government of Kursk (in the south of European Russia), for the working of which 18 companies were partially established, proved to be valueless.

Foundered With Their Crews.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 10.—The Novoe Vremya says two steamers and 20 odd sailing vessels were wrecked in the Black sea during the recent storms, several foundering with their entire crews.

CITY OF MONTICELLO.

Twenty-Five Dead Bodies of the Wrecked Steamer Recovered

The Big Vessel Foundered Saturday Morning, and All But Four of Those on Board Lost Their Lives in the Water.

Yarmouth, N. S., Nov. 12.—The shore of this county for ten miles east and west is strewn with the wreckage of the hull and cargo of the steamer City of Monticello, which foundered Saturday morning, and 25 bodies of victims of the disaster have been recovered from the sea, which is still raging with terrific fury.

Many people have assembled at Rockville, near where the first body came ashore, and numerous relatives of members of the crew, who nearly all belonged to points on this coast, have arrived to identify the dead.

The bodies are arranged in a room in the public hall, and Coroner Fuller, who held an inquest, gave an opinion of accidental drowning. All the bodies are terribly battered.

The first body was found at daylight, when the Zinc lifeboat, which was supposed by the survivors of the first boat to have been swamped, was discovered on the shore. A few yards distant were the bodies of Mr. Eldridge, a passenger; Second Engineer Poole, Mr. Fripp, a traveler for McGee Sons, of St. John, N. B., and the body of a seaman. All four had life belts around them. At short intervals along the beach 11 more bodies were found, making 15 discovered up to noon Sunday. They had all evidently come ashore in the lifeboat and were killed on striking the beach, not one escaping.

The body of Capt. Harding, of the Monticello, has been found at Pienics Point, encircled with a life belt and fully dressed. An unknown body, supposed to be that of a traveler for a western boot and shoe firm, has been found at the same place, with the bodies of Elsie McDonald and Second Officer Murphy, recovered Saturday. Of the members of the crew whose bodies were secured, Copeland and Benham were not known to be on board until their bodies were identified. They were not on the ship's articles, having joined for the trip only. Several bodies are still unidentified. One body was recognized Sunday evening as John Richmond, of Essex, N. B., a traveler for a boot and shoe firm. He was not before known to have been a passenger.

Some difficulty was encountered in figuring out the total loss of life, as a number of passengers joined the Monticello at St. John without first registering at the booking office. They bought their tickets on board.

A revised list of the members of the crew prepared at the head office of the Yarmouth Steamship Co. here, shows that the officers and crew numbered 38, of whom Third Officer Fleming, Wilson Cook, a deck hand, and Miss Smith, the stewardess, were saved.

The total number of people who were on board is now placed at 36. The four survivors are Capt. Smith, a passenger; Third Officer Fleming, Quartermaster Wilson and Stewardess Smith. The three men saved agree that the cause of the disaster was briefly:

"The steamer was pounded for hours by sea and gale, sprung a leak and filled; became unmanageable, broke apart and foundered."

The sea is not remembered to have been so heavy on this coast for many years.

MINOR ENGAGEMENTS.

Scouting in the Philippines Resulted in the Death of Americans—Ten Were Wounded.

Manila, Nov. 12.—The results of the elections in the United States have been quietly received here. So far as the Philippines are concerned, no noticeable change in the situation has ensued, nor is any likely to occur in the immediate future. They are for the greater part noncommittal. News of the outcome will slowly work its way through the country to the armed insurgents, where the assurances of the leaders that Mr. Bryan would certainly be elected must first be overcome.

Last week's scouting resulted in several minor engagements with what the officers report as "Small casualties," namely, four Americans killed and ten wounded.

Gambler Killed By a Policeman.

St. Joseph, Mo., Nov. 12.—Police Officer Charles Scott, after midnight shot and killed Thomas Smith, a gambler. It is alleged that Smith accused Scott of having had an article published reflecting upon him. Scott denied the charged when, it is alleged, Smith undertook to assault the officer and the shooting followed. The affray took place in the barroom of the Commercial club.

Galveston Gets $1,153,719.

Galveston, Tex., Nov. 2.—John Sealy, treasurer of the Galveston relief fund, makes the following statement: Donations received October 25 to date, $115,351; of which $6,771 was received through Mayor Jones. Previously acknowledged, $1,140,368; total to date, $1,153,719.

Gen. Baden-Powell Ill.

London, Nov. 12.—Gen. Baden-Powell, according to the Cape Town correspondent of the Daily Mail, has contracted enteric fever, but his condition is not serious.

DON CARLOS.

The Pretender Protests Against the Present Movement as Contrary to Instructions.

Madrid, Nov. 12.—The Madrid papers publish a letter from Don Carlos, addressed to the Carlist Gen. Moore, in which the pretender protests against the present movement as "contrary to instructions," and characterizes the authors of the rising as "men without consciences."

"I shall never abandon my rights," says Don Carlos, "but at the same time I do not wish to ruin Spain. I can not forget the danger to the integrity of her territory from prolonged insurrection, because it would excite the ambitions of powers which are attentively following events in Spain. The Catalonia movement is veritable treason on the part of a few impatient and undisciplined men."

Barcelona, Nov. 12.—The government troops have captured a band of 50 Carlists near Villa Franca del Panades, 25 miles west of Barcelona. They seized a quantity of arms and ammunition.

DEPARTMENT OF SANTIAGO.

It Will Be Closed November 15, a Fortnight Earlier Than Had Been Expected.

Santiago, de Cuba, Nov. 12.—Col. Whiteside received Sunday orders from the war department fixing November 15 as the date for closing the department of Santiago de Cuba. This date will be a fortnight earlier than he had expected, and there is considerable uneasiness among the officers, who are not certain how the change will effect them personally. The general opinion, however, is that there will be few changes beyond calling Santiago a district hereafter instead of a department headquarters.

Gen. Wood is expected to arrive here next Tuesday. The Cubans severely criticize the war department's action. They have always been jealous of Havana, and now they say that the Americans, following Spanish systems, are robbing Santiago for the benefit of Havana.

INSURRECTION SPREADS.

Increased Alarm Is Felt in Peking—It Is Thought Manchuria Is Lost to China.

London, Nov. 12.—Dr. Morrison, wiring to the Times from Peking Saturday, says:

"Li Hung Chang has not yet replied to Adm. Alieff's invitation to resume the government of Manchuria under Russian protection. Russia will require the names of all to be submitted to her for approval. Her proposals are tantamount to military occupation; and every Chinaman realizes that Manchuria is lost to China.

"Increasing alarm is felt here at the spread of the insurrection in the southern provinces. No surprise will be caused if Japan intervenes. The trade and financial outlook is very gloomy."

"All the Russian troops here," says the dispatch to the Times from Tien-Tsin, dated November 9, "are being withdrawn."

AN OPEN SWITCH.

Passenger Train Collides With a Switch Engine at Leavenworth—Six Persons Injured.

Leavenworth, Kan., Nov. 12.—An open switch caused the northbound Missouri Pacific passenger train Sunday morning to take a siding in the yards here and to collide with a switch engine. Application of air brakes checked the speed but the following passengers were injured:

S. H. Harris, traveling man of Chicago, ear split open; Arthur Maxwell, colored, trick bicyclist, Chicago, jaw broken; George H. Logan, colored, Cincinnati, face cut and bruised; Bud Lawrence, colored, cook, St. Louis, shoulder dislocated; Harry Creighton, Thomas Madison, and Richard Lewis, all colored, Lynchburg, Va., bruised.

A COPPER MINE BURNING.

Grave Fears Are Entertained That It Can Not Be Extinguished—The Loss Will Be Large.

Butte, Mont., Nov. 12.—Fire broke out in the 200 foot level of the Bell mine, an Amalgamated Copper Co. property, Saturday night, and is still burning. It is under control, but grave apprehensions are entertained that it can not be extinguished. The ore in this mine is free milling, containing a large percentage of sulphur, and fire once started is a hard proposition to handle. The loss will certainly be large. The source of the fire is unknown.

Secretary Gage Denies the Rumor.

Washington, Nov. 12.—Secretary Gage denied emphatically the report that he contemplated resigning from the cabinet before the expiration of President McKinley's first term. As to his future movements, he said he had not yet made up his mind what he would do after March 4 next.

Yerkes' Latest Scheme.

London, Nov. 12.—"Charles T. Yerkes," says the Daily Express, "has a scheme to radiate electric railways for long distances north of London and to build low-rent dwellings for workmen in order to remedy overcrowding."

Claims Self-Defense.

Muscogee, Ia., Nov. 12.—Thos. Owens, city attorney, shot and mortally wounded Noah Watts, two bullets taking effect in the breast. Both men are young. Owens claims self-defense.

STATE NEWS PICK-UPS.

ROBBERS' TERRIBLE WORK.

A Doctor Who Discovered Them Captured and Locked Up in a Bank Vault for the Night.

Barboursville, Ky., Nov. 10.—Thursday midnight Dr. G. H. Albright was crossing the public square in front of John A. Black's bank when four men rushed out and covering him with their pistols, ordered him to throw up his hands, which he did. He was then taken to the corner of the building and carefully guarded and told if he looked at any of his captors he would be killed.

After several explosions in the bank one of the men in the building ordered the doctor brought in. The robbers thrust him in the vault and as they closed the door one of the men said: "Have a seat, Doc."

Dr. Albright remained in the vault until 6 o'clock Friday morning, opening hour. The time-lock and outside door of the safe were blown to pieces but the inside door was not opened. There was about $5,500 in the vault, none of which was taken except $300.

The Cumberland Valley bank was also entered but no damage was done. Bloodhounds were telegraphed for and every effort will be made to find the burglars.

A Contest at Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 9.—In the circuit court here Thursday attorneys for John W. Yerkes asked that Judge Parker enter an order requiring the election officers of precinct 21 to open the ballot box and take out the stub book, which had been illegally sealed in the box and not returned regularly. Judge Parker granted the order and the book was taken out Friday morning. Both democrats and republicans have prepared to put up a stubborn fight on the canvassing of the returns Friday. The work began at 10 o'clock.

The Powers Case.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 9.—The transcript of the record in the case of Caleb Powers against the commonwealth has been filed in the office of the clerk of the court of appeals and Chief Justice Hazelrigg fixed Friday, November 23, to hear arguments in the case. It will be disposed of before the close of this term of the court.

Adair's Official Vote.

Columbia, Ky., Nov. 10.—The official count of the vote cast in Adair county is as follows: McKinley, 1,713; Bryan, 1,452; Yerkes, 1,719; Beckham, 1,432; Cardin, 4; White, 11; congress: Boreing, 1,707; Smith, 1,443. Pluralities: McKinley, 261; Yerkes, 287; Boreing, 264. There were 3,119 votes cast in the county.

Caught in the Act.

Russellville, Ky., Nov. 9.—Thomas Dean and Adam Snifer were caught in the act of attempting to blow the safe of Edwards Bros. & Gordon, at Gordonsville, eight miles from here. A hole had been bored in the safe and they were in the act of placing in the explosive when arrested. They were placed in jail here.

Lancaster, Ky., Nov. 8.—Luther Ray cut Edward Brown's throat. The latter died instantly. Both were prominent young men. Ray was arrested. The crime was the result of an old grudge.

A PLUCKY OFFICER.

He Mounted a Horse After He Had Been Badly Wounded and Captured His Assailant.

Winchester, Ky., Nov. 9.—Policeman John Tarpy was shot through the body and in the left leg by "Jake" Baber, whom he was trying to arrest on a charge of drunkenness. Baber was amusing himself by firing into a crowd of men who were peaceably walking along the road. When the officer started after him he turned and began shooting at him. Tarpy fired 12 shots at Baber, none of which took effect. He then mounted a horse, and, though wounded almost to death, caught his assailant, who was running away. The wounded officer is in a serious condition.

Ferguson Dying.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 10.—According to reports from the sick room, James B. Ferguson, one of the most successful starters on the turf today, will not live many hours. He was removed from his country home, at Kingston Stud, to a local hospital, three weeks ago, and submitted to an operation for the removal of a bullet which had been troubling him. He has been in a precarious condition since that time.

Saved His Neck.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 9.—In order to save himself from hanging Ben Dillard, colored, Thursday pleaded guilty to killing Charles Harris on August 11 and asked to be given a life sentence. The jury granted his request. The murder was cold-blooded. Dillard shot Harris, a fellow-workman, because of a quarrel. He went out and bought a pistol and upon returning fired four shots into Harris from behind.

Police Officer Shot.

Nicholasville, Ky., Nov. 9.—J. J. Peel, night policeman, was shot in a melee. Peel had had a difficulty in front of E. A. Duncan's saloon with Will and Ben Howard. The trouble was renewed when they met a few minutes later on Main street, when Peel was shot. Peel accused Ben of having shot him, but a witness says Peel shot himself.

Winter has made its appearance.

Robert Clements is building a new barn.

D. H. Ryle is slowly recovering from his illness.

A sheet of snow was at our doors last Thursday morning.

There will be a wedding to write up soon if all reports are true.

George Wells, of Rising Sun, was in this vicinity buying hogs last week.

C. B. Mason sold a [illegible] mule colts to an Indiana man last week. Price, $80.

Mrs. Fannie Adams, of Burlington, attended the meetings at Big Bone, several days last week.

Mrs. Henry McNeely, of Gallatin county, was visiting her son and other relatives here several days last week.

There were some true blues (Democrats) in this vicinity, who had to be set up with last week. The trouble was political illness.

The series of meetings closed at Big Bone last Saturday night, with 24 conversions, two restored to fellowship and one placed under the watchcare of the church. The baptising took place last Saturday at 10 o'clock near B. D. Adams' on Riddell's Run. Bro. C. M. Huey did the baptising for Bro. Kirtley. There was great interest manifested during the meeting and excellent good order prevailed. Following are the names of those who were baptised: Cecil Gully, Robert Rouse, Elizabeth Portwood, Rachal Adams, Mamie Sullivan, Edith Ryle, Susie Adams, Chas. Abdom, Joseph Setters, Calvin Abdom, Tom Abdom, Tom Setters, Harry Shinkle, Jimmy Huey, Ben Abdom, Tommy Stephens, Sam Shinkle, J. L. Rich, Wilton Adams, Jennie Pearl Allen, Jennie Aylor, Jeanette Huey. Mrs. Louisa Rouse and Edward Hubbard were not baptised on account of illness.

Bellevue.

Miss June Clore is visiting her father near South Fork.

W. B. Walton and wife were shopping in Rising Sun, Saturday.

Miss Eva Botts was visiting her aunts in Rising Sun, last week.

Mrs. Hallie Andrey, of Paris, Ky., is visiting her aunt, Mrs. J. H. Lawell.

Rev. Atwood will preach at the Woolper school house next Sunday at 3 p. m.

Mrs. Annie Clore is not sufficiently recovered to attend to her household duties.

Mrs. Mamie Williamson is recovering from what was at first thought to be an attack of fever.

Andrew B. Acra, of Middle creek passed through here Saturday enroute to Petersburg flouring mill.

Elder Jones, of Petersburg, will occupy the pulpit in the Christian church next Sunday at 3 p. m.

My wife and I extend thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Weed Williamson for the sample of their excellent wedding cake.

Democrats here are in high glee over the victory in this State, and we congratulate Gov. Beckham on his victory.

After attending his sister's wedding Clayton Rogers returned to Louisville where he will attend school again this winter.

Forest Brown and wife, of Owen county, attended the wedding of Mrs. Brown's sister and remained over until Tuesday.

Pilot Ed Maurer left his boat at Rabbit Hash and came to Bellevue to vote arriving here just six minutes before the polls closed.

James Riley and wife, of Union, attended the Williamson-Rogers wedding, and then visited relatives here for a couple of days.

O. N. Grant and wife have improved the looks of their house and lot, and they now have the most presentable residence in the town.

Prof. Snyder is somewhat like the rich man in the Bible. He is tearing down his barns and building larger ones in which to store his corn. He has ears of corn that would make a good, hack log.

Sam Pope has moved from the Aunt Polly Botts place to the Tom Clore farm, formerly owned by J. H. Lawell out on the East Bend and Burlington road. He has rented the farm until March, 1902.

Elder Hays occupied the pulpit in the Christian church, last Saturday night and Sunday morning and evening. He is a fluent speaker and interests all who hear him. We hope to secure his services for next year.

The marriage of Mr. Weeden Williamson and Miss Mamie Rogers at the Baptist church here at 7 p. m., November 7, was a most beautiful wedding. The friends of the bride and groom had the church handsomely decorated with natural flowers for the occasion, and before the hour for the ceremony arrived the house was crowded to its utmost capacity.

Promptly at 7 o'clock the bride leaning on the arm of her brother, Clayton, entered the church and approached the altar by one aisle, while the groom, accompanied by Johnnie Moody, came in by the other aisle. They met beneath a beautiful floral arch over the altar, and there in a most impressive manner Rev. Atwood pronounced the ceremony that united the hearts of the loving couple. The bride and groom were each handsomely attired.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom, accompanied by numerous friends, repaired to the house of the bride, where a sumptuous and elegant supper was served. The bride's cake was a handsome production of the culinary art. It contained a heavy gold ring, which the groom was so fortunate as to draw.

On Thursday the bride and groom and many friends were delightfully entertained by Mrs. Lulu Walton, sister of the groom.

The wedding presents were numerous and handsome.

The young couple have the best wishes of many friends in their new relations in this life. C. H. A.

Union.

The Excelsior Literary Club met with Miss Alva Williams last week.

Rev. S. M. Adams preached for the Baptist congregation Saturday and Sunday.

Joe Huey and Volney Dickerson were out of school, last week, on account of illness.

Mrs. M. C. Norman had for her guest, last week, Mrs. Laura F. Yoe, of Walton.

Mesdames Rachal Rice, Laura Youell and M. C. Norman spent Monday with Mrs. W. M. Rachal.

After a long and serious illness, Arthur Adams will soon be out, and his friends will be much pleased.

Golden Grange will hold a called meeting Thursday night, and all the members are requested to be present.

The Presbyterian Aid Society meets with Miss Lillian Corbin, November 17. Hope all the members will be present.

Rev. O. M. Huey held a very interesting as well as successful meeting at Big Bone. There were 26 additions to the church.

The ladies of the Baptist society will give a social at J. W. Conner's. Thanks giving evening. Admission, including supper 15 cents.

Eliza Garrison entertained at dinner, last Sunday, Misses Kate Green, Nell Cleek, Martha Lassing, Lula Williams, Messrs. Tom Huey, Ben Norman, Howe Cleek.

Miss Nannie Dickerson and Stella Myers attended Mrs. Sarah Northcutt's sale, Wednesday, and say a large crowd was present and everything brought excellent prices.

Ildewild.

N. S. Walton sent 40 head of beef cattle to the Union Stock Yards, Monday.

J. M. Lassing made our town a flying visit Monday morning enroute for Petersburg.

Col. G. C. Graddy spent Sunday night with his daughter, Mrs. Courtney Walton.

Mr Thomas Stewart, of Barkworks, Indiana, was the guest of Mr. W. T. Berkshire, Sunday.

Mr. J. B. Winston purchased his winter supply of hay in Aurora, Ind., at $11 per ton in bales.

Charles Gaines, the turkey merchant was commenced operations for the season and is paying 6½ cents gross.

Mr. and Mrs. James T. Gaines spent Saturday night and Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. C. T. Davis, of Hebron.

Our good friend, Scott Chambers was married on Wednesday last and we wish him and his bride a long, prosperous and happy life.

The cattle men are anxious to dispose of their stock before had weather sets in and the market is likely to be verrun from now on.

Messrs. George Kreylich and Clay Duncan each delivered a nice drove of fat hogs to Wingate & Thompson, last week at 4 cents per pound.

Mrs. Delbert Roseboom returned to her home in Chillicothe, Ohio, Monday, after a pleasant visit of nearly a month to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Berkshire.

We are sorry if anything we said was the cause of the Bullittsville correspondent not contributing her newsy items from that place as heretofore. We hope she will resume and will promise her not to offend her again if we ever did.

The prudent farmer will dispose of all surplus stock at this season of the year and carry nothing through the winter that will not be sure to make him a profit. Old horses, cows and sheep should be disposed of at any price, as they are in better condition now than they are ever likely to be again, and all kinds of feed promises to be high before spring.

Walton.

Ed. Stamler says he is having plenty of work—all he can do.

The Graded School is responsible for this sudden boom in the building industry.

Judge J. E. and Mrs. Botts have been gladdened by a visit of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Botts, of Bagdad, Shelby county.

The Walton Planing Mill Co. has put in a new boiler and will now have power to run the saw mill in connection with the planers and other machinery.

Mr. H. C. Diers is very busy just now putting scales near the Short Line Depot. His coal business has increased to that extent that he will make quite a saving by having his own scales.

Wm. Ransler has just finished a handsome cottage on Locust street for Mrs. Ann Eliza Watson. He is now building another house for J. Grant Tomlin, on Locust street, which will be occupied by Mr. James Hedges, our obliging dairyman.

Married, on Saturday morning, at the residence of the Rev. Geo. A. Miller, pastor of the Fifth Street Christian church, Miss Madge, daughter of Wm. Holder, to J. Taylor Grubbs. The best twishes of the Recorder and that they may have a long and happy life be and remain with them now and forever more.

Walton is without a board of trustees or councilmen. At the late election there was not a supply of tickets furnished in sufficient quantity for the number of those desirous of voting. The old board seemed determined to hold on and it may be of the opinion that County Judge Roberts will reappoint the old members. It is to be hoped he will not, as there was evidently a majority of the citizens opposed to their retention. If it has ever made a statement of what has been done by it the citizens have not seen it. But they have seen that whenever a little job was to be done by the town some one of the board's flugers have been dipped into it.

Florence

We are glad to report John Sells some better.

Miss Sarah Huggins is visiting relatives in Cincinnati.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Price on, Oct. 30th, a girl—Anna Lucile.

M. C. Conner is improving slowly from an attack of malaria fever.

Mrs. Wallace Tanner, of Louisville, is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Rowland.

Mrs. Jemima Popham, of Pt. Pleasant, spent a few days last week with Mrs. Joshua Tanner.

Mrs. Lillard and children, of Covington, have returned home after a pleasant visit with Mrs. Sidney, of this place.

Mrs. Reuben Clutterbuck, of Kiddville, has returned to her home, after a pleasant visit with Mrs. Frances Clutterbuck, of this place.

Plattsburg.

Wheat around here looks very well.

If you have a veal calf for sale, call on Kirb Cox.

R. E. Cloud attended meeting here Saturday night.

Ches Aylor came home from Illinois to vote, and then returned.

John Sebree's oldest girl has been quite sick for several days.

Miss Maude Jarrell was the guest of Ethel Sebree, a few days last week.

George White and wife passed here last Thursday on their way to Aurora.

Someone entered Egbert Nichols' house, one night last week, and took about all his jellies and preserves.

Gunpowder

Not much corn gathered—the fodder is too dry to handle.

We had a pretty fair sample of winter weather here last week.

G. O. Hafler and wife attended church at Hopeful, last Sunday.

Will Star is the first in the neighborhood to kill hogs. He killed last Friday.

Ed Corbin, of Florence, bought of M. R. Tanner a fat cow last week. Price, $25.

The dry weather still continues and water is getting very scarce with a great many people.

Mrs. E. O. Rouse is still improving, and without a relapse she will be restored to her health again.

James L. Huey, of the Union neighborhood, passed through our burg last Saturday enroute to Erlanger.

Elections will be held at the three churches (Hopeful, Hebron and Ebenezer) for the election of a pastor.

E. O. Rouse sold some very fine shipping cattle, last week, at the Union Stock yards, Cincinnati. Price, private.

Uncle Joel celebrated his 93d birth day, on the second inst., and went to the election the 6th and voted the Democratic ticket. Few men are able to render their country service at that extreme age.

Rather a small attendance at Hopeful Sunday, to hear Rev. Heershiser preach. He preached a most interesting sermon, and every one present was well pleased with his discourse. He is a good man and the people of the Boone County Charge would make no mistake in securing him for their pastor.

Richwood.

Mr. Ben Glacken has moved to Falmouth.

Some of the farmers are through husking corn.

I understand that Mr. Broadnax will be our next pastor.

Miss Laura Wolfe has resumed her school at this place.

Mr. William Lancaster is building an addition to his house.

Mrs. Edna Wolfe is having an addition of three rooms and a hall built to her house.

A number of people look every week for Richwood news, but they have not seen any lately.

The members of the Presbyterian Church at this place have had the same remodeled.

Miss Sara Bedinger, who is attending school in Cincinnati, was visiting her parents, Sunday.

Mr. Tanner, of Gunpowder, is building a barn for William Wolfe, on his place near Richwood station.

Mr. J. W. Carpenter and wife entertained about forty persons one evening last week in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Benson.

Mr. B. Long and daughter have returned home after a delightful visit with Mr. Long's father, who resides at Glencoe.

Richwood is still on the face of the globe but every one has been so interested in politics, that they have not had time to write for the paper.

The E. L. Club, of this and adjoining neighborhoods, will meet with Miss Nellie Cleek, of Beaver, Friday evening, Nov. 16th. All are cordially invited.

A number of young people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cary Carpenter to meet Mr. Benson. All who had the pleasure of being there report a fine time.

Young ladies look your best, for a very nice house is being built on the Richwood and Walton grade. "Better be an old man's darling, than a young man's slave."

Limaburg.

Snow fell here on the 1st and 8th.

W. R. Rouse had a full days grinding Tuesday.

George Rouse was the first to kill hogs in this neighborhood.

According to the hog-melt sign the worst weather will be from now until the middle of the winter.

Jacob W. Rouse fell through his barn floor, one day last week, and dislocated his shoulder. It was set by Dr. Rouse.

Wm. N. Uts, son of James M. Uts, and Miss Dora Brown, daughter of Joe Brown, were married on the 7th inst., at 8 o'clock p. m., at Erlanger by the Rev. E. Stephens. They were given an old time serenade by the boys.

This is delightful weather for butchering, and many of the farmers are taking advantage of it.

Nannie D. Bristow, Teacher.

When it was announced on October 19th, that Wallace, the bright little son of Spencer Smith, had passed away, many hearts were saddened. It was all if one of earth's sweetest blossoms had been plucked to adorn the fields of Heaven, a gem too pure and bright for an earthly setting, transferred to the abode of eternal happiness, there to glisten and radiate its light among the redeemed. To know Wallace was to admire, enjoy and love him. His happy, cheerful nature made him the "sunshine" of his home, his ambition to excel was the pride of his teacher, and his genial, manly disposition made him the favorite among his playmates. Bright beyond his years, we saw in him the promise of a brilliant, gifted man—how could we know that thus early in life he was reserved for something far greater—"A place not made with hands eternal in the heaven."

Grieve not, loved ones, upon whom the "shadow" has so deeply fallen. He is now within the sheltering arms of Him Who said, "Suffer the little ones to come unto Me, and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

To remove a troublesome corn or bunion: First soak the corn or bunion in warm water to soften it, then pare it down as close as possible without drawing blood and apply Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice daily; rubbing vigorously for five minutes at each application. A corn plaster should be worn for a few days, to protect from the shoe. As a general liniment for sprains, bruises, lameness and rheumatism, Pain Balm is unequaled. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; Grant, Bellevue; Baisly, Bullittsville.

James Sebree shot and wounded a large gray eagle down on Gunpowder, last Wednesday morning. Only the tip end of one of the wings was injured, but this so disabled the bird that it was easily captured. It was taken to Lewis Rector's, where a great many persons have gone to see it. It measures seven feet and one inch from tip to tip, and has a very sharp beak and large talons. Mr. Rector will take the bird to town to dispose of it.

A Village Blacksmith Saves His Little Son's Life.

Mr. H. H. Black, the well known village blacksmith at Grahamsville, Sullivan county, N. Y., says: "Our little son, five years old, has always been subject to croup, and so bad have the attacks been that we have feared many times that he would die. We have had the doctor and used many medicines, but Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is now our sole reliance. It seems to dissolve the tough mucus and by giving frequent doses when the croupy symptoms appear we have found that the dreaded croup is cured before it gets settled." There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains no opium or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to a babe as to an adult. Prof. Snyder is somewhat like the rich man in the Bible. He is tearing down his barns and building larger ones in which to store his corn. He has ears of corn that would make a good, back log.

Sam Pope has moved from the Aunt Polly Botts place to the Tom Clore farm, formerly owned by J. H. Lawell out on the East Bend and Burlington road. He has rented the farm until March, 1902.

Elder Hays occupied the pulpit in the Christian church, last Saturday night and Sunday morning and evening. He is a fluent speaker and interests all who hear him. We hope to secure his services for next year.

The marriage of Mr. Weeden Williamson and Miss Mamie Rogers at the Baptist church here at 7 p. m., November 7, was a most beautiful wedding. The friends of the bride and groom had the church handsomely decorated with natural flowers for the occasion, and before the hour for the ceremony arrived the house was crowded to its utmost capacity.

Promptly at 7 o'clock the bride leaning on the arm of her brother, Clayton, entered the church and approached the altar by one aisle, while the groom, accompanied by Johnnie Moody, came in by the other aisle. They met beneath a beautiful floral arch over the altar, and there in a most impressive manner Rev. Atwood pronounced the ceremony that united the hearts of the loving couple. The bride and groom were each handsomely attired.

Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom, accompanied by numerous friends, repaired to the home of the bride, where a sumptuous and elegant supper was served. The bride's cake was a handsome production of the culinary art. It contained a heavy gold ring, which the groom was so fortunate as to draw.

On Thursday the bride and groom and many friends were delightfully entertained by Mrs. Lula Walton, sister of the groom.

The wedding presents were numerous and handsome.

The young couple have the best wishes of many friends in their new relations in this life. C. H. A.

Messrs. George Kreylich and Clay Duncan each delivered a nice drove of fat hogs to Wingate & Thompson, last week at 4 cents per pound.

Mrs. Delbert Roseboom returned to her home in Chilicothe, Ohio, Monday, after a pleasant visit of nearly a month to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Berkshire.

We are sorry if anything we said was the cause of the Bullittsville correspondent not contributing her newsy items from that place as heretofore. We hope she will resume and will promise her not to offend her again if we ever did.

The prudent farmer will dispose of all surplus stock at this season of the year and carry nothing through the winter that will not be sure to make him a profit. Old horses, cows and sheep should be disposed of at any price, as they are in better condition now than they are ever likely to be again, and all kinds of feed promises to be high before spring.

Walton.

Ed. Stamler says he is having plenty of work—all he can do.

The Graded School is responsible for this sudden boom in the building industry.

The Walton Planing Mill Co. has put in a new boiler and will now have power to run the saw mill in connection with the planers and other machinery.

Mr. H. C. Diers is very busy just now putting scales near the Short Line Depot. His coal business has increased to that extent that he will make quite a saving by having his own scales.

Wm. Ransler has just finished a handsome cottage on Locust street for Mrs. Ann Eliza Watson. He is now building another house for J. Grant Tomlin, on Locust street, which will be occupied by Mr. James Hedges, our obliging fairman.

Married, on Saturday morning, at the residence of the Rev. Geo. A. Miller, pastor of the Fifth Street Christian church, Miss Madge, daughter of Wm. Holder, to J. Taylor Grubbs. The best wishes of the Recorder and that they may have a long and happy life be and remain with them now and forever more.

Walton is without a board of trustees or councilmen. At the late election there was not a supply of tickets furnished in sufficient quantity for the number of those desirous of voting. The old board seemed determined to hold on and it may be of the opinion that County Judge Roberts will reappoint the old members. It is to be hoped he will not, as there was evidently a majority of the citizens opposed to their retention. If it has ever made a statement of what has been done by it the citizens have not seen it. But they have seen that whenever a little job was to be done by the town some one of the board's fingers have been dipped into it.

Florence

We are glad to report John Sells some better.

Miss Sarah Hoggins is visiting relatives in Cincinnati.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Price on, ... D. Simpkins is improving rapidly from an attack of malaria fever.

Mrs. Wallace Tanner, of Louisville is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Rowland.

Plattsburg.

Wheat around here looks very well.

If you have a veal calf for sale, call on Kirb Cox.

R. E. Cloud attended meeting here Saturday night.

Ches Aylor came home from Illinois to vote, and then returned.

John Sebree's oldest girl has been quite sick for several days.

Miss Maude Jarrell was the guest of Ethel Sebree, a few days last week.

Gennie White and ... passed here last Thursday on their way to Aurora.

Someone entered Egbert Nichols' house, one night last week, and took about all his jellies and preserves.

Gunpowder

Not much corn gathered—the fodder is too dry to handle.

We had a pretty fair sample of winter weather here last week.

G. O. Haffer and wife attended church at Hopeful, last Sunday.

Will Star is the first in the neighborhood to kill hogs. He killed last Friday.

Ed Corbin, of Florence, bought of M. R. Tanner a fat cow last week. Price, $25

The dry weather still continues and water is getting very scarce with a great many people.

Mrs. E. O. Rouse is still improving, and without a relapse she will be restored to her health again.

James L. Huey, of the Union neighborhood, passed through our burg last Saturday enroute to Erlanger.

Elections will be held at the three churches (Hopeful, Hebron and Ebenezer) for the election of a pastor.

E. O. Rouse sold some very fine shipping cattle, last week, at the Union Stock yards, Cincinnati. Price, private.

Uncle Joel celebrated his 93d birth day, on the second inst., and went to the election the 6th and voted the Democratic ticket. Few men are able to render their country service at that extreme age.

Rather a small attendance at Hopeful Sunday, to hear Rev. Heershiser preach. He preached a most interesting sermon, and every one present was well pleased with his discourse. He is a good man and the people of the Boone County Charge would make no mistake in securing him for their pastor.

Richwood.

Mr. Ben Glacken has moved to Falmouth.

Some of the farmers are through husking corn.

I understand that Mr. Brosdnax will be our next pastor.

Miss Laura Wolfe has resumed her school at this place.

Mr. William Lancaster is building an addition to his house.

A number of people look every week for Richwood news, but they have not seen any lately.

The members of the Presbyterian Church at this place have had the house remodeled.

Miss Sara Bedinger, who is attending school in Cincinnati, was visiting her parents, Sunday.

Mr. Tanner, of Gunpowder, is building a barn for William Wolfe, on his place near Richwood station.

Mr. J. W. Carpenter and wife entertained about forty persons one evening last week in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Benson.

Mr. B. Long and daughter have returned home after a delightful visit with Mr. Long's father, who resides at Glencoe.

Richwood is still on the face of the globe but every one has been so interested in politics, that they have not had time to write for the paper.

The E. L. Club, of this and adjoining neighborhoods, will meet with Miss Nellie Cleek, of Beaver, Friday evening, Nov. 16th. All are cordially invited.

A number of young people gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cary Carpenter to meet Mr. Benson. All who had the pleasure of being there report a fine time.

Young ladies look your best, for a very nice house is being built on the Richwood and Walton grade. "Better be an old man's darling, than a young man's slave."

Limaburg.

Snow fell here on the 1st and 8th.

W. R. Rouse had a full days grinding Tuesday.

George Rouse was the first to kill hogs in this neighborhood.

According to the hog-melt sign the worst weather will be from now until the middle of the winter.

Jacob W. Rouse fell through his barn floor, one day last week, and dislocated his shoulder. It was set by Dr. Rouse.

Wm. N. Utz, son of James M. Utz, and Miss Dora Brown, daughter of Joe Brown, were married on the 7th inst., at 5 o'clock p. m., at Erlanger by the Rev. E. Stephens. They were given an old time serenade by the boys.

This is delightful weather for butchering, and many of the farmers are taking advantage of it.

Nannie D. Bristow, Teacher.

When it was announced on October 19th, that Wallace, the bright little son of Spencer Smith, had passed away, many hearts were saddened. It was all one of earth's sweetest blossoms had been plucked to adorn the fields of Heaven, a gem too pure and bright for an earthly setting, transferred to the abode of eternal happiness, there to glisten and radiate its light among the redeemed. To know Wallace was to admire, enjoy and love him. His happy, cheerful nature made him the "sunshine" of his home, his ambition to excel was the pride of his teacher, and his genial, manly disposition made him the favorite among his playmates. Bright beyond his years, we saw in him the promise of a brilliant, gifted man—how could we know that this early in life he was reserved for something far greater—"A place not made with hands eternal in the heaven."

Grieve not, loved ones, upon whom the "shadow" has so deeply fallen. He is now within the sheltering arms of Him Who said, "Suffer the little ones to come unto Me, and forbid them not, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

To remove a troublesome corn or bunion: First soak the corn or bunion in warm water to soften it, then pare it down as close as possible without drawing blood and apply Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice daily; rubbing vigorously for five minutes at each application. A corn plaster should be worn for a few days, to protect from the shoe. As a general liniment for sprains, bruises, lameness and rheumatism, Pain Balm is unequaled. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; Grant, Bellevue; Baisly, Bullittsville.

James Sebree shot and wounded a large gray eagle down on Gunpowder, last Wednesday morning. Only the tip end of one of the wings was injured, but this so disabled the bird that it was easily captured. It was taken to Lewis Rector's, where a great many persons have gone to see it. It measures seven feet and one inch from tip to tip, and has a very sharp beak and large talons. Mr. Rector will take the bird to town to dispose of it.

CAPTIVITY OF JOB.

Dr. Talmage Urges Us to Avoid Selfish Thoughts.

Lessons Drawn from Him Who Prayed for His Friends While Imprisoned —Self-Concentration the Fault of Too Many.

(Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.)

In this discourse Dr. Talmage warns on narrowness of view and urges a life helpful to others; text, Job 42-10: "And the Lord turned the captivity of Job when he prayed for his friends."

Comparatively few people read this last chapter of the Book of Job. The earlier chapters are so full of thrilling incident, of events so dramatically portrayed, of awful ailments and terrific disaster, of domestic infelicity, of staccato passage, of resounding address, of omnipotency proclaimed, of utterances showing Job to have been the greatest scientist of his day, an expert in mining and precious stones, astronomer and geographer and zoologist and electrician and poet, that most readers stop before they get to my text, which, strangely and mysteriously, announces that "the Lord turned the captivity of Job when he prayed for his friends."

Now, will you please explain to me how Job's prayer for his friends halted his catastrophes? Give me some good reason why Job, on his knees in behalf of the welfare of others, arrested the long procession of calamities. Mind you, it was not prayer for himself, for then the cessation of his troubles would have been only another instance of prayer answered. But the portfolio of his disaster was rolled up while he supplicated God in behalf of Eliphaz the Temanite, Bildad the Shuhite and Zophar the Nasmathite. I must confess to you that I had to read the text over and over again before I got its full meaning: "And the Lord turned the captivity of Job when he prayed for his friends."

Well, if you will not explain it to me I will explain it to you. The healthiest, the most recuperative thing on earth to do is to stop thinking so much about ourselves and go to thinking about the welfare of others. Job had been studying his misfortunes, but the more he thought about his bankruptcy the poorer he seemed, the more he thought of his carbuncles the worse they hurt, the more he thought of his unfortunate marriage the more intolerable became the conjugal relation, the more he thought of his house blown down the more terrific seemed the cyclone. His misfortunes grew blacker and blacker. But there was to come a reversal of these sad conditions. One day he said to himself: "I have been dwelling too much upon my bodily ailments and my wife's temper and my bereavements. It is time I began to think about others and do something for others, and I will start now by praying for my three friends." Then Job dropped upon his knees, and as he did so the last shackle of his captivity of troubles snapped and fell off. Hear it, all ye ages of time and all ye ages of eternity, "the Lord turned the captivity of Job when he prayed for his friends."

The fault with most of us is too much self-concentration—our health, our fortunes, our advancement, our social position, our achievements, our losses, our defeats, our sufferings, our persecution, our life, our death, our immortality. Of course there is a lawful and righteous selfishness. In a world and in a time of such activities and rivalries and temptations we must look after our own interests and our own destiny or we will go under. Do not wait for others to take care of you. Take care of yourself. But it will not hinder our preservation and prosperity if we enlarge the sphere of our wishes and prayers so as to take in others. The law in the natural world would do well for its moral and spiritual world. The centripetal force in nature would throw everything in toward the center and the centrifugal force in nature would throw everything out from the center. But the centripetal and the centrifugal work beautifully together. The one force that would throw everything toward the center is balanced by the force that would throw everything outward.

Our world, with its own interests, feels the pull of other worlds. No world, no nation, no community, no man, no woman, can afford to exist only for itself or himself or herself. The hour in which Job has that soliloquy about the enlargement of his prayers so as to take in his friends, and he put into execution his good resolution, was the hour when he felt a tonic, a sedative, a nervine, a catalysm that helped to cure his body and revived his fortunes till they were a hundred per cent. better than ever before, for the record is "the Lord gave Job twice as much as he had before," and tended to make him a wonder of longevity, for he lived 140 years after his troubles were gone. Oh, what a mighty medicament is the contemplation of and the effort for the welfare of others!

"But," says some one, "it is easy enough for Job to pray for his friends. Anybody can do that. There are those to whom we are obliged for years of kindness. They stand so close to us in sympathy and reminiscence and anticipation that it is easy for us to pray for their welfare." Well, I see you do not understand that these friends of Job were the most tantalizing and exasperating friends a man ever had. Look at their behavior. When they heard of his bereavements and his misfortunes they came in and sat down by him one week, seven days and seven nights, and the record is made as much a matter of fact as if it were a statistical report. What a picture of sympathetic silence! What a contrast to the religious censoriousness that has been able to [illegible] and grow in grace solation. Instead of that they were dumb as the sphinx which at that time stood in the African desert and stands there still. Why did they not say something about reunion in the Heavenly realms with his children who had been slain? Why did they not talk to him about the satisfactory explanations in the future world of things we do not understand in this world? Why did they not go to the apothecary and buy a poultice that would have soothed the carbuncles, or some quieting potion that would calm his nerves, or a few drops of febrifuge that would cool his heated frame? No! For seven days and seven nights they did nothing and said nothing for his relief. They must have almost bored him to death.

After these three friends had completed their infamous silence of a week they began to lecture Job. First, Eliphaz the Temanite opens with a long story about a dream which he had in the night and irritates the sufferer with words that make things worse instead of better and sets him in an attitude of defense against the lecturer. Then comes Bildad the Shuhite, who gives the invalid a round scolding and calls him garrulous and practically tells him that he deserved all that he got, and that if he had behaved himself aright he would not have lost his house or his children or his estate. He practically says: "Job, I will tell you what is the matter with you. You are bad; you are a hypocrite; you are now getting paid for your wickedness." No wonder that there came from Job an outburst of indignation which calls out the other quondam friend, Zophar the Nasmathite, who begins denouncing Job by calling him a liar, and keeps on the discourse until Job responds to all three of them in the sarcastic words: "No doubt but ye are the people, and wisdom shall die with you."

Oh, what friends Job had! Heaven deliver us from having one such friend, to say nothing of having three of them. It was for such friends that Job prayed, and was it a religious triumph for him to do so? Would you, the very best of you, be in very devout mood and capable of making intercession for people who had come to you in a day of trouble and said: "Good for you. You ought to be chastised. You are being taken in hand by eternal justice. If you had behaved yourself aright you would not have been sick or persecuted or impoverished or made childless." Oh, no, my friend, you would not have felt like Job when he prayed for his friends, but more like Job when he cursed the day of his nativity!

Notice that this flagellation by the three friends was premeditated. They did not merely happen in and come suddenly upon the trouble for which they could not offer a compound. The Bible says: "They had made an appointment together." The interview was prearranged. They had agreed as to what they would say to the sick man. You can see that their remarks were not extemporaneous. What they said was sublimely poetic. They rose in style into what in later times we would call the Homeric or Dantesque. But Job was not in need of poetry so much as a salve for his eruptive disorder. He was not dying for lack of a paragraph in blank verse. He was not so much in need of a didactic lecture about the justice of God as an assurance of the Divine mercy. Some pious rustic of the land of Uz not able to put three grammatical sentences together could have said something more consolatory.

The meanness of the attack of these religious critics was augmented by the fact that they had the sufferer in their power. When we are well and we do not like what one is saying we can get up and go away. But Job was too ill to get up and go away. First he endured the seven days and seven nights of silence, and then he endured their arraignment of his motives and character, and after their cruel campaign was ended by a sublime effort of soul, which this day upholds for imitation, he triumphed in prayer for his tantalizers. In all history there is nothing equal to it except the memorable imploration by Christ of His enemies. No wonder that after that prayer of Job was once uttered a thrill of recovery shot through every nerve and vein of his tortured body and every passion of his great soul, and God answered it by adding nearly a century and a half to his lifetime, and whitened the hills with flocks of sheep, and filled the air with the lowing of cattle, and wakened the silent nursery of his home with the swift feet and the laughing voices of childhood—seven sons and three daughters celebrated for their beauty, the daughters to refine the sons, the sons to defend the daughters. There is nothing that pays so well as prayer, and the more difficult the prayer to make the greater the reward for making it.

Let us all make a similar attempt to pray for those who vex and misrepresent and tantalize us. You may be very popular in the city or neighborhood where you live, but I warrant if you are in active life there are those who wish you the opposite of wishing you well. Are you benevolent? They say it is on your part a matter of personal display. Are you eloquent or learned? They declare you are overrated and that what you say or write is of no importance. Do you try to make yourself effective in church or hospital or board of directors? They call you officious. Are you well dressed? They say you are proud. Does a false report start in the community against your character? They believe it all and add another story to the fabrication. Some of them pretend to be friends, but they have the cudgels all ready for you—Eliphaz the Temanite, Bildad the Shuhite, Zophar the Nasmathite. Pray for them. "Oh," you say, "I could not do that." It ought to you until you can do it as easily and as well as did Job pray for his exasperators. You ought to pity them, for defamers and detractors and the envious and jealous are not happy. They hurt themselves more than they hurt you. Better be the pursued than the pursuer. Better be the infant Christ than Herod, the robber of the Bethlehem cradles. You want to be a better man. You want to be a better woman. Then scale this height of triumphant prayer, and you will be ten times more of a Christian than you ever have been. It will prolong your life, as it prolonged Job's life. You will feel a glorious reaction that will last through all time and all eternity. It will steady your nerves. It will reduce your spleen. It will regulate the pulsation of your heart.

Prayer is what some one has called "the slender nerve that moveth the muscles of omnipotence." Prayer is the healthful respiration of the soul. It is the whisper of helplessness into the ear of help. It is laying hold of almighti- [illegible] and omnipresence at one and the same time. Prayer enlists all Divine and angelic reenforcement. Prayer is laying hold of a pulley fastened to the Heavenly throne. Prayer practically tells him that he deserved all that he got, and that if he had behaved himself aright he would not have lost his house or his children or his estate. He practically says: "Job, I will tell you what is the matter with you. You are bad; you are a hypocrite; you are now getting paid for your wickedness." No wonder that there came from Job an outburst of indignation which calls out the other quondam friend, Zophar the Nasmathite, who begins denouncing Job by calling him a liar, and keeps on the discourse until Job responds to all three of them in the sarcastic words: "No doubt but ye are the people, and wisdom shall die with you."

FUEL FOR THE WINTER.

Simple for the Rich Man, But the Poor Find It a Hard Problem to Solve.

Speaking of the disposition shown by so many persons to steal coal, a prominent dealer in that article remarked during a conversation with a Star reporter: "The cost of living in this country is much greater than in the old world, and the matter of fuel alone is appalling to some poor families. Aside from the cooking fuel, which is a necessity all the year round, it is also imperative that the home, no matter how small it is, should be heated for nearly four months in the year. To the rich man this is a simple thing. He learns that coal is needed, and all he does is to order it in any quantity he desires. To the man on a salary it is not quite so easy. The coal bill is something which has to be provided for in the yearly expenses, and it eats a large hole in any salary.

"To many [illegible] lem of how to provide necessary fuel is a bitter one. During the summer the deadly gasoline is used, often with fatal effects to the careless and ignorant. This material does fairly well for cooking purposes, but when the cold blasts of winter come, then it becomes all important to have something more substantial in the way of fuel. When coal can be afforded, it is bought, but when it cannot be bought it must be had by a laborious method. Out along the railway tracks for three or four miles in every direction may be seen from now until next spring scores of people, from the very young to the very old, gathering bits of coal which have fallen from the cars in transit. These people generally use a big basket, into which they drop the coal as they find it. The cars come in sometimes overloaded, and the motion of the train shakes off considerable coal as it goes. These particles are eagerly picked up by the coal gatherers, to whom every bit so found is that much saved. It is in the railway yards, however, that the largest quantities are found. When the coal wagons are being loaded from the cars there is a considerable quantity dropped upon the ground, and there is always a scramble for this. Sometimes the gatherers cluster in such numbers that they interefere with the work of unloading the cars, and they are driven away by the workmen."

WEATHER DEPARTMENT.

It Is Said Japan Has Brought It to a High State of Perfection.

One of the most surprising things observed by our fleet at Japan, is the fine meteorological service of the Japanese government which has given as accurate news for the guidance of naval vessels as they could have had at Hampton Roads. There are 900 stations in Japan which record temperature, wind velocity, rainfall, atmospheric pressure and electrical and earthquake conditions. Japan has an earthquake every day or so, and if the tremblings simply shake the houses the people pay no more attention to them than we do to a high wind. The Japanese have brought the seismograph, or earthquake recorder, to a high state of perfection. They showed this instrument in operation at the world's fair in Chicago, together with the self recording pencils and charts that, by automatic machinery, note the direction, violence and duration of the earth's tremblings.

The Philippine islands, like Japan, are in a state of almost constant tremor, and the United states is preparing to make an extensive study of earthquakes in the Malay observatory and in substations throughout the islands. It has been found that the earthquake area of the far east extends from Kamschatka on the north to New Zealand on the south, passing through Japan, the Malayan islands and the Philippines, and following the line of a long narrow letter "S." The western side of all the islands are more liable to shocks than the eastern. In 1863 an earthquake at Manila shook down all the stone buildings of the Europeans. An equally severe shock was felt in 1880, but the houses had been rebuilt in a manner better adapted to resist the shock.

A knowledge of the weather and physical conditions of a locality is necessary in order to build a city that is to have some guarantee of enduring. Manila having earthquakes with her always is compelled to think of them, and so is barred from tall stone buildings, and Galveston must raise its level, and use stone and cement in its foundations as a defense against hurricanes."

A Strange Compact.

An interesting and puzzling sight greets the visitor to Mount Moriah cemetery, Philadelphia. Some 20 years ago three eccentric men of wealth put up in the most secluded corner three tall shafts of rough hewn granite. They had been friends a long time and they agreed that as each died his shaft was to be broken and the fragments left where they fell. The second of this trio has just passed away and his column has been shattered, as was that of his former friend years ago. No fence incloses the strange monuments, and no names are carved on the granite.—Chicago Chronicle.

PERFECT COW STALL.

After a Test of Seven Years Its Designer Considers It the Best Thing of Its Kind.

There is nothing about the dairy barn that requires so much care and ingenuity as the construction of cow stalls. Contemplating the wisdom of an invention that would give not only perfect comfort to dairy animals, but insure perfect cleanliness, I constructed one that has proved to be a grand success, after a test of seven years. Since my stall appeared thousands of dairymen have placed them in their dairy barns and where constructed according to the plans shown in the illustrations they have always given fect satisfaction.

The construction is simple and the plans easily followed. If a carpenter is employed see that he makes no changes, as any deviation will result in ruinlug the whole plan. The platform is made of inch oak doubled with broken joints and a two-inch full at ditch. This platform may be made of cement instead of plank or boards. The ditch should be made watertight. I have found that where a considerable quantity of absorbents are used a ditch 16 inches wide, 9 inches deep at platform and 7 inches at walk has given us the greatest satisfaction.

We find that a platform 6 feet 6 inches from ditch to the piece across the front of the atall is just right for a cow weighing 1,000 pounds. For shorter cows decrease the length, the idea being to fence the cow oack to the ditch so that all her voidings will fall into the latter, which inaures a clean animal. For the mangers I use two three by three studding, and lay them full length of stalls, so that the feed trough will be 18 inches wide and four inches above platform after placing a tight bottom of either an 18-inch board or matched flooring. The flange board next to cow is seven inches wide, being just ten inches from top to floor.

The opening of the manger at top ought to be 18 inches wide. At this point all feed, grain, silage, hay or fodder is fed. The last slat at bottom should be only six or seven inches wide from the slanting back of manger, so that nothing but grain or cut feed will pass into the 18-inch trough. The cows are tied with the common swivel tie chain. The partitions for the stalls are three feet six inches long and four feet high; width of stall, three feet two inches from center to center. The partitions do not follow through past the five-foot post to the slanting back of the manger higher than one foot above the fed trough. This is done so that green corn or corn stover can be fed more easily, which to many farmers is an item. The feed bin is an adjunct which many have attached and run the full length of the feed alley with door to door, as shown. This feature saves many steps in a whole winter's feeding and holds a large quantity of feed.—George E. Scott, in Orange Judd Farmer.

THE WILD PERSIMMON.

It Is a Fine Fruit Whose Improvement Is Being Urged by Southern Horticulturists.

If indications are of value, the persimmon is to receive more attention in the future than it has in the past. The American wild persimmon has long been well known and talked and written about, but no systematic attempt has been made to develop it. The introduction of Japanese persimmons has perhaps stimulated interest in this fruit and has led to an investigation being started by the Tennessee experiment station as to the possibilities locked up in both the foreign and native persimmons. The persimmon has a wide range of growth. It is found as far north as southern Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, as well as in Pennsylvania. It also grows at least 50 miles north of New York city. Southward it grows anywhere on American soil and is raised from Florida to Texas. That the tree is hardy is well known. Within the last two seasons the fruit has begun to appear in the Chicago markets and not infrequently met with now in the exhibitions of our horticultural societies, and it also appears at some of our state fairs. The interest in it is on the increase.—Farmers' Review.

Unless the nights are warm and pleasant at this season, it is wise after the evening's milking to give the cows a feeding of fodder corn or freshly cut rowen, and let them lie on dry bedding in the stable all night. The fodder can be fed to them in their mangers, and will result in a much more bountiful yield of milk in the morning than if the cows lay out through a frosty night.—National Rural.

It is the neglected cow that never fills the milk pail.

POISON IN CELLARS.

Rotting Vegetables and Fruits Produce Carbonic Gas, a Deadly Disease Breeder.

Says J. J. H. Gregory, the well-known seedsman and vegetable grower: "A cellar may be more valuable than the building which stands on it when the farmer has learned just how to control its temperature and dryness for the best keeping of his vegetables."

Cellars have generally been found to be unhealthy. Vegetables are frequently left over to rot. While rotting, carbonic acid gas is formed. This gas is heavier than common air, and settles to the bottom of the cellar. It is very unhealthy, and people when entering the cellar are liable to breathe it. If sufficiently pure and breathed alone it would soon cause death. In a section much affected with a malignant fever it was found that in every case where the fever prevailed there was a cellar, while the houses where there were no cellars [illegible] generally exempt.

Where cellars are thus used a covered drain of proper size leading outward from the bottom of the cellar should be constructed. The construction should be such that the drain can be opened and closed at pleasure. By opening occasionally the foul air can be drained off. It is, however, believed that the better plan will be to abandon the cellar altogether. A horse of proper size can be constructed with a double floor and double walls from 8 to 12 feet apart. Fill between the walls with sawdust or fine earth. Double doors should be constructed, one in either end, say, 5x2½ feet. The inner door may be constructed to slide. Houses constructed as above gave entire satisfaction and were free from the deleterious effects of carbonic acid gas.—Bryan Tyson, in Farm and Home.

SETTING APPLE TREES.

Unless They Are Placed in Geometric Order the Orchard Never Presents a Good Appearance.

In setting out a young orchard it is highly important that the trees be set exactly in geometric order, exactly in line with each other in two directions. An orchard presents a much more attractive appearance if care is exercised in this direction, and the looks of an orchard prove to be an important factor if a time comes when it is desired to sell the orchard.

Now one cannot set trees in a perfect line by sighting along the line of trees as they are set out. The tops obscure the view, and when the row is finished some trees will be found much out of line. Setting out stakes beforehand will not answer, since each stake must be taken up in order to dig a hole. An excellent plan is shown in the cut. Set out small stakes in the exact spot where each tree is to stand. Make a light tripod, as is shown in the cut, with a cord and weight, arranged as shown. Set the tripod over the stake so that the weight at the end of the cord will be exactly over the stake. Now pull up the stake and dig the hole for the tree, without moving the tripod. Set the tree so that when the weight is lowered it will touch the trunk. In this way every tree will stand finally in the exact position of the row of stakes first set out.—American Agriculturist.

Stay by Your Specialty.

A creamery patron, who milks cows when butter fat is high and beef low, but turns his attention to beef when butter fat is low, says: "Profits scarcely visible to the naked eye. What shall we do to be saved?" Breeding for milk one year and beef the next is a suicidal policy that no enterprising breeder would dare practice. By this haphazard method, the above patron realized for butter fat $19.63 per cow per annum. The Kansas Agricultural college scrub herd, pushed along dairy lines, brought an average of $37.75 per cow per annum. This difference of $18.12 per cow is what would have been visible to the naked eye, had his cows been handled as the college cows were handled. "What shall we do to be saved?" Settle upon some definite line of work, study the business in all the details, find out what others are doing in the same lines, make your business a hobby, and, above all, stick to it.—D. H. Otis, in Country Gentleman.

Introduction of the Potato.

The potato has been in cultivation in civilized countries for less than 400 years, says a recent writer. It was brought over to Europe by the Spanish when they were colonizing America, in 1553. It was introduced into Ireland in 1585 or 1586 by Sir Walter Raleigh, when some of his colonists were returning to Ireland from California or Virginia, after which it was used by the poorer class of the Irish as one of their articles of diet. But it was not until the latter part of the eighteenth century that the potato came into general use; that is, about 750 years ago, and the great acreage devoted to this crop to-day has been developed since that time. It appears that during the latter part of the eighteenth century a famine in Scotland caused the potato to be very largely grown there, and this [illegible] general

A SONG OF AUTUMN.

Ho for the bending shaves,
Ho for the crimson leaves
Flaming in splendor!
Season of ripened gold,
Plenty in field and fold,
Skies with depth untold,
Liquid and tender.

Far, like the smile of God,
See how the golden-rod
Ripples and tosses!
Yonder, a crimson vine
Trails from a bearded pine,
Thin as a thread of wine
Staining the mosses.

Bright 'neath the morning blue
Sparkles the frosted dew,
Gem-like and starry.
Hark, how the partridge cock
Pipes to his scattered flock,
Mindful how swift the hawk
Darts on his quarry!

Autumn is here again—
Banners on hill and plain
Blazing and flying.
Hail to the amber morn,
Hail to the heaped-up corn,
Hail to the hunter's horn,
Swelling and dying!

POTWIN'S TROUBLES
With Dilatory People

OVER the telephone Potwin said to Mrs. Potwin: "I should like to break the record for once and get started on time. It's 11:30 a. m. now. Do you think, if you made a desperate struggle, that you could start in and get ready by half-past seven? What's that? Yes, I suppose so. I shall be home to dinner at five. Now, if you think that I am pressing you unduly I can just as well get the tickets for to-morrow night as not—or some time early next week. Oh, well, don't get mad about it. Good-by."

"Going to the theater to-night," he explained to the man who had excused him a moment. "I thought I would give the madam due notice, but I don't suppose it will do any good. She will potter about in her sweet, irresponsible way until half an hour before schedule time, and then she'll inform me that she had no idea that it was so late. There is a fairly accurate clock on the mantelpiece and she generally wears her watch, to say nothing of the facilities afforded by the grandfather's clock in the hallway, the cuckoo clock in the dining-room and the half dozen others scattered about the house. And she hadn't any idea it was so late! If she said she thought she had plenty of time there might be some foundation for it. Not a married man yourself, are you? I thought not. I miss the seams and furrows in your face and the generally haggard expression that comes after a few years' association with a woman to a man who loves punctuality. I'm not an irritable man myself, but it irritates me to have to wait for anybody when a set time has been agreed upon. I never missed an appointment in my life."

"Generally speaking," remarked the friend, "I detest a man who never missed an appointment in his life. I happened to meet you here on time today, but it was entirely by accident and I don't suppose that it will ever happen again. I abominate infallibility in poor, mortal creatures and I'd be willing to bet you any reasonable amount that you miss, on an average, three appointments a week. I'll bet you miss one before the day is out."

"I'll take you up on that for a lunch," said Potwin, briskly, "and I'll tell you about it if I do. Now, let's see if we can't get that matter settled up."

The two plunged into their business, which lasted for some little time. At last Potwin said: "Well, you look in some time during the afternoon with the papers and I'll sign them. Let me see. Can you get around by four o'clock?"

The other man said he could, and with a parting adjuration from Potwin to be punctual took his leave.

He was back again five minutes after the stipulated time and took Potwin's reproaches good-humoredly. The papers that he had with him were signed, after some further discussion, and the deal was closed. Then the delinquent proposed refreshment, and, Potwin assenting, they descended to the street and refreshed themselves. After awhile Potwin said: "Well, I must be going; I've got a train to catch."

"What time does your train leave?" asked his friend, taking out his watch and looking at it.

"At 4:45, and I've got five minutes to get to the station."

"Then you won't make it."

"I guess that's right, but then there's another at 4:50."

"Does it take more than ten minutes to get out home?"

"More than ten minutes to get out to Oak Park? I should say so. What put that into your head?"

"Nothing particular," said the friend, "only you might as well give up that you've lost your lunch right now. I heard you tell your wife over the 'phone that you would be back by five o'clock. I'm afraid you have missed your appointment with her. Do I get the lunch or do you want to appeal?"

"You get the lunch," said Potwin, laughing heartily to cover his discomfiture.

He was annoyed as well as discomfited. He considered that a trick had been played upon him—an unworthy trick. That in the first place; and then it was not to be supposed that a business man could give up his business in order to get home to dinner on time. It was certainly small of the fellow to take advantage of a misconception of the terms of the bet, and it was, in a sort, dishonorable in him to listen to a private conversation and profit by what he had heard to the injury of the man who confided in his gentlemanly instincts. That was about the way he felt as he went out to Oak Park, and the shadow of his reflections appeared on his face when he greeted his wife.

After a perfunctory dab at her face he glanced disapprovingly at her gown. "I thought you were going to be all ready, so that I wouldn't have to wait for you," he remarked.

"Did you ever know me to keep you waiting?" asked the lady.

At this Potwin could do nothing but gasp for a moment or two. When he recovered he began to indulge in some sarcasm, which his wife listened to with a calm and superior smile.

"Let me ask you," she said when he had finished, "didn't you sit for 20 minutes waiting for the curtain to go up the last time you took me out, and didn't you worry me until I nearly had a fit before we started? Now, don't try and crawl under a lot of glittering generalities, Herbert; just own up for once."

"In my opinion," said Potwin, "it is better to be 20 minutes too early or an hour too early, for that matter, than half a minute too late. That is the maxim by which you ought to govern yourself, my dear. Of course you may have your views on the subject, but it is always excessively annoying to me to miss the first act of a play and have to guess at the connection of everything that follows. Almost always the last two acts hinge to a great extent on the first one. I should think you would have noticed that yourself."

"I have, now you mention it. By the way, dinner has been waiting for you for over half an hour, and when you are ready we will sit down to it."

"That is rather a new idea, isn't it?" asked Potwin, after the soup.

"Meaning—"

"Dinner in a kimona, or whatever you call it. I'm not criticising, you understand, I'm only seeking for information. It may be the latest, for all I know; I don't pretend to be on to all these little frills."

"It is the latest."

"I can't say that I like it. I may get used to it after awhile, but it will take time. By the way, I thought I had given you time to dress."

"I always take it, anyway. You seem to worry a great deal unnecessarily. I think I shall be ready by the time you are. Do you want to bet me a hat that I'm not?"

"I like your breezy confidence," said Potwin, glancing at her, suspiciously. "Are my things put out?"

"Everything is spread on your bed and the studs are in your shirt."

"I'll take the bet," said Potwin, "I would have taken it, anyway, even if I had been compelled to send my coat to be cleaned and pressed, but you know that I hate to bother with the details after a hard day's work. I'm glad that you were considerate enough of my comfort to do it, my dear."

"I shall beat you," exclaimed Mrs. Potwin, with a gleam of anticipated triumph in her eye.

"We shall see. In a little while you will be coming out of your room with your mouth full of hairpins and begging me not to walk the floor. Do you know what time this play begins?"

"At the usual time, I suppose; but I will excuse you now if you want to go and dress. I want to finish my dessert."

"Take your time," said Potwin, confidently. "I'm going to smoke a cigar. I know to a dot how long it takes me to dress."

He smoked his cigar leisurely for several minutes after his wife had left the table. Presently he called to her that he expected her to dress fairly and to make as elaborate a toilet as usual.

"What is that?" she asked, reappearing in her kimona.

"Great Scott!" exclaimed Potwin. "Aren't you dressing? Don't you know that we've only got half an hour to train time?"

"Thirty-eight minutes," she corrected. "It doesn't seem to be worrying you, though. I expect I shall have to wait for you after all. Do throw away that cigar and get ready, if you intend to go at all."

Potwin got up and went into his room. Mrs. Potwin went into hers; she remained there about three minutes, and when she came out again she was in full evening dress, her hat on, her cloak on her arm and her gloves in her hand. She went over to a shadowy corner of the room and put her gloves on, listening the while, with a malicious smile, to the exclamations that proceeded from her husband's room.

"Where's that confounded button-hook?" he roared.

She told him and he indulged in a few general observations on women who couldn't let things alone. Then he wanted to know why the dickens she couldn't find a laundry that would make a shirt last three washings and who had swallowed his shaving soap.

"You're not going to shave, surely," said Mrs. Potwin. "I know you won't have time and you are wasting so much time grumbling that we won't catch that train, anyhow."

"You hurry along with your own dressing," he retorted, "and leave me to attend to mine." There was silence for a few minutes, then an ejaculation.

"The court plaster is in the little side drawer," called Mrs. Potwin.

"Can't you come and cut it for me?"

"I would only I've got my gloves on."

"You've got—." Potwin burst out of his room, with a handkerchief applied to his cheek and was confronted by his wife dressed completely, with her cloak on and her neat umbrella in her hand. He gasped and then hurried back and slammed his door. He was ten minutes longer in the room and then he left with his necktie in his overcoat pocket and his collar unbuttoned to run for the train.

"I'm going to town to-morrow to pick out that hat," said Mrs. Potwin, as soon as she dared. Potwin looked at her out of the tail of his eye.

"You had that wrapper on over your dress, you unscrupulous female," he said.

"Don't you wish you knew?" she said to Oak Park, and the shadow of his —Chicago Daily Record.

PROMISED TO OBEY HER.

How a Sharp Minister Got the Better of a Smart Bridegroom.

The groom entered alone and said confidentially:

"Do you use the word 'obey' in your marriage service, Mr. ——?"

"No," said the minister, relates the Woman's Journal. "I do not usually."

"Well," said the expectant benedict, "I have come to ask you to marry me now, and I want it used."

"Certainly," replied the other, "it shall be done," and presently the couple stood solemnly before him.

"James T——," said the clergyman, "do you take this woman to be your wedded wife?"

"I do."

"Do you solemnly promise to love, honor and obey her so long as you both shall live?"

Horror and rebellion struggled with the sanctities of the occasion on the bridegroom's face, but he chokingly responded "I do," and the meek bride decorously promised in her turn.

After the ceremony was over the bridegroom said excitedly aside to the grave minister:

"You misunderstood me, sir, you misunderstood me! I referred to the woman's promising to obey."

"Ah, did you, indeed?" serenely answered his reverence. "But I think what is good for one side is good for the other, don't you? And, my friend, it is my advice to you to say nothing more about it, for as an old married man I can tell you you'll have to obey anyhow."

HOW A PRETTY SOCIETY GIRL ESCAPED DREADED CONSUMPTION.

Peruna Used in Time Saved Her Life.

All's Well That Ends Well.

MISS HELEN MURPHY.
Oshkosh, Wis.

It is the same old story of exposure to cold. The cold passing down the bronchial tubes to the lungs; the developing of a settled cold on the lungs, coughing, expectoration. This is a short road to consumption. Thousands of people have traveled it. Thousands more will travel it and the coming winter will develop an untold multitude of new cases.

In the case of Helen Murphy, the ending was a happy one. She started on the road to consumption after catching cold at a reception. Instead of waiting until she became incurable, Peruna was resorted to and her life was saved.

It is a pity that everyone else in this wide land could not know of this very effective remedy in such cases. The news is spreading fast but a great many people have not yet heard that Peruna is a sure cure in these cases.

Peruna cures acute catarrh and chronic catarrh; catarrh of the head and catarrh of the lungs; catarrh of the throat and catarrh of the stomach. Wherever catarrh may have located itself, whether in the digestive organs, kidneys or pelvic organs, Peruna is sure to eradicate the disease promptly.

Another case where consumption was cheated of its prey occurred in the state of Iowa. The report of the case created considerable attention at the time and was furnished us unsolicited by Mr. Henrickson. In a letter to Dr. Hartman he sets forth some interesting details of his rescue from consumption. He made use of the following language:

"I have been for years a constant sufferer from chronic catarrh of the head and throat, which finally worked down into the air passages. In the spring of 98 I took a severe cold and coughed all summer. I thought I had consumption. Then I had a bad attack of la grippe. After taking a course of Peruna I feel cured of all these troubles.

"Whenever any of our children get sick we give them Peruna, and it never fails to cure them. I most heartily testify to the value of Peruna in cases of catarrh and la grippe. I hope this may be the means of others suffering as I did to take Peruna and be cured. We would not be without it in the house." Henry Henrickson.

Generally the first cold of the season is caught in November. With some people this lasts all winter and lays the foundation of chronic catarrh. In the beginning a few doses of Peruna is sufficient to make a permanent cure.

Send for Dr. Hartman's latest book on chronic catarrh. Address the Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Miss Helen Murphy, a popular society woman of Oshkosh, Wis., is an ardent friend to Peruna. The following is a letter written by Miss Murphy, and gives her opinion of Peruna as a preventive as well as cure for catarrhal ailments:

Gentlemen—"About three months ago I contracted a severe cold at an evening reception, which settled on my lungs and threatened to be very serious. As my mother has used Peruna with good results, she sent for a bottle for me and I found that it gave me blessed relief. Before the second bottle was consumed I was well.

"We keep a bottle of it on hand all the time and when I have been out in inclement weather, I take a dose or two of Peruna and it prevents my taking any cold and keeps me perfectly well." Yours very truly,
HELEN MURPHY.

Three hundred cattle on sale in Paris last county court day.

L. Joseph shipped 1,000 export cattle from Paris, Bourbon county, a few days since.

Paris has new sales pens for the accommodation of those who patronize her court day sales.

L. Joseph bought of W. S. Jones, of Bourbon county, 70 export cattle, averaging 1,592 lbs at 5 cents.

Agents for tobacco warehouses have their instructions to advance only $15 per thousand pounds on the present crop of tobacco.

Bacon Bros., of Paris, have lost by death a valuable weanling colt by Jay Bird, dam Mary Turner. The colt was entered in $4,000 of stakes.

The Winchester Democrat reports the sales of 15 feeders, 1,050 pounds, at $4.35 and 267 lambs and wethers, 82 pounds, at 3½ cents.

Patrick Dolan, of Fayette, sold his crop of hemp to Lexington parties at $5 25 per 112 pounds. This hemp could have been sold two months ago at $6 per hundred.

At the sale of shorthorn cattle by Barton & Bell, at Frankfort, a few days since, 38 high-bred animals sold at from $15 to $300. William Jones, of Clark county paying the latter price for New Forest Wild Eyes.

Sanford and James Carpenter sold the Lexington Milling Company 2,060 bushels of wheat at 70 cents.... S. T. Harris, of Lincoln, sold fifty export cattle to Monte Fox for November delivery, at $5.25.—Bourbon News.

Cob charcoal, ashes and salt should be accessible to hogs at all times. This keeps the animal in thrifty condition, and a higher grade of meat is produced. The reason many farmers do not succeed with hogs is that they neglect them. Sell when eight or nine months old, as longer feeding is unprofitable. The larger breeds can be made to weigh 250 to 300 pounds by that time.

We know that in all branches of business there are those who take advantage of opportunity and get the benefit of a raise in price. We can well afford to incur the expense of $2 in place of $1 where the chances for profits are twice as great. There are poultrymen who buy food at good prices to feed when eggs are high in price and it pays them well. Just here I will say to those who complain of receiving no eggs to change the food by giving a goodly supply of meat once a day. A pound will supply 12 fowls, and if kept warm they will nearly always lay under a meat diet. A good plan is to chop a pound of meat and add to it a quart of beans after they have been well boiled and thicken the mess with ground oats until it is like dough. Feed this once a day to about 30 hens, with corn in the evening, and see if they don't lay in the coldest weather.—From the Wisconsin Agriculturist.

Experiments made by the Department of Agriculture have but confirmed hundreds of individual experiences to the effect that only large, heavy seed should be planted. Scientific farmers in this country and in Europe have found that heavy seed wheat, barley, corn, etc., produce heavier crops than lighter seed of the same variety. Farmers frequently experience difficulty in obtaining a good stand of grain. Sometimes the seed comes up very unevenly, producing plants of uneven height and vigor. The weaker plants, if they grow to maturity, produce a smaller crop. Many weak plants perish in the seeding stage. Those seeds which were lacking in vigor, even though they may germinate, may succumb to a sudden change of temperature, or a prolonged, or a slight frost. The seedings from heavy seed always show more vigor than those from light seed.

Six Frightful Failures.

Six terrible failures of six different doctors sent Wm. H. Mullen of Lockland, O., to an early grave. All said that he had a fatal lung trouble and must soon die. But he was urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. After taking five bottles he was entirely cured. It is positively guaranteed to cure all diseases of Throat, Chest and Lungs, including Coughs, Colds, Grippe, Bronchitis, Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Croup, Whooping Cough, Pneumonia, Trial bottles free at [illegible], Burlington; [illegible] Delaney, Florence.

Many cases of small pox in Magoffin county.

Joe Bolden was killed by being cut in two by a circular saw in Whitley county.

Leslie Dade, 13, of Christian county, stabbed to death his playmate, Prentiss Irvin, also 13.

Boyd county people are very much excited over the prevalence of small pox in that county.

Chas. Anderson, who recently murdered his wife at Falmouth, has been taken to the Cynthiana jail for safe keeping.

Henry Steuker, of Covington, committed suicide by shooting himself through the brain. He had twice before attempted to take his life.

Robert Munsey, of Burnside, received a double charge of shot in the head. Some think that the shooting was done by a political enemy.

Robed only in a night gown and quilt, Nellie Davis, aged 16 years, living south of Owensboro, escaped from home and eloped with James Garrett, a farm hand, to Rockport, Ind., where they were married.

The body of Thomas Neville, of English, was found floating in the Kentucky river at Carrollton. He had trouble with a neighbor, and then committed suicide by jumping into the river from the railroad bridge at Worthville.

A desperate fight occurred at Brush, near the Laurel and Clay county line, between Thomas Hale and others on one side, and the Smith boys, sons of Marshall Smith, on the other. Hale was cut several times by the Smiths and died later.

October 1900, was the most remarkable October ever experienced in Kentucky, from a point of temperature. The mercury stood at summer heat during two-thirds of the time, and no frost of any consequence visited the State during the month. It was also an unusually dry month.

James A. Norton, of Stonewall, aged 36, was burned to death at Sadieville, Scott county, on Tuesday morning of last week. He had been arrested and put in the village watch-house for drunkenness, and in about an hour the prison was discovered to be a mass of flames, and was impossible to rescue Norton. As there was no fire in the building when Norton was locked in, it is believed that he accidentally set fire to his clothing. Norton was one of the jurors who tried Youtsey at Georgetown.

CORN IN ROTATION.

Corn occupies a valuable place in the rotation of crops. It removes a large amount of gross fertility, but its habits of growth are such that it generally leaves an average soil in better condition for succeeding crops. Corn is not injured, like many grains, by heavy application of stable manure. In fact, corn is one of the safest and best crops which manure can be applied. If in doubt as to what to do with the manure it can always be applied to corn. Soils that have been cultivated for a number of years are hungry for manure, and there is no better way of utilizing it than on a corn crop. When the land has been manured and corn produced, the soil is in good condition for almost any crop, and particularly for such delicate feeding ones as flax and spring wheat. The food requirements of corn are satisfied by applications of stable manure and the action of the manure upon the soil puts the land in better condition for succeeding crops. On a new prairie soil corn is always a safe crop to bring the land into condition for small grains, as an excess of fertility has no injurious influences. Corn is equally valuable when the land is out of condition and it is desired to bring it up to a higher state of fertility by manures and rotation. On our western farms corn takes the place of roots in the English and European systems of rotation. The cultivation which the corn receives makes the soil more permeable, and also improves its general physical condition. Soils need to be periodically compact and loosened, and corn is an excellent crop to loosen up the hard soil. In a rotation, corn can follow almost any crop, provided the land is manured, and likewise almost any crop, can follow corn. When grown as a market crop it should be given a favored position, as following clover. Corn is responsive to manures and cultivation, and its yield is capable of being materially increased when it is given a good place in a rotation and is properly manured and cultivated.—From Farm, Stock and Home.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 21, 1900. NO. 5.

THE Republican majority in the next Congress will be ample for all partisan purposes.

THURSDAY of next week is the day designated for thanksgiving and prayer by the people of this nation.

GOV.-ELECT DURBIN, of Indiana, says he has not expressed himself as to what he will do in case Gov. Beckham issues a requisition for Taylor and Finley.

GOV. BECKHAM will be inaugurated Tuesday, December 11th. His inauguration will be a leading event in the history of Kentucky, as learned by the generations yet to come.

MR. YERKES pulled the string to that Resignation he handed in at Washington only a few days before the election, and he is again drawing his salary as collector of internal revenue.

ONE day last week the President was visited by John W. Yerkes and Leslie Combs. They were the only two Republicans not loaded down with smiles, whom the President had met since the election. They were from Kentucky, you know.

THOSE counties in which primary elections have been held this fall will be very lonesome, politically, next spring, while some of their neighbors will be having a merry time with the boys who desire the county offices. It is never a good idea to have too much of a good thing at once.

THE Rising Sun Recorder has, for many years, been of the opinion that Rising Sun would never have a railroad, but it now sees the necessity of the Big Four having a road along the river to Louisville, giving it direct communication over its own line with the commerce of the South, and, therefore, the Recorder takes a more hopeful view of the situation.

THOSE two down-cast Kentucky Republicans did wrong when they appeared in the presence of the President while he was in the midst of his rejoicing over the sweeping Republican victory of only a few days before. They should have been more discreet than to have suggested to the President that there was a place on earth he had not carried.

THE Republicans fell down in both the fifth and eleventh Congressional districts in the Gubernatorial race. Neither of those districts gave them the majority they anticipated. The trial and conviction of Powers, Howard and Youtsey for the part they took in the assassination of Senator Goebel did not set the mountain Democrats wild with enthusiasm for Mr. Yerkes, as it was expected to do.

MR. CARLISLE and other whilom Democrats think that they see in the overwhelming Republican victory of last week, an opportunity for them to get into the saddle again as leaders of the Democratic party, and with that in view, it is said they will call a meeting for the purpose of reorganizing the party. That would certainly be a display of a combination of plenty of gall and cheek for you. A call for that purpose, and signed by President McKinley and Mark Hanna, would not be any more presumptious.

THE fight is now on between the ins and the outs in the Republican party. There is a very large element in the party, composed of men who have never received the recognition to which they believe they are entitled. They have never failed to whoop it up for the party through every campaign whether it was of much or little importance, but when the time for the distribution of the spoils came around, they have invariably been told to take a back seat, and this treatment is beginning to give many of them a very tired feeling. They have been bluffed repeatedly with the civil service scare-crow, while they have seen civil service totally ignored that others may be given a good, fat job. These facts have made a decided impression on the boys who are desirous of having an equal show, at least, when it comes to a distribution of the spoils of victory.

THE Owen county papers do not hesitate to denounce as untrue the report sent out from Louisville that the vote in Owen county was padded in favor of the Democrats. The News says:

"The Louisville 'Pest' and Despatch are crying fraud, charging the Democrats with stealing, etc. These papers are never for anyone or any party, but always against something. They both say Owen county's vote was 'padded.' Now every one knows there never was a fairer election held in the county, and if there is no more truth in the claims of fraud as to other locations than there is truth in the claim that Owen county's vote was 'padded' then it is all a lie out of whole cloth. This is the same old 'Sweet Owen' that never stabs a Democratic nominee."

The Herald says:

"When Republican Chairman Leslie Combs made the statement that Owen county's vote had been padded he exhibited an inexcusable ignorance or a desire to do us an intentional injustice. Owen county's vote was normal, and Republican Commissioner, Knox Brown, said it was perfectly fair, so far as he knew or could learn, and he would have been only too glad to have caught up with anything like fraud in the casting of the vote or its count. Mr. Brown made a similar statement as to the vote in this county last November, and in a speech delivered here in the late campaign, Hon. A. E. Wilson, whose loyalty to the Republican party can hardly be doubted, corroborated what Mr. Brown had previously said, and congratulated the voters of the county upon that fact."

THE 1900 yield of wheat in Indiana was the lowest for forty years, says the State crop statistician. Of over two million of acres sowed to wheat in the fall of 1899, only 974,031 were harvested, the yield being 7,840,847 bushels. Over twenty counties harvested no wheat, although the usual acreage had been sowed. The 1900 yield of corn was the largest ever know in the State. In round numbers 4,000,000 acres were planted to corn, and the yield was in the neighborhood of 125,600,000 bushels, there being but one former larger yield, and that was in 1890. The oats crop this year was the largest in the history of the State. Our Hoosier neighbors will be short on wheat cakes this winter, but they are amply supplied with corn with which to supply the deficit with corn cakes, supplemented with oatmeal.

AMONG the candidates in the Democratic primary election pulled off in Trimble county a few days ago, was Bro. Buchanan, who desired the nomination for county superintendent of public schools, but failed to make connection by several hundred votes, and judging from the last issue of his paper, the Trimble Banner, he is too sore for description. The uncomplimentary remarks he is making about Trimble county electors, except the 553 who voted for him, "is a plenty." There were 1,024 who gave Bro. B. the marble heart.

THE German National Bank of Newport did not open its doors for business, Monday morning, as it had been discovered that Frank M. Brown, the Assistant Cashier, was a defaulter to the extent of two hundred thousand dollars, and had absconded. Brown was a high-roller, and since his defalcation has come to light, it is thought strange that the life he was leading had not given him away long since.

MANY persons are busy assigning Mr. Bryan to positions, the positions ranging from the stage to the pulpit, but after all Mr. B. will be able to select a vocation for himself. The defeat of his political aspirations does not necessitate the appointment of a guardian for him.

IN the popular vote McKinley beat Bryan over seven hundred and fifty thousand. That can be properly called an "emphatic" majority.

GOV. BECKHAM and Miss Jean Fuqua, of Owensboro, will be united in marriage this evening.

NEXT Thursday is Thanksgiving.

Poultry Notes.

[American Grange Bulletin.]

Feed fowls early in the morning now.

If you get an incubator get a brooder also.

Use plenty of whitewash and put it on hot.

Turkeys must have a good range to be profitable.

Keep fowls thrifty for laying, stuff them for fattening.

Feed very little if any wet sloppy food to little chickens.

Scours among fowls is often caused by cold damp quarters.

Very young chickens have small crops and need feeding frequently.

A laying hen should have her food and drink at regular intervals.

With Brahmas better results are secured by limiting the number of hens with the males.

As a rule two year old hens make the best breeders to a fully developed male bird.

Hens that are compelled to roost outside lay less than those provided with clean dry quarters.

It is a good plan to keep a supply of pulverized bone in a bin in one corner of the poultry house.

An overfed fat cock is undesirable, afford plenty of exercise and keep in moderate flesh changing every year.

At this time especially the feed which brings the greatest supply of eggs is the most economical with which to supply the flock.

The shape of the egg conforms with the shape of the ovary or duct, hence we have long eggs, short eggs and round eggs.

Nearly all fowls which feather and mature early are good egg producers, good setters and mothers and are handsome in appearance.

In the egg the air cell and germ is in the brood end, and if this part is smooth and even and the germ is fertilized this is all that is necessary.

Comfortable quarters for the hens will not only secure more eggs but be a saving in feed. Animal heat must come from the food and if a fowl is exposed to cold and storms more food will be required than if comfortably housed. It is not necessary to have the quarters expensive the principal items are warmth, dryness and convenience and then take care not to crowd too many fowls into too small space.

The wheat crop in Hancock county is virtually destroyed by the Hessian fly. Millions of the pests are in the field. Several farmers are sowing the fields over, thinking by the time the last sowing is up cold weather will have appeared.

The Kentucky Swine Breeders' Association will be held in Louisville, December 11. An interesting program has been arranged, and the meeting promises to be one of great interest to all concerned in hog raising.

The first turkeys of the season to reach the Winchester market were brought in from the country Tuesday, says the Sun. The drove consisted of 176 head that averaged 13¼ pounds. The price paid was 6 cents per pound, and this will probably be the ruling price throughout the season. The birds are unusually fat and fine this year and the crop is estimated to be about fifteen per cent. larger than the great crop last year.

Horses should have at least 75 minutes for each meal. If they finish eating in less time, as they probably will, nothing will be lost by giving them a few moments quiet rest, and digestion will be better if it is well under way before the animal begins work. Fifteen or twenty minutes longer given the horses at meals will more than be made up by quicker and more vigorous action in the field. The horse that has 75 minutes for meals can, and will, do more work than the horse that has only 45 minutes.—Ex.

A great many horses were on the market court day and sold as follows: Plugs, $25 to $60, average grade sold readily at from $60 to $125. Mules were abundant. Prices a little off, varying from $80 to $125. About 1,200 cattle on the market. Yearlings sold at 3 1-3c; 900-lb. feeders at 4c, and not all taken owing to lack of pasture caused by drouth. The crowd was large owing to the needed supplies (?) for election day. Considerable drinking, but no boisterous persons.—Richmond Register.

W. L. Crutcher, one of Madison county's most prosperous farmers, tells us that during the last ravages of cholera he has lost no hogs. Twice has his herd been attacked by the disease, and both times has he successfully combatted it, without a single loss, says the Farmer's Friend. His remedy is as follows: "Take a quantity of wild cherry bark, put into a large iron kettle with water and reduce to a very strong solution. For hogs not too sick to drink swill, give two tablespoonsful three times a day in their swill. For those too sick to drink, drench them with the same amount, only repeat the dose oftener. This remedy is cheap, easy and safe, and knowing Mr. Crutcher as we do, we have no hesitancy in offering it to our readers, hoping some one may profit by its use."—Winchester Democrat.

Turkeys to bring the best prices in market should be closely confined for two weeks and fed all that they will eat of a good fattening ration.

The election of Mr. Odell as Governor of New York has not hindered the rise in the Ice Trust stock. Evidently there does not appear to be any occasion for the trusts to be feeling alarmed.—Indianapolis Press.

An epidemic of scarlet fever has been prevalent in Eastern Kentucky and Southwest Virginia for the past two or three months, and in some localities the situation is alarming. Most of the towns have had the disease, but it has been more widespread in the country. Many children have died, the lack of proper medical attention increasing the mortality list. There have been over a hundred cases in Middlesboro and a large number of deaths, but the epidemic is now under control.

As late as Thursday, although Bookkeeper Brown was short about $2000,000, the directors of the German National Bank at Newport issued a formal signed statement declaring that the rumor of his shortage was unfounded and pronouncing his books "absolutely and positively correct." Perhaps Brown, who seems to have stolen everything else connected with the bank, did not steal the board of directors because he knew just what it was worth.—C.-J.

Tom Baker, a Kentucky desperado, and a relative of the famous Baker family, of Powell county, Kentucky, was killed Saturday night at Antigo, Wis., by James Connellton, whose brother Charles was stabbed to death by Baker last week. Parties of Kentuckians had been in wait for Baker all week. He was decoyed to Connellton's house near which he was shot. When ordered to throw up his hands he struck a match and fired. The fire was returned with a double-barrelled shotgun and his body was riddled. As he fell he fired again and calling out, "Boys, you've got me this time, Oh, God, have mercy," he expired.

There are perhaps in no other country of the world so many rats as in Japan. The wooden buildings with their straw roofs offer the best lurking places for them. Whilst we use dogs and cats to get rid of the rats, the Japanese employ a certain kind of snake for the same purpose, the "dodaishos," a blue-green viper. They are sometimes as long as seven feet, and are said to be the best rat catchers in the world.

GERMAN ARMY HORSE.

An experiment is soon to be made by the German army in which horse dealers all over the country will take more than a lively interest, and if the experiment is a success there will be an activity in the horse market such as has not been experienced since the advent of the horse car. Recently four commissioners of the German government came to New York for the purpose of purchasing horses for the German army. The experiment will be made with the purchase of 3,000 horses that will be made immediately. The 3,000 horses will be shipped to Germany, and the German army will at once put horses to the test, and if satisfacory then large purchases will be made. With the coming of electricity as a motive power for horse cars and the consequent doing away with the car horse it was the general belief that the market would be flooded. But such was not the case. Breeders recognized the ultimate decadence of the horse car, and acting accordingly, stopped breeding, with the result that there are fewer horses in the United States today than at any time since 1889, and the average price per head was higher on January 1, 1900, than at any time since 1894.

Six Frightful Failures.

Six terrible failures of six different doctors sent Wm. H. Mullen of Lockland, O., to an early grave. All said that he had a fatal lung trouble and must soon die. But he was urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. After taking five bottles he was entirely cured. It is positively guaranteed to cure all diseases of Throat, Chest or lungs, including, Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Pneumonia, Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Croup, Whooping Cough. 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at McKim's, Burlington; Crooch's, Union; Oelsner, Florence.

It has been shown by actual tests that clover hay, when properly cured contains many of the elements to be found in an egg, and that when fed to hens, the number of eggs perceptibly increased.

It is generally agreed that the second, or seed crop of clover, should be used, cutting when in full bloom, and after throughly drying, store in dry shed until ready to prepare it for the hens. There are several ways of preparing it, one by grinding into meal, and the other by cutting into inch lengths, being the best methods. If ground the meal should be stirred into the mash and given with the morning feed, while if cut, it should be steamed by pouring boiling water over it and thickening with corn meal and shorts. Farmers who have an abundance of clover growing should by all means lay in a supply for the hens. None of it ever goes to waste, and it will be worth more as poultry food than as stock food. If the hens can be kept laying during the winter months when eggs are high, there will be no trouble about the other seasons, and at the close of the year the poultry expense account will be found much less than the returns. Try clover hay this winter and see if it is not one of the best and cheapest foods that can be had.

SALT FOR STOCK.

The salting of stock is probably most neglected of the many necessary operations of the farm. This ordinarily comes from oversight. The intention is good, but the memory is faulty. All pastures should contain boxes of salt. Unless barrel salt is protected under a shed, it will waste from washing when it rains, whereas rock salt is subject to loss only in slight degree. A lump of rock salt should be kept in the feed box for the horse, or, better yet, put in a separate box over the manger within their reach. The fundamental principle is to keep salt within the reach of live stock; then the matter will not be forgotten for weeks at a time, which frequently happens. Between barrel salt and rock, the latter is much to be perferred, being cheaper and less bother. As to rock salt being hard on the tongue, it is not, as it soon becomes smooth.

The President will recommend that the war taxes be reduced by about $15,000,000 out of the total of $100,000,000 estimated to accrue from them, although his managers promised before election that they would be wiped out this fall. We hope, however, that the amount to be repealed will be raised to sixteen or dropped to fourteen millions. Fifteen per cent has an ominous "plain duty" reminiscence that is not pleasing to American ears.

CHRISTIAN WARFARE

Dr. Talmage Draws a Lesson from Joshua's Victories.

Encouraging Words for Those Engaged in the Battles of Life—God's Soldiers Never Turn Backward.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

In this discourse Dr. Talmage follows Joshua on his triumphal march and speaks encouraging words to all who are engaged in the battles of this life; text, Joshua, 1:5: "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

Moses was dead. A beautiful tradition says the Lord kissed him and in that act drew forth the soul of the dying lawgiver. He had been buried, only one person at the funeral, the same one who kissed him. But God never takes a man away from any place of usefulness until he has some one ready to replace him. The Lord does not go looking around amid a great variety of candidates to find some one especially fitted for the vacated position. He makes a man for that place. Moses has passed off the stage, and Joshua, the hero, puts his foot on the platform of history so solidly that all the ages echo with the tread. He was a magnificent fighter, but he always fought on the right side, and he never fought unless God told him to fight. He got his military equipment from God, who gave him the promise at the start: "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life." God fulfilled this promise, although Joshua's first battle was with the spring freshet, the next with a stone wall, the next leading on a regiment of whipped cowards and the next battling against darkness, wheeling the sun and the moon into his battalion, and the last against the king of terrors, death—five great victories.

As a rule when the general of an army starts out in a war he would like to have a small battle in order that he may get his own courage up and rally his troops and get them drilled for greater conflicts, but the first undertaking of Joshua was greater than the leveling of Fort Pulaski, or the assault of Gibraltar, or the overthrow of the Bastille. It was the crossing of the Jordan at the time of the spring freshet. The snows of Mount Lebanon had just been melting, and they poured down into the valley, and the whole valley was a raging torrent. So the Canaanites stand on one bank, and they look across and see Joshua and the Israelites, and they laugh and say: "Aha, they cannot disturb us until the freshets fall! It is impossible for them to reach us." But after awhile they look across the water, and they see a movement in the army of Joshua. They say: "What is the matter now? Why, there must be a panic among those troops, and they are going to fly, or perhaps they are going to try to march across the river Jordan. Joshua is a lunatic." But Joshua, the chieftain, looks at his army and cries: "Forward, march!" and they start for the bank of the Jordan. One mile ahead go two priests carrying a glittering box four feet long and two feet wide. It is the ark of the covenant. And they come down, and no sooner do they touch the rim of the water with their feet than, by an Almighty fiat, Jordan parts. The army of Joshua marches right on without getting their feet wet, over the bottom of the river, a path of chalk and broken shells and pebbles, until they get to the other bank. Then they lay hold of the oleanders and tamarisks and willows and pull themselves up a bank 30 or 40 feet high; and, having gained the other bank, they clap their shields and their cymbals and sing the praises of the God of Joshua. But no sooner have they reached the bank than the waters begin to dash and roar, and with a terrific rush they break loose from their strange anchorage.

As the hand of the Lord God is taken away from the thus uplifted waters—waters perhaps uplifted half a mile—they rush down, and some of the unbelieving Israelites say: "Alas, alas, what a misfortune! Why could not those waters have staid parted? Because perhaps we may want to go back. O Lord, we are engaged in a risky business. Those Canaanites may eat us up. How if we want to go back? Would it not have been a more complete miracle if the Lord had parted the waters to let us come through and kept them parted to let us go back if we are defeated?" My friends, God makes no provision for a Christian retreat. He clears the path all the way to Canaan. To go back is to die. The same gatekeepers that swung back the amethystine and crystalline gate of the Jordan to let Israel pass through now swing shut the amethystine and crystalline gate of the Jordan to keep the Israelites from going back. Victory ahead, but water 30 feet deep behind, surging to death and darkness and woe. But you say: "Why did not these Canaanites, when they had such a splendid chance, standing on the top of the bank 30 or 40 feet high, completely demolish those poor Israelites down in the river?" I will tell you why. God had made a promise and He was going to keep it. "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

But this is no place for the host to stop. Joshua gives the command: "Forward, march!" In the distance there is a long grove of trees, and at the end of the grove is a city. It is a city with arbors, a city with walls seeming to reach to the heavens, to outtress the very sky. It is the great metropolis that commands the mountain pass. It is Jericho. That city was afterward captured by Pompey and once by Herod the Great and once again by the Mohammedans, but this campaign the Lord plans. There shall be no swords, no shields, no battering ram. There shall be only one weapon of war, and that a ram's horn. The horn of the slain ram was sometimes taken, and holes were punctured in it, and then the musician would put the instrument to his lips, and he would run his fingers over this rude musical instrument and make a great deal of sweet harmony for the people. That was the only kind of weapon. Seven priests were to take these rude, rustic musical instruments, and they were to go around the city every day for six days—once a day for six days—and then on the seventh day they were to go around blowing these rude musical instruments seven times, and then at the close of the seventh blowing of the rams' horns on the seventh day the peroration of the whole scene was to be a shout, at which those great walls should tumble from capstone to base.

The seven priests with the rude musical instruments pass all around the city walls on the first day and score a failure. Not so much as a piece of plaster broke loose from the wall, not so much as a loosened rock, not so much as a piece of mortar lost from its place. "There," say the unbelieving Israelites, "did I not tell you so? Why, those ministers are fools. The idea of going around the city with those musical instruments and expecting in that way to destroy it. Joshua has been spoiled. He thinks because he has overthrown and conquered the spring freshet he can overthrow the stone wall. Why, it is not philosophic. Do you not see there is no relation between the blowing of these musical instruments and the knocking down of the wall? It is not philosophic." And I suppose there were many wiseacres who stood with their brows knitted and with the forefinger of the right hand to the forefinger of the left hand arguing it all out and showing that it was not possible that such a cause could produce such an effect. And I suppose that night in the encampment there was plenty of caricature, and if Joshua had been nominated for any high military position he would not have received many votes. Joshua's stock was down. The second day the priests blowing the musical instruments go around the city and again a failure. The third day and a failure, fourth day and a failure, fifth day and a failure, sixth day and a failure. The seventh day comes, the climacteric day. Joshua is up early in the morning and examines the troops, walks all about, looks at the city wall. The priests start to make the circuit of the city. They go all around once, all around twice, three times, four times, five times, six times, seven times, and a failure. There is only one more thing to do, and that is to utter a great shout. I see the Israelitish army straightening themselves up, filling their lungs for a vociferation such as was never heard before and never heard after. Joshua feels that the hour has come, and he cries out to his host: "Shout, for the Lord hath given you the city." All together the troops shout: "Down, Jericho! Down, Jericho!" And the long line of solid masonry begins to quiver and to move and to rock. Stand from under! She falls! Crash go the walls and temples, the towers, the palaces, the air blackened with the dust. The huzza of the victorious Israelites and the groan of the conquered Canaanites commingle, and Joshua, standing there in the debris of the walls, hears a voice saying: "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

Only one house spared. Who lives there? Some great king? No. Some woman distinguished for great kindly deeds? No. She had been conspicuous for her crimes. It is the house of Rahab. Why was her house spared? Because she had been a great sinner? No, but because she repented, demonstrating to all the ages that there is mercy for the chief of sinners.

But Joshua's troops may not halt here. The command is: "Forward, march!" There is the city of Ai. It must be taken. How shall it be taken? A scouting party comes back and says: "Joshua, we can do that without you. It is going to be a very easy job. You must stand here while we go and capture it." They march with a small regiment in front of that city. The men of Ai look at them and give one yell, and the Israelites run like reindeer. The northern troops at Bull Run did not make such rapid time as these Israelites with the Canaanites after them. They never cut such a sorry figure as when they were on the retreat. You who go out in the battles of God with only half a force instead of your taking the men of Ai the men of Ai will take you. Look at the church of God on the retreat. The Bornesian cannibals ate up Munson, the missionary. "Fall back!" said a great many Christian people. "Fall back, O church of God! Borneo will never be taken. Do you not see the Bornesian cannibals have eaten up Munson, the missionary?". Tyndall delivers his lectures at the University of Glasgow, and a great many good people say: "Fall back, O church of God! Do you not see that Christian philosophy is going to be overcome by worldly philosophy? Fall back!" Geology plunges its crowbar into the mountains, and there are a great many people who say: "Scientific investigation is going to overthrow the Mosaic account of the creation. Fall back!"

But friends of God never have had any right to fall back. Joshua falls on his face in chagrin. It is the only time you ever see the back of his head. He falls on his face and begins to whine, and he says: "O Lord God, wherefore hast thou at all brought this people over Jordan to deliver us into the hands of the Amorites, to destroy us? Would to God we had been content and dwelt on the other side of Jordan. For the Canaanites and all the inhabitants of the land shall hear of it and shall environ us round and cut off our name from the earth." I am very glad Joshua said that. Before it seemed as if he were a supernatural being, and therefore could not be an example to us, but I find he is a man, he is only a man. Just as sometimes you find a man under severe opposition or in a bad state of physical health, or worn out with overwork, lying down and sighing about being defeated. I am encouraged when I hear this cry of Joshua as he lies in the dust. God comes and rouses him. How does He rouse him? By complimentary apostrophe? No. He says: "Get thee up. Wherefore liest thou upon thy face?" Joshua rises, and I warrant you, with a mortified look. But his old courage comes back. The fact was that was not his battle. If he had been in it he would have gone on to victory. He gathers his troops around him and says: "Now, let us go up and capture the city of Ai. Let us go up right away." They march on. He puts the majority of the troops behind a ledge of rocks in the night, and then he sends comparatively small regiments up in front of the city. The men of Ai come out with a shout. The small regiments of Israelites in stratagem fall back and fall back, and when all the men of Ai have left the city and are in pursuit of these scattered, or seemingly scattered, regiments, Joshua stands on a rock—I see his locks flying in the wind as he points his spear toward the doomed city, and that is the signal. The men rush out from behind the rocks and take the city, and it is put to the torch, and then these Israelites in the city march down, and the flying Israelites return, and between these two waves of Israelitish prowess the men of Ai are destroyed, and the Israelites gain the victory; and while I see the curling smoke of that destroyed city on the sky, and while I hear the huzza of the Israelites and the groan of the Canaanites, Joshua hears something louder than it all, ringing and echoing through his soul: "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

But Joshua was not quite through. There was time for five funerals before the sun of that prolonged day set. Who will preach their funeral sermon? Massilon preached the funeral sermon over Louis XVI. Who will preach the funeral sermon of those five dead kings—king of Jerusalem, king of Hebron, king of Jarmuth, king of Lachish, king of Eglon? Let it be by Joshua. What is his text? What shall be the epitaph put on the door of the tomb? "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life." Before you fasten up the door I want five more kings beheaded and thrust in—King Alcohol, King Fraud, King Lust, King Superstition, King Infidelity. Let them be beheaded and hurl them in. Then fasten up the door forever. What shall the inscriptions and what shall the epitaph be, for all Christian philanthropists of all ages are going to come and look at it? What shall the inscription be? "There shall not any man be able to stand before thee all the days of thy life."

But it is time for Joshua to go home. He is 110 years old. Washington went down the Potomac and at Mount Vernon closed his days. Wellington died peacefully at Apsley house. Now, where shall Joshua rest? Why, he is to have his greatest battle now. After 110 years he has to meet a king who has more subjects than all the present population of the earth, his throne a pyramid of skulls, his parterre the graveyards and the cemeteries of the world, his chariot the world's hearse—the king of terrors. But if this is Joshua's greatest battle, it is going to be Joshua's greatest victory. He gathers his friends around him and gives his valedictory and it is full of reminiscence. Young men tell what they are going to do. Old men tell what they have done. And as you have heard a grandfather or great-grandfather seated by the evening fire tell of Monmouth or Yorktown and then lift the crutch or staff as though it were a musket to fight and show how the old battles were won, so Joshua gathers his friends around his dying couch, and he tells them the story of what he has been through, and as he lies there, his white locks snowing down on his wrinkled forehead, I ask if God has kept His promise all the way through. As he lies there he tells the story one, two or three times—you have heard old people tell a story two or three times over—and he answers: "I go the way of all the earth, and not one word of the promise has failed, not one word thereof has failed. All has come to pass; not one word thereof has failed." And then he turns to his family, as a dying parent will, and says: "Choose now whom you will serve, the God of Israel or the god of the Amorites. As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

Dead, the old chieftain must be laid out. Handle him very gently. That sacred body is over 110 years of age. Lay him out, stretch out those feet that walked dry shod the parted Jordan. Close those lips which helped blow the blast at which the walls of Jericho fell. Fold the arm that lifted the spear toward the doomed city of Ai. Fold it right over the heart that exulted when the five kings fell. But where shall we get the burnished granite for the headstone and the footstone? I bethink myself now. I imagine that for the head it shall be the sun that stood upon Gibeon, and for the foot the moon that stood still in the valley of Ajalon.

Electricity is coming more and more into use in the tanner's business.

AN IRISH JAUNTING CAR.

Odd Article of Transportation Met With in the City of Dublin.

A long line of vehicles, outside cars and cabs, some of them battered and shaky, others sufficiently well looking, was gathering on two sides of the green, says Kate Douglas Wiggin, in Atlantic, for Dublin, you know, is "the car-drivingest city in the world." Francesca and I had our first experience the other day. It is easy to tell the stranger, stiff, decorous, terrified, clutching the rail with one or both hands, but we took for our model a pretty Irish girl, who looked like nothing so much as a bird on a swaying bough. It is no longer called the "jaunting," but the outside car, and there is another charming word lost to the world. There was formerly an inside car, too, but it is almost unknown in Dublin, though still found in some of the smaller towns. An outside car has its wheels practically inside the body of the vehicle, but an inside car carries its wheels outside. This definition was given us by an Irish driver, but lucid definition is not perhaps an Irishman's strong point. It is clearer to say that the passenger sits outside of the wheels on the one, inside on the other. There are seats for two persons over each of the two wheels, and a "dickey" for the driver in front, should he need to use it. Ordinarily he sits on one side, driving, while you perch on the other, and thus you jog along, each seeing your own side of the road, and discussing the topics of the day across the "well," as the covered-in center of the car is called. There are those who do not agree with its champions who call it "Cupid's own conveyance;" they find the seat too small for two, yet feel it a bit unsociable when the companion occupies the opposite side. To me a modern Dublin car with rubber tires and a good Irish horse is the jolliest conveyance in the universe; there is a livelihess, an irresponsible gayety, in the spring and sway of it, an ease in the half-lounging position against the cushions, a unique charm in "traveling edgeways" with your feet planted on the step. You must not be afraid of a car if you want to enjoy it. Hold the rail if you must, at first, though it's just as bad form as clinging to your horse's mane while riding in the Row. Your driver will take all the chances that a crowded thoroughfare gives him; he would scorn to leave more than an inch between your feet and a Guinness' beer dray; he will shake your flounces and furbelows in the very windows of the passing trams, but he is beloved by the gods, and nothing ever happens to him.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

Love isn't quite as comfortable as laziness, but it's a lot cheaper.

A woman's heaven would be a dead failure without it had a little fuzzy dog in it and a big garret.

A woman gets most of her happiness out of remembering how miserable she was some particular time before.

A woman is considered bright by the other women by the number of kinds of a fool she can make of a man in five minutes.

Every time a woman sits up half the night acting sweet to a lot of men she wakes up the next morning and acts ugly to the one she is married to.—N. Y. Press.

He Was No Egotist.

"Will you marry me, Miss Tommey?" asked Mr. Collingwood.

"No, indeed," replied she. ", wouldn't marry the best man on earth."

"Of course you won't. You'll never have an opportunity. But that is no reason why you shouldn't marry me."—Detroit Free Press.

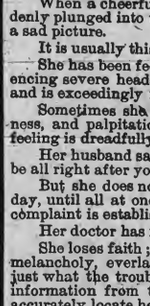
"Now Don't Get the Blues."

When a cheerful, brave and light-hearted woman is suddenly plunged into that perfection of misery, the blues, it is a sad picture.

It is usually this way:

She has been feeling out of sorts for some time, experiencing severe headache and backache; sleeps very poorly and is exceedingly nervous.

Sometimes she is nearly overcome by faintness, dizziness, and palpitation of the heart; then that bearing-down feeling is dreadfully wearing.



Her husband says, "Now, don't get the blues! You will be all right after you have taken the doctor's medicine."

But she does not get all right. She grows worse day by day, until all at once she realizes that a distressing female complaint is established.

Her doctor has made a mistake.

She loses faith; hope vanishes; then comes the morbid, melancholy, everlasting blues. She should have been told just what the trouble was, but probably she withheld some information from the doctor, who, therefore, is unable to accurately locate her particular illness.

Mrs. Pinkham has relieved thousands of women from just this kind of trouble, and now retains their grateful letters in her library as proof of the great assistance she has rendered them. This same assistance awaits every sick woman in the land.

Mrs. Winifred Allender's Letter.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I feel it my duty to write and tell you of the benefit I have received from your wonderful remedies. Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I was a misery to myself and every one around me. I suffered terrible pain in my back, head, and right side, was very nervous, would cry for hours. Menses would appear sometimes in two weeks, then again not for three or four months. I was so tired and weak, could not sleep nights, sharp pains would dart through my heart that would almost cause me to fall.

"My mother coaxed me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I had no faith in it, but to please her I did so. The first bottle helped me so much that I continued its use. I am now well and weigh more than I ever did in my life."—MRS. WINIFRED ALLENDER, Farmington, Ill.

JAMES H. ECKELS' VIEW.

Says Democracy Must Reorganize on Lines of Old-Time Conservatism.

In reply to a question as to what he had to say about the result of the election James Eckels said:

"I agree so fully with the admirable editorial in the Chronicle on the democratic situation that I cannot better express my views than by referring to it. The need of reorganization in the party must now be manifest to all who care for its well-being or the country's good. As a party democracy cannot gain successes without having in its councils and management some business elements who know and appreciate the country's business needs. Until the advent of Mr. Bryan and an alliance with populism the democratic party could boast a conservatism which made it respected by all classes and every interest. It has lost that position, surrendered its historic views on the money question and abandoned its point of vantage on the tariff.

"However humiliating it may seem, the party must make a manly retreat until it gets back to true democracy. It must make its aim to bring to itself those who will accept democratic doctrines instead of through a surrender of such principles and acceptance of the isms of populism.

"First of all there must be an abandonment of the populism of the west and a realiance with the democracy of the east. Then, too, democrats must be recognised as leaders and not silver republicans, old-time greenbackers and later day populists. There must be no further compromising on the money question or discarding of men of business affairs and commercial integrity. The democratic party must in the future reestablish a reputation for conservatism and not be known as a house of refuge for all radicals. The democrats of the north must notify their brethren in the south that in the future it is proposed to have a party here instead of having it wholly there. And unless democracy amounts to something north of Mason and Dixon's line it can be of little value there so far as national affairs are concerned.

"I believe every democrat ought to give of his time and influence as much as he can to the complete reorganization of the party, wholly in the interests of the country. We cannot afford to have one party in this country with much of the conservative elements in it and one without any. Such a condition of things is productive of too much evil; too much governmental extravagance and too great indifference to individual rights. The conditions which should prevail are those which insure safety in administration and legislation, no matter which party prevails at the polls.

"It is this end democrats should work. They will again attain places of power and influence by being democrats and not populists, finding in such a course the support of many who heretofore have acted with the party and given it a standing which won victories for its candidates and policies."

STILL OPPOSES IMPERIALISM.

Edwin Burritt Smith Says He Will Continue on Anti-Colonial Lines.

Edwin Burritt Smith, who has been the directing force in the anti-imperialist movement in the west and one of the leaders in the opposition to the policy of McKinley in the issues growing out of the Spanish-American war, regards the election as fixing upon the American government the retention of the Philippines and that the struggle will not be shifted from seeking the abandonment of the colonial policy to that of securing for the natives of the islands the liberty and powers granted by the constitution. He said:

"The anti-imperialists regret that the country has voted to approve the colonial policy. We know that many who voted for McKinley's reelection are at heart opposed to this policy; they have, however, voted to approve it. No other construction will be placed upon their act by the administration, no other can be placed upon it.

"There are still those who desire to hold the United States true to their course. They will still fight to preserve constitutional liberty. The monstrous proposition that congress may exercise any authority whatever outside of the constitution will not be allowed to prevail without further protest.

"The republican party is dominated by special interests. These interests have won a notable victory and will no doubt use it to strengthen their grip upon the government. They will use their power to make it more difficult to dislodge them. Sooner or later the people will make a successful attempt to gain control of the government."

Gen. John C. Black said: "If the democracy will reestablish itself upon its ancient foundations, cut out populism in all its phases from its platform, refuse to war upon the judiciary and the courts, turn forever from financial heresies, and become again the bulwark of liberty of the United States; if it will follow the precepts and practices of Monroe, Jefferson, Polk, Jackson and others in regard to expansion; if it will commit itself to the eternal territorial integrity of the American union and the continued supremacy of the American nation under its old motto of 'An indivisible union of indestructible states;' if it will dismiss from leadership the man who in two national campaigns have brought it to the verge of oblivion, making it a party of repudiation, anarchy, socialism and discontent; and if after having done all these things it shall in good faith call all democrats together for counsel and cooperation and shall withdraw the vendetta which has been sworn against the gold democrats—then it may hope for renewed life, honor and success."

——Rejecting Bryan is not indorsing McKinleyism. Had Mr. Bryan been content to allow the democratic convention to be a democratic convention; had he permitted it to voice the sentiments of the democratic party and register the will of that party, the returns would have indicated an overwhelming democratic victory. But the Kansas City convention allowed Mr. Bryan to trample under foot the convictions of three-fourths of its delegates, to place his personal judgment above the judgment of the representatives of the party, and the presidency is the price that has been paid.—Detroit Free Press.

——McKinley has been reelected largely by voters who strongly dissent from his course in regard to the Philippines. In his reduced pluralities he will find the popular opinion that could not express itself in a more direct way. If he proposes to construe this election as a direct indorsement of his colonial programme he will be violating a responsibility which rests upon him and which he is morally bound to regard as a solemn trust.—Chicago Record (Ind.).

COMMENTS OF THE PRESS.

——The election results cannot be construed into an indorsement of the colonial policy characterized as imperialism, nor do they warrant a continuation of blind republican favor to the trusts.—Boston Traveler.

——While the electoral vote by an increased margin elects McKinley, the diminution of his popular plurality in republican states carries with it a rebuke. The real danger is that the Hanna-McKinley coterie may take the verdict of the election as an approval of all they have done.—Boston Post.

——We stand uncovered in the presence of a victorious foe. We extend our congratulations to the McKinleyites upon their great triumph, and reserve for ourselves the consolation that we fought for American principles, followed a great leader and went to a glorious defeat with a clear conscience and a firm reliance in the justice and integrity of the lost cause.—Omaha World-Herald.

——That this ends the Bryan chapter in the party's history cannot be doubted. What remains to be seen is whether it will sink into insignificance or whether the vitality of this great historic party will reassert itself by restoring to it its old character and arraying it once again under leaders fitted for high responsibilities and commanding the confidence of the country.—Baltimore News.

——The enormous concentration of capital has become the dominant power in this country. McKinley's reelection is not the sign of popular approval. Disguise it under whatever name, it is the achievement of the money power alone that has tyrannized over the popular judgment, and whether by fair means or foul has prevented the free expression of the popular will.—Philadelphia Times.

——Can there be question of the duty of the national democracy? Can there be doubt of the necessity to turn resolutely from vain wanderings into the field of populism? Old-line democracy, battling with reunited forces, supporting nominees acceptable to all true democrats and effectively organized can elect a president of the United States no less certainly than they did a sheriff of St. Louis last Tuesday.—St. Louis Republic.

——Undoubtedly an unwillingness to accept Mr. Bryan's entire platform was more of a factor in determining the voters of large masses in the east and central west than a desire to indorse Mr. McKinley's colonial and foreign policies. Many republicans and democrats supported Mr. McKinley under protest, not because they liked him, but because they liked Mr. Bryan's record and associations less.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

——Unquestionably the continuance of good times helped materially to make their candidacy successful. Unquestionably, also, there are certain salient lessons to be deduced from the results obtained at the polls, which, if the republican managers are wise, they will lay closely to heart. It gives plain and unmistakable warning against the dangers which environ a continuance of the administration's "new departure" in colonial policies.—Boston Globe.

——Mr. Bryan's disappearance from public life will be assumed by the partisans of monopoly, with whom the wish is father to the thought, but the masses do not forsake their leaders in that fashion. The Nebraskan has made a wonderful fight against the most fearful odds. The power of such a personality does not depend on the shifting fortunes of politics, for honesty and courage are permanent forces in the world's affairs. The battle for freedom against privilege must be fought to the end.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

——The people, with their eyes wide open, have deliberately voted in favor of a policy of aggression and conquest throughout the world. They have voted that this shall be a military republic. They have voted against an income tax and in favor of a high protective tariff, and of big subsidies to private enterprises. They have voted against legislation to prohibit or regulate the trusts. But let us not hastily assume that this verdict in its largest sense is final. There is no reason for the followers of Thomas Jefferson to despair. — Indianapolis Sentinel.

——The amazing result of the election reveals very conclusively the monumental fact that the democratic party did not support its candidates. Mr. Bryan is defeated in 1900 by the Mr. Bryan of 1896. There was no democratic reunion. On the contrary, there was open and palpable democratic disorganization, panic and rout. —Chicago Chronicle.

——The reelection of William McKinley means the indorsement of every violation of law, every willful perversion of the principles of free government made by the party in power during the last four years. It means that the ancient landmarks set up by the fathers for the guidance of the servants of the people are to be devoted to vandal destruction by men intrusted with political power. That the century-and-a-quarter-old system of government of the people is to be relegated into disuse, and in its place is to be erected a government of the trusts, by the trusts and for the trusts.—Kansas City Times.

——Through the haze of the defeat the democracy can see the victory that might have been. Beyond a doubt Mr. Bryan would have been triumphantly elected but for two things. The first was the intrusion of the silver issue. Free silver was dead and so unpopular that even its corpse was enough to drag any man down to defeat. The second was the policy of cutting loose entirely from the Philippines. That was not in accord with the spirit of the American people.—Hearst's Chicago American.

SOUTH PACIFIC CHARTS.

Startling Discoveries Made by Fish-Commission Steamer Albatross.

The fish commission steamer Albatross, which returned the other day after 14 months' cruise in the Pacific, made some important discoveries during the voyage. It was found that all the charts of the South Pacific are inaccurate, and that most of the islands, except Fiji and Tahiti, are placed from two to twelve miles away from their actual position. The Albatross also discovered that the temperature of the bottom of the sea at all depths from 500 fathoms to the greatest depths obtainable is the same—35 degrees Fahrenheit. Between the surface and 2,500 fathoms down they found edible shrimp, varying in size from half an inch to a foot in length. The Albatross broke the record for deep sea dredging, dragging the bottom at 4,200 fathoms. The greatest depth ever dragged before was 3,000 fathoms, by the British ship Challenger, in 1876. In the Behring sea the Albatross found at a place where the charts show 2,000 fathoms that the depth is only 200 fathoms.

FASTEST BOAT EVER BUILT.

Launched at Nyack (N. Y.) Ship Yard —Is Expected to Make Over Forty Miles an Hour.

Charles R. Flint's Arrow, under contract to be the fastest ship ever designed, was launched the otherday at the ship yard in Nyack, N. Y. It has been built under a guarantee by its designer of 42 miles an hour, and it is expected that under pressure it will be able to make 50. It has been generally given out that the boat was constructed as a yacht for Mr. Flint's personal use, but rumors have been persistent that it was built under contract with one of the South American governments for service as a torpedo boat.

The plans, so far as they have been made public, show the vessel fully equipped for torpedo service.

The Arrow will go in tow to Newark, N. J., where shafting and engines will be put in. The yacht's destination after it has been fitted out at Newark has not been pronounced.

GIRL SCARED TO DEATH.

Practical Jokers Have Fatal Fun with a Manufactured Skeleton.

The authorities of Allegany county are looking for persons who manufactured a skeleton out of bones of domestic animals which frightened Mary Oldfield, of Karrdale, near Rochester, N. Y., to death the other night. Miss Oldfield, accompanied by two friends, was returning from a Halloween party, where they had listened to grewsome stories until their hair stood on end.

When about to enter the woods a rattling of bones was heard overhead and looking up the trio were overcome with horror to see a skeleton of gigantic proportions sweeping down on them from above. With a cry of terror Mary dropped in her tracks. A searching party found a wire leading from the ground to a tree top to which the skeleton was attached by a pulley.

Painted Picturesqueness.

This note is in the possession of the Bank of England. It is dated December 19, 1699, and is for 555 pounds, but on account of its age same is made very valuable. One of the oldest and most valuable stomach medicines before the public is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. For the past fifty years it has been the standard of such remedies for dyspepsia, indigestion, biliousness, nervousness or insomnia. It will effect a cure when faithfully taken.

Comforting Poor Papa.

A well-known business man whose head is bare, yet who wears a luxuriant growth of whiskers, was being railed recently for being bald by some of his intimate friends in the presence of his small daughter. Little Mabel didn't understand that it was all in jest, and crawling upon her parent's lap put her arms about his neck and turned defiantly toward his tormentors: "My papa w'ud ruvver hav' his top hair on his chin, w'udn't you, papa?"—Chicago Chronicle.

FADED IN HER YOUTH

Pretty faces and graceful forms of young women! Why is it they are so soon replaced by plainness and lankness? It is because the young girl just entering into womanhood does not know how to take care of herself and has no one competent to instruct her. It is not necessary that there should be anything weakening or wearying about the obligations of a female organism. Parents of young girls should inform themselves and prevent their dear ones from making costly errors.

That young woman has a just cause of complaint, who is permitted to believe that great periodic suffering is to be expected, that severe mysterious pains and aches are part of her natural experience as a woman. These things are making constant war on her health, her disposition and her beauty. It is a wanton sacrifice, absolutely unnecessary and cruel. It is more—it is criminal.

Dr. Greene's NERVURA

for the Blood and Nerves

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, is the right medicine for every young girl who is just entering the first stage of womanhood. It prepares the system in every way to act normally. It enriches the blood supply, and keeps the nerves calm and steady. Fortified with this great medicine, all the womanly dutics may be undertaken and experienced without the slightest jeopardy to health. It preserves the gifts of nature and assists their development into glowing, healthful beauty.

MRS. MARY FRANCES LYTLE, of 2 Hunter Alley, Rochester, N. Y., says:

"I was very pale and delicate—had no color. I took Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy and now I am well and strong, my face is plump, and cheeks red, and my complexion pure."

MRS. WILLIAM BARTELS, 239 East 87th St., New York City, says:

"Dr. Greene's Nervura made a wonderful improvement in my health, and that dark, sallow look left my face. My friends hardly know me. I have gained flesh and am like a different person."

The nervousness in women which invariably comes with pain is of itself certain to stop the development of beauty in face and figure. Excited nerves make sharp lines and hasty speech. The beautiful curves which make women so attractive are not possible when the female organism is out of order, as it surely is when discomfort and pain are always or even periodically present. It is only necessary to look in the faces of young women everywhere to see that this must be so. Else why are they so pale and thin?

GET FREE ADVICE FROM DR. GREENE

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. It is possible to every woman who takes the matter in hand intelligently. Get advice from Dr. Greene, the great specialist in these matters. He will tell you why all this is so, and show you how to avoid the stumbling blocks that her woman's way to happiness. You may consult Dr. Greene without cost by calling or writing to him at his office, 35 West 14th Street, New York City. Don't throw away your beauty. Write to Dr. Greene to-day.

Prayer meeting is held at the Christian church every Thursday evening, and is lead by Mr. Demeisey.

Mrs. J. D. Stephens and daughter, Allie, were guests of Mrs. P. Slater, of Erlanger, one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Polnts, of Sherman, have returned to their home after a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Hinton, of this place.

Little Miss Mabel Tanner, of Kensington, has been the guest of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tanner, for the past week.

The Baptists will hold a convention here on the 30th of this month. Every body is cordially invited to attend. Dinner will be served at the town hall.

Hathaway.

D. H. Ryle is no better.

Farmers are butchering their hogs.

Hunters are making it lively for the game about here.

Mat Ryle and wife were visiting relatives in Missouri, last week.

James K. Sebree and wife were shopping in Rising Sun, last Wednesday.

Dave Williamson entertained a couple of hunters from town, last week.

Hugh Bogess, of Gallatin county, came up to attend his sister's wedding.

Nathan Smith took a nice bunch of hogs and some cattle to the city market, last week.

W. S. White and wife spent last Wednesday with J. J. Berkshire and wife near Burlington. That day being the anniversary of the birth of both Mrs. Berkshire and Mrs. White, they celebrated it together, Mrs. Berkshire preparing a splendid dinner for the occasion.

Married, on last Wednesday, at the residence of Rev. M. J. Hoover, pastor of the Burlington Baptist church, Miss Essie Bogess and Mr. Ealy Conley. After the ceremony the happy couple left accompanied by several friends, for the home of L. M. Stephens, where they were given a reception. The attendants were Raymond Smith and Miss Cora Quick. At night a delightful party was given in honor of the bride and groom, and parlor games were indulged in until a late hour, when the guests took their departure for their respective homes, hoping to meet again soon on a like occasion. Your writer offers the bride and groom his congratulations, and best wishes for a happy and useful life.

Verona.

We congratulate Governor Beckham on his success.

The public school, with a full attendance, is progressing nicely.

We would like to hear from the correspondent at Hume often.

Mrs. Patsie Carlisle is visiting relatives at Cadyville and other points.

Very little shock corn has been gathered here on account of dry weather.

Rev. P. T. Duncan, of Ludlow, spent last Friday with J. M. Powers and wife.

Rev. S. M. Adams filled his appointment at New Bethel, last Saturday and Sunday.

A. P. Myers is having a cistern dug near the store. It is 10x12 feet in diameter.

Henry Cotton and family now occupy their commodious new residence near J. M. Powers'.

Chas. A. Roberts met with a slight accident, while hunting the other day. His gun kicked him in the face.

Walton Graded School district is coming to the Polls, and will vote on a proposition to erect a school house at a cost of about $10,000.

Several parties were figuring after the postoffice before the election, but since the Republican landslide, nothing has been said about it.

The Methodists will hold a series of meetings here, beginning Tuesday night, December 4th. Rev. Bromley will do the preaching, and will be assisted by an excellent singer.

Idlewild.

Mrs. Edgar Cropper is visiting at her son's in Louisville.

The Cooking Club will meet at Dr. Hays' Thanksgiving day.

Willie Cropper went to town, last Wednesday, to buy winter goods.

It is predicted that hogs will sell for 6 cents before the 1st of January.

Mrs. Clinton Gaines will spend a month with friends in Indianapolis.

W. D. Cropper has taken board and lodging at the Pfalzgraf House for the winter.

Rice Bros. sold a handsome string of beef cattle to J. M. Conner, at 5 cents per pound.

James T. Gaines sold his spring purchase of cattle to Barlow & Acra at a profit of $220. There were 34 head.

Several ladies from this neighborhood spent Thursday very pleasantly with Mrs. Charles E. Stephens, of Hebron.

The writer's family and that of Thos. S. Whitaker, were pleasantly entertained by R. C. Gaines and wife, Sunday.

The family of Hubert Cropper, of North Bend, were pleasant guests of Charles Gaines and wife, Saturday and Sunday.

No sales of tobacco yet, though many crops are ready to deliver. Albert Gray, on James T. Gaines' farm, has a very fine crop.

The game law ran out on the 15th inst., and the lawabiding citizen can now go hunting, but he will have all hunting an no finding.

Jim Thompson passed through here Tuesday with 20 nice beef cattle, grazed this season by J. J. Ferris, of Prospect Stock Farm, near Petersburg.

Rev. J. A. Kirtley will assist Rev. Hoover in Thanksgiving services at Burlington, as announced by the latter Sunday. No services were announced for Bullittsburg.

Mr. Louis Hitchfield united with Bullittsburg Baptist church, Sunday. On account of his age and health he will be immersed in the church at Aurora on the first Sunday in December.

We take notice that every lady must go to town at least twice a year to get her a new hat, on account of change in style. Still you can look over a crowd of a thousand ladies and no two will be wearing hats alike.

This town was thrown into a fever of excitement, a few days ago, when an alarm of fire was sounded by Mr. J. B. Winston, who, while the lapse of passing years may have left its finger prints on him in some place, retains, unimpaired, the use of his vocal powers, fitting him, eminently, for sounding fire alarms in a small town, or a large one, either for that matter. No time was lost by any available citizen, who, with bucket in hand, rushed to the residence of Mr. Pfalzgraf in the southern outskirts of the town. Upon the place it was ascertained that the kitchen chimney had burned out, doing no damage whatever. The fact was developed, however, that no ordinary blaze could do much damage in the town with its present facilities for sounding alarms and organizing bucket brigades on short notice.

Bellevue.

Hen & Husebart, through their agent recently put up a nice Scotch Granite monument on the lot of Michael Clore.

Dr. H. H. Grant, of Louisville, and Dr. Hart Sutton, of Aurora, spent several days, last week, with E. L. Grant, jr., in hunting birds and rabbits, of which Ernest has many.

The water supply is shorter in our town than it has been for years. Many are hauling water for family use and for stock from the river and Middle creek, in which there is an abundance.

Our local porkpackers have begun buying and butchering. There are few hogs in this community. We learn from a trader, who is well informed, that there is not half enough hogs in the county to supply the people with meat.

We observed while on our road to Rabbit Hash that the supervisor, Joe Walton, deserves commendation for the labor and money he has expended on that road. We predict in the near future that there will be a macadamized road leading from Rabbit Hash to Middle creek.

We failed to see the comparison between ourselves and the "rich man" in the Bible, except it be the foolish part. However these Publicans or tax-gatherers were considered very bad men among the Jews, consequently we need to exercise a great deal of charity toward them.

The large Democratic vote in this district was largely due to the untiring efforts of our campaign committeeman, Chas. Maurer. Uncle H. P. Marshall and Samuel Wingate, both of whom have passed their 84th mile stone along life's journey, walked down early and voted, and returned to their homes in the same way in the afternoon.

Mrs. Mamie Williamson, we are glad to report, is improving.

Johnnie Klopp and wife attended church here, Sunday afternoon.

J. M. Moody left, last Sunday night, to visit his daughter, Alice, in Hamilton, Ohio. She is quite ill.

Rev. Elmer Atwood preached at the Wooiper school house, last Sunday at 3 p. m., to a good congregation.

Mrs. Hallie Andrey, of Paris, returned home, last Saturday, after a week's visit with relatives here and in East Bend.

Miss Lizzie Rogers accompanied home her sister, Mrs. Forest Brown, of Owen county. She will spend a few weeks there.

Elder Jones, of Petersburg, delivered an able and impressive sermon to a large congregation at the Christian church here, last Sunday, at 3 p. m. Words of praise and favorable comments were heard on all sides among those who heard him.

Mrs. Samuel Wingate, aged 79, died last Friday at 7 o'clock p. m., at the home of her son, Henry. She was buried in the new Baptist cemetery on Sunday, the 18th inst., in the presence of a large crowd of relatives and friends. Rev. Atwood conducted the services. This community loses a good woman and one that was highly respected by all who knew her. The deceased and husband had reared a large family, five of whom, with her brother, Hogan Presser, were the pall-bearers.

Rabbit Hash.

Wm. Bevis and Miss Minnie Douglas were married, last Thursday, in Rising Sun.

James A. Wilson was 86 years old last Saturday week. His children and neighbors spent the day with him, and were nicely entertained and went home glad they were there.

Mrs. Bettie Stephens, who has been visiting friends and relatives here the past two weeks, returned to her home in Cass county, Mo., last Thursday. Her mother, Mrs. Lucy Scott, went with her, expecting to make that her home.

Died—In Rising Sun, Ind., on the 13th inst., Mr. Stephen R. Mock. Burial at East Bend M. E. Church. Mr. Mock was born in East Bend, the 22d of May, 1814, and has lived in this neighborhood all his life, excepting two years spent in Carroll county, Ky. In 1835 he married Miss Sarah Cayton, who died in 1891. The following year he married Mrs. Baty.

Midway.

W. R. Miller, of Covington, who has been very ill for sometime, attended church at the Springs, Sunday.

The new pike from Beaver to the Springs via Midway, is fast nearing completion. The contractors hope to finish it before the holidays.

Messrs. Holden and Fink, two adept knights of the brush, of Walton, passed through here enroute to the Springs to paint the M. E. Chapel there.

Rev. Bromley, pastor of the M. E. Chapel at the Springs, delivered an interesting sermon to a large and appreciative congregation, last Sunday.

Jas. Conley, our expert photographer left Beaver, last Saturday for Sparta, Gallatin county. He gathered together many shekels while sojourning here.

George Marksburry, of Normansville, has been doing some fine work in the Beaver neighborhood with the celebrated Portland Iron Roofing Paint.

Thos. Roberts, of Walton, has lately added much to the beauty of Fairview Church, near Beaver, by giving it a genuinely durable and pretty coat of paint.

Squire George W. Baker has been confined to his room, for several days, with something of a rheumatic nature, which seems to puzzle the skill of the physicians.

Mrs. A. K. Dickerson, representing a Cincinnati Business Journal, did Beaver, last week, soliciting advertisements and taking subscriptions for said paper. She is a thorough business lady and well up in her chosen profession.

Many of our best posted political citizens have arrived at the conclusion the election is now a thing of the past, and it is our bounden duty to prepare our homes for the continued reception of prosperity (with a big P) for the next four years.

Last Wednesday evening the inhabitants of Midway, were favored with a very fine music over the telephone, which was rendered by Everett Helms, at Peta. It was one of Mr. Helm's own compositions, "Grandma, Let Me Whisper," which was distinctly heard and greatly appreciated here.

Last Wednesday afternoon the beautiful and winning daughter of Walter Howard, Miss Ida, and John Engilsh, a prosperous young farmer of McCoy's Fork, conceived the notion that it would be the proper thing to visit Cincinnati, and while there get married, all of which they did, returning home that night. The Recorder and its many readers wish them a long and happy wedded life.

The Excelsior Literary Society met with Miss Nell Cleek, at her pretty Woodlawn home near Beaver, last Friday evening. Notwithstanding the inclement weather, a goodly number of members had assembled at the usual hour, to enjoy the execution of a brief but excellent program, arranged more with a view to the entertainment of the hour than permanent educational effect. Miss Ella Norman delivered a touching recitation in her usual felicitous style. Miss Annie Wolfe lavished some entrancing music upon the audience from the piano. Mr. Elbert Rouse kindly treated the 2 to a highly humorous recitation. Misses Emma and Elizabeth Cleek rendered a catching duet on the piano in an exquisite manner, much to the gratification of the entire club. The reading of the Club paper was unavoidably deferred till next meeting. The club will meet with Misses Emma and Elizabeth Cleek Friday night week.

Bullittsville.

Miss Martha Harding is sewing for Mrs. C. W. Riley.

Mrs. John W. Clore, of near Hebron, was visiting Mrs. John Gaines, Thursday.

Tom Randall killed a fox while hunting on Mr. John G. Gaines' farm, last Thursday.

We sincerely hope the teachers' salary will soon be ready, as some of us are short of funds.

Charles Crisler and wife, of Cincinnati, were visiting relatives and friends in this community, last week.

Mr. and Mrs. James T. Grant entertained a number of their Grant relatives with an excellent dinner, Sunday.

Our genial friend, Col. Watts, passed through here, Sunday morning, accompanied by Miss Marie Corn, enroute to Bullittsburg church.

Now that the protracted meetings are over, and also the weddings, we will endeavor to send the news from our town to the Recorder, again.

Your scribe, with several other friends, had the pleasure of dining with Mr. and Mrs. Scott Chambers, at their lovely home near Idlewild, Saturday evening. It was a most enjoyable occasion.

The Idlewild correspondent need not worry about us being offended at him, for he has said nothing through his newsy items to offend us. Only lack of time has kept us from responding to his many kind invitations to write.

The school here is progressing very nicely, with 23 pupils enrolled. An average of 90 per cent is required to reach the honor roll, which is as follows: Snyder Watts, 99; Callie Clore, 98; Harmon Jones, 97; Harmon Houston, 96; Charles Riley, 96; Jessie Conner, 95; Myrtle Conner, 95; Mary Watts, 95; Nellie Adams, 95; Eunie Stephens, 94; Duncan Riley, 94; Grace Worford, 94; Edgar Stephens, 94; Edna Riley, 91; Emma Wofford, 90; Bennie Wofford, 89; Eunie Jones, 90; Marietta Stephens, 95.

Walton.

Mr. E. B. Youell has started a harness repairing shop in the barber shop of Mr. Morrison at the Phoenix Hotel.

The regular quarterly examination of the Walton Graded Free School will take place Thursday and Friday of this week.

At the district meeting for County Committeeman, Jamison Rogers was elected to fill the office for the ensuing four years over John C. Bedinger by a vote of 25 to 23. Mr. Bedinger has been a faithful committeeman and no fault has ever been found with him.

A rather prepossessing young gentleman registered at the Phoenix Hotel on the 4th inst., as J. F. Butler, from Pittsburg, Pa. He was soliciting the enlargement of pictures, and was all over a great part of the county. His mode of doing business was to secure the original that was to be enlarged, collecting a certain per cent. amounting to 49 to 95c on each picture and the balance was to be paid on the delivery of the picture framed. On the 10th inst. he quitted the hotel and left 40 or 50 photographs, tin types, etc., and an unpaid board bill. Mr. Thomas, proprietor of the hotel, wishes all who have given the picture to Butler to come and get them, as it is new very evident the fellow is a fakir and the money paid him must be regarded as a permanent investment.

Limaburg.

The fine rain was greatly appreciated by our citizens.

Jacob Rouse's lame shoulder is improving nicely.

Henry Clore and wife, of Florence, were guests at Geo. Baker's, Sunday.

Sam Combs and wife, of Covington, were guests of E. J. Rouse, Sunday.

Wallace Tanner has purchased a new shot gun, and will give the rabbits and birds some attention.

Harry Hicks, of Covington, was a guest of his uncle, James M. Utz, a few hours, last Saturday.

James M. Utz, Charles Crigler, Miss Hattie Utz and Miss Anna Crigler were guests of E. J. Utz, Sunday.

J. F. Blyth went hunting Monday and missed his pocket book containing $50. He was considerably relieved when he reached home and found the wallet was in another pair of trousers.

H. F. WORK, Secretary.

Covington started to build a new court house at a cost of $75,000, but it is now evident that it will cost not less than $200,000 when completed. It will be a magnificent building—one of which the city can be proud.

Since the close of the campaign Arthur Rouse has donned his working suit and gone to hard labor, and spent some time last week digging post holes for safety fences on some of the fills on the Burlington and Florence pike.

Last Friday night some boys undertook to smoke an opossum out of a hollow tree, and the result was acres of leaves were consumed and considerable excitement created. Fortunately no damage of consequence was done.

The RECORDER hopes its correspondents will send in their contributions as regularly as they can, conveniently, giving strictly the news items of their respective neighborhoods. Always try and mail your communications so they will reach this office on Monday by noon if you can.

Last Wednesday morning at eleven o'clock, Mr. E. Connelly and Miss Exley Bogess, of Hathaway, were married at the home of Eld. M. J. Hoover. After the ceremony the bridal party went to Lewis Stephen's, where a sumptuous dinner was spread for the young couple and their friends.

To remove a troublesome corn or bunion: First soak the corn or bunion in warm water to soften it, then pare it down as close as possible without drawing blood and apply Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice daily; rubbing vigorously for five minutes at each application. A corn plaster should be worn for a few days, to protect from the shoe. As a general liniment for sprains, bruises, lameness and rheumatism, Pain Balm is unequaled. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; Grant, Bellevue; Baisly, Bullittsville.

It is the understanding in Burlington that if a new comer can survive the first two years he will never have anymore trouble making an easy living here, so a gentleman who moved to the suburbs, a few days since, thinking this rule applied to him, called on one who had long since passed the two years' mark, and requested to be posted as to the first thing a fellow should do to get on the road to success, and was somewhat startled when the person of whom information was sought, replied: "The first thing I did, was to go to Keeley."

Charley Schramm who died at Petersburg in Boone county, a few days ago, a lengthy account of which is to be found in the current issue of the Boone County Recorder, was well known to the writer. He was a splendid type of Kentucky manhood, a genial manly man, loved by all who knew him. In all the world he probably did not have a single enemy. He loved to make others happy, and by his winning ways and kindly face, cast sunshine into the life of every passerby. To die and leave such a memory in the hearts of those who knew him is better by far than to possess great riches or attain great honor in this life. Petersburg and Boone county will miss Charlie Schramm.—Williamstown Courier.

At nine o'clock he returned them to their respective homes, bringing them in the mail wagon.

Robert W. Ronse was in town Saturday, and was laughing about Col. Graddy's stopping at his house not long since, and asking, "where am I at?" The Colonel was coming from the city via Malcus Souther's, it being his second trip over that road, and when he came on to the North Bend road near Mr. Rouse's, he was completely lost, thinking he was in the neighborhood of Florence. Robert was dumbfounded when the Colonel said, "I was never on this road before," when he had seen him pass his house many times. He says he discovered no suspicious action on the part of the Colonel, although he was coming from the city.

The Irl R. Hicks 1901 Almanac.

Whatever may be said of the scientific causes upon which the Rev. Irl R. Hicks bases his yearly forcasts of storm and weather, it is a remarkable fact that specific warnings of every great storm, flood, cold wave and drouth, have been plainly printed in his now famous Almanac for many years. The latest startling proof of this fact was the destruction of Galveston, Texas, on the very day named by Prof. Hicks in his 1900 Almanac, as one of disaster by storm along the gulf coast. The 1901 Almanac, by far the finest, most complete and beautiful yet published, is now ready. This remarkable book of near two-hundred pages, splendidly illustrated with charts and half-tone engravings, goes as a premium to every subscriber who pays one dollar for Prof. Hicks' Journal, Word and Works. The Almanac alone is sent prepaid for only 25 cents. Order from WORD AND WORKS Publishing Company, 2201 Locust Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Resolutions of respect to the memory of Charles Schram, deceased.

That whereas, It was the will of the Omnipotent and Wise Ruler of all, to call from earth, our Brother, Charles Schram, in his manhood and strength, and has separated him from friends and ones who loved him with brotherly affection, and who by his daily life, erected to himself a monument no one can erase, therefore be it resolved

That in his death Morning Star Lodge has lost a brother whom its every member loved and appreciated. The name Charley was sufficient to guarantee the success of any undertaking of the Lodge, and his willingness to help a brother or friend with advice or purse endeared him to all.

By his death there has been made a vacancy that the Lodge can not fill. That we realize his loss has been greater to his sisters and relatives than to us, and, therefore, pray that "He Who doeth all things well" will console them in their loss.

That his memory will be cherished as a heritage by the Lodge, while it extends to his sisters and relatives a sincere sympathy in their bereavement.

A Village Blacksmith Saves His Little Son's Life.

Mr. H. H. Black, the well known village blacksmith at Grahamsville, Sullivan county, N. Y., says: "Our little son, five years old, has always been subject to croup, and so bad have the attacks been that we have feared many times that he would die. We have had the doctor and used many medicines, but Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is now our sole reliance. It seems to dissolve the tough mucus and by giving frequent doses when the croupy symptoms appear we have found that the dreaded croup is cured before it gets settled." There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains no opium or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to a babe as to an adult. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Grant, Bellevue; McWethy & Berkshire, Petersburg; Baisly, Bullittsville.

Congratulations have been extended the fond young parents of the little son born on Nov. 12th, 1900, to Mr. and Mrs. John A. Hogan.

BURLINGTON, : KENTUCKY.

Henry De Windt, the explorer, has started on his journey through Siberia. He will cross the Behring straits and then go by the way of the Mackenzie river to Winnipeg.

A French scientist has determined that the military and naval professions most quickly wear out the brain. Out of 100,000 naval and military men 199 are confirmed lunatics. Next come the liberal professions, artists heading the list, followed closely by lawyers, and more distantly by doctors, clergy, literary men and civil servants. The number of those who go mad is 177 to each 100,000.

Not only New York, but Paris and London as well, are today laughing at the collapse of Count Paul Ernest Boniface de Castellane, whose humiliation is all the more bitter in that George Gould, whom, of all people, the count is said to most heartily detest, is appointed guardian over the remains of the fortune that was being so gaily scattered to the four winds of heaven.

The largest as well as the highest denomination of adhesive stamps ever issued was the $5,000 revenue stamp. A few proofs of it were printed, but the stamp was never used. It was engraved, printed in orange, green and black and was intended to be used on mortgages given by railroad companies and other large corporations. It would have paid the tax on a $10,000,000 mortgage.

Electricity has many advantages, but if the theory advanced in a Bombay journal be correct, then we shall not be in such a vast hurry as we have to light and travel and cook and wash by electricity. The installation of electric light in certain places in India has been noticeably succeeded by an increase in the number of thunderstorms; what is more, they have been more severe.

A new federation is in prospect. It is rumored that following up the formation of the Australian commonwealth the long-talked-of federation of the British West Indies is to become an accomplished fact. The imperial government is credited with the intention of welding the whole of the Leeward and Windward islands into one confederation, with Barbadoes as the seat of government.

The fact is not generally known that the queen has a private railway station. This is at Gosport, and is used by her majesty when embarking for Osborne. The station consists of a long, semi-circular platform, the end of which is conected with a pontoon, against which the royal yacht is usually moored. It is a strange fact that no other member of the royal family ever uses this station.

A New South Wales correspondent says that a shepherd of Hargreaves, near Mudgee, has tried dentistry for sheep with great success. He had a valuable ram which found great difficulty in masticating its food owing to the loss of teeth. Artificial teeth were inserted, and the animal has since vigorously attacked its fodder. This is believed to be the first experiment of the kind in the colony.

United States soldiers need put no postage on their letters. By a special provision of the postal laws a soldier may mail a letter without postage and it will be forwarded to its destination. To insure this favor on the part of the department the soldier must plainly mark "Soldier's Letter" on the outside of the envelope, and also his name and official designation and the command to which he belongs. The same law applies to marines.

"Pilgrim's Progress" translated into the Chinese language, with illustrations by native artists, is the latest novelty in the literary world of Peking, and the volume bears unmistakable traces of its celestial origin. Christian is depicted with an ample pigtail, the dungeon of the Giant Despair is one of the large wooden cages well known to Oriental criminals, and the angels waiting on the other side of the river to receive the pilgrims are arrayed in the latest Peking fashions.

James B. Dill, the well known corporation lawyer, of New York, has become the owner of 12 inches of land which he has wanted for six years. Incidentally, he paid, according to the revenue stamps affixed to the deed, $600 for the strip. When Mr. Dill bought his present residence in Harrison street, East Orange, he found that a foot of land has been reserved when Dennis place was opened. His house was, therefore, one foot distant from the corner of Harrison street and Dennis place. The price then asked was so great he would not pay it.

A restaurant for concentrated food is to be started in Paris by an enterprising French chef. The happy diner will enjoy a menu of tabloids. From the hors d'oeuvres to dessert his entire meal will be presented to him in a few square inches. In this way a busy man will be able to eat his dinner in a few minutes, or carry it about with him in his pocket to swallow in spare moments. Even drinks are provided in the same form, and a bottle of claret or whisky and soda can now be carried about in one's purse.

ATTACKED THE EMPEROR.

A Woman, Supposed to Be Demented, Threw an Ax at William as He Was Passing in a Carriage.

Breslau, Nov. 17.—Emperor William was the object of an attempted outrage Friday, which failed. As he was driving in an open carriage to the cuirassier barracks, accompanied by the hereditary prince of Saxe-Meiningen, a woman in the crowd hurled an ax at the carriage. The rapidity with which the vehicle was passing saved its occupants. The ax fell just behind the carriage. The woman was arrested.

Berlin, Nov. 17.—The following version of the attack appeared in an extra edition of the Lokal Anzeiger Friday afternoon:

"As the kaiser at 12:15 p. m., shortly after arriving at Breslau, drove with the hereditary prince of Saxe-Meiningen in his carriage from the depot to the castle a poorly clad woman, in the Darien strasse, threw a hatchet which until then she had keut hidden under a shawl at his majesty's carriage. The hatchet hit the carriage and fell to the ground. The kaiser quietly continued the drive while the woman was seized by bystanders and the police who hastened to the scene and arrested her. It is thought the woman is insane."

Breslau, Nov. 17.—The assailant is a tradeswoman of Breslau. A provisional medical examination of the prisoner has been made and she has been pronounced to be insane.

While Emperor William was returning from the barracks to the railroad station he was cheered by immense crowds of people who were gathered along the route.

HEAD-END COLLISION.

Both Engines Are Demolished, Seven Persons Killed and Several Injured.

Oil City, Pa., Nov. 17.—A head-end collision between a Pennsylvania extra freight train and the regular Lake Shore passenger train occurred two miles west of Polk shortly before 8 o'clock Friday night. Both engines were demolished, all of the passenger coaches left the track and 40 oil and coal cars of the freight train derailed. The wreckage destroyed all telegraph communication.

The killed are: Thomas Sutton, baggage master, of Ashtabula; John Kane, head brakeman of the freight train, aged 32, a resident of Newcastle; Engineer Pitzer, of the freight, aged 40 and a resident of Newcastle. Two male passengers and the newsboy, names unknown, are supposed to be dead beneath the wreckage.

Conductor James Paden, of this city, is hurt internally. Engineer Nathan Senter has both legs and left hip broken, and William Marvin, of Andover, O., had his left arm broken and head and face cut. The latter was thrown off the train over an 11-foot embankment, but walked two miles to the institute for the feeble minded at Polk and sent Superintendent Murdock and Dr. McDowell to the wreck and relief of the injured.

SOUTHERN STATES.

President Will Oppose Any Movement Looking to a Reduction of Congressional Representation.

Washington, Nov. 17.—The opinion is growing among public men who are in the confidence of the president that he will oppose any movement looking to a reduction of the congressional representation of the southern states on account of the charges of the disfranchisement of colored voters. The president is said to be opposed to reviving ill-feeling, which he thinks would be the result of a bill thus touching the south's suffrage. He has been told from many sources recently that an important element of southern business men, manufacturers and others is at heart with the republicans, and that the nucleus of a future revolution against existing political methods in the south has been securely established and should not be dissipated by legislation that would be regarded as sectional.

On account of the president's attitude, there is a growing opinion that legislation looking to the reduction of the southern representation will not be pressed by party leaders in congress.

PROMOTION SYSTEM.

Secretary Long Will Recommend Legislation Recognizing Officers' Distinguished Services.

Washington, Nov. 17.—It is understood that Secretary Long will renew his recommendation to congress for fitting recognition of the gallantry of officers who distinguished themselves during the Spanish-American war, with probably a similar recommendation as to those who have performed conspicuous service in China. The recommendation will follow the general lines of that made to former congresses for legislation looking to a re-arrangement of the promotion system.

A LONG CONTROVERSY

The Cost of Armor Plate For Naval Vessels Settled.

The Agreement Is Considered Most Satisfactory, the Terms Being Reduced to More Than a Reasonable Point.

Washington, Nov. 16.—Secretary Long Thursday announced the conclusion of the long controversy over the price of armor plate for naval vessels and an agreement with the Carnegie and Bethlehem companies for Krupp armor at $420 a ton, with the possible addition of royalty fees, making the maximum price $455.52 a ton. The amount of armor involved is the largest ever placed at one time by the government and it is said to equal all the armor purchased by the government up to 1896. It covers the armor for 17 ships now in various stages of construction, including eight battle ships, six armored cruisers and three protected cruisers.

The following official statement was given out concerning the agreement:

The navy department has come to an agreement with the Carnegie and Bethlehem companies for Krupp armor of the first class amounting to 24,950 tons, for $420 a ton. The Krupp process involves the Harvey patent, the validity of which is now under consideration by the courts, and it is further agreed that the government will assume in addition any liability for the Krupp process not exceeding $5 or $24.32 a ton Krupp royalty, and not exceeding the United States license fee of $11.20 for Harvey royalty. The maximum price to the government is therefore $455.52 a ton subject to diminution in case of any reduction in the foregoing royalties. The bid of these companies for this class of armor was $490 and the price originally asked was $545.

The Midvale company some time ago withdrew their bid, but they would have been unable, in any event, to furnish armor in due season for the Maine class of battle ships. Had they not withdrawn their bid it is probable that some arrangements might have been made for the distribution among the three companies of the manufacture of the armor other than that of the Maine class. Their bid, however, was of value in enabling the department to secure the above large reduction.

Adm. O'Neil, chief of the bureau of ordnance, said of the result:

"The agreement is most satisfactory. The terms are reduced not only to a reasonable point, but more than reasonable. We get armor cheaper than any country in the world. It is due not only to Secretary Long's able management of the matter, but also to the fact that the companies met him in a very reasonable spirit. It is only just that this should be understood."

The armor contract covers not only the 24,950 tons specified in the official statement but also some 10,000 tons of armor of the second and third class which has not been in controversy, but has been dependent upon the disposal of the first-class armor. The entire amount, approximately 35,000 tons, is now made available. New specifications have been prepared by the navy department showing in detail the tests, times of delivery, etc. There is some change in the classification, but in the main features the specifications are as they were when the last bids were made.

TRIPLE LYNCHING.

Three Negroes Who Attempted to Kill Mr. Stallcup Taken From Jail and Hanged.

Jefferson, Tex., Nov. 16.—Three Negroes who had been arrested by Sheriff Haywood for waylaying and attempting to kill Mr. Stallcup were taken from the jail Wednesday night by unknown persons and hanged to the railroad bridge across Cypress bayou. The Negroes had confessed to the crime. The mob that did the hanging overpowered the jailer and cut the telephone line so that the jailer could not communicate with the sheriff.

To Transport the Troops.

Washington, Nov. 16.—A cablegram has been sent to Gen. Davis, who is superintending the removal of the troops from Porto Rico, saying that the McClellan, Crook and Rawlins have been designated to transport the troops from San Juan to New York. The McClellan is expected to reach San Juan November 19 and the Crook and Rawlins on the 27th. Later the Crook will return for 300 mules.

Senator Morgan Renominated.

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 16.—The joint caucus of democrats of both houses of the Alabama legislature held Thursday night unanimously nominated Hon. J. T. Morgan for reelection as United States senator. No other name was presented. Senator Morgan was called before the meeting and thanked the members.

Official Vote in Oklahoma.

Guthrie, Okla., Nov. 16.—The official returns from all the counties have been received, and the vote on delegate to congress stands as follows: Flynn, rep., 38,233; Neff, fus., 33,530; Tucker, soc., 780; Allan, pop., 780; Flynn's plurality, 4,714.

Michigan's Population.

Washington, Nov. 16.—The population of the state of Michigan, as announced officially by the census bureau Thursday, is 2,420,982, as against 2,093,889 in 1890. This is an increase of 327,093, or 15.6 per cent.

POPULATION OF HAWAII.

The Census Bureau Reports It to Be 154,001, an Increase of 64,981 Over 1896.

Washington, Nov. 17.—The census bureau has issued a bulletin announcing the population of Hawaii by islands and districts. It shows the total population of Hawaii to be 154,001, an increase of 64,981, or 41.2 per cent. over 1896, the last census there. During the last ten years, from 1890 to 1900, or substantially the same interval as for the census of the United States proper, there has been an increase in population of 64,011, or 71.1 per cent. The total land surface of the Hawaiian islands is approximately 6,440 square miles; the average number of persons to the square mile being 23.8. The population of Hawaii in detail by islands is as follows:

Hawaii island, 46,843; Kauai island, 20,562; Mishau island, 172; Maui island, 25,475; Molokai and Lanai islands, 2,504; Oahu island, 58,504.

All the islands have increased materially in population since 1890 with the exception of Molokai and Lanai islands, which show a combined loss of 11.3 per cent. The largest percentage of increase reported is 87.5 for Oahu island, in which the city of Honolulu is situated.

The city of Honolulu is co-extensive with the district of Honolulu, in Oahu island, and is practically the only city in Hawaii. Honolulu had a population in 1890 of 22,207, showing an increase from 1890 to 1900 of 16,339, or 71.5 per cent.

NEW NAVAL GUNS.

Those to Be Furnished the Battle Ships and Armored Cruisers Tested at Indian Head.

Washington, Nov. 17.—Important tests of the new 12-inch naval gun, which is the type of the great guns to be furnished the new battle ships and armored cruisers, was in progress Thursday and Friday at Indian Head proving ground. The gun is the first of 40 for the new ships, and much interest has been shown in its performances. It is a modification of the old 12-inch gun, with an enlarged chamber suited to the use of smokeless powder, and designed to take much heavier charges and to secure a higher velocity and penetration than the old gun. The firing thus far has justified every expectation as to the new piece.

APACHE INDIANS.

A Band Attacks the Town of Pacheco, Mex.—Twelve Men Killed and Six Wounded.

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 17.—Dispatches received by the officials in Juarez, Mex., from Casas Grande state that a band of riding Apache Indians from San Carlos reservation, Ariz., attacked the town of Pacheco, Mex., 30 miles from Casas Grande, Thursday. In the fight which followed 12 Indians were killed and six Mormons wounded. Pacheco is a Mormon state having no communication with the outside world and details of the fight are lacking. Troops have been ordered from Casas Grande and Juarez to pursue the Apaches.

A VALUABLE WOMAN.

Mrs. Florence Pullman Lowden Is Insured For a Quarter of a Million Dollars.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—If a human life can be measured in money, Mrs. Florence Pullman Lowden is to-day the most valuable woman in the world. By policies recently placed, announcement of which was made Friday, she is insured for a quarter of a million dollars, the heaviest insurance carried by a woman. Her husband, Col. Frank O. Lowden, has taken out policies in a like amount. Mrs. Lowden is one of the two daughters of the late George M. Pullman. She has been a beneficiary under his will to the amount of $1,500,000.

THE G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT.

The Western Passenger Agents Refuse to Grant a Cent-a-Mile Rate For the Veterans.

Chicago, Nov. 17.—Railroads of the eastern passenger association Friday formally decided not to authorize the granting of a cent a mile rate for the proposed encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic at Denver next August. Unless the veterans back down from their stand Cleveland, in all probability, will be the location of the 35th annual encampment.

A HORRIBLE PENALTY.

Preston Porter, a Colored Lad, Dies at the Hands of a Mob.

Taken to the Spot Where He Murdered Little Louise Frost, He Was Chained to a Railroad Rail and Burned.

Limon, Col., Nov. 17.—Chained to a railroad rail set firmly in the ground, on the exact spot where his fiendish crime was committed, Preston Porter, jr., or, as he was familiarly known, John Ponter, Friday evening paid a terrible penalty for his deed. It was 6:25 o'clock when the father of the murdered girl touched the match to the fuel which had been piled around the Negro, and 20 minutes later a last convulsive shudder told that life was extinct. What agony the doomed boy suffered while the flames shriveled up his flesh could only be guessed from the terrible contortions of his face and the cries he gave from time to time.

For more than an hour, while preparations for his execution were in progress, he stood mute and sullen among the avengers. When everything was ready he walked to the stake with a firm step, pausing as he reached the circle of broken boards to kneel in prayer. He was allowed to take his time. He arose and placed his back to the iron stake, and half a dozen men wound chains around his body and limbs.

Kerosene oil was applied to the wood, and after a brief pause Richard W. Frost, the father of little Louise Frost, whose cruelly mutilated body was found one week ago on that very spot, applied a match. For a moment but a little flickering flame arose. Then the oil blazed up, sparks flew into the air and the wood began to crackle. Almost instantly the Negro's trousers caught fire. At first he did not utter a sound.

Not an oath escaped him, but he begged and pleaded to be shot. Suddenly the rope holding his hands burned through. Then arms, head and shoulders slipped through the chains. For an instant the body stood erect, the arms were raised in supplication, while burning pieces of clothing dropped from them. The body then fell away from the fire, the head lower than the feet, still fastened to the rail. This was not expected, and for a few minutes those stolid men were disconcerted; they feared that the only remaining chain would give way. If this had occurred the partly burned human being would have dashed among them in his blazing garments, and not many would have cared to capture him again. But the chain held fast. The body was then in such a position that only the legs were in the fire. The cries of the wretch were redoubled, and he again begged to be shot.

The flames crept slowly upward on his clothing, the sparks flew up in a cloud of pale smoke. Porter turned his head and a frightful expression changed his face. With a sudden convulsive tugging he stretched his head as far from the rapidly increasing flames as possible and uttered a cry of pain.

"Oh, my God! men, let me go! I've got something more to tell you. Please let me go. Oh, my God! my God!"

In terrible screeches these words, the first he had uttered aloud, came from the Negro. A terrible tugging at the chains, a succession of awful groans and screams—the Negro's agony was at last breaking down his sullen composure.

Some wanted to throw him over into the fire; others tried to dash oil on him. Boards were carried and a large pile made over the prostrate body. They soon were ignited, and the terrible heat and lack of air quickly rendered the victim unconscious, bringing death a few moments later.

The train bearing the Negro, in custody of Sheriff Freeman and his deputies, arrived in Limon at 3:45 p. m. The cars were crowded with newspaper reporters and people who were curious to see the Negro executed. Richard Frost, the murdered girl's father, was one of the passengers. When the train stopped 16 men who had been selected by the vigilance committee entered the train and demanded the prisoner from the sheriff. Their every action was marked by calmness and determination. The officer protested in the name of the law and asked the men to allow him to take his prisoner to the county jail at Hugo, but his protests were disregarded.

One man carried a rope, one end of which had been formed into a hangman's noose. This was slipped over the Negro's neck. It was at first announced that the Negro was to be executed by hanging. Many, including the father of the Negro's victim, protested that such a death would be too easy, and it was finally decided to leave the method of death to the father. He decided upon burning at the stake. The train was then allowed to proceed.

Clerks to Be Dismissed.

Washington, Nov. 17.—About 400 clerks in the census bureau will be dismissed between now and December 1, owing to the diminishing of the work. This will leave a force of about 3,000 at that time and the number will be materially reduced at intervals.

LIEUTENANT PETERSON

Says Peruna is The Finest Tonic And Invigorator He Ever Used.

Lieutenant Charles Peterson, Hook and Ladder Co. No. 21, writes the following letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., from 627 Belmont avenue, Chicago, Ill.:

"Last year I had a severe attack of la grippe which left me very weak, so that I was unable to perform my duties. Several of my friends advised me to build up on Peruna, and I found it by far the finest tonic and invigorator I had ever used. In two weeks I was strong and well, and if ever I am exposed to unusual hardship incident with my duties at fires, I take a dose or two of Peruna and find that it keeps me in good health." Charles Peterson.

Lieut. Chas. Peterson.

The above is only one of fifty thousand letters we have on file attesting the merits of Peruna.

There are a great multitude of people in all parts of the land who have entirely lost their health as a result of la grippe; who have recovered from an attack, but find themselves with weakened nerves, deranged digestion, and with but very little of their former powers.

There is no disease known to man that leaves the system in such an outrageous and exasperating condition as la grippe.

For this class of sufferers, Peruna is a specific. Peruna should be taken according to directions and in a few weeks the sufferer will be entirely restored to his accustomed health.

SEVERAL SKIRMISHES.

An Increase in Filipino and American Activity in the Field.

Insurgents Are Continually Shooting Into the Garrisoned Towns, and Our Forces Have Not Been Sufficient to Retaliate.

Manila, Nov. 19.—First uncensored news by cablegram since the American occupation.)—Last week witnessed a considerable increase in rebel and American activity in the field. Many skirmishes occurred and several smaller engagements in Northern and Southern Luzon. The termination of the rains permits a resumption of operations on both sides. The Americans are undertaking a series of aggressive movements against the insurgents, notably upon the island of Samar, against Gen. Lukban, whose forces hold the entire island, with the exception of three coast towns, each of which is garrisoned by two companies of the 29th infantry and a platoon of artillery.

The rebels are continually shooting into the garrisoned towns, and our forces have not been sufficient to retaliate effectively. Commerce in Samar has been at a standstill, and most of the influential inhabitants have departed. Gen. Hare has arrived there with 250 men. He will bring eight companies of the 2d infantry from the island of Marinduque, as they may be needed, and will proceed energetically to crush Gen. Tukban. Meanwhile United States gunboats will patrol the coast to prevent the escape of the insurgent leader. Lukban still holds three members of the 43d regiment prisoners.

The rifles which the party of Capt. Devereaux Shields, of Company E, 29th volunteer infantry, lost last September in Marinduque, at the time of the capture, have not yet been recovered from all the insurgents.

All of the Marinduque garrisons are being continued. The 14th infantry, which recently arrived from China, will relieve the 21st infantry from duty in Manila, and the 21st will relieve the 58th infantry in Southern Luzon, the 58th proceeding to the island of Panay to reinforce the troops there. The 28th infantry will reinforce the garrisons in the island of Mindanao, particularly at Kagayan, where an armed truce between the Americans and rebels has existed for months past.

Gen. Wheaton, commanding in the department of Northern Luzon, is sending reinforcements to Gen. Young's province, where the natives under Gens. Tinio and Aghpay, the excommunicated Filipino priest, are showing signs of restlessness, deserting the domiciles they have occupied during the rainy season and joining under compulsion or fear the insurgents in the mountains.

Notable among the week's engagements was Gen. Grant's advance with Maccabee and American scouts upon a rebel stronghold 35 miles north of Manila, which was defended by 200 insurgents armed with rifles. After skirmishing and fighting for the greater part of a day and night, the enemy was dislodged from the mountain fastness, and immense quantities of rice and stores, with ammunition, were destroyed. Fifty Filipinos were killed and many others wounded. The insurgents carried off their dead. The American losses were 11 privates and one officer wounded and one Maccabee killed.

Lieut. Frederick W. Alstaeter, of the engineers, who was captured by the insurgents in Luzon last September, has sent, with the permission of his captors, a letter to Manila asking for food, money and clothing, which will be forwarded to him by a native runner. His health is broken, and his release problematical.

ROBBED AND DESERTED.

The Sad Experience of a Detroit Woman Who Had Been Married But a Few Hours.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 19.—Mrs. Hattie E. Norton, of Detroit, was married to Charles R. Holmes, of San Francisco, in Windsor, Ont., Saturday evening. Late Sunday afternoon Mrs. Holmes raised an alarm in the Manning Hotel and sent messengers looking for her husband. He could not be found. Then she examined the lining of her skirt, where she had secreted $700. The money was missing. Mrs. Holmes said she had known her husband but two weeks, having become acquainted with him through a matrimonial paper. After being married Saturday evening at the house of Rev. D. H. Hind they retired, first drinking some wine ordered by her husband. She says she believes she was drugged. Dr. A. Soper, who was called to attend her, said she was under the influence of a drug. The $700 Mrs. Holmes says was drawn from the bank by her at the suggestion of Holmes. The police are looking for the absent man.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Robert J. Stell, secretary-treasurer of the Monadnock Loan and Investment Co., has disappeared. It is said his books show a shortage of $25,000.

WIRELESS TELEPHONING.

An Experiment Was Tried at Powderhorn Lake, Minn., Which Proved a Success.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 19.—An experiment in wireless telephoning which was tried at Powderhorn Lake Sunday afternoon proved a decided success and may take the place of the old system of wires.

The originator of the idea is J. C. Kelsey, who is in charge of the switchboard at the Northwestern Telephone Exchange Co.'s building, and with him were five other employes of the company.

The method is a very simple one. On either sides of the lake they strung a wire about one hundred feet in length, the two being parallel. They were above the ground, and fastened with grounding pins to insure better induction. An ordinary local telephone transmitter and receiver were attached to either wire. When the transmitting circuit is cut in it induces the current into the receiving circuit and when the receiving circuit is cut in it induces the circuit into the transmitting circuit.

In this way the advantage of both circuits is secured, with out the use of wire, and as a result the conversation can be carried on more easily and with better results. The wires to which the instruments were attached run parallel and there are two currents in operation all the time. The one going from one end of the wire to the other and the second flowing to its affinity, as it were—that is, the parallel wires.

The use of the system is not confined to water. It is available on land if good ground facilities can be secured. The experimenters say that they could easily converse a distance of 20 miles with the crude instruments used Sunday.

BOY KILLED HIS FATHER.

The Mother, Sister and the Latter's Husband Implicated in the Terrible Crime.

Poplar Bluff, Mo., Nov. 19.—Walter Alexander, the 15-year-old son of Richard Alexander, a farmer living across the line in Arkansas, is under arrest on suspicion of being implicated in the death of his father, who was shot and killed Saturday. Young Alexander, who was arrested pending an investigation, is said to have confessed the crime and to have implicated his mother, sister, and the latter's husband, James Hogan, all of whom have been arrested and placed in jail at Corning, Ark.

Citizens are aroused, and Hogan, whom they profess to believe is at the bottom of the affair, will be taken to the county jail at Paragould, Ark., for safe keeping.

FATAL HOTEL FIRE.

The McGonigal House at Oswayo, Pa., Burned, and Four Men Lost Their Lives in the Flames.

Oswayo, Pa., Nov. 19.—Four men were burned to death in a fire which Sunday destroyed the McGonigal house, a three-story frame building, the hotel barn and the opera house. The three buildings were burned to the ground in half an hour from the time the fire started.

The town has no fire department, its only protection being a pump at the tannery. The fire originated in the McGonigal house from the overpressure of natural gas. There were 30 people in the hotel, which was a flimsy structure. Two men were seriously injured. Otto Kauley, a gas line walker of Coudersport, Pa., was burned about the face and arms and Jerry Dailey sustained a broken shoulder by jumping from the third story of the hotel. There were many narrow escapes, most of the occupants jumping from the windows of the building.

Wall Street Broker Assigns.

New York, Nov. 19.—Francis D. Carley, well known Wall street broker who lives at Orange, N. J., made the announcement Sunday at Newark that late on Saturday he filed in the United States district court at Trenton a petition in bankruptcy. The petition declare liabilities to be more than a million and the assets nothing.

Cowboys' Duel.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 19.—John and Albert Olderice and Tobias Borner, cowboys, fought a duel in the mountains near Otto, Wyo. Three horses were killed and the Alderice brothers were seriously wounded. John received a ball in each arm and Albert was shot in the stomach. The two families have been at war for some time. Further trouble may result.

A Block Burned.

Davenport, Ia., Nov. 19.—The Renwick block, occupied by the Davenport Furniture and Carpet Co., and the adjacent buildings of Harold Peterson Wallpaper Co., Jarvis, White & Co. and Berry shoe house, burned on Sunday afternoon. Loss, $100,000; insurance, $80,000.

New York, Nov. 19.—"Billy" West, the famous minstrel, and for a long time a member of the Primrose and West minstrel organization, has just passed successfully through a dangerous operation.

PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

Situation is Favorable to Beginning a Preliminary Settlement.

Military Operations in the Orient Are Virtually at a Standstill—German and Italian Expeditions Were Unopposed.

Peking, Nov. 17, via Shanghai, Nov. 19.—The belief that the note of the powers to the Chinese commissioners, Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang, will be completed soon is strengthened by the results of the recent informal conferences of the ministers of the powers.

Mr. Conger, the United States minister, said to a correspondent Sunday:

"The situation is apparently very favorable to the early beginning of negotiations for the preliminary settlement. I believe that the next meeting of the foreign envoys will virtually settle all points of difference between the representatives of the powers who will lose no time in presenting the demands.

"What the result will be it is impossible to foretell. Even this has placed China in a very critical position. Whether she will be able to preserve her integrity and to save her trade relations with the rest of the world will depend upon what the powers demand in the final settlement and upon her willingness to accept promptly the conditions proposed.

"It is quite unlikely, if not impossible, that the Chinese court will return to Peking before next spring but I do not anticipate any serious delay in the progress of the negotiations with the Chinese commissioners as they are in telegraphic communication with the court."

Military operations are virtually at a standstill. The German and Italian expeditions northward passed the Nan-Kau pass unopposed.

Peking, Nov. 16, via Shanghai, Nov. 19.—Sanitary conditions here are becoming serious. Since the foreign occupation many Chinese died of smallpox and other infectious diseases. Fearing that their funerals would be interfered with, they have kept most of the coffins containing their dead in their houses and court yards.

The question of removing garbage has become one of great importance. As the natives are forbidden to deposit refuse in the streets, there is now an enormous accumulation in their dwellings and yards, which threatens a serious epidemic. In view of the large number of troops in and near the capital the consequences of such an outbreak would be frightful. Smallpox, which is always prevalent, is much more malignant during the winter season, and the danger here is now alarmingly increasing.

Paris, Nov. 19.—The following advices have been received from Peking, dated November 17:

"M. Pichon (French minister in Peking) visited Li Hung Chang, who handed to him imperial decrees depriving Prince Tuan and Prince Chwang of their titles of nobility and directing that they be imprisoned at Muhden until death. The decrees assert that Prince Ying has already been degraded and imprisoned, that Prince Lien has been ordered not to leave his palace, that Duke Lin and Ying Nien, president of the censorate, and others, have been degraded and that Yu Hsien has been exiled.

"Another decree says it is impossible to arrest Gen. Tung Fu Hsiang at present because he is in possession of the troops, but that he will be punished later."

THE CZAR'S CONDITION.

Bulletins Give It as Favorable—Weakness of Heart, However, Causes Some Apprehension.

London, Nov. 18.—The only reliable news regarding the condition of Emperor Nicholas published here Monday morning is the Lividia bulletin, but dispatches from Berlin and Copenhagen all speak equally favorable. A dispatch from the Danish capital says the dowager czarina will remain at Fredensborg possibly until December 3.

According to the Moscow correspondent of the Daily Express the weakness of the czar's heart causes some apprehension.

Their Charred Remains Found.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 19.—The charred remains of Mrs. Mary Van Lieu, colored, and her two-year-old daughter, were found Sunday morning in the ruins of their home at Trenton Junction, which was destroyed by fire Saturday night. Robert Henson, also colored, was lodged in jail here Sunday night and committed to await a hearing on the charge of the murder of Mrs. Van Lieu and her daughter and the burning of their home.

Cotton Burned.

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 17.—A fire at noon Friday destroyed one section of the Dahli Bros. compress and storage warehouse. Seven hundred bales of cotton were burned or damaged and the loss on the cotton and building was $40,500, fully covered by insurance.

Yellow Fever Situation Improving.

Havana, Nov. 17.—During the cool weather of the last three days the yellow fever situation has improved. Sixty-five cases are now under treatment, including seven Americans.

THE HAWAIIAN RACE.

The Decrease Has Been Steadily Growing Less for Some Years—The Effect of Annexation.

Washington, Nov. 19.—The decrease of the Hawaiian race has been steadily growing less rapid for the past several decades, especially the female population, according to the annual report of ex-President Sanford B. Dole, governor of Hawaii. The increase of part Hawaiians tends to keep down the number of pure Hawaiians. While the figures show race progress, the census reports as to surviving children are discouraging. In both the censuses of 1890 and 1896 the pure Hawaiian percentage of survivors was the lowest of all nationalities represented in the islands. An encouraging outlook for the Hawaiians exists in the fact that out of 6,327 owners of real estate in 1896, 3,095 were pure Hawaiians and 722 part Hawaiians.

The facts are significant as showing the ownership of holdings by so large a number of pure Hawaiians and the evident tendency of the race to acquire homesteads. The ex-president reports that there is reason to expect that annexation is going to influence Hawaiian character very favorably through the changed conditions effected. Their old dependence on their chiefs has ceased, and they are forced to rely much on themselves, and their footing with the whites in general in the future will be equal. The political privileges they enjoy in common with other American citizens, he says, will tend to educate them in public affairs. The total valuation of real estate in Hawaii subject to ad valorem assessment in 1900 is $97,491,584. The receipts from taxes are estimated at $1,341,650. The commerce of Hawaii is shown for the period between January 1 and June 14, 1900, as follows:

Imports, $10,683,516; exports, $14,404,496; customs revenue, $597,397. With the exception of the production of sugar, rice, firewood, fertilizers and live stock, and the promotion of irrigation, the development of the natural resources of the Hawaiian islands is stated to have scarcely begun. Recommendations are submitted for legislation thoroughly revising the Hawaiian corporation laws, in view of some deficiencies and questionable features in the same and new conditions since annexation; legislation for appointment of various commissioners for the protection of food fishes; providing for education of children unable to pass the required medical examinations; for irrigation legislation, and for a general act governing municipal systems. The report says the present aggregate area of the public lands is approximately 1,772,713 acres, valued at $3,569,800.

SUBMARINE BOATS.

John Holland Has Planned a Number of Sea Voyages For His Vessels Now Building.

New York, Nov. 19.—John Holland, the inventor of the submarine boat, Sunday announced that he has planned a number of sea voyages for his boats now under course of construction. These include a trip to Cuba and another to Europe. As a precautionary measure, a tender will accompany the boats. The tender will carry extra men and duplicate parts of the machinery, in case any of the crew are incapacitated or the submarine boats meet with accidents. A full crew of seven men will man each craft.

These sea trials will be made in March next, when the heaviest weather and the roughest seas are encountered in the Atlantic. The southern trip will be taken when the trip across the ocean is made. The first stop will be made at the Bermudas and the next at Lisbon.

TRIPLE DROWNING.

Three Persons Capsized From a Rowboat While Making Their Way to Board a Steamer.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 19.—A triple drowning is reported from Hetta lake, at the head of Hunter's bay, Alaska. The dead: Mrs. James Taylor, of San Francisco, Cal.; Miss Bafler, of Table Rock, Neb.; Foreman Early of the Hunter's Bay cannery. The three persons were capsized November 1 from a rowboat in which they were making their way out to board the steamer Valenoia, which they proposed taking for San Francisco. Mrs. Taylor's body was rescued. She was the wife of James Taylor, formerly of Marysville, O., one of the managers of the Pacific Steam Whaling Co.'s cannery at Hunter's Bay. Miss Baker, who was a daughter of Mrs. G. W. Baker, of Table Rock, Neb., has been a missionary of Southwestern Alaska for ten years.

Idaho's Official Returns.

Boise, Ida., Nov. 19.—Complete returns from the state election show an average plurality of 1,893 for Bryan electors. Hunt, fusion, has a plurality of 2,233 for governor, and Clenn, fusion, for congress, beats Morrison 1,193.

Feared He Would Go Insane.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Elmer G. Harz, a wealthy coal dealer residing at 504 Dearborn avenue, shot himself in the mouth, dying instantly. A note written by Mr. Harz stated that he feared he was going insane.

STATE NEWS PICK-UPS.

KENTUCKY'S POPULATION.

It Is Officially Announced By the Census Bureau at 2,147,174, a Gain of 13.5 Per cent.

Washington, Nov. 16.—The population of the state of Kentucky, as officially announced Thursday, is 2,147,174, against 1,858,635 in 1890. This is an increase of 288,539, or 15.5 per cent. The population in 1880 was 1,648,690, showing an increase of 209,945, or 12.7 per cent., from 1880 to 1890. The population by counties is as follows:

HIS OLD PLACE.

John W. Yerkes Appointed Collector of Internal Revenue in the Eighth District.

Washington, Nov. 16.—John W. Yerkes, late republican candidate for governor of Kentucky, Thursday afternoon was appointed collector of internal revenue for the Eighth district. He will assume his duties on November 20.

Mr. Yerkes, who resigned the office to which he has been appointed to make his campaign of Kentucky for the governorship, called on the commissioner of internal revenue Thursday. He said he had abandoned all idea of contesting Gov. Beckham's election.

KENTUCKIANS AFTER TAYLOR.

Mysterious Crowd of Them Appeared in Indianapolis, Their Object Being Unknown.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 17.—It was reported late Friday afternoon that Kentucky had sent another delegation of residents to Indianapolis for the purpose of securing the return to the Blue Grass state of ex-Gov. Taylor. The men were at the state house Friday morning and inquired for Mr. Taylor. They were sent to the Denison hotel, and from there said they would go to the court house. Nothing more of them had been heard of them up to an early hour Saturday morning.

She Won't Kiss Him.

Whitesburg, Ky., Nov. 17.—In the Pike county circuit court John Ratliff, aged 33, a wealthy merchant of Burns, has asked for a divorce from his beautiful young wife because, he alleges, she will not kiss him.

Big Liabilities.

Paducah, Ky., Nov. 17.—E. C. Wolfe, tin and metal worker, filed a petition in bankruptcy, giving $25,000 liabilities, contracted, he claims, through his former partner when they were in business at Chattanooga, Tenn.

Must Pay the Fee.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 16.—The Kentucky insurance commissioner is after the life insurance agents who have failed to pay their license fee of $10 for the past year. Unless they pay up at once proceedings to collect the fine of $30 to $100 will be instituted.

Another Gridiron Accident.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Nov. 17.—While making a mad dash for goal in a football game Parker, the 16-year-old son of Railroad Commissioner Wood, twisted his right ankle, which broke under his weight.

IN EXAMINER'S HANDS.

German National Bank of Newport, Leading Financial Institution, Not Open For Business.

Newport, Ky., Nov. 19.—No business will be done by the German national bank of Newport for some days.

Oliver P. Tucker has been in practical charge of the institution since Sunday morning, and Monday it was placed under the direction of the United States controller of the currency. This means the bank will be closed, and those who have money deposited will have to wait until all accounts are audited before they will be able to obtain one cent of their money.

It is reported that Frank Brown, the bookkeeper, is a defaulter to the amount of $191,000, almost double the bank's capital stock. By a simple system he deceived examiners, directors and other employes.

One of the unfortunate features of the affair is the fact that the German national bank was the chief depository for the building associations of the city, and had the funds of no less than nine of the people's savings societies in its vaults. What the effect of the suspension will be on the associations can only be conjectured. The city funds of Bellevue and Dayton were also on deposit, as were those of the Newport public library and several other public institutions.

The knowledge that he was short a large sum preyed on the mind of Frank Brown, and even before the general public had news of it he confessed to plndering the German national bank at Newport. In the confusion there is much candor on the part of Brown, and the circumstances of it are unusually peculiar.

Brown left the city last Tuesday night, having purchased a ticket for St. Louis on the Big Four road. He gave out that he was bound for Odin, Ill., on a hunting trip, but, in reality, he was on the way to St. Louis, and from there to parts unknown, as he was aware by this time that the jig was up and he had come to the end of his rope.

SHOT FROM AMBUSH.

Near Jackson, Joel Tharp Was Fired on While In His Yard Washing For Breakfast.

Jackson, Ky., Nov. 17.—Friday morning about daylight Joel Tharp was shot from ambush. He was at his home, about six miles from here, on Smith's Branch, and had just come out into his yard to wash for breakfast when he was fired on. The ball struck him in the right shoulder and may prove fatal. It is not known who fired the shot, as it came from the woods near his house. Tharp was fired on by some unknown party about six months ago in the same manner, but escaped being hit. It is also reported that some parties undertook to rob Mr. Bryant Spicer, who lives about eight miles from here on the river. They succeeded in breaking into the house, but Spicer used his shotgun and they left before getting anything. They were tracked four or five miles by bloodhounds, and it is thought Spicer fatally wounded one or more of them. The robbers rode stolen horses to Spicer's house, but they returned them during the night to the place from which they got them, and the saddles were bloody, showing that wounded men rode them.

INJURED BY A FALL.

She Was Dying When the Wedding Ceremony Was Performed, and Succumbed Soon Afterward.

Carlisle, Ky., Nov. 17.—Mrs. Oliver Kash Clay died at the home of her father, in this city, a few hours after her wedding, which took place under the most distressing circumstances. Mrs. Clay was Miss Inez Burgess, a beautiful young woman. She had been engaged since youth to Mr. Clay and the wedding date had been set for November 15. All preparations had been made for a church wedding, when on Sunday Miss Burgess, while leaving her home, slipped on the porch and fell, her back striking a sharp part of the step and breaking the spinal column. Her injuries were necessary fatal, but the broken-hearted lovers desired that their troth should be plighted before death. Kneeling beside the bed of his sweetheart, the groom and the dying woman took the vows. A little later she was dead.

Fox Hunt Declared Off.

Irvine, Ky., Nov. 17.—The national fox hunters declared their meet off after three days' hunting with the Derby dogs. The judges were unable to decide the winners.

Were Rolling Stones.

Vanceburg, Ky., Nov. 19.—Willie Cole and Freddie Cooper, 6-year-old boys, were rolling stones down a steep hillside, when one of them struck Willie in the head. The child is still unconscious and, it is feared, fatally injured.

Brakeman Cut to Pieces.

Somerset, Ky., Nov. 19.—"Tobe" Brown, a brakeman on the C., N. O. & T. P. railway, was run over and killed at Cumberland Falls, 20 miles south of here. He fell from a train and was cut to pieces.

LOCAL NEWS.

Considerable tobacco has been bulked down since day before yesterday. Clem Kendall is hauling his crop to Hogan & Conner's warehous.

Notwithstanding the unfavorable weather the party given at the Boone House, last night was well attendyd, and a success in every particular.

Samuel Hind, of Walton, who has been in bad health for a long time, died yesterday. He had many friends in this county, who will be sorry to hear of his death.

There will be a Thanksgiving service at the Burlington Baptist Church, at 11 o'clock Thanksgiving Day. Elders Kirtley and Hoover will take part. Eld. Kirtley will preach the sermon.

J. M. Campbell and Abe Furst, of Cincinnati, came out Monday morning to take a hunt. They, accompanied by J. F. Blyth and Charles Wilson, went out on the Gunpowder hills, but the wind blew so strong they hunted only a few hours.

Myrce Biddell had the telephone operators at Petersburg, Bullittsville and Union, excited Tuesday morning when he called them up and reported a suicide in Burlington. They began to ask particulars, and were agreeably surprised when informed that the rash act was committed by Dudley Rouse's fine Plymouth Rock rooster jumping into a well.

Made Young Again.

"One of Dr. King's New Life Pills each night for two weeks has put me in my 'teens' again," writes D. H. Turner, of Dennisetown, Pa. They're the best in the world for Liver, Stomach and Bowels Purely vegetable. Never Gripe. Only 25c at Mckim's, Burlington; Crouch's, Union; Oelsner's, Florence.

It has developed in the last day or two that the safe in the depot at Erlanger, was opened and robbed of $200 on the night of the 2d instant. The job was done by some one who had caught on to the combination on the safe door, which was unlocked The railroad kept the robbery quiet, and put detectives at work on the case, but no arrests have been.

Democratic County Executive Committeemen were elected as follows, last Monday, as far as reported up to time of going to press:

Burlington—A. B. Rouse.
Bullittsville—C. W. Riley.
Petersburg—J. W. Berkshire.
Big Bone—John L. Jones.
Walton—Jamerson H. Rogers.
Constance—Walter Gerdon.
No meeting held at Union.

Mr. Harrison Clore, of Hebron, was in deep distress for several hours last Thursday afternoon. While waiting on this side of the river at Anderson's ferry for the boat, he was brushing some dust off his pants, when his $100 diamond ring flew off of his finger. He at once began a search for it, but was unsuccessful. That evening Captain Henry Kotmeyer's son and a colored boy, after a short search found the ring, which had gone a considerable distance from where Mr. C. was doing the brushing act.

The meeting held last Monday to select a Democratic executive committeeman for this precinct was called to order at the county clerk's office shortly after one o'clock, by W. E. Castleman, the retiring committeeman, who stated the object of the meeting. W. L. Riddell was chosen secretary. The chairman then called for nominations for precinct committeeman, and A. B. Rouse being the only one nominated he was unanimously elected. Mr. Rouse thanked the meeting for the honor conferred upon him, and said he would discharge the duties of the office fairly and impartially and to the best interests of the party. The meeting then adjourned.

William Craddock, who shot and badly wounded his brother-in-law, Albert Fullilove, at Walton, on the day of the Congressional primary election, Sept. 21st, last, and for whose arrest a reward of $150 was offered was, arrested yesterday morning by J. A. Sanders, of Walton. Mr. Sanders went to a barn of his that is over in Kenton county, but not far from Walton, and whom should he find there but Craddock, who surrendered without giving Mr. S. any trouble. Craddock was brought to Burlington, and his examining trial set for next Saturday. Fullilove, whose death was looked for for several days after the shooting has about recovered. The reward will pay Mr. Sanders very well for a rainy day's work.

M. F. Goodridge, Ballardsville, Ky., under date of Nov., 14th, writes: "Dear Sir:—I saw a piece in your paper about a book, title 'Stringtown on the Pike,' written by John Boyd. I would like to know the price of the book. I used to go to school with him, and I feel interested in the book. We are very dry in this section now; the early wheat is badly damaged by the Hessian fly; corn is yielding very well. There is some fine shipping cattle in this county; one of my neighbors has 50 that will average between 1,500 and 1,600 pounds. There are a great many sheep in this county, they look well and are very high. Mules and horses are in good demand. The election is over and all is quiet again—Bryan and Beckham got a big majority in this co. Nothing more of interest."

The Grau Piano Co.

In their new and enlarged home at Nos. 130-132 West Fourth St., Cincinnati, are now displaying the largest stock of High Grade Pianos exhibited in any western establishment. This firm has acquired the confidence of the better class of the piano buying public by their strict adherence to a rigidly honorable policy. While they do not handle so-called bargains offered in pianos, they really do present genuine bargains at low prices. Their magnificent ware rooms are well worthy of a visit showing a stock of Steinway, Stock, Kranich and Bach, Kurtzmann, Lindeman and the well known Ludwig Piano, which latter recently received a high medal at the Paris Exposition. Their assortment of Pianos is certainly a credit to Cincinnati.

The best and most convenient place to store the apples on the farm for winter is in the cellar. The apples usually should be picked the first of October, always before they freeze. After picking they should be kept in a cool room until the cold weather sets in. As a rule, winter apples can be kept in an outhouse until the first of December, and some men do not aim to put in cellar much before Christmas. Then every decayed or worm-eaten apple should be picked from among the sound apples and stored separately. The sound ones may be put in barrels or boxes. Or, if a man can, it is a good plan to make crates holding a bushel each. The crates admit of the air circulating freely between the fruit. Every place where fruit is stored should be well ventilated. When put in barrels it helps to bore holes in the heads and sides of the barrel. Successful shippers observe this rule in the summer and fall. Some hard varieties keep nicely if buried in the ground just before the hard, cold weather sets in. A pit should be dug in a dry place where there is no danger of water standing when there is a rain or thaw of snow, deep enough to hold the required number of bushels; and it should be nicely lined with hay or straw before the apples are put in. Then fill near the level of the ground cover with layer of sweet hay or straw and finish with layer of clean boards, to prevent the dirt mixing with fruit. Then put on two feet of dirt. In the spring the apples will come out in lovely condition; at least this has been our experience. However, none but the hardiest and best keepers should be treated to a bed of earth during the winter, for most varieties need sorting once or twice before the cold weather is over. If one wants to keep a few of a favorite kind until late spring or summer time it can be done by securing a good barrel and a quantity of dry sawdust. Then set on blossom end, but do not let them touch; when the layer is in fill between and cover with the sawdust and continue to put in apples and sawdust until the barrel is full. Then securely cover and set in a cool, dry corner of cellar until fruit is wanted for use. I have eaten lovely Jocathans kept in this way in August.—Cor. Chicago Drovers' Journal.

"I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and find it to be a great medicine," says Mr. E. S. Phipps, of Poteau, Ark. "It cured me of bloody flux. I cannot speak too highly of it." This remedy always wins the good opinion, if not praise, of those who use it. The quick cures which it effects even in the most severe cases make it a favorite everywhere. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; Grant, Bellevue; Baldy, Bullittsville.

There does not seem to be any way of clearly accounting for the fact that lighting rods have suddenly become fashionable in Brooklyn. There is quite a boom in suburban building there and nearly all new residences are being crowded with metal spikes.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1900. NO. 6.

THE Democrats will hold a primary election in Grant county, next Saturday, to nominate candidates for county offices. Following is laid down by the committee as the qualifications of a voter:

"All known Democrats who voted for W. J. B., for President in November, 1900, and all young men who come of age between the last election in November, 1901, and who announce their intention of becoming Democrats and supporting the Democratic ticket."

RISING SUN people are elated over the prospects of the Big Four railroad being extended to their town in a short time, thence on down the river to Louisville. The survey for the extension is to begin at once, and the Sunners will give the enterprise all the encouragement in their power. This road will be worth something to that little city, while the electric road would prove a disadvantage to its business interests.

ONE of Ohio's former State Treasurers died, a few days ago, of cancer, said to have been the result of long handling of money, the bacteria on the greenbacks, poisoning his hand. There are a great many who will be alive and hicking when Gabriel sounds his trumpet if they are allowed to live until handling money proves fatal to them.

AT first sight it seems somewhat amazing that the Steel Trust should demand so soon after the triumphant re-election of Mr. McKinley that its employes in the President's own state shall consent to a wage reduction of 33 per cent, the greatest ever known to American steel workers.

A VOTING machine used in Northhampton, Mass., where 2,400 votes were cast, made it possible for the result to be known in New York City within ten minutes after the polls closed.

IT has been more than two weeks since McKinley was reelected, but the Philippine war is in progress yet. That scrap was to be concluded in two weeks after Bryan's defeat.

IT is estimated that the out-put of gold next year will be $365,000,000, one million dollars per day. Of this vast amount the United States will yield $94,000,000.

THE Chinese Minister, Wu, was well pleased with his visit to Cincinnati. He says it is a nice city, full of industry, smoke, progress and kind people.

IT is said that Roosevelt actually wants to ride with the President on inauguration day that the latter may get the benefit of some of the applause.

CALLING in an examiner after an officer has looted his bank and disappeared with the money, is like calling in a doctor after the patient has expired.

THE probability is the candidates for county offices will have ample time in which to call on all the voters before a primary election is held.

THE returns are all in and they show that only four people were killed on last election day. Who says Kentucky is not improving?

IN the State of Ohio Bryan received this year exactly the same number of votes that were cast for him there in 1896.

IT is believed that the Government will build a dam at Cullum's riffle for the improvement of navigation.

BECKHAM'S majority is 3,553. It is not as wide as a barn door nor deep as a well, but it is sufficient.

IT does not look reasonable that this county has lost nearly 1,100 population in the last ten years.

UNCLE SAM is making very poor progress collecting that little sum that Turkey owes him.

AMONG the acts of the next Congress will be one fixing the standing army at 100,000.

The Boone County Democratic Executive Committee is now in working order.

Editorial Paragraphs.

The real cause of the delay in settling the Chinese matter is the doubt as to just how much squeezing that country is able to stand.

o o o

New York reproachfully announces that it has been compelled to take down the Dewey arch, as the rest of the country absolutely refused to raise the money necessary to put it into good condition.

o o o

Before long it may be necessary for the world to form a Society for the Suppression of Cruelty to Boxers, if the Germans and Russians continue to forget that they are supposed to represent civilized nations.

o o o

The Sulu treaty seems to have done most effective campaign work in Utah, where the entire Mormon vote seems to have been cast for McKinley, doubtless as a slight return for his recognition of polygamy in those Asiatic islands.

The report of a week ago that the volunteers would be kept in the Philippines until next July is now confirmed on authority. Before the election it was announced that the war was over and that the volunteers would begin to come home this month.

o o o

Now Germany has put up a wail because American coal can be taken across the Atlantic and sold in Germany cheaper than German coal. Yet there is a heavy duty on the importation of coal to the United States in order to protect the mine owners from pauper foreign coal.

o o o

One of two things is certain. Either General McArthur has made a flagrant failure of the Philippine work or else General Otis made flagrant misstatements regarding the condition of things there when he left, and, so far, we have not seen it suggested that McArthur has failed.

o o o

It seems that the real stumbling block in the way of the proposition not to increase the membership of the House of Representatives lies in the fact that not to do so, would necessitate the cutting down of the representation of Kansas, Nebraska and Ohio. Of course, the Republicans could never do anything like that.

o o o

It seems that the American Indian is not at all likely to become extinct, despite a popular impression to that effect. Since 1870, when the first accurate Indian census was taken, Lo has not decreased to any appreciable extent and it is likely that conditions in the future will never be so hard on him as they have been in the past.

Senator Chandler seems to be in trouble up in New Hampshire where other candidates are after his seat in the hottest way. We hope they wonts ucceed. As long as the State must have a Republican Senator it is just as well they should have one with brains, and Chandler is better supplied in that respect than three-fourths of the other Senators.

The value of United States exports of iron and steel for the first nine months of this year amounted to over $97,000,000, an increase of $21,000,000 over last year. Yet practically all iron and steel goods pay a duty of about 50 per cent. when imported into the United States. What is the use of this duty under these circumstances—if not to enable the manufacturers to sell higher at home than they do abroad?

IT is said that Brown, the Newport bank wrecker, stole all the $200,000 in the last six months.

AFTER all, a study of election returns for the past few years, shows no change in Boone's political status.

CHAS. R. FLINT, a trust organizer and an fficer in many corporations, says that the trusts have come to stay and that at the last election the people endorsed trusts as completely as they killed free silver.

A Party Question.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

In his speech at the celebration of the Republican victory by the Union League Club in Philadelphia, Saturday night, President McKinley showed some profusion in his acknowledgments. After speaking of the "danger of exaggeration on an occasion of exultation over a political victory," the President said:

"We must not withhold generous acknowledgment from that great body of our citizens who belonging to another party, powerfully assisted in the achivement of the result which you celebrate to-night, nor from that other large body, former members of our own party, who with honesty of purpose, separated from us a few years ago on financial issues, have now returned and are home again to stay."

What do the Republicans who have stuck to the straight-out party through it all have to say about this? The leaders among them are practical politicians. The two Presidential campaigns resulting in triumph for Mr. McKinley have been "business" campaigns. This statement is made without the bitterness which pertains to defeat. It was the pride of the Republican management that they were conducted on "business" principles, for the benefit of Republicans.

In what shape is this "generous acknowledgment" to be made? Offices? Will the Democrats who joined the McKinley forces, and the returning Republicans, be satisfied with mere palaver? Unoccupied places will be scarce, unless another tremendous hole shall be torn in the Civil Service law. Those already in the public service have been assessed to the limit of endurance for the creation of funds for a number of national and state "business" campaigns. There is not enough substantial "acknowledgment" to "go round" among those who have never flinched in their Republicanism. Already a host of those Democrats who supported McKinley are clamoring for a reorganization of their own party, so that they will have a congenial refuge for their declining years. This "home" run can only be stopped by a liberal dispensation of the goods which of right belong to those who have always been steadfast and true. And are those Republicans who kicked out in 1896, and slipped back by the rear gate in 1900, to walk right up to the cupboard and have unrestrained access to the preserves? Are those who never flinched to content themselves with standing outside and "hollerin'" for "McKinley and Roosevelt?"

We admit the cleverness of the President's rhetoric. He has the grace of manner and facility of construction so much in demand for a President, or a candidate for President, which enable him to win acclaim without committing himself to dangerous propositions. But these candidates for party rewards are closely analytic, and they will notice that in this blessed thanksgiving season their President has not said "Turkey" to them once but has rather advised them—if a practical construction can be placed on his speech at all—to divide the bird between the "new acquisitions" and the home-coming prodigals. If the frame is not picked too closely, the old guard can make soup of it next day.

GRANT COUNTY.

From Williamstown Courier.

Corn is selling for $1.50 per barrel in the local market.

Pendleton and Boone each have a population smaller than in 1890, but Grant has made a creditable increase.

Hay is very scarce in Grant county, good timothy is bringing $14 per ton. There is no clover of any kind for sale.

More deaths have occurred from typhoid fever in Grant county this year than in any previous year in her history, and more cases of fever have appeared than ever before.

J. W. Kennedy, of Union, Boone county, was in town, last Thursday and Friday, taking depositions in the case of W. G. Dorman in bankruptcy in the United States Court at Frankfort. Mr. Kennedy is one of Boone county's most substantial citizens and stands very high in the councils of the Democratic party in his county. He is a farmer and tobacco merchant and operates a dry goods store at Corinth, in this county. Boone county is full of good men and lovely homes and among them all there is not a more courtly, splendid character than Jim Kennedy.

Judge Jas. M. Thompson, keeper of the County Infirmary will finish gathering the corn raised on the Poor farm this week. He has already cribbed 400 barrels. Mr. Thompson is to be congratulated on the amount of provender he has raised on the farm this year. Here is a partial inventory of this years crop, nearly all of which is now on hand, either in the crib, barn or cellar: 400 bbls. of corn; 160 bus. of wheat; 200 dozen oats; 300 bus. of potatoes; 100 bus. sweet potatoes; 200 bus. of tomatoes; 50 bus. onions; 500 heads of cabbage; 50 bus. rye; 500 chickens; 100 bus. of turnips; 30 head of fat hogs now on hand at an average weight of 250 pounds, valued at $400. The crop raised on the poor farm and now on hand is worth more than $1,000, almost enough to pay all of the expense of running the farm and feeding the paupers for one year and furnishing provisions for the crusher and road repair gang.

The Honorable B. F. Menefee, of Crittenden, who announced himself a candidate for the office of County Attorney in a recent issue of the Courier, desires the Courier this week to state that he is no longer a candidate. His reason for withdrawing from the race is that the time after his announcement was too short to permit him to make a canvass, and since the speakings in the precincts had been declared off he would have no way of getting to the people in the week remaining before the election. He desires to thank his many friends who have interested themselves in his behalf for their good offices.

C. T. Brent and Bro. have slaughtered 8,600 turkeys this season at Paris, 4,800 at Flemingsburg and 4,000 at Carlisle, paying an average price of six cents a pound for the fowls.—Kentuckian-Citizen.

John Morris, of Bourbon county, raised 2,500 bushels of Irish potatoes on ten acres of land, selling them at 45 cents delivered. He sold the seconds at 25 cents per bushel at home. The third grade was boiled and fed to his hogs.

If a farmer is in a good condition for dairying, he had better keep along with it, always striving for excellence in the business, while, if grazing and beef producing are his preference and in his line, they should be followed up with equal diligence and carefulness.—American Cultivator.

There is no better way of getting a good stand of timothy than to put the ground in good order and sow the seed about the last week in September or first of October, one bushel to six acres. I have sown in corn the last time I worked the corn and got the best kind of a stand of timothy and clover, remarks a correspondent in the National Stockman.

R. L. Adams, a well known farmer residing south of Elkton, is entitled to the gold medal as the champion Irish potato raiser of Kentucky. Three persons attempted to eat one of his crop and when they had satisfied their hunger nine inches of the monster remained. This is sworn to by a Baptist, a Campbelite and a Methodist, and is therefore entitled to some weight.—Todd County Times.

The Minnesota experiment station tried for several years drilled wheat by the side of wheat sown broadcast. These were field tests on considerable areas, and they found as an average that the drilled wheat yielded 50 per cent. more than that which was broadcasted. The results were most marked in seasons when the soil was dry, as the seeds were well covered at a uniform depth by the drill, and thus germinated more freely and evenly.

"There can be no backward step," says Postmaster General Smith, in reference to the President's Asiatic adventure. That is what the fool boy said when the devil led him into a hornet's nest with a whisper of "duty and destiny." But the boy changed his mind!—New York World.

A witness in a peace disturbance case at Vanceburg a few days ago, replied, when asked concerning his business, that he was "a dignatorial transit gentleman." This so staggered the counsel for the State that he was barely able to give voice to a request that the witness make clear to the jury in plain Kentucky vernacular, if possible, what he meant by these formidable terms. The witness then explained that he "inducted the scions of the aristocracy of his township into a knowledge of terpsichorean movements and punctilia," or, in other words, taught the kids in that vicinity how to dance.

A "walking supper" is the latest fad. The way is this—invite your friends to lunch, give them a bowl of soup and a sweet smile, then talk awhile; then a neighbor asks them over to her home, where chicken and substantials are served; then another neighbor invites them in and serves sherbet, etc., and then another neighbor asks them to her home, where ice cream and cake are served, and lastly they are invited to where toothpicks are given out and they are permitted to sit and talk until they want to go home, which you do after convincing yourself that you have done something "swell" and are strictly "in it."—Ex.

OWEN COUNTY.

Trimble's majority is over 3,000 in the district.

Mrs. E. E. Settle has placed an order with W. A. Wallen for a statue of her deceased husband. It will be life size and made in Italy of fine marble. The pedestal will be about 9 feet 2 inches in height and made of granite. It is hoped to have it finished and ready for unveiling Decoration day next May.

The protracted meeting at the Baptist Church is getting well under way and is creating considerable interest. Dr. Porter, who came to us with the highest commendations, is proving himself worthy of all the good things that had been said of him. He is a clear, forcible, logical speaker, and, above all, intensely practical and deeply spiritual.

Chinese Bury Their Lepers Alive.

[New York Press.]

The Chinese have a curiously cheerful way of disposing of their lepers. The relatives of the afflicted person propose to him that they bury him alive, and such is the fatalism of the Chinese that the victim [illegible] ents. An extra elaborate meal is served to him in the way of a farewell banquet, and then the funeral procession forms. The man who is about to be immured under the sod follows his own coffin, and when he reaches the grave he takes a dose of laudanum, hops into the box, and settles down for eternity.

Dr. Wittenberg, writing on the subject of leprosy in China, states that the pure nerve form is the least common. In such cases, as is well known, the patient may go on for years. As to the mixed form, it is fairly common, but it is a difficult matter to estimate the number of lepers in any given district. The sufferers lead the common life so long as they remain free from destructive lesions. When these occur to any marked degree the leper is either segregated in a hut or he is allowed to wander about the country sustaining life by begging. Dr. Wittenberg records cases of direct contagion from mother-in-law to daughter-in-law.

"I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and find it to be a great medicine," says Mr. E. S. Phipps, of Poteau, Ark. "It cured me of bloody flux. I cannot speak too highly of it." This remedy always wins the good opinion, if not praise, of those who use it. The quick cures which it effects ever in the most severe cases make it a favorite everywhere. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; Grant, Bellevue; Baldy, Bullittsville.

Valuable clews toward the detection of criminals are obtained by an examination of cigar stumps, said a well-known detective. This applies to those who smoke cigars, the stubs of which they carelessly throw away in the street or elsewhere near the scene of a crime.

If you Pick up any stub and examine it closely you will be able to learn something as to the personality and social position of the man who threw it away. In the case of criminals the first point to be considered is the manner in which it was cut off from the cigar. If a knife or any other instrument was used for this purpose, then this instrument will doubtless be found on the criminal, though of course, this tells nothing. If, on the other hand, it was bitten off with the teeth, a thorough examination of the tip will show what kind of teeth were used for this purpose. A man with a row of even teeth will bite off the end of his cigar squarely and evenly, whereas one with jagged, uneven teeth will bite it unevenly, and in such a manner as to leave clearly visible the marks of his incisors. By comparing the marks on cigar stubs with the teeth of suspected criminals prosecuting officers and detectives are able to obtain information which they could not possibly obtain any other way.

A Kansas editor has figured it out that if a man grew as fast in proportion as a silk worm he would be as big as an elephant in a month. If he could navigate as fast in proportion as the average house fly, he could cross the Atlantic and get back in time for breakfast. If he had as many eyes in proportion as the butterfly, he would have forty thousand, to say nothing of an extra in his head for skylights. If he could spring as far accordingly as a spider, he could jump over the tallest tree in California and it wouldn't bother him in the least.

Six Frightful Failures.

Six terrible failures of six different doctors sent Wm. H. Mullen of Lockland, O., to an early grave. All said that he had a fatal lung trouble and must soon die. But he was urged to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. After taking five bottles he was entirely cured. It is positively guaranteed to cure all diseases of Throat, Chest or lungs, including, Coughs, Colds, LaGrippe, Pneumonia, Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Croup, Whooping Cough. 50c and $1. Trial bottles free at McKim's, Burlington; Crooch's, Union; Oelsner, Florence.

And now the sting of a bee is recommended as a cure for rheumatism. An industrious bee, intent on business, has been known to infuse new energy into a whole crowd of people.

The penny-in-the-slot system of distributing gas through the poorer and artisan districts of London, England, has been so successful that attempts are now being made to supply the electric light in the same way.

Little Rhode Island began with five capitals and has just reduced the remaining number from two to one, finally pinning its faith to Providence. Another amendment changes the state election from April to November.

The Minnesota experiment station has just discovered that flax grown for seed in Minnesota is identical with Russian flax and as good as that imported from Europe at a high price. The resources of our country are unlimited.

While sinking a well on a farm near Montesano, Mo., C. H. Beehler found the fossil remains of three human beings at a depth of 40 feet. The immense skulls and bones of the legs and arms indicated that the people were of prehistoric ages and were at least 10 or 12 feet in height.

At least a few of the giant redwood trees in California are to be preserved for future generations to see and marvel at. The state has just come into the possession of 400 acres of redwood forest through the will of the late J. B. Armstrong, of Somona county, and the tract will be maintained as a public park.

Henry Villard and Marcus Daly, the two multi-millionaires who died in New York recently, were remarkable men. Villard began life as a newspaper reporter, became a railroad president and Napoleon of finance, lost two enormous fortunes and then died a millionaire. Daly began life digging potatoes, became a miner and made $50,000,000 out of copper.

College fraternities boast as members of their organizations every United States president since Garfield's time, and President Cleveland was the only one initiated after his school days were over. Garfield was a member of Delta Upsilon, Arthur was a Psi Upsilon, Harrison was one of the early members of Phi Delta Theta and McKinley wears ever yet the pin of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

The Pennsylvania chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution manifests its patriotism in a practical way. It is now engaged in raising money with which to erect a clubhouse in Manila for the use of American soldiers. The building will cost $15,000 and will contain dormitories, a cafe, entertainment hall, library, gymnasium and everything to contribute to the comfort of the soldier boys.

Russia's new policy of naval expansion must be pleasing to American shipbuilders. The Russians have found that the best warships obtainable anywhere in the world are, constructed in this country, and it is unlikely that they will fail to consider the American builders when they come to let the contracts for their many new ships. This will mean a good many million dollars coming to this country. The more the merrier.

One of the most remarkable names of the present day is that borne by the fiancee of the duke of Wurtemburg. She is one of the nine children of the late Duke Charles of Tuscany and if her brothers and sisters are as rich in nomenclature as she is her parents must have exhausted the list. The lady's full title is as follows: Archduchess Maria Immaculata Rainera Josephine Ferdinanda Theresa Leopoldina Antoinetta Henrietta Frances Caroline Aloise Januaria Christina Philomena Rosnile.

The Persians still believe that human tears are a remedy for certain chronic diseases. At every funeral the bottling of the mourners' tears is one of the chief ceremonial rites. Each of the mourners is presented with a sponge with which to mop off his face and eyes, and after the burial these sponges are presented to the priest, who squeezes the tears into bottles. This custom is one of the oldest known in the east, and has probably been practiced by the Persians for thousands of years.

The census bureau has announced that the center of population of the United States is Columbus, Ind. Ten years ago it was located at Westport, 18 miles east of there. Columbus, the county seat of Bartholomew county, is located on Driftwood river, 40 miles below Indianapolis and 70 miles from Louisville, on the lines of the Pennsylvania and Big Four roads. The county was organized January 9, 1821. Columbus was then Tiptonia, a prosperous hamlet. In 1890 the population was 6,731; now it is 8,130. The present county population is 24,594.

THE GADABOUT EVIL.

Dr. Talmage Deplores the Prevailing Spirit of Unrest.

Christian Stability the Source of Usefulness and Happiness—Value of a Fixed Spiritual Condition.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.]

From an unusual text Dr. Talmage in this discourse rebukes the spirit of unrest which characterizes so many people, and shows them the happiness and usefulness to be found in stability; text, Jeremiah 2:36: "Why gaddest thou about so much to change thy way?"

Homely is the illustration by which this prophet of tears deplores the vacillation of the nation to whom he wrote. Now they wanted alliance with Egypt, and now with Assyria, and now with Babylon, and now they did not know what they wanted, and the behavior of the nation reminded the prophet of a man or woman who, not satisfied with home life, goes from place to place, gadding about, as we say, never settled anywhere or in anything, and he cries out to them: "Why gaddest thou about so much to change thy way?"

Well, the world has now as many gadabouts as it had in Bible times, and I think that that race of people is more numerous now than it ever was. Gadabouts among occupations, among religious theories, among churches, among neighborhoods, and one of the greatest wants of the church and the world is more steadfastness and more fixedness of purpose.

It was no small question that Pharaoh put to Jacob and his sons when he asked: "What is your occupation?" Getting into the right occupation not only decides your temporal welfare, but may decide your eternal destiny. The reason so many men and women are dead failures is because instead of asking God what they ought to be or do they, through some vain ambition or whimsicality, decide what they ought to be. Let me say to all young men and young women in homes or in school or college do not go gadding about among occupations and professions to find what you are fitted for, but make humble and direct appeal to God for direction.

While seeking Divine guidance in your selection of a lifetime sphere examine your own temperament. The phrenologist will tell you your mental proclivities. The physiologist will tell you your physical temperament. Your enemies will tell you your weaknesses. If you are as we say, nervous, do not become a surgeon. If you are cowardly, do not become an engineer. If you are hoping for a large and permanent income, do not seek a governmental position. If you are naturally quick-tempered, do not become a minister of the Gospel, for while anyone is disadvantaged by ungovernable disposition there is hardly anyone who enacts such an incongruous part as a mad minister. Can you make a fine sketch of a ship or rock or house or face? Be an artist. Do you find yourself humming cadences, and do the treble clef and the musical bars drop from your pen easily, and can you make a tune that charms those who hear it? Be a musician. Are you born with a fondness for argument? Be an attorney. Are you naturally a good nurse and especially interested in the relief of pain? Be a physician. Are you interested in all questions of traffic and in bargain making? Are you apt to be successful on a small or large scale? Be a merchant. Do you prefer country life, and do you like the plow, and do you hear music in the rustle of a harvest field? Be a farmer. Are you fond of machinery, and are turning wheels to you a fascination, and can you follow with absorbing interest a new kind of thrashing machine hour after hour? Be a mechanic. If you enjoy analyzing the natural elements and a laboratory could entertain you all day and all night, be a chemist. If you are inquisitive about other worlds and interested in all instruments that would bring them nearer for inspection, be an astronomer.

If you have no one faculty dominant and nothing in your make-up seems to point to this or that occupation, shut yourself up in your own room, get down on your knees and reverently ask God what He made you for, and tell Him that you are willing to do anything He wishes you to do. Before you leave that room you will find out. But for the sake of your usefulness and happiness and your temporal and eternal welfare do not join that crowd of people who go gadding about among business and occupations, now trying this and now trying that and never accomplishing anything.

Last summer a man of great genius died. He had the talents of 20 men in surgical directions, but he did not like surgery, and he wanted to be a preacher. He could not preach. I told him so. He tried it on both sides of the sea, but he failed; because he turned his back on that magnificent profession of surgery, which has in our time made such wonderful achievement that it now heals a broken neck and by the X ray explores the temple of the human body as if it were a lighted room. For 40 years he was gadding about among the professions. Do not imitate him. Ask God what you ought to be, and He will tell you. It may not be as elegant a style of work as you would prefer. It may callous and begrime your hands and put you in suffocating atmosphere and stand you shoulder to shoulder with the unrefined and may leave your overalls the opposite of aromatic, but remember that if God calls you to do one thing you will never be happy in doing something else.

All the great successes have been gained through opposition and struggle. Charles Goodyear, the inventor, whose name is now a synonym all the world over for fortune added to fortune, waded many years chin deep through the world's scorn and was thrust in debtors' prison and came with his family to the verge of starvation, but continued his experiments with vulcanized rubber until he added more than can be estimated to the world's health and comfort, as well as to his own advantage. Columbus and John Fitch, and Stephenson and Robert Bruce, and Cyrus W. Field and 500 others were illustrations of what tenacity and pluck can do. "Hard pounding," said Wellington at Waterloo, "hard pounding, gentlemen, but we will see who can pound the longest." Yes, my friends, that is the secret, not flight from obstacles in the way, but "who can pound the longest." The child had it right when attempting to carry a ton of coal, a shovelful at a time, from the sidewalk to the cellar, and some one asked her: "Do you expect to get all that coal in with that little shovel?" And she replied: "Yes, sir, if I work long enough." By the help of God choose your calling and stick to it. The gadabouts are failures for this life, to say nothing of the next.

There are many who exhibit this frailty in matters of religion. They are not sure about anything that pertains to their soul or their eternal destiny. Now they are Unitarians, and now they are Universalists, and now they are Methodists, and now they are Presbyterians, and now they are nothing at all. They are not quite sure that the Bible was inspired or, if inspired, whether the words or the ideas were inspired or whether only part of the Book was inspired. They think at one time that the story in Genesis about the garden of Eden is a history, and the month after they think it is an allegory. At one time they think the book of Job describes what really occurred, but the next time they speak of it they call it a drama. Now they believe all the miracles, but at your next interview they try to show how these scenes had nothing in them supernatural, but can be accounted for by natural causes. Gadding about among religious theories and never satisfied. All the evidence is put before them, and why do they not render a verdict? If they cannot make up their mind with all the data put before them, they never will. There are all the archaeological confirmations of the Bible brought to view by the "Palestine Exploration Society," there are the bricks of Babylon, the letter type pressed upon them—"N" for Nebuchadnezzar, showing that he was not a myth—and the farther the shovel of the antiquarian goes down the more is revealed of that most wonderful city of all time. Prof. Heilprecht, of the University of Pennsylvania, presents us tablets found in the far east ratifying and explaining Scriptural passages which were before in mystery. As the builders in Jerusalem to-day dig for the foundation of new houses they turn up with their pickaxes the ashes of the animals that were used for burnt offerings in the temple ages ago, demonstrating the truth of the Bible story about the sacrifices of lambs and heifers and pigeons. There is the history by Josephus, described on uninspiring pages' scenes which the Bible depicts. On the banks of the Dead sea there are pieces of the very brimstone that fell in the sulphurous storm that destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah. Make up your mind whether the Bible is a glorious revelation of God or the worst imposition of the centuries. Why go gadding about among infidels, atheists and deists asking questions and surmising and guessing about the authority and value of a book which involves the infinities? It is either a good book or a bad book. If it be a bad book, you do not want it in your house nor have your children contaminated with its teachings. If it is a good book, your eternal happiness depends upon the adoption of its teachings. Once and forever make up your mind whether it is the book of God or the book of villainous pretenders.

My text also addresses those who in search of happiness are going hither and yonder looking for that which they find not. Their time is all taken up with "musicales," and "progressive euchres," and teas, and yellow luncheons, and "at homes," and dances, and operas, and theaters; and, instead of finding happiness, they get pale cheeks, and insomnia, and indigestion, and neuralgia, and exhaustion, and an abbreviated lifetime. There is more splendid womanhood sacrificed in that way in our cities than in any other way. The judgment day only can reveal the awful holocaust of jangled nerves and the suicidal habits of much of our social life. The obituary of such reads well, for the story is suppressed about how they got their death while standing in attire of gauze, waiting for the carriage on a raw night, on the front steps. While in their lifetime they possessed all the ability for the relief of pain and improvishment, yet they have no time for visitation of the poor, or to win the blessing of such as comes upon those who administer to those who are ready to perish. Enough flowers in their dining halls to bewitch a prince, but not one taste of heliotrope to perfume the room of that rheumatic on the back street, to whom the breath of one flower would be like the opening of the front door of Heaven. Find me one man or one woman who in the rounds of pleasure and selfishness has found a piece of happiness as large as that half dollar which the benevolent and Christ-like soul puts into the palm of the hand of that mother whose children are crying for bread. Queen Victoria riding in triumph through London at her jubilee was not so sublime a figure as Queen Victoria in a hut near Balmoral castle reading the New Testament to a poor dying man. Let all the gadabouts for happiness know that in kindness and usefulness and self-abnegation are to be found a satisfaction which all the gayeties of the world aggregated cannot afford.

Among the race of gadabouts are those who neglect their homes in order that they may attend to institutions that are really excellent and do not so much ask for help as demand it. I am acquainted, as you are, with women who are members of so many boards of direction of benevolent institutions, and have to stand at a booth in so many fairs, and must collect funds for so many orphanages, and preside at so many philanthropic meetings, and are expected to be in so many different places at the same time that their children are left to the care of irresponsible servants, and if the little ones waited to say their prayers at their mother's knee they would never say their evening prayers at all. Such a woman makes her own home so unattractive that the husband spends his evenings at the clubhouse or the tavern. The children of that house are as thoroughly orphans as any of the fatherless and motherless little ones gathered in the orphanage for which that gadabout woman is toiling so industriously. By all means let Christian women foster charitable institutions and give them as much of their time as they can spare, but the first duty of that mother is the duty she owes to her home.

But no one can take a mother's place, and it is an awful mistake that that mother makes who sacrifices home duties for any church meeting, however important, or any hospital, however merciful, or any outside beneficence, however glorious and grand. Not understanding this, we mistake when we try to give statistics as to how many Christians there are in our churches and in the world. We understate the facts. We look over our church audiences on the Sabbath or our week service and conclude that they represent the amount of piety in that neighborhood. Oh, no! There are many most consecrated souls that are not found in churches. Look into those houses with large families of children and little or no hired help. For much of the year there is some one ill, and a special guardian care is requisite. How much time can that mother give to churches and prayer meetings when most of the family are down with scarlet fever or have colds that threaten now one kind of disease and now another? That mother watching at home as much pleases the Lord as the mother who at church takes the sacrament or in the mission school tells the waifs of the street how they may become sons and daughters of the Lord Almighty. That mother at home is deciding the destiny of the state by the way she leads that boy into right thinking and acting and is deciding the welfare of some future home by the example she is setting that girl, and though the world does not appreciate the unobserved work Heaven watches and rewards. On the other hand, you have known women who are soft at meetings humanitarian and philanthropic, planning for the destitute and the outcast, while their own children went unwashed and unkempt, their garments needing repairs, their manners impudent and themselves a general nuisance to the community in which they live.

One bad habit these gadabouts, masculine or feminine, are sure to get, and that is of scandal distribution. They hear so many deleterious things about others and see so much of wrong behavior that they are loaded up and loaded down with the faults of others, and they have their eyes full, and their ears full, and their hands full, and their mouths full of defamation. The woman who is endowed of gossip can so easily untie her bonnet strings and sit down to spend the afternoon. A man can afford you a cigar as a retainer if you will patiently hear all he has to say about those who cannot pay their debts, or are about to fail, or are guilty of moral mishap, or have aroused suspicion of embezzlement. All gadabouts are peddlers, who unpack in your presence their large store of nux vomica and nightshade. Such gadabouts have little prospect of Heaven. If they got there they would try to create jealousy among the different ranks of celestials and make trouble among the Heavenly neighbors, and start quarrels seraphic, and would be on perpetual run, now down this street and now up that, now in the house of many mansions, and now in the choir of the temple, and now on the walls, and now in the gates, until they would be chased down and pushed out into the pandemonium of backbiters and slanderers after Jeremiah had addressed them in the words: "Why gaddest thou about so much to change thy way?"

Now, what is the practical use of the present discourse? This: Whereas, so many have ruined themselves and ruined others by becoming gadabouts among occupations, among religious theories, among churches, among neighborhoods; therefore, resolved, that we will concentrate upon what is right thought and right behavior, and waste no time in vacillations and indecisions and uncertainties, running about in places where we have no business to be. Life is so short we have no time to play with it the spendthrift. Find out whether the Bible is true and whether your nature is immoral, and whether Christ is the Divine and only Saviour, and whether you must have Him or be discomfited, and whether there will probably ever be a more auspicious moment for your becoming His adherent, and then make this 12 o'clock at noon of November 25, 1900, the most illustrious minute that you will ever have passed since the day of your birth until the ten millionth cycle of the coming eternity, because by complete surrender of thought and will and affection and life to God through Jesus Christ you become a new man, a new woman, a new soul, and God the Father and God the Son, and God the Holy Ghost, and all angeldom, cherubim and seraphim, and archangel became your allies

Siberian Prisons Abolished.

Siberia is no longer to be a penal colony. The imperial decree abolishing the former status is the result of the building of the Trans-Siberian railroad. Nothing can compare to the rapid settlement of the vast Siberian plains by the inrushing farmers, unless it be the rapid growth achieved by that famous dyspepsia cure, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Try it for constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness or flatulency, if you would be well.

"I can't have lost all my good looks," said Miss Northside to her best friend, Miss Shadyside, "for I can still obtain a seat in a crowded street car."

"Oh, well," replied Miss Shadyside, "you know the men will give seats to old age as well as to youthful beauty."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Something Very Difficult to cure is Quinsy Sore Throat and any sufferer with this malady should never be without Palmer's Lotion. A few years ago Mr. C. W. Rosenbach, of 31st Street and Indiana Avenue, Chicago, Illinois, wrote: "I have been troubled with Quinsy sore throat over ten years and after using your Lotion find it the finest and quickest remedy I have ever tried." Palmer's Lotion is indispensable at this season of the year when sudden changes of temperature cause much sickness and disease. If your druggist does not happen to have it, send to Solon Palmer, 374 Pearl Street, New York, for sample of Lotion and Lotion Soap.

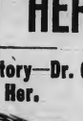
DO YOU FEEL LIKE THIS?

Pen Picture for Women.

"I am so nervous, there is not a well inch in my whole body. I am so weak at my stomach and have indigestion horribly, and palpitation of the heart, and I am losing flesh. This headache and backache nearly kills me, and yesterday I nearly had hysterics; there is a weight in the lower part of my bowels bearing down all the time, and pains in my groins and thighs; I cannot sleep, walk, or sit, and I believe I am diseased all over; no one ever suffered as I do."



This is a description of thousands of cases which come to Mrs. Pinkham's attention daily. An inflamed and ulcerated condition of the neck of the womb can produce all of these symptoms, and no woman should allow herself to reach such a perfection of misery when there is absolutely no need of it. The subject of our portrait in this sketch, Mrs. Williams of Englishtown, N.J., has been entirely cured of such illness and misery by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and the guiding advice of Mrs. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass.

MRS. JOHN WILLIAMS.

No other medicine has such a record for absolute cures, and no other medicine is "just as good." Women who want a cure should insist upon getting Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when they ask for it at a store. Anyway, write a letter to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., and tell her all your troubles. Her advice is free.

PIMPLES AND WRINKLES.

Do you have your teeth treated by a blacksmith? Do you go to a veterinary surgeon to have bodily ailments treated? No! If the skin is not clear, and has wrinkles, pimples and other facial blemishes, do not cover same with a lot of quack preparations. The disease wants to be cured. DR. FLACK'S MAGIC SKIN CREAM removes the disease, and HEMPEL'S MASSAGE ROLLER keeps it in a healthy condition. Dr. Flack has made diseases of the skin a specialty for the past 15 years. PAIN OPENED HER SKULL

Mrs. Lasher's Remarkable Story—Dr. Greene's Nervura Cured Her.

MRS. FRED. C. LASHER, JR.

The case of Mrs. Fred. C. Lasher, Jr., a well-known woman of Westport, N. Y., is one of the most interesting on record. It is an actual fact that headaches caused her head to split.

"For thirteen years," she says, "I suffered from terrible headaches night and day; until the bones of my skull opened so that the doctor could lay his thumb right into the opening on to my brain. Two doctors attended me and claimed that I was on the verge of insanity. I was under their care for nine years, but got no relief. Then I tried Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and inside of a year the bones of my head had taken their natural shape again."

That Mrs. Lasher's statements are true is vouched for by reliable men of Westport, and by a Justice of the Peace there. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy cured Mrs. Lasher when all other remedies failed, and it cures thousands of suffering women every year. If your head aches, if you cannot sleep and are weak and nervous, remember that this great curative agent, Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, will make you well and strong.

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is a physician's prescription, formulated from a discovery after years of investigation and experiment. Dr. Greene, 35 West 14th St., New York City, is the discoverer. He can be consulted free personally or by letter.

THE DIPLOMATS AGREE

The Powers Must Approve Before the Negotiations Begin

Punishment of Guilty, Indemnity, Retention of Legation Guards and Occupation of Certain Territory Will Be Required.

Peking, Saturday, Nov. 24.—The diplomatic body held a final meeting this morning and agreed upon the terms of the preliminary treaty. Nothing now remains except to secure the approval of the respective governments before definite negotiations with the Chinese peace commissioners are begun. The precise terms of the settlement have not yet been made public here, but it is believed outside the diplomatic corps that the main points are in substantial agreement with those contained in the French note to the powers, namely: punishment for the guilty, indemnity to governments and individuals, retention of strong legation guards and the occupation of certain places between Peking and Taku.

A party of American cavalry went Saturday to disperse a band of bandits in a village 16 miles from Peking. The village was found strongly fortified, but the Americans attacked and captured it, killing seven Chinese.

A secret edict from Sian Fu to the provincial viceroys and governors orders them to cease the manufacture of modern arms and to revert to the old type of weapons, because modern arms "have proved utterly useless against the foreigners."

London, Nov. 26.—Dr. Morrison, wiring to the Times from Peking Saturday, confirms the report of Russia's decision to retain the railway until her troops are withdrawn from the province of Chi Li. "This change," he says, "is coincident with the arrival of Prince Ukhtomsky, whose mission avowedly concerns the railway. The Chinese believe Russia's assurance that she is retaining the line in their interest.

"The German expedition to Kaigan is encountering no opposition. The other expeditions which Count von Waldersee has dispatched to harass the neighborhood of Peking are mainly expeditions in search of loot. They are incorrectly directed by the Germans as important military operations."

The Shanghai correspondent of the Times telegraphs that advices from Peking say that the United States has refused to join in the demand for the execution of the princes and other high officials.

Washington, Nov. 23.—The state department so far has heard nothing from Mr. Conger concerning the "impasse" reported to have been reached by the foreign ministers Wednesday at Peking. In fact, save a brief expression respecting the insufficiency of the punishments proposed by the Chinese government to be inflicted upon the responsible leaders of the Boxer movement, Mr. Conger has not communicated with the department for more than a week.

An interesting problem is suggested by the possibility, which to-day is almost a probability, that the ministers representing the powers at Peking can not reach an agreement. If Russia, France and the United States should refuse to accept the German idea, as seconded by the British representative, very much would depend upon Japan, and even some of the lesser powers represented at Peking by ministers might have great power swaying the proceedings of the council. The impression seems to be that if a majority of the ministers, or perhaps even one of the representatives of a great power withholds assent to the agreement, then the whole undertaking falls, and there must be either fresh negotiations directly between the home governments in the effort to agree upon new bases of action, or the powers must proceed to deal with the Chinese situation singly or in groups, the latter contingency having been provided for in the German-British agreement.

BODIES IN THE SNOW.

It Is Thought 26 Passengers of the Wrecked Steamer St. Olaf Died From Cold and Starvation.

Quebec, Nov. 26.—The searching party which left Seven Islands on Saturday afternoon to rescue any of the passengers or crew of the wrecked steamer St. Olaf who might have reached land returned Sunday evening. They report having found only one body, that of Miss Page, buried in the snow and ice. The general opinion among seafaring men is that the disaster occurred during the night of Wednesday last, as Miss Page was attired in night robes, and that 26 passengers succeeded in landing only to die from cold and starvation on Boule island, and that their bodies will be found under snow, which is three feet deep there. Another party of searchers went out Monday to look for bodies in the snow.

A Raving Maniac.

New York, Nov. 23.—W. F. Mellick, former president of the national bank at Pocatello, Ida., and "Cattle King" of the Snake river, that state, is now a raving lunatic, the result, it is thought, of being sandbagged in Chicago a week ago.

Official Vote in Arkansas.

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 23.—The official vote of Arkansas was announced Thursday as follows: Bryan, 81,142; McKinley, 44,700; Barker, 991; Woolley, 889; Ellis, 340. Bryan's plurality, 36,442, against 72,501 in 1896.

POST OFFICE MATTERS

Over 15,000 Postmasters Appointed During the Past Fiscal Year.

On June 30 There Were 76,688 Post Offices, as Follows: First Class, 194; Second, 852; Third, 3,187; Fourth, 72,455.

Washington, Nov. 26.—Fourth Assistant Postmaster General John L. Bristow in his annual report recommends an addition to the interstate commerce law prohibiting telegraph and express companies or their employes from aiding or abetting in the green goods or lottery swindles or any other scheme carried on partly by mail and partly by common carrier and in violation of the postal laws. Other recommendations urged are as follows:

Authorizing post office inspectors to take out search warrants whenever necessary.

Payment of incidental expenses incurred by local officers or others in the arrest, detention and keeping of prisoners violating postal laws until transferred to the United States marshal's custody.

Construction of inspectors' lookout towers in post offices whenever deemed necessary by the postmaster general, and prohibition of loose pouching of circulars, calendars, etc., owing to small pieces of mail matter frequently slipping into large unsealed envelopes in transit.

There were 15,142 appointments of postmasters made during the past fiscal year, 14,435 being of the fourth class and 707 being presidential, an increase of 638 in all over last year. There also has been an increase in the number of resignations, especially of the fourth-class postmasters. Fewer removals for irregularities were made than last year.

A vigorous effort has been made to suppress post offices conducted throughout the country for the sole benefit of some corporation, nursery company, patent medicine firm or other institution whose operations deprive the government of its legitimate revenues. The company or corporation usually has some one connected with it appointed postmaster, and thus gets the advantage of the cancellations or the salary and allowances of the postmaster. These institutions, sometimes have derived thousands of dollars of revenue from the government which virtually amounted to a commission or discount on their postal business.

There were 47 resignations and 45 deaths of presidential postmasters, and 919 deaths and 8,013 resignations of fourth-class postmasters. On June 30, last, the number of post offices was 76,688, as follows: First class, 194; second, 852; third, 3,187; fourth, 72,455.

The total number of arrests during the fiscal year for offenses against the postal laws was 1,526, including 149 postmasters, 29 assistant postmasters and 144 post office clerks, carriers and other postal employes. Of the total number arrested, 526 were convicted.

BATTLE ON PANAY ISLAND.

Three Americans Were Killed—The Insurgents Lost 103 Dead, All Told.

Manila, Nov. 26.—Particulars have just been received from Iloilo of the battle, October 30, at Bugason, Island of Panay, when 200 Bolomen and 50 riflemen attacked the Americans, who lost three killed—Lieut. L. M. Koonts, Sergt. Kitchen and Corp. Burns, all of Company F, 44th infantry.

It appears that Corp. Burns was boloed while reconnoitering and Lieut. Koonts and Sergt. Kitchen were pierced by spears while going to relieve an outpost.

When the garrison post attacked the rebels, 49 of the latter were killed. None of the other parties of attacking natives made much of a stand and the insurgents lost 103 killed, all told.

First Lieut. Albert E. McCabe, of the 30th volunteer infantry, has been appointed an inspector on the forestry bureau.

Secretary Root's Home-Coming.

St. Augustine, Fla., Nov. 23.—The steamer Kanawha, with Secretary of War Root and Gov. Gen. Wood, of Cuba, lay off this port all day, expecting to cross the bar Sunday evening, but had to give up and set sail for Jacksonville, whence Secretary Root will go by rail to Washington. Gov. Gen. Wood will join Mrs. Wood and the children here and leave for Havana with them Monday.

Commissioner Wilson Critically Ill.

Washington, Nov. 26.—The condition of Hon. George W. Wilson, commissioner of internal revenue, was very critical Sunday night. He was weaker than on Saturday, but still retains consciousness. Mrs. Wilson, who was absent from the city when the commissioner was stricken, has returned to the city with her daughter, Miss Pardoner.

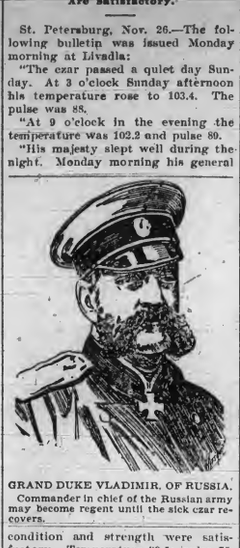
Will Fight a Duel.

Havana, Nov. 23.—It is said that Gen. Rodriguez, mayor of Havana, has challenged Senor San Miguel, editor of LaLucha, to fight a duel in consequence of an alleged libelous article attacking the integrity of the mayor's office.

Spenker Henderson in Washington.

Washington, Nov. 26.—Spenker Henderson arrived in Washington Sunday morning from his Iowa home preparatory to the opening of congress in December. He was delayed on the trip by a wreck.

PASSED A QUIET DAY.



The Czar Sleeps Well, and His General Condition and Strength Are Satisfactory.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 26.—The following bulletin was issued Monday morning at Livadia:

"The czar passed a quiet day Sunday. At 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon his temperature rose to 103.4. The pulse was 88.

"At 9 o'clock in the evening the temperature was 102.2 and pulse 89.

"His majesty slept well during the night. Monday morning his general condition and strength were satisfactory. Temperature 99.5; pulse 75. No complications whatever have been observed."

GRAND DUKE VLADIMIR, OF RUSSIA. Commander in chief of the Russian army may become regent until the sick czar recovers.

Berlin, Nov. 26.—The following special dispatch, dated St. Petersburg, November 25, 3:49 a. m., has been received here:

"It is persistently rumored in St. Petersburg that the condition of Emperor Nicholas is critical. Well informed people here declare that the disease has made far greater progress than the czar's physicians have publicly admitted. A fatal issue is now gravely feared."

THE BANKRUPTCY ACT.

E. C. Brandenburg, in Charge of Matters, Makes His Annual Report on Its Operation.

Washington, Nov. 26.—E. C. Brandenburg, in charge of bankruptcy matters, has made a report to the attorney general on the operation of the bankruptcy act of July 1, 1898. The report says, with reference to voluntary cases, that advantage is being taken of the law by men of all classes and in all walks of life, and in every section of the country.

The states showing the greatest number of petitions filed during the year are Illinois, with 3,008; New York, 3,007; Iowa, 992; Ohio, 857; Minnesota, 845, and Pennsylvania, 809.

The smallest number of voluntary petitions were filed in the following states: Nevada, 6; Delaware and Wyoming, 12 each; Idaho, 30; South Carolina, 37; Oklahoma, 39; Florida, 67, and Rhode Island, 69.

The grand total of petitions filed in the United States for the period ending September 30, 1900, is 20,128, exclusive of those for the western district of Louisiana, the district of Alaska and for half of the year for the southern district of Georgia. New Jersey, the eastern district of North Carolina, the western district of Tennessee and the eastern district of Virginia, from which semi-annual reports were not received.

From the clerks' reports it appears that, of the voluntary petitions, all were adjudicated bankrupt except 237, in which the petitions were dismissed, and that discharges were refused in 71 cases. Compositions were confirmed in 206 cases.

The liabilities in 19,140 voluntary cases reported by the referees amounted to $284,979,132, while the total amount of assets scheduled in these cases was $23,028,771.

Literally Cooked to Death.

Pagosa Junction, Col., Nov. 26.—The body of a man has been found in the hot spring at Pagosa Springs, literally cooked by the water, the temperature of which is over 150 degrees. Investigation disclosed nothing except that the man was a stranger who had given the name of Smith at the springs.

Turco-German Difficulty.

Constantinople, Nov. 26.—A difficulty has arisen between Germany and Turkey. The Ottoman government objects to Germany using Far San island, in the Red sea, as a coaling station, and wishes to establish there a Turkish depot accessible to all the powers. Germany, however, insists that she will not abandon the island.

Robbed By Porch Climbers.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—The residence of Mr. Washington Porter was entered Sunday night by porch climbers and jewelry to the amount of $1,000 stolen. Mrs. Porter is a daughter of Lafayette McWilliams, a cousin of President McKinley.

The Request Denied.

London, Nov. 26.—"We understand," says the Daily Express, "that Lord Roberts recently requested the government to send 20,000 regulars to South Africa to relieve the same number still in the field, but that his request was declined on the score of expense.

Died of Typhoid Fever.

Chicago, Nov. 26.—George Scott, of the dry good firms of Carson, Pirie, Scott & Co., died Sunday night of typhoid fever. Mr. Scott was 71 years of age.

KRUGER IN FRANCE.

A Popular and Enthusiastic Demonstration Held at Marseilles.

"Down With the English" and Other Threatening Cries Were Heard, Owing to an Unfortunate Occurrence at the Hotel.

Marseilles, Nov. 23.—Thursday proved a triumph for ex-President Kruger such as even the Boer delegates and his most ardent admirers failed to anticipate. The delirium of enthusiasm which marked every step of his progress, from the time he landed Thursday morning until the hotel was reached, was a revelation even to the people of Marseilles themselves. It fully equalled, if it did not surpass, the frantic demonstration of patriotism with which France opened her arms to Maj. Marchand at Toulon on his return from Fashoda.

Yet the grandeur of this demonstration, perhaps, ranks second in importance to the emphatic manifesto of "no compromise," which Mr. Kruger delivered in a low voice, but one vibrating with emotion, accompanied by energetic gestures of the right hand, stirring the hearts of all within hearing.

The last sentences of his declaration were uttered with a vigor and a decision which bore out his reputation as the incarnation of iron will and stubborn resistance. His mere delivery of a declaration of such far-reaching importance testifies to the independence of his character, as it came as a surprise even to his intimate political advisers, who up to the last were in ignorance of his determination.

He announced to the world Thursday morning that the Boers would be free people or die, and the faces of the men about him (Fischer, Wessels, Grobler and the other Boer representatives) bore the look of fearless determination reflecting the spirit that Mr. Kruger declared animated every man, woman and child in the Transvaal.

The unfortunate occurrence at the hotel on the main boulevard alone marred the character of the demonstration, which up to that moment had been unanimously and exclusively a tribute of sympathy and admiration. "Vive Kruger!" "Vive les Boers!" and "Vive la liberte!" were the cries that formed a hurricane of cheering and swept over the city.

Unfortunately the highly reprehensible foolishness of half a dozen persons in throwing small coins into the crowd as Mr. Kruger passed acted like magic in conjuring up an anti-British outburst, which it needed all the promptitude and energies of the police to prevent becoming a serious disturbance.

The hotel remained for the rest of the day in a state of siege, while at one time a procession several thousand strong marched in the direction of the British consulate, shouting, "Down with the English!" and raising other threatening cries.

Paris, Nov. 26.—Mr. Kruger passed Sunday with his family at the Hotel Scribe, observing the Sabbath in accordance with the customs of his Fatherland. His apartments were closed to visitors, and he remained with them, indulging in perfect rest.

Although the boulevards were alive to a late hour Saturday night with merrymakers and singing songs the Hotel Scribe was cordoned and the revellers did not disturb his rest.

Sunday morning found him quite recovered from the fatigue. After an early breakfast he conferred with Dr. Leyds. There being no church of his own denomination in Paris, he held a private service in his apartments, surrounded by his entourage. Mr. Kruger read a portion of Scripture, and a member of his suite read a sermon prepared in advance. The Boer statesman expressed a desire to have an organ to assist the singing, but this could not be obtained.

At an early hour free circulation was resumed in the streets about the hotel where only guardians, two policemen, stood on either side of the principal entrance. The number of passers-by was not greater than the ordinary Sunday crowd. Toward 5 p. m., however, pedestrians increased and along the boulevard came 400 shouting and singing boys. Their advent increased the enthusiasm, which was rapidly worked up, and the streets began to fill. Cheers for Mr. Kruger began and the police immediately established a cordon about the hotel. Several companies of republican guards quickly arrived.

Responding to cries and plaudits, Mr. Kruger came for a moment upon the balcony, accompanied by his grand-daughters. Again at 5 o'clock the tumult was such that he reappeared, but only for a moment. During the afternoon and early evening there was no falling off in the number of spectators. It was 10 o'clock before the people had sufficiently disappeared to permit the circulation of carriages.

INTERESTING STATE NEWS.

AN ANGRY SALESMAN.

He Passed the Quarantine Guards, But He Had to Walk Five Miles in the Rain.

Ashland, Ky., Nov. 23.—J. L. Smith, a traveling representative of a Cincinnati house, arrived here late Thursday night tired, wet, muddy and probably the maddest salesman that ever entered the state of Kentucky. Smith was a passenger on the eastbound C. & O. train Wednesday evening, and wanted to go to Ironton. On account of the large number of cases of smallpox at Russell, Ky., a strict quarantine is being maintained, and the C. & O. is not allowed to receive or discharge passengers at that point. Smith, however, eluded the guards and got off the train there. He was not allowed to board the ferry boat. He finally picked up his grips, got past the guards in the darkness and walked the five miles between this city and Russell in the rain. He left here Thursday morning. It is said the name Smith was assumed.

TO SCARE A BOY.

He Mortally Wounded Himself With a Pistol That He Thought Was Not Loaded.

Paducah, Ky., Nov. 22.—Wednesday night at 8 o'clock Charles Koertz, a clerk at R. L. Potter's restaurant, 19 years of age, picked up a big Colt's revolver which he did not know was loaded, having seen the proprietor extract shells from it in the morning, and, calling Potter's 4-year-old son, said in a joking manner: "Watch me shoot myself, Willie."

Placing the gun to his breast, he pulled the trigger to scare the child, when a remaining shell exploded and the bullet crashed into his breast near the right nipple, and was extracted from his back just beneath the skin by physicians.

He is at the point of death as the result of his innocent but rash act in his attempt to scare the child.

IN A SINK HOLE.

The Skeleton of Sadler, Who Disappeared Twenty Years Ago, Was Found.

Franklin, Ky., Nov. 24.—The finding of a skeleton here in a sink hole is supposed to explain the mysterious disappearance of George Sadler, who was lost sight of 20 years ago, and had never been heard from. Sadler served four years in the state penitentiary on the charge of mule stealing. He returned here, but afterward disappeared. Thursday a search was made for a bunch of stray hogs owned by Sim Temple. It was found that they had fallen in a sink hole. In an effort to get them out an excavation was made, and a skeleton was found. Part of the boots and clothing were left, which almost makes it certain the remains are those of Sadler.

New Bank In Newport.

Newport, Ky., Nov. 23.—The authentic announcement was made on Thursday morning that steps had already been undertaken by a wealthy syndicate, composed of a number of Cincinnati business men and financiers, to establish a new bank in Newport. The capital stock, it is reported, will be $200,000, and the men interested are said to represent many millions. The backing is of the most substantial sort, and the future of the new bank probably depends to a large extent upon the reopening or reorganization of the looted German National bank. Those interested, however, say that the new bank will be established in Newport in any event, even if the German National is again opened upon a new basis.

Evidence of a Murder.

Vanceburg, Ky., Nov. 22.—The body of James W. Jones, a G. A. R. veteran, of Martin's, was exhumed Wednesday morning for the purpose of a post-mortem examination which was made by Dr. L. A. Grimes, of Concord. Jones died suddenly Tuesday. Dr. Grimes found that he back of the old man's head had been broken with a blunt instrument. Jones was a man of means and had many friends. The G. A. R. ordered the examination and post mortem.

Bogus Certificates.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 24.—Superintendent of Public Instruction McChesney has received $300 conscience money, which he is in a quandary about, as there is no provision for disposing of it under the law. It was from an ex-teacher at Nashville, who formerly lived in Christian county, this state. The reason for turning back the money, the party says, is that his school certificate was bogus.

Nearly All the State Officials Attended the Wedding of the Governor at Owensboro, Ky.

Owensboro, Ky., Nov. 22.—Gov. J. W. C. Beckham, of Kentucky, and Miss Jean Raphael Fuqua, of this city, were married Wednesday night at the First Presbyterian church. The wedding was attended by nearly all the state officials and a number of guests from other parts of the state.

A reception followed at the Rudd house which was a notable social function. The governor and his bride left at midnight on the private car of W. B. Kinskern, general passenger agent of the Chicago & Northwestern railroad, a brother-in-law of Gov. Beckham, for a trip to Chicago. Gov. Beckham was elected recently to fill out the term of the late Gov. Goebel. He having been acting governor since the latter was assassinated last February. His bride is the daughter of J. A. Fuqua, a prominent tobacconist, and is a beautiful young woman.

MILWARD'S DEATH.

It Is Now Believed the Lexington Hardware Merchant Was Foully Murdered.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 23.—The Herald Friday says: "Charles S. Milward, the hardware merchant, was foully murdered. With the passing of excitement and confusion incident to the finding of his dead body on Wednesday morning, have been collected facts which point conclusively to assassination by a thief or an enemy, who opened the door from the outside and shot Milward as he peered out."

The suicide theory had been generally accepted until last Thursday night.

POWERS' CASE SUBMITTED.

It Went to the Court of Appeals Without Oral Argument—The Howard Case.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 24.—The case of Caleb Powers was submitted in the court of appeals Friday without oral argument and with leave to the attorneys to file briefs on or before December 1.

Ex-Congressman W. C. Owens, counsel for Jim Howard, appeared before the court and asked that Circuit Clerk Ford be compelled to furnish, free of cost to him, a transcript of the record in his case. The court passed the matter till next Tuesday, and extended the time for filing the record till December 4.

The many friends at this place and of the surrounding country, were called on a few days ago, to mourn the death of their friend and fellowtowusman, Sam Hind, Jr., who passed away very suddenly at his late residence, 1927, West Jefferson street, Louisville, Ky., on the afternoon of November 20th, surrounded by his family and sorrowing friends. While he had been suffering for some time, and the ravages of disease had made steady encroachments on his powerful constitution, his death came so suddenly that it was a shock even to his family, who was constantly with him.
Some time ago he went to Los Angeles, California, and spent several months with his family, with the bope he might be restored to good health, and when he came back last spring, he seemed much improved. He then sold out his business here and went to Nashville, Tennessee, where he remained a few months, coming back to Louisville in the early fall, where he remained until his death.
His remains were brought back to Walton, last Wednesday, to the house of his mother, and on Thursday afternoon funeral services were conducted by Rev. Geo. N. Buffington, Rev. Holms, of this place, and Rev. Wm. Rupard, of Whinchester, Ky. The pall-bearers were Robert C. Green, Everette Stephens, J. E. Botts, Geo. W. Ransler, J. R. Craven and Dr. J. N. Jones. Although the weather was very inclement, the funeral was one of the largest ever held in this community, there being present people from Lexington, Winchester, Louisville, Covington, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Paris, and Hume, Ill., all of which attested to the high esteem in which he was held by his friends.
Sam Hind, Jr., was born at Walton, Boone county, Ky., July 24th, 1859. He was a son of Sam Hind, sr., a respected citizen of Boone county for more than three quarters of century, and who died here a little more than four years ago, and was a grandson of Wm. Hind, a veteran of the war of 1812, and a pioneer of Boone county, having settled here in 1820, and who lived to be 94 years of age. His mother, who survives him, was Ruth Adamson Ricketts, a daughter of Hesakiab Ricketts, a Predestinarian Baptist preacher and also a pioneer of Central Kentucky, coming from Baltimore, Maryland, to Richmond, Madison county, Ky., in 1815, where he settled and raised a large family. She was also a first cousin of the late John A. Roberts, sr., the founder and for many years principal of the Deaf and Dumb Institute at Danville, this state, the second institution of the kind established in the United States.
Sam Hind, jr., received his early education in the public school at Walton, at Baldwin's Academy at Falmouth, Ky., and graduated from the High School in Covington in 1879. He taught in the public school in Walton for a short time. In May, 1883, he was married to Miss Annie A. Hughes, daughter of the late Joseph C. Hughes, one of Boone county's most prominent and wealthy men. To this union three children were born, all of whom survive, Sam Wayne, 16; Annie Lucie, 12; Lee Hughes, 7 years of age. He also leaves two sisters and one brother, Mrs. Justus Hudson, of Walton; Mrs. John T. Boulton and W. N. Hind, of Covington.
After his marriage he engaged in farming and for several years in the mercantile business at Richwood, but in 1890 he embarked in the drug business in Walton, and continued it until a few months ago. He held a number of political offices, and was one of the county commissioners who built the present court house at Burlington. He was popular with the people, and discharged his duty faithfully.

Gunpowder

Uncle Billy Batterson, of Hebron, passed through our burg one day last week.
It began raining last Friday afternoon and continued until Sunday evening, closing the performance Sunday night with about three inches of snow, which melted rapidly Monday.
By order of the Chairman of the Joint Council of the Boone County Charge, there will be a meeting of that body on the 8th of December, it being the second Saturday, at Hopeful church at 2 o'clock p. m. The deacons are requested to solicit and be prepared to report the amount subscribed on pastor's salary at that time.
As was previously announced Rev. S. E. Slater, of Haley, Tenn., preached at Hebron, last Saturday night, at Hopeful, Sunday morning, and at Ebenezer Sunday afternoon. An election for a pastor was held after each service, the candidates being Rev. Berger, of Louisville, Ky.; Rev. Hersbiser, of Springfield, Obio, and Rev. Slater, of Haley, Tenn. Rev. Slater was chosen.
While writing this report we heard of the death of Mrs. Susan Dixon, of near Dixon Station. She died this (Monday) morning about 11 o'clock, of heart failure. She had been suffering of cancer for some time, but that was not the cause of her death. Mrs. Dixon was a noble, christian lady, having been an exemplary member of the Lutheran church for about 40 years. She was of a kind and loving disposition, always ready to assist the needy, and the sole object of her life seemed to be to make others happy. She was a member of a large family, all of whom have crossed the dark river of Death, except one brother, Uncle Abel Carpenter. She leaves a family of six children to mourn her departure. The funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Buffington, on the 30th inst., at Hopeful church at 10 o'clock a. m.

To remove a troublesome corn or bunion: First soak the corn or bunion in warm water to soften it, then pare it down as close as possible without drawing blood and apply Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice daily; rubbing vigorously for five minutes at each application. A corn plaster should be worn for a few days, to protect from the shoe. As a general liniment for sprains, bruises, lameness and rheumatism, Pain Balm is unequaled. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; Grant, Bellevue; Baisly, Bullittsville.

For sale—Six month old Thirlrind boar. J. H. AYLOR, Limaburg.

The old wooden bridge at the pike crossing of Gunpowder creek at George E. Rouse's, will soon be replaced by a substantial iron bridge, which will leave but one wooden bridge on the road, that just west of Limaburg. It is a short span.

John Nichols, who, a few years ago lived down on Gunpowder, was lodged in Covington jail, last Thursday, for cutting a groceryman severely. Nichols and the grocer engaged in an altercation, Nichols using his pocket knife, cutting his antagonist eight times, one of the wounds inflicted being in the abdomen, and very serious.

J. J. Berkshire had a fine day's sport fishing down on Gunpowder, a few days since, and when he went home at night he took a long string of fine bass, some of which weighed two pounds or more. He hooked some during the day that snapped his line with ease. It was the greatest day's pleasure he has had on the creek in a long time.

M. J. Castleman, of Glencoe, Gallatin county, was acquitted in the Circuit Court, at Warsaw, of the killing of Dr. Ferrell, at Glencoe, about one year ago. The growers have been given an excellent opportunity for taking down and bulking their tobacco, and a considerable per cent. of the crop in the county is now so arranged as to admit of stripping at any time. The buyers have been very scarce so far this season, as tobacco has been in no condition to look at for the purpose of determining its quality. It should be borne in mind that careful and proper assorting when stripping pays the grower well, and particular attention should be given along this line, for by it good wages are made, whereas, careless work in the stripping room is decidedly an expensive fault.

Just at the crack of day, to-morrow morning, John Berkshire will take down that fox horn that has been hanging, undisturbed, so long on the wall, and give it a few winds, and then, surrounded by his pack of trusty fox hounds, will proceed across the plains east of his abode, to the Gunpowder bluffs, where foxes do abound, there to renew his acquaintance with the pleasures he has abandoned for a few years last past. He has invited several of his friends to respond to the toot of his horn and repair to the above mentioned locality, where he will give an exhibition of old time fox hunting and roughriding. Several have decided to accept John's request for their presence and will be on hand when reynard's morning nap is disturbed by the yelping hounds cheered on by Berkshire's enthusiastic whoop. The whole fox family has been greatly exercised ever since it was known that their former persecutor is to appear, booted and spurred, for a chase on Thanksgiving day, and some say there has been an exodus of foxes during the past week, as they know "there is trouble in de lan'" when John takes down that horn.

Hugh M. Frazer Dead.

[Clay Center, Kansas, Times.]

Tuesday afternoon a little after four o'clock, the sad news of the death of H. M. Frazer, in Kansas City was conveyed to his many friends in Clay Center. It was a particularly sad death, coming as it did a surprise to most of his acquaintances in this city and county. Less than a week ago he was walking our streets, as hearty in his greetings as ever, and now he lies cold in death, his soul gone to appear before the last great judge.

For about a month Mr. Frazer had complained of violent headaches at irregular intervals, though for several months it had been apparent to his old friends, that in vim and alertness he was not as he had been. Some two weeks ago, his physicians, Drs. Porter and Morgan, became convinced that he had an abscess or tumor on the brain. An eminent specialist from Topeka, who was consulted, confirmed this theory.

A week ago Tuesday, he was persuaded by his family to quit work and put himself under the doctor's care. It was at once determined by them that without an operation he would surely die, and that by it he might possibly be saved.

On Sunday morning last Mr. Frazier, accompanied by his wife and Dr. Morgan, went to Kansas City, where on Tuesday morning the operation was performed by Dr. Perkins. The fears of the physicians were fully confirmed, and the ailment was found to be beyond the reach of human skill to cure. The brain tissues were decayed and nothing could be done, the trouble could not be removed. There was absolutely no chance for him to rally, and Tuesday eveuing he passed away.

The body was brought back to Clay Center for its final resting place, Wednesday afternoon, and was met at the depot by the K. of P. lodge of which Mr. Frazer was a member and conveyed to the darkened home. The funeral was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the residence in Lincoln Park, Rev. Denise officiating. The remains were laid away in Greenwood cemetery.

Hugh Miller Fraizer, son of Hugh M. Fraizer and Anna H. Fraizer, was born in Harrison county, Ky., May 31, 1840. He removed, with his parents, in infancy to Boone county, Ky., where the family lived on a farm near Union for several years, until the death of his father, when they removed to Burlington, the county seat.

Mr. Fraizer's early education was obtained at Morgan Academy in Burlington, and when 20 years old he entered the Junior class at Center College in Danville, Ky. He passed with credit through two years at that college. Finishing that, he taught several years in country schools in Kentucky until 1868, when he went to northwestern Missouri, where for several years he farmed and taught school.

In 1870 and 1871, Mr. Fraizer came to Clay county, where he soon obtained a position as deputy under Dr. J. H. Hudson, the register of deeds of this county. In 1873 he was elected register of deeds, and held the office continously until 1885. He then went into the real estate business with W. S. Beatty and for several years the firm of Beatty and Fraizer was one of the business features of the city.

In 1880, Mr. Fraizer was married to Miss Rose Sharpe, a sister of William Sharpe of this city. In 1889 the family removed to Rogers, Ark., where they lived until the spring of '98 when they returned to their old home in Clay Center. Mr. Fraizer opened a real estate and loan office and in the spring of 1900 was appointed Justice of the Peace by Governor Stanley, to succeed John A. Morrison resigned. This office he was holding at the time of his death last Tuesday.

Besides leaving a wife to mourn his loss, he leaves four children, John Miller, aged 19, Hugh Miller, aged 15, Ada, aged 13, and James Coleman, aged 10. Mr. C. C. Coleman of this city, his nephew, and Wm. Sharpe, his brother-in-law, are also numbered among his relatives. But aside from his relatives, Mr. Fraizer will be mourned by all of his acquaintances, for to be acquainted with him was to be his friend. Mr. Fraizer was a southerner, his father having a slave owner, and he had the imperious nature of the south. But he was a friend to everyone, which characteristic bespeaks the true gentleman. Clay county as well as Clay Center mourns his death.

Aurora Bulletin:—A change has taken place in the Bulletin Management. Mr. R. E. Russell, late publisher of the Milan Times, has acquired a half interest in the establishment and will take up the burden of his new responsibilities next week.—John McDermott, who lives at Cochran, suffered from a painful accident Thursday while hunting. He had driven out to Guilford and while alighting from the buggy the trigger of his gun caught in the reins and both barrels went off. The loads entered McDermott's side and left arm, the bicepts muscle was torn completely off, Drs. Sale and Marshall attended him, the wound is not necessary fatal.—Andy Peters and Tom Barnett residents of this city were badly hurt Wednesday afternoon while cutting timber a few miles out of town. They had sawed one tree partly in two, and were engaged in attending to another, when the former fell on them. Peter's left leg was broken above the knee and Barnett was badly bruised. Dr. Libbert attended both men.

The Teachers' Meeting held with District No. 31, Saturday, November 24, was called to order by Supt. Voshell. Owing to the severe weather very few of the teachers were present, but the continuous rain did not damper the educational enthusiasm of the good people of the community, who, by their presence and by the abundant and splendid refreshments prepared for the better part of the program, evidenced a greater interest than the teachers. Many thanks to them for their manifest interest. After calling the meeting to order and premising appropriate remarks, the Superintendent called the program. W. I. Griffith introduced the subject, School Fund. Supt. Voshell said, "We need more money." Mr. H. Walton gave a very interesting address, giving the reasons why our school revenue is too low. He says: "There should be no pauper counties. No county should take from the State treasury more than it pays into the same." Miss Flora Youell discussed How to Maintain Order in School.

Following is the program for the next district meeting, which will be held at the Beaver school house, December 1st:—Miss Nannie Bristow—American Literature. Miss Jeannette Chambers—Supplementary Reading. Miss Shelly Tanner—How to Teach Fractions. Miss Allie Weaver—How to Interest the Careless Pupil. Miss Annie Wolfe—The Present Trustee System. Miss Lillian Corbin—Declamation. Miss Ella Norman—School Ethics. Miss Fannie Cleek—Kentucky History. Miss Marietta Riley—Current Events.

A Village Blacksmith Saves His Little Son's Life.

Mr. H. H. Black, the well known village blacksmith at Grahamsville, Sullivan county, N. Y., says: "Our little son, five years old, has always been subject to croup, and so bad have the attacks been that we have feared many times that he would die. We have had the doctor and used many medicines, but Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is now our sole reliance. It seems to dissolve the tough mucus and by giving frequent doses when the croupy symptoms appear we have found that the dreaded croup is cured before it gets settled." There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains no opium or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to a babe as to an adult. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Grant, Bellevue; McWethy & Berkshire, Petersburg; Balsly, Bullittsville.

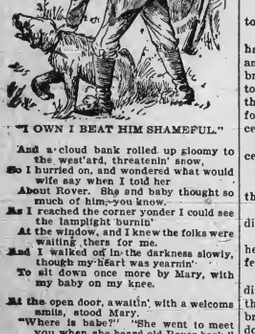
REASON FOR THANKSGIVING.

KEEP Thanksgivin'! Well, I reckon I can show a first-class reason Why this house-hold—baby, wife and me—and even our old dog, Should thank God for all His goodness in a song of praiss this season, Though my gen'ral disposition is to grumble like a hog. For, if ever man had special cause to hold a celebration Of Thanksgivin'—in his heart of hearts —that very man is me. If you'll isten for a moment to a word of explanation I am sure that when my tale you've heard to the you will agree.

Though for years I've been a member of a church, yet I'm confessin' That my vicious, wicked temper and fault findin' spoiled my life, Those days that should have proved a blessin' And has marked deep lines of care upon the brow of my dear wife. She has hoped and prayed and waited, while she patiently expected That some day her prayer of faith would bring an answer from above; And at last, in God's own time and way, the change has been effected, For my heart lost all its anger when it found a Saviour's love.



How it happened? Well, I'll tell you. See that dog there? Come here, Rover! He ain't much for looks or breedin', but that dog no man could buy. See! he hates to leave the baby—though she's five years old and over, Still I allus call her "baby;" she's the apple of my eye. Monday mornin', bright and early, came my neighbor, Squire Carroll, And he told of signs of turkey in the timber down the creek; So I called the dog and shouldered my old trusty double-barrel, And I grinned when Mary mentioned that this was "Thanksgivin' week."

Well, we soon got in the timber, and we walked and walked and hunted, But no turkey! So, as usual, I got mad and almost cussed. And, in spite of all Squire Carroll said, I grumbled, growled and grunted. And I felt I'd have to kick the dog or else I'd surely bust. So my neighbor said he reckoned there's no use in us a tryin' Any longer, since 'twas very plain the birds had gone away; And he laughed and says: "I see no use in grumblin' or in sighin', For it's ten to one there's better luck for us some other day."

So we parted, and I, walked on, gettin' madder every minute At the turkeys, at the squire and at myself the most of all For my wicked, foolish anger—I knew well there's no sense in it— Well, sir, just then "Gobble, gobble," came the turkey's welcome call; Down I dropped, and when I saw him it just made me warm all over, "For," thinks I, "you're just about the size to suit Thanksgivin' day." But before I got a bead on him, this dog of mine, old Rover, Done some fool thing—least I thought so—and my turkey flew away.

What did I do? Like a coward, grabbed that poor dog by the collar, And I own I beat him shameful, but he didn't even moan, Then I turned my gun upon him, just because he wouldn't holler; Like a mad man pulled the trigger, and he dropped just like a stone. Well, sir, I can't tell my feelings; why, I thought I'd surely smother. When I saw him fall I turned away in horror from the sight, And I thought I knew how Cain felt when he left his murdered brother, As I walked I cared not whither till I saw 'twas coming night.

When I got near home I noticed how the air was growing colder,

"I OWN I BEAT HIM SHAMEFUL."

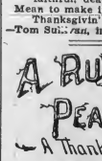
And a cloud bank rolled up gloomy to the west'ard, threatenin' anow, So I hurried on, and wondered what would wife say when I told her About Rover. She and baby thought so much of him—you know. As I reached the corner yonder I could see the lamplight burnin' At the window, and I knew the folks were waiting there for me. And I walked on in the darkness slowly, though my heart was yearnin' To sit down once more by Mary, with my baby on my knee.

At the open door, awaitin' with a welcoms smile, stood Mary. "Where is babe?" "She went to meet you when she heard old Rover bark." So she answered, and my heart fell as I looked out on the prairie, Just to think of her a-wanderin' alone out in the dark. "She's all right; the dog is with her," says her mother, speakin' cheerful; But, you know, I knew he wasn't, so I stood without a word— And just then we both were startled by a dog a howlin' fearful, Somethin' like a coyote yelpin'; just the worst I ever heard.

"Goodness me," says wife, "that's Rover! But I never heard him cryin' Out in such a dreadful way as that"— then, suddenly, once more— Came that doleful sound a-ringin', just as if the brute was dyin' An' was asking to help him, so I dashed out through the door. See those cottonwoods, just yonder? All the ground there's full of water, Soft and marshy, full of pit holes, deep enough to hide a steer. As I ran along I prayed that God would save my baby daughter— Then I thought of murdered Rover, and I wished that he was near.

It was darker than a pocket, but that made no diff'rence to me, So I ran on calling "Baby" till it echoed all around, When I stood stock still and listened, and a thrill of joy went through me,

For I heard my baby callin', and I blessed the welcome sound. "Here I am, come help me, papa! I'm a-sinkin' in the water!" How my heart beat as I dashed on, prayin' God with ev'ry breath, Till at last, waist deep in mud and slush, I found my baby daughter With old Rover—bruised and battered—holdin' on to her like death!



Well, it didn't take me long, you bet, to get her on my shoulder, And the dog crawled out behind us till we safely reached the trees. Then I hollered out to Mary—such a yell of joy, it tole her That our babe was safe—and then and there I fell down on my knees. There, I guess that's all—O, Rover? Why, I'm glad to say I missed him With my shot; but his poor head and back were shameful bruised and sore. But my Mary washed and nussed him and, to tell the truth, she kissed him And we all just love and pet him as we never did befors.

So to-morrow load your folks up in the wagon and come over. After church we mean to spend the day in prayer and songs of praise. For this family—baby, wife and me—and faithful, dear old Rover, Mean to make it just the happiest of all Thanksgivin' days.

A RURAL PEACEMAKER.

A Thanksgiving Story.

THEY did not pay much attention to Thanksgiving in the country school district in which I taught in the west a good many years ago. Christmas was the chief holiday of the winter, and it was celebrated without any special demonstration, for most of the people were poor and there was not much sentiment in their general make-up. Old Hannah Dorton, with whom I boarded, was of New England birth, and she had not come to the west until some years after her marriage. She was a woman of a good deal of force of character, and no one in the neighborhood had a nimbler tongue. One evening about two weeks before Thanksgiving I said to her:

"Do the people observe Thanksgiving very generally in this neighborhood?"

"No, they do not," replied the old lady with considerable emphasis. "And it has always been a good deal of a trial to me that so little attention was paid to a day that we made so much of back there in dear old New England. It was the greatest holiday of the year to us, and how we did enjoy it!"

"Why do they pay so little attention to it here?"

"Well, I guess it is just because they have never got in the way of paying any attention to it. They never celebrated the Fourth of July as it ought to be celebrated until my husband got them started to doing it ten years before he died, and now we have a big celebration every year."

"Some one ought to start them to celebrating Thanksgiving."

"So they ought. But who is to do it?"

I reflected for a few minutes, and then I said:

"Suppose we start them off in that direction."

"How?" asked the old lady dropping her knitting into her lap and manifesting eager interest.

"Suppose we get up a Thanksgiving dinner in the schoolhouse. Invite all the folks in the district to come and bring their dinner with them. There does not seem to be any social life in the neighborhood unless one can call occasional spelling matches and singing schools in the schoolhouse social diversions. The people never eat and drink together in a merry-making of any kind. Don't you think that the idea of a Thanksgiving dinner in the schoolhouse would take?"

The old lady reflected for a moment and then said:

"Yes, I think it would. It would be a novelty to every one, and I think the folks would turn out big, only—only—"

"Only what?" I asked.

"Well, the fact is, there are so many folks in this neighborhood that don't speak to each other. I never saw anything like it. There is old Squire Bent, who won't speak to his daughter because she married John Watters against the squire's wishes. There was nothing against John, excepting that he was poor, and he had a brother that had been in jail, but John couldn't help that, and he has done splendidly ever since he married, and it is my opinion that the squire would like to make up with John and Nellie, only he is too proud to make any advances, and they won't either. Then there is Kate Whiting and her sister, Lucy Patch, who had a falling out years ago, and ain't spoke to each other since, and before that one was the very shadder of the other. Reuben Hoopes and his brother Silas and their families fell out over the property after old man Hoopes died, and they ain't spoke since. Then the Anderson and Robey families had a falling out five years ago, and they don't speak, and before that they were as thick as flies around a molasses bar'l. Then there are other families in the district that ain't as friendly as they ought to be, so your Thanksgiving dinner might end in a riot if all these people come together in the schoolhouse."

"Not with a woman of your tact at the head of it," I said.

"Well, you go ahead and get it up, and I will aid and abet you all I can. It will be a break in the monotony of things here even if there is a fight."

I spent all of my time before and after school during the next ten days in calling at all of the homes in the neighborhood and inviting the people to come to the schoolhouse on Thanksgiving day with well-filled baskets. The schoolhouse was unusually large, and there would be room for all if we took out a part of the seats. Three days before Thanksgiving old Mrs. Dorton said:

"I guess you'll have the house full Thanksgiving. Nancy Ross was in here to-day, and she says that the whole district is coming, and Nancy knows if anyone does, for she spends most of her time trotting about picking up gossip and retailing it out again. She is as good as the local columns of a newspaper for giving news about what folks are saying and doing, and she says that the idea of the Thanksgiving dinner in the schoolhouse has caught like wildfire. Nancy says she wouldn't miss it for a party."

The larger boys and girls of the school met me at the schoolhouse the evening before Thanksgiving, and we decorated the room beautifully with evergreens and several flags we had been able to borrow. Provision had been made for two long tables to run almost the entire length of the room with some smaller tables in the corners.

"I suppose that we will have to be careful how we seat the people at the tables," I said to Mrs. Dorton.

"You just leave that to me," said the old lady. "I know the people better than you do, and I won't be so apt to make awkward blunders. I'll set 'em down all right."

Nancy Ross was right when she said that the whole district would be present at the dinner. The dinner was to be at one o'clock, and by noon the house was filled by a merry, happy crowd, including almost every family in the district.

There were baskets and boxes and even tubfuls of turkeys and chickens and doughnuts and pies and cakes. There were baskets of big red apples, and Hiram Hawkins brought half a barrel of sweet cider. Some one brought a basket of popcorn balls for the children, and there was an infinite variety of jellies and jams and preserves and pickles brought forth from boxes and baskets.

"There's enough stuff here to feed an army," said Hannah Dorton, as she bustled about from table to table, the happiest and most active person in the house.

A few minutes before one o'clock I heard her say to Mrs. Kate Whiting: "Come, now, Kate; you and your husband and two children are to set at this table over in this corner. Come right along." And when they were seated the old lady bustled up to Mrs. Patch and said:

"Now, Lucy, you and your husband and the children are to sit here at this table."

"And if she didn't plump them right down with the Whitings that they hadn't spoken to for years," said the voluble Nancy Ross afterward. Indeed Nancy was so fond of telling about that Thanksgiving dinner afterward that I think I will let her tell about it now.

"Then," she said, "if that Hanner Dorton didn't set old Squire Bent down at the head of one table with his daughter Nellie at his right hand and his son-in-law, John Watters, at his left, an' their baby in a high chair at its grandpa's side, an' it wa'n't three minutes before the old squire had that baby in his arms and he et his whole dinner with the little thing in his lap, I heard his daughter say to him 'shan't I take the baby, father, so that you can eat your dinner in greater comfort?' But he held right on to it, and there he sat talkin' to Nellie and John same as if there'd never been any trouble at all. And he had that baby in his arms the whole afternoon, an' went around as proud sayin' to folks: 'See my grandson. Ain't he a mighty fine boy?' It was the first time he had ever seen the child, an' the next week he made Nellie and John come and live with him. Then what did that Hanner Dorton do but put Reuben Hoopes an' his brother Silas and their families at a table by themselves, an' I heard her say to 'em: 'Come, now, you folks want to be sociable an' have a good visit together same as own brothers ought to on Thanksgivin' day.' Their wives have always wanted to make up, an' tell you they found their tongues mighty soon, an' 'fore that meal was over they was talkin' away as if there had never been any row over property or anything else. An' before they knew it the Andersons and Robey families found themselves at the same table with Hanner sayin' to 'em: 'Now it don't make no diff'rence about the past. This is Thanksgiving day, an' a good time to forget that there has ever been anything but a happy past between you folks.'

"Then if she didn't up an' set old Ruth Norse an' old Betty Underwood down side by side, an' they hadn't spoke to each other for years, an' before they knowed it them two old bodies were chatting away together as if they had never had a falling out in the world. Then when she had got all the people that were enemies set down side by side she seated every one else, an' then she said:

"We will now sing:

'Blest be the tie that binds.'

An' ev'rybody sung it, an' then Elder Sharpe asked a blessin' an' the dinner was begun. There never was such a spread seen before in these parts, an' you never would have thought to have seen them people eatin' an' laughin' an' merrymakin' together that there was such a thing in the world as malice or envy or bitterness or ill-will or anything o' that sort, no you wouldn't. After the dinner we had games an' sung songs an' made speeches, an' from that time on there was more peace an' happiness an' sociability in the neighborhood than there ever was before. I tell you, we'd good reason to stand up as we did before we started for home an' sing 'Praise God from whom all blessings flow.'"—J. L. Harbour, in Detroit Free Press.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

To the Popular Mind It is One of Festivity—Wrong Conception Placed Upon It.

To the popular mind the word "Thanksgiving" stands for a day of festivity. But they who lose its subjective meaning in mere creature enjoyment suffer a misfortune and miss an opportunity.

To our fathers Thanksgiving was a sacrament. It was one of their acts of religion to set apart for it an annual day. Heaven had blessed their harvests, and they wished to express in a special way appreciation of its favors.

Nothing in their example was more sane and sensible than the creation of this November family custom, now become national. There have been changes of our social life since the old time. These have made it less easy to observe the day so generally with public rites or worship, but the ordinance holds its place with pleasing fitness, and with ample reason.

We have a thousandfold more to be devoutly glad for than our fathers had, and the feeling and the faith they carried with them to the "solemn assembly" we can radiate in brighter homes and wider activities of kindness.

The unfolding Christian age has given us the larger thought of the meaning and mission of freedom and of civilization; the grander type and idea of benevolence; the tenderer beliefs that sweeten life and death with hope. For all these let us thank God.

Gratitude is not only "a natural function of the healthy soul;" it is its wealth. Invest it. Its interest will enrich the character and uplift the whole life.—Youth's Companion.

PROCLAIMED MILITARISM.

Republican Imperialists Now Clamor for a Larger Standing Army.

With an impudence that is not surprising, the imperialists have seized upon the result of election as the nation's indorsement of McKinley's Philippine policy of imperialism and militarism. We say it is not surprising because four years ago we saw those who are now leading the dance of imperialism with equal impudence claim a sound money victory as the indorsement of a protective tariff system, and the trust-breeding Dingley bill was jammed through congress at an extra session of congress, while, according to the confession of Secretary Gage, no adequate sound money legislation has been enacted yet.

In the last campaign we were told explicitly by every responsible republican stump speaker, by the candidates and by the party organs that the issues of militarism and imperialism were shams; that imperialism is impossible, while there could be no such thing as militarism because next July the army will be reduced to 27,000 men, as it was for many years before the Spanish war. We were distinctly assured that no standing army is contemplated, and that none would be necessary because the war in the Philippines would cease with McKinley's reelection.

Now, after such distinct disclaimers of intent to militarism and imperialism, isn't it the height of impudence for a republican organ to say, as the Utica Press does: "One thing settled by the recent election was that 'militarism' has no terror for the American people." If militarism was not an issue of the campaign as the press repeatedly contended, how was anything about it settled? The Press then argues for a large standing army, at least 100,000 men. It says:

"The largest number proposed is none too many for the army of a nation of the wealth, numbers and interest of the United States. A standing army is no menace to the liberties of Americans, nor is it the burden that campaign orators represent. Every man who leaves the farm, the office, the mill, the railroad, the factory to enroll in the army makes room for another worker. He does more; he enlarges as a consumer the market for the farmer and manufacturer, thus contributing to maintain wages and profits by increasing consumption.

"A greater army is needed. The people approve its raising. The duty of supplying the need, in compliance with the popular will, is with congress. Let it act without delay in order that there may be no embarrassment in the Philippines from reduced ranks."

We simply call attention to this false claim that a large standing army is approved by the people, and show the false reasoning by which the press undertakes to make a standing army attractive. The army would take men from the farm and factory and make room for other workers, and then the products of these other workers would be consumed by the army and the markets of the farmer and manufacturer stimulated. What a good thing this would be all around. Why then hasn't some one started a prosperity boom before by enlarging the army? How simple it is. When times are hard enlarge the army and let them consume the products of the workers and everybody will become prosperous. The more idle men the better times.

But this reasoning omits the prime consideration that the standing army is a charge upon the people. The greater the army the greater the number of non-producers of wealth, and the correspondingly greater the burden of taxation to be borne by the producers. How warped must be the idea in economics which sees in the standing army a good thing, the same as it saw a few years ago a good thing for business in a brush of war. And how warped must be the political conscience which now proclaims its purpose to increase the army, something which was disclaimed all through the campaign. Our imperialist friends may yet feel the truth of Lincoln's aphorism on the fooling of the people.—Utica Observer.

——The American republic is so strong that not even four years more of McKinley can turn its face back from the ancient principles of liberty and justice.—Boston Post.

——Mr. Bryan has done the graceful thing by telegraphing his congratulations to President McKinley. Mr. Bryan is a hard fighter, but he is a good loser.—Albany Argus.

——The reorganization of the democratic party is inevitable, but it is going to be accomplished entirely without regard to the more or less valuable advice and assistance volunteered by republican editors and orators. Democracy is competent to attend to its own affairs.—Chicago Chronicle.

——We shall expect to hear now of the immediate cessation of hostilities in the Philippines. You know the natives were only fighting until they could hear that Mr. McKinley was reelected. Davy Crockett's coon was nothing to the discretion which Aguinaldo has been expected to exhibit in the event of democratic defeat.—Houston Post.

——There is no reason why the democrats of the country should be disheartened. They have only to recognize their errors and to correct them in order to be as formidable a political factor as they have heretofore been. The vicious tendencies of the republican party will be strengthened by the great victory they have gained, while it is not too much to expect that the democrats may be chastened by two tremendous overthrows in succession and begin earnestly to look at the causes that have brought them about. —Louisville Courier-Journal

UNCLE SAM'S MAILS.

Over Half a Billion Miles Traveled in Its Delivery.

Cost of the Service Totals $57,160,506 —Alaska Has Letter Mail Delivery All Winter—Service in Island Possessions.

The annual report of W. S. Shallenberg, second assistant postmaster general, has just been made public. It shows that on June 30 last the annual rate of expenditure for the inland mail service was $55,146,060; for foreign service, $2,014,538; total expenditures, $57,160,598.

There were 22,834 star routes, with a total mileage of 269,858, involving an annual rate of expenditure of $5,133,378; 1,943 special office routes, 182 steamboat routes, 2,668 railroad routes (annual expense, $33,424,782); 228 railway post office car routes (annual expense, $4,369,000); 8,695 railway post office clerks (annual expenditure, $8,946,324); 7,190 mail messenger routes, 220 wagon routes (in cities); 287 electric and cable car routes; five pneumatic tube routes (annual expenditure, $222,266.) Necessary and special facilities on trunk lines of railroads involved an annual rate of expenditure of $195,723 and mail equipments cost $325,744.

The routes of all kinds in the domestic mail service cover nearly half a million miles in length and the miles traveled over them per annum were 459,205,773. An average of almost nine trips a week on each route was maintained throughout the country.

Letter mail for the interior of Alaska was carried last winter by a service that was reasonably well performed. For the coming winter the arrangements double the frequency of dispatches for points supplied by various overland routes, supplying the offices along them with letter mail four times a month. Mail will be carried by reindeer this winter from Eaton to Kotzebue, a point north of the arctic circle. Plans for various overland routes are announced and the necessity emphasized of cooperation with the war department in opening an all-American military and post road from Valdez to the upper Yukon.

The service in Porto Rico, Hawaii and the temporary military postal service in China are touched on briefly.

In the railway mail service matter too illegibly or improperly addressed to permit delivery amounted to 14,617,284 pieces, an increase of over 11,000.

INSURANCE AGAINST STRIKERS

A Number of Austrian Manufacturers Form an Association with a Novel Object.

A number of Austrian manufacturers have formed an association for insurance against strikes, according to United States Consul Hossfeld, at Trieste. It is the object of the association to indemnify its several members for all losses sustained by them from unjust strikes which may break out in their respective establishments. Each member is to pay a weekly premium equal to from three to four per cent. of the amount of his pay roll. When a strike occurs, a committee will be appointed to investigate all the circumstances and if the cause of the strikers be found just, no indemnity shall be paid.

A similar insurance association, although on a smaller scale, is said to have been organized in Germany. "Both the Austrian and German associations, it appears," says Consul Hossfeld, "recognize in principle the justness of strikes, which is, in Germany at least, an important concession to labor."

AS TO M'KINLEY'S SUCCESS.

Reelection Does Not Signify a Fall and Free Indorsement by the People.

Reelection to the presidency is naturally accepted by the fortunate candidate at its face value as a personal compliment and a proof of approbation. The larger the vote the more flattering is the commendation supposed to be. Yet the approval may be qualified; the election may contain also a lesson and a warning. It is the weakness of human nature that, whereas a reelected president should return to power with a heightened sense of his responsibilities, a deeper appreciation of the obligations imposed upon him by this added evidence of popular trust, he may in reality accept it complacently as a sign that he has been wholly admirable in the past and will be well-nigh infallible in the future. Ordinarily it is only the defeated candidate who with humility and self-searching seeks to find wherein he is prone to error.

William McKinley will enter upon his second term as the result of a vote which leaves no possible doubt as to the popular preference for him as against his leading opponent. Yet in his reduced pluralities in certain states where his attitude on the money issue should have swelled his vote he will find reason for serious thought. Massachusetts, for instance, is not a state where Mr. Bryan's populist tendencies are welcome by any means, but Massachusetts, owing to the so-called anti-imperialist sentiment of its voters, cut down McKinley's plurality of 1896 by 100,000 votes. In New York, a state of immense commercial and industrial interests, his plurality was fairly cut in two, though the popular uprising against Croker and Crokerism largely offset the effort of Croker to assist Bryan.

There is in all this a lesson which Mr. McKinley will do well to heed. He is not in himself a strong man; he is the medium through which strong forces operate. His nature is plastic, his habit is to yield, and his will power is a negligible quantity. As one result of his pliancy and opportunism we have now to deal with a problem resulting from the lack of a settled and enlightened policy in the Philippines. As another result we are face to face with the serious problem involved in the steady growth of certain tendencies looking to the centralization of wealth by improper means and for improper purposes. Up to the present time this administration has shown no well-defined perception of its duty in the matter of the trust problem, and still less has it shown any purpose to take any effective action thereon. The trusts which hold no special privileges and which are not oppressive and the trusts which owe their very existence to favoritism and bad legislation have all been grouped in the same class and treated with uniformly tender regard by the obliging administration. Those measures of publicity, of tariff reform and of reform in discrimination in railway rates which should divide the two classes, leaving unharmed the beneficial combinations which rest on superior products and low prices to consumers and curbing those which are harmful, seemed to have formed no part of the administration's programme.

Mr. McKinley has yet to make himself known as an earnest friend of measures beneficial to the great mass of the people as distinguished from the interests of the few who have power and influence.—Chicago Record (Ind.).

——Mark Hanna confesses, and he does it with a deprecation commensurate with the well-known modesty of his shrinking nature, that he did hear cries for him to be the next president while he was on his stumping tour in the northwest. DEMOCRACY'S FUTURE.

The Party Will Always Combat Imperialism and the Work Against the Trusts.

"Will the democratic party," asks a New York paper, "now be restored to the control of its reason and its conscience, and furnish once more a real opposition?" Much depends upon what is meant by "its reason and its conscience." If "reason" and "conscience" mean complete acquiescence in imperialism, militarism and the unrestrained reign of industrial monopoly, then the democratic party as a whole will probably never return to the control of its "reason" and its "conscience." Part of it may return, but not all of it.

The future of the democratic party, it seems, is already the theme of speculation. No one can pretend to forecast its development. There are many and varied possibilities. The parallel of the liberal party in Great Britain would indicate that, with the imperialistic spirit unchecked, the democratic party may break into fragments. There are signs of this already. The gold democrats contain a large proportion of the imperialists, while the south, solid enough, may contain altogether too much genuine imperialistic spirit and too much native contempt for inferior races to be kept long in support of an anti-imperialistic programme.

Or, take the question of plutocracy,

THE M'KINLEY MINSTRELS.

"Uncle Mark, now dat de campaign am over, can I do a little talking?"
"Yes, William, but don't let me catch you trying to do any thinking."
"The entire company will now do a cakewalk and sing an anthem entitled: 'Geel Won't We Squeeze the People in the Next Four Years!'"

An Odd Trade Mark

And It's Origin.

The above singular combination is the trade-mark adopted by the Paris Medicine Company of St. Louis and is used in their advertisements of Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. To the many people who may be interested to know the origin of this odd trade-mark, the following information is given:

In the spring of 1893, the little two year old son of Mr. E. W. Grove was taken quite sick with malaria. Mr. Grove, knowing the virtue of his own medicine, commenced giving him Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. He had taken this prescription only a few days until quite a favorable change was noted, in fact, he grew so rosy, healthy and plump, that Mrs. Grove in describing his condition to her husband, remarked "Grove's Tonic makes our baby as fat as a pig". This led Mr. Grove to thinking that the expression "as fat as pigs" used in connection with babies, was a very common one, and suggested to him the idea of combining a child's face with a pig's body, with wording as above, "Grove's Tonic makes children as fat as pigs". It is an attractive trade-mark, and the remedy it represents—Grove's Tonic—is regarded by the public as being the very best prescription for Malaria, Chills and Fever. The record of the Paris Medicine Company shows that Nine Thousand gross—Ninety carloads—of Grove's Tonic have been sold this year from Jan. 1st, 1900, and as "orders are truly a good index of a medicine's worth" no one can doubt the virtue of Grove's Tonic. Druggists all sell Grove's Tonic on a no cure, no pay basis, for fifty cents a bottle.

A NARROW ESCAPE. A GRATEFUL WOMAN.

MRS. F. J. LYNCH, GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

Mrs. F. J. Lynch, 324 South Division street, Grand Rapids, Mich., writes: The Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio:

Gentlemen—"I earnestly recommend Peruna to any suffering woman as it cures quickly. I had a most persistent cough which nothing seemed to cure. Two bottles of Peruna did more for me than all the doctors pretended to do. In a couple of weeks I found myself in excellent health, and have been enjoying it ever since. Hence I look on Peruna as a treat for old and young." MRS. F. J. LYNCH.

Chronic Coughs and Colds Are Catarrhal Diseases.

Catarrh is the Continual Scourge of Christendom.

Catarrh hovers ominously over every city, and nestles treacherously in every hamlet. It flies with vampire wings from country to country, and casts a black shadow of despair over all lands. Its stealthy approach and its lingering stay makes it a dread to the physician and a pest to the patient.

It changes the merry laugh of childhood to the wheezy breathing of croup, and the song of the blushing maiden to the hollow cough of consumption. In its withering grasp the rounded form of the fond wife and mother becomes gaunt and spectral, and the healthy flush of manhood turns to the sallow, haggard visage of the invalid.

Cough takes the place of conversation, speech gives way to spitting, the repulsive odors of chronic catarrh poison the kiss of the fondest lovers, and thickened membranes bedim sight, impair hearing and destroy taste.

Like the plague-stricken Egyptians a cry of distress has gone out from every household, and the mildew of woe clings to every hearthstone.

Catarrh in some form, catarrh in some stage lurks as an enemy in the slightest cough or cold and finishes its fiendish work in heart disease and consumption.

No tissue, function, or organ of the body escapes, its ravages; muscles wither, nerves shatter, and secretions dry up under its blighting presence. So stubborn and difficult is this disease that to invent a remedy to cure chronic catarrh has been the ambition of the greatest minds in all ages.

Is it therefore any wonder that the vast multitude of people who have been cured of chronic catarrh by Peruna are so lavish in their praise of this remedy? That the discovery of Peruna has made the cure of catarrh a practical certainty is not only the testimony of the people, but many medical men declare it to be true.

As a drug store in this age of the world is incomplete without Peruna, it can be obtained anywhere with directions for use. A complete guide for the prevention and cure of catarrh and all diseases of winter, sent free by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

Midway.

M. C. Carroll is very ill of pleurisy.

The farmers were blessed the latter part of last week with a three days' rain, which was greatly needed.

Many of our progressive business men were seen, Monday and Tuesday, slaughtering their porkers, preparatory to a large Thanksgiving dinner.

George Ruh, of Big Bone Springs, lost a very fine milch cow, last Sunday night. She got to a pile of tobacco stalks and ate of them until she fell dead.

By the time the proposed electric road reaches the Springs, it will be quite a town, as there are contracts to several fine buildings before next spring.

J. D. Moore, of the Springs, is receiving quite a nice lot of tobacco at his commodious warehouse. He will strip, prize, and put it on the breaks at an early date.

Joseph H. Rich, one of Midway's most successful young farmers, shipped to Louisville, last Sunday night, 9 hogsheads of a crop of very superior leaf tobacco.

A protracted meeting began at Fair View Christian church, last Monday night, under very favorable auspices, two able ministers and a large congregation being present.

There is quite a lot of moving among the citizens of Beaver, the following persons changing residence for the future: G. W. Ossman, J. B. Eldred, B. B. Hume, Ed McCallister and Henry Maxwell.

In my last writing from this place I erroneously reported Holden & Fink as having the contract to paint the M. E. Chapel at the Springs. John Fink, a splendid young knight of the brush, secured the contract alone, and has employed Taylor McBee to assist him in putting on the ornamental touches.

Silas Lamkins sold, last week, to Bert Smith, the property which he recently bought of Z. T. Baker, Sr., retaining the blacksmith shop and enough land to build a dwelling upon. This is the celebrated triangular property of the late T. M. Rich, of Big Bone Springs. Purchase price, $300.

At the meeting held at the court house, last Monday, for the purpose of organizing the Democratic Executive Committee for this county, nine of the twelve precincts were represented by members or proxy. The Committee was organized by electing A. B. Rouse chairman, and Ira Pope, secretary.

The membership of the committee, at present, is as follows:

Burlington—A. B. Rouse.
Bullittsville—C. W. Riley.
Petersburg—J. W. Berkshire.
Bellevue—O. H. Acra.
Rabbit Hash—Ira Pope.
Big Bone—J. L. Jones.
Walton—J. H. Rogers.
Florence—Dr. B. A. Dulaney.
Constance—Walter Gordon.

The Democrats of the Union, Beaver and Verona precincts having failed to elect committeemen, the following order was made by the committee, yesterday, of which the Democrats in the said precincts will take notice and act accordingly:

By order of the Boone County Democratic Executive Committee, the Democratic voters of the Union, Beaverlick and Verona precincts, are hereby notified to meet in mass convention in their respective precincts, at 2 p. m., on Saturday, December 1, 1900, for the purpose of electing an executive committeeman for each of said precincts, to serve for four years.

A. B. ROUSE, Chairman.
IRA POPE, Secretary.

Resolutions of Respect.

Whereas, it has been the Divine Will of Almighty God to take from us our beloved brother, Charles Schramm, and whereas Workum Lodge No. 66, has thereby suffered an inestimable loss, be it hereby resolved, That the deep sorrow thus imposed upon us prompts an expression of sincere respect and heartfelt sympathy to his bereaved family.

The many deeds of valor that have marked the brilliant pathway of his remarkable career need no comment to extol their priceless merit. The great, kind, generous and sympathetic spirit that actuated him in all dealings with his fellow man has indelibly impressed upon the hearts of all who knew him an everlasting monument to the sacred memory of brother Schramm's noble life.

B. B. Smith,
Solon Early, } Com.
T. B. Mathews,

Workum Lodge No. 66 K. of P.

Whereas our beloved Bro. Charles Schramm, has been called from this earth to a home in Heaven; be it

Resolved, That in the death of Bro. Schramm, Petersburg Lodge, No. 698, F. & A. M. has not only lost one of its best loved members, but that each member of this Lodge has lost a dear friend, a generous comrade and a respected and revered Brother.

Resolved further, That men like Bro. Schramm reflect lustre on the bright record of memory, and his connection with Lodge No. 698 has done much to enhance the brilliancy of local Masonic achievements.

Resolved, That we as Masonic Brethren, recognizing the worth of one of the grandest men of the State, in deepest sorrow, deplore his early death and testify to our positive belief that Charlie Schramm has left his earthly lodge to take a well earned and highly merited position with the fraternity above.

Committee—PETERSBURG LODGE No. 66, F. & A. M.

Brave Explorers.

Like Stanley and Livingstone, found it harder to overcome Malaria, Fever and Ague, and Typhoid disease germs than savage cannibals; but thousads have found that Electric Bitters is a wonderful cure for all malarial diseases. If you have chills with fever, aches in back of neck and head, and tired and worn out feeling, a trial will convince you of their merit. W. A. Null of Webb, Ill., writes: "My children suffered for more than a year with chills and fever; then two bottles of Electric Bitters cured them." Only 50 cents. Try them. Guaranteed. Sold by McKim, Burlington; Oelsner, Florence; Crouch, Union.

GALLATIN COUNTY.

(From Warsaw Independent.)

Corn is selling here at 35 cents per bushel delivered.

Arch Beall and Thos. Waller sold their crops of tobacco to David Orr at five cents per stick.

It seems almost incredible, but although Warsaw is reckoned at sixty-five miles from Cincinnati by river, the glare of the electric lights of that city can be plainly seen in the heavens at night in a northeasterly direction from here. The distance between these two points on a bee line is about thirty-five miles.

John J. Richards, of Walton, who is engaged in the merchandise business there and one of our county's former clever citizens, spent Monday and Tuesday here on business. He was accompanied by Jamieson Rogers, of Walton, who has the contract to erect a monument over the grave of Mr. Richard's wife, whose remains are interred in the Odd Fellows cemetery here.

A peculiar accident occurred in a Western town recently. The big iron safe in a shoe factory refused to open, and the bookkeeper and engineer conceived the idea that they could burn out the combination by use of carbon and electricity. It took several hours to accomplish their purpose, but they finally succeeded, but not until they had stood for several hours in the glare of the electric light taking turns at holding the wire and carbon. When the work was over both complained of a dizziness and pain in the head which increased as the hours passed, and in a short time both went suddenly blind at about the same time. All efforts to restore their sight have been unavailing, for while the eye balls appear all right, the sight is destroyed.

Now is the time to be pushing along the hogs that are to be slaughtered this winter, says The American Cultivator. We never found anything that would put the fat on equal to good cornmeal or that would make pork more to our liking. We remember a statement by Professor Stewart in which he says that with good hogs and proper feeding one should make 8 pounds of pork from a bushel of raw corn or 10 pounds from a bushel of raw meal, 12 pounds from the corn if boiled and 15 pounds from the meal if boiled. He referred to live weight, but we think if he had said dressed [illegible] he would not have been far from right. And yet our experience has been more with what we called scalded meal, or such as we had poured boiling water over and stirred well, allowing it to stand until cool enough to feed. Whether a more thorough cooking would have improved it we do not know. We think Theodore Louis, who is very good authority on pork raising, favors boiling the meal until well cooked, but what a feeder can do for hundreds of animals might cost too much for labor and fuel if done for a few.

The young man who knows how to lay off corn and potato rows, and to regulate the distance of the same so as to get the crops, is worth a cowpen full of nice kid gloved, fancy over coated fellows who know how to lead a fashionable waltz. Setting a plow just right and adjusting the gears so that backs and shoulders of horses will never hurt, are worth a thousand-fold more to the country than knowing how to pose in a parlor. Yes, and a girl that can bake a loaf of bread and make a sweet roll of butter is worth a whole seminary of those soft hand angels who sit in the "pahlah" and let their "mas" do the kitchen work.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 5, 1900. NO. 7.

CONGRESS is in session again, it having convened last Monday at noon.

THE United States Supreme Court upholds the Kentucky separate coach law.

NEWPORT appears to be a city in which it is safe to keep out of the banking business.

IT will be but a few weeks before Santa Claus will start out on his annual gift enterprise.

THE last issue of the Georgetown News was not much of purveyor of news, but it was a darling as a producer of revenue.

THE Democratic primary election held in Grant county, last Saturday, brought out a large vote, and they do say, a very large volums of whisky.

Secretary Gage estimates that the receipts of the government during the current fiscal year will be about $80,000,000 more than the expenditures, if no change is made in the laws.

BRO. NEWLON, of the Owenton Herald, wants to be the messenger to take Kentucky's electoral vote to Washington. In making him the messenger a good Democrat would be honored, besides one of the strongest Democratic counties in the State would be recognized thereby.

AMONG the prize winners in last Saturday's primary election in Grant county, is the name of Clay Conrad, who will be the next Judge of the Grant County Court. Here's to you, Clay, and may your judicial career be a credit to you and an honor to those who have given you the boost. Accept the RECORDER'S congratulations.

CONGRESS is in session, and during this winter Congressman Berry will endeavor to secure several generous appropriations for the improvement of the Ohio river in the neighborhood of Cincinnati. The proposed dam at Cullum's riffle, if it is decided to build it, will be a piece of work of considerable magnitude, and in anticipation of the work being done at that point, the land owners at Cullum's riffle and in that vicinity have anvance the prices of their real estate.

IN his message to Congress the President says China must make full reparation in money, security and open markets for her misbehavior. He desires an early settlement of the Alaskan boundary line, and urges the building of Nicaraguan canal; desires legislation to continue the parity of gold and silver; recommends that the war tax be reduced $30,000,000; wants an army of 100,000 men; favors the ship subsidy; wants uniform legislation as to trusts.

LAST Sunday's Courier-Journal contained an account of how Mr. Lloyd wrote "Stringtown on the Pike," and how it happened to be published, together with several pictures that are not in the book, among them an excellent picture of the walnut tree, on the Florence 'pike near J. J. Tanner's, and which has played such a conspicuous part in several hanging bees. Another picture is that of F. Riddell, president of the Boone County Deposit Bank, and which is labelled, "A Typical Citizen of Stringtown."

IT seems most remarkable that the vote of 1900 should exceed that of 1896 only by a few hundred thousand, and yet that appears to be the case, so far as the official returns thus far received from over forty States show. It was generally believed that fully fifteen million votes would be cast at the last election, while the returns show only about fourteen million. The census gives us seventy-three million people; the returns, at a ratio of five to one, only seventy million. Now again, it looks like the census was nearer correct than is the vote. The showing is curious all around. Mr. Bryan does not get as large a vote as he did four years ago, and Mr. McKinley only a paltry 100,000 more. Where a registered vote was required, 94 per cent. voted. Very few States in the Union cast as large a vote as four years ago. The East did better than the West. Kentucky gained 23,000 votes over 1896.

Editorial Paragraphs.

War "as war" is over both in the Phillipines and South Africa but it still continues as taxation.

o o o

Secretary Long asks for only some $87,000,000 for the navy this year. He saved us about $2,000,000 on armour plate but that is no reason why he should take the entire Treasury surplus.

o o o

Certain Republicans are now declaring that the election has settled the ascendancy of the trust in American business. Of course, we knew this before, but we didn't expect to have it admitted so readily.

o o o

The Chinese are going back to their old style of arms because the new ones didn't enable them to win against the allies. This is about as characteristic a specimen of Oriental reasoning as the world has had for a long time.

o o o

The ship yards of the United States are crowded to their utmost capacity and working overtime, and yet they cannot supply the demand for ships. Yet the ship builders are clamoring for government aid to save them from bankruptcy.

o o o

Nevertheless, the tariff rates are not to be reduced even on articles whose import has altogether ceased and whose export has largely increased. The only effect of the rates now is to enable the manufacturers to charge higher prices at home than abroad.

o o o

The Democratic policy in regard to the army bill as set forth by Democrats now in Washington, is to grant whatever the President asks in the Philippine service, but to add a provision that when the need there is over, the army is to cease and determine, going back to its old status.

o o o

Chicago is suffering from numerous holdups which the police seem powerless to stop. Therefore, they advise citizens to shoot the robbers on sight, and add, that the law prohibits the carrying of concealed deadly weapons. Probably they think the holdup man will lend the citizen his gun to shoot with.

o o o

It is somewhat surprising to find so many influential Republican Congressmen declaring themselves in opposition to the ship subsidy steal, as set forth in the pending bill. The principle of the scheme is bad enough, but the bill as urged is a thousand times worse and amounts to nothing less than robbery of the Treasury.

o o o

Controller Dawes finds that three-fifths of all the directors of National Banks are heavily in debt to the banks with which they are connected. In other words, most of the National Banks are run for the special benefit of their directors. Why then should the government lend them money without interest to lend to their directors?

A writer in the Medical Record is authority for the statement that there is in the United States one physician for 600 people. This is twice as many proportionately as there are in Great Britain, four times as many as in France, five times as many as in Germany and six times as many as in Italy. Because we have five times as many doctors as they have in Germany does not prove that we have need of five times as much medical treatment as the Germans but it is fair enough to assume that there is encouragement for the profession in this country or its ranks would not be so well filled. So the questions arise. Are we a sickly people? Are we, generally speaking, less strong and well, in the proportion of one to two, and four, and five, and six than the people of Great Britain, and France, and Germany, and Italy? Or is it, perhaps, that we are more watchful of our condition, either through nervousness that apprehends something wrong, or through wisdom that appreciates the delicacy of the human mechanism? Or, again, is it, as has been suggested, our poor cooking that keeps us in a disturbed condition requiring constant dosing?—New Bedford Standard.

William Gibson, of Cattlettsburg, tortured his two-year-old stepdaughter with a red-hot poker during a period of two months, until death resulted. A mother in confinement and a 13-year-old brother of Gibson were witnesses to the fiendish torture. Gibson escaped and is being searched for by a large posse. The mother is under guard and the boy under arrest.

The burial of the late Pete Everett took place at Mt. Sterling, Wednesday. The body was escorted to the B. & O. depot in this city Wednesday morning by a band of thirty Confederates. At the grave in Mt. Sterling the Confederate service for the dead was conducted by the mountain evangelist, Bud B. Bigstaff, who was with Morgan's command and was a gallant soldier of the Confederacy. — Lexington Democrat.

Chief Justice Hazelrigg adjudged insufficient the response of Circuit Clerk Ford, of Franklin co., to the rule secured against him by Attorney W. C. Owens, of counsel for Jim Howard, to show cause why he should not furnish without being paid for a copy of the record, and directed him to furnish it. The response of the clerk was that Howard bargained with him to pay $200 for making the copy. The ruling of the court means that where, in a criminal case, the defendant had no property out of which the clerk can collect his fee he may be required to furnish the record without payment of such a fee.

The common opinion of the shippers and buyers to this market is that a greater number of Tobacco growers, on a small scale, are now entering this market than has been known for years. This indicates a satisfactory service given by the warehouses.—Cincinnati Tobacco Journal.

Conscience Money.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Harry McChesney has received $301.14 conscience money, with which he is at a loss to know what to do, as there is no law on the statue books providing for its recovery into the Treasury. The money was received from a former Kentuckian, now a resident of Nashville, who formerly taught in the common school of Christian county. His name is withheld. The money came into Mr. McChesney's hands through Miss Kate McDaniel, the County School Superintendent of Christian county. Some time ago Miss McDaniel wrote the Superintendent that she had received a letter from a conscience-stricken man in Nashville, who stated that he taught school in her county in 1890 and 1891 on a certificate to which he did not have a clear title, and which he was unlawfully assisted in receiving, and saying that he wanted to pay back into the State Treasury $301.14, the amount that he had drawn for his services. The Superintendent thought that as the teacher had taught the school he should receive the money. The man insisted in paying over the money, and the county official finally accepted it and turned it over to the State Superintendent. — Courier-Journal.

The re-election of President McKinly has not restrained the belligerency of the Filipinos. And they are not among those who have rushed forward to offer a situation to Colonel Bryan. They seem to be reasonably well contented with themselves. General MacArthur has the right idea. He wants more troops. He probably needs more than he is asking for. It is of great importance that some conclusive policy as to the Philippine Islands shall be adopted at an early day. If the policy of conquest is to be pursued to the bitter end, perhaps it would be better to send a tremendous army across the seas at once, and raise the taxes for the time to the limit of endurance, than to have a flow of blood for a generation or longer.—Enquirer.

Beets, turnips and carrots can be kept in bins in the barn or cellar. A layer of carrots and a layer of dry oats or corn, or even of sand, will keep them at an even temperature and prevent sudden freezing and thawing. The same applies to potatoes or other root crops. Cold does not do them as much damage as warmth. It is when they thaw suddenly that they begin to decay. Apples will remain frozen without being impaired in keeping qualities, but they will soon show the effects of thawing. All root crops that are kept just above the freezing point will remain in good condition.

The United States Supreme Court Monday handed down a decision affirming the Kentucky Court of Appeals in the case of the C. and O. Railroad Company vs. the State of Kentucky. This decision sustains the validity of the separate coach law, holding that the prosecution does not necessarily involve the interstate question and that as applied to domestic commerce there is no doubt of the constitutionality of the Kentucky law. Justice Harlan handed down a dissenting opinion. Judge Harlan can always be counted against the other Judges in matters concerning Kentucky.

All grades of Leaf, Lugs and Trash, showing decided good character or quality, were rather active and sold at fairly good prices. There was no tendency on the part of buyers to advance the market values established last week, nevertheless, the market, as a whole, was generally conceded to be a shade stronger. Common and Nondescript grades were firm, in the bidding and sold at prices slightly advanced.—Cincinnati Tobacco Journal.

Postmaster John L. Bosley and Deputy Postmaster Sherman H. Stivers, of Paris, were arrested yesterday on the charge of misappropriating postal funds. They were taken to Lexington, where they gave bond for their appearance. J. D. McClintock has been placed in temporary charge of the Paris post-office.

Crop and Stock.

T. J. Curtis, of Madison county, sold 60 yearling mules at $75 each and the Richmond Register says no better lot ever left the county

Correct feeding, clean water, comfortable housing, thorough currying and brushing, plenty of work and good care are the safe guards of the health of the farm horse.

Over 100,000 horses have either died or been killed in the South African war. Ten thousand of these horses and 45,000 mules were shipped from this country to South Africa for the English government.

The boss food for swine is milk. First, for the piglets, is the milk of the sow. After that is exhausted switch off onto cow milk. If whole cow milk cannot be had, and only skim-milk is obtainable, it may be fed to the pigs with wheat shorts—that is, the rich shorts called middlings.

The shepherd should know his sheep all through, from head to tail, and inside and outside. And this is a somewhat complicated affair. There are the breeding, the feeding, the fattening for sale, the value to the consumer, and then the fleece. The form of the sheep is a most material consideration to the producer of the marketable product.

The Southdowns and Hampshires are truer to type than either Shropshires or Oxfords, and fair specimens of either breed could be selected from both kinds. The main improvement of the Oxfords will be to shorten their ears and legs, and cover their nose and legs and backs with a finer grade of wool. This could be accomplished with a cross on best Shropshire rams.

The Denver Stockman says: "It begins to look as though Colorado would have more lambs on feed than ever before this season. Lately the demand has been exceedingly strong and the men who said a few weeks ago that they would not feed, have caught the infection and are stocking up. The only trouble now is to find enough lambs to fill the lots to the satisfaction of the farmers."

Hogs on range often come in with eyes sore, red, swollen, watery and mattery. Often the cause of the trouble is the pollen from the weeds on the range. Common ragweed furnishes abundant pollen that is very irritating to the eyes and the nostrils of swine and other stock. The pollen of this weed will always give a "cold in the head," or should we call it "hay fever?" Hogs often suffer from this cause.

The single object of the breeder and shepherd is to get the most money out of the sheep at the least cost. To do this the sheep must have a special form and shape, which is essential to the actual market value of the carcass for the butcher, and equally productive of the most wool on those parts of the body where the best wool grows. These points of excellence as to form go precisely together on both these lines; the best wool grows on the best meat, and thus the special form of a sheep which we say is best for one use happens to be the best for both.

A good many farmers hesitate about feeding sheep because they have no buildings. All that a sheep wants is to be kept dry and sheltered from the wind. Any kind of a shed with a roof that will turn rain and melting snow is all that is required, and this can be built very cheaply. It can be left open to the east. We have seen sheep doing well in a shelter made of poles and covered with straw held in place with old rails. Of course such shelters are not as good as well built ones, but a man can make a start in this way and soon have cash to spare to put up a better one. The point is to keep doing business all the year around.

It don't pay to fatten hogs if you have to buy corn and nobody knows this better than Lincoln County's clever clerk. He has seven porkers that now stand him $102 and at a fair sale could not get over $75 or $80 for them. Besides slop by the hundreds of buckets these hogs have eaten 37 barrels of corn and three of them will have to have several barrels more to make them fat enough to kill. It will cost every cent of $10 to kill and salt them, render lard, etc., so it will be seen that Mr. Cooper is out $25 or $30, besides a world of trouble carrying slop, keeping up fences and other work that follow the raising of swine.—Stanford Interior Journal

It is not enough for a thing to be good, but it must be good at the right moment.

Farmers should organize to advance their interests, promote agricultural prosperity and secure fairness and justice in prices, in legislation, on taxation, for self improvement, for social advancement, and for intellectual development. The Grange organization was established for that purpose. It is now thirty-four years old and has done much to improve the farmers' condition. Farmers must know that they must themselves think out the methods of advancing their interests. No one can do it for them. The only road to better agricultural conditions comes through educating the farmer in his profession, in his rights as a citizen, and in his duties to himself, his family and his country. As we see, no man can be truly loyal to his country who would cripple the great producing interests of this country, agriculture, which is the foundation of the prosperity of all other industries, and furnishes annually 90 per cent. of the wealth of the country.—Aaron Jones, Master National Grange.

HINTS FOR THE SHEPHERD.

Feed the lambs. Feed them through the ewes, and then feed them from a well supplied feed trough.

The condition of a flock is much like that of a garden. If the weeds are left to grow it is all weeds.

It is a waste of time to feed and breed poor ewes, and to cull the flock is indispensable for the profit of it.

The breeding time is near. And as the sheep is at this time, so will be the condition of the flock in the future.

Selection of the best is the first care of the intelligent breeder of a flock. This is especially so in regard to the fleece.

We cannot think or act too seriously on the subject of how important it is that the shepherd should study the nature of wool and know its value.

We may take it as a rule that the lamb will pay for the food of its dam, and leave the fleece for the profit. The ewe always stands for its own value.

One part of cornmeal ground as finely as possible, one part of bran ground with the corn, and one part of cotton seed meal is an excellent mixture for the lambs.

Nature has no more to do with the shepherd's business than it has with the making of cloth from the sheep's fleeces. At least it is so if the wool grower knows his business. —American Sheep Breeder.

Some two or three winters ago the legislature of Nevada passed a law legalizing the destruction of wild horses on the range. It is now estimated from available returns that since the passage of that measure over 6,000 horses have been shot as useless cumberers of the ground, and now that the demand for range horse in that state far exceeds the supply, the destroyers are bewailing the loss of over $250,000, which at present prices the horses would have brought if allowed to live and be rounded up.

Napoleon added to his many other deeds, of interest to the world, that of having climbed to the top of a tower on horseback, a feat accomplished May 16, 1797, when he rode to the top of the Campanile or bell tower of St. Mark's, Venice, in order that he himself might give the signal to his fleet of the surrender of the city.

Dr. Richard A. Wise, the third-time defeated Republican candidate for Congress in the Richmond, Va., district, bobs up again with another contest. The first time he was defeated by 3,000, but was given the seat. The next time by 6,000, but was given the seat, and this time by 8,000, and he is again claiming the seat. The cheek of these Republicans is appalling.

Two men were traveling across the prairie when they came in contact with a mad buffalo bull. They both sought safety in flight and ran toward a tree. The bull was too close behind, however, for both to get into the tree, so one dropped into a convenient hole close by. The bull charged over the top of him, but of course missed him. The man crawled out of the hole, and the bull, turning, charged him again, when the man again sought safety in the hole. The bull charged time and again and every time he went by the man came out of the hole. Finally the friend in the tree yelled to his companion: "D—n you, stay in the hole!" The man in the hole yelled back at his friend: "D—n you, there is a bear in there."

PATIENCE A VIRTUE.

Dr. Talmage Says We Are All Sadly in Need of It.

We Should Exercise It in the Affairs of Daily Life—Turns Discord Into Harmony—Final Reward of Patience.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.]

This discourse of Dr. Talmage is a full-length portrait of a virtue which all admire, and the lessons taught are very helpful. Text, Hebrews 10:36: "Ye have need of patience."

Yes, we are in awful need of it. Some of us have a little of it, and some of us have none at all. There is less of this grace in the world than of almost any other. Faith, hope and charity are all abloom in hundreds of souls where you find one specimen of patience. Paul, the author of the text, on a conspicuous occasion lost his patience with a coworker, and from the way he urges this virtue upon the Hebrews, upon the Corinthians, upon the Thessalonians, upon the Romans, upon the Colossians, upon the young theological student Timothy, I conclude he was speaking out of his own need of more of this excellence. And I only wonder that Paul had any nerves left. Imprisonment, flagellation, Mediterranean cyclone, arrest for treason and conspiracy, the wear and tear of preaching to angry mobs, those at the door of a theater and those on the rocks of Mars hill left him emaciated and invalid and with a broken voice and sore eyes and nerves a-jangle. He gives us a snap shot of himself when he describes his appearance and his sermonic delivery by saying: "In bodily presence weak and in speech contemptible," and refers to his inflamed eyelids when speaking of the ardent friendship of the Galatians he says: "If it had been possible, ye would have plucked out your own eyes and have given them to me."

We admire most that which we have least of. Those of us with unimpressive visage most admire beauty; those of us with discordant voices most extol musical cadence; those of us with stammering speech most wonder at eloquence; those of us who get provoked at trifles and are naturally irascible appreciate in others the equipoise and the calm endurance of patience. So Paul, with hands tremulous with the agitations of a lifetime, writes of the "God of patience," and of "ministers of God in much patience," and of "patience of hope," and tells them to "follow after patience," and wants them to "run with patience," and speaks of those "strengthened with all might to all patience," and looks us all full in the face as he makes the startling charge: "Ye have need of patience."

Do not boast that you are placid and optimistic and free from the spirit of scold. If those who are unfortunate could change lots with you they would be just as sunshiny. It is not religion that makes you so happy, but capacity to digest your food in three hours and enough coupons cut off to meet all your expenses, and complimentary invitation, and capacity to leave your horses in a stable because you need a brisk walk down the avenue. The recording angel making a pen out of some plume of a bird of paradise is not getting ready to write opposite your name anything applaudatory. All your sublime equilibrium of temperament is the result of worldly success. But suppose things mightily change with you, as they sometimes do change. You begin to go downhill, and it is amazing how many there are to help you down when you begin to go in that direction. A great investment fails. The Colorado silver mine ceases to yield. You get land poor. Your mills, that yielded marvels of wealth, are eclipsed by mills with newly-invented machinery. You get under the feet of the bears of Wall street. For the first time in your life you need to borrow money, and no one is willing to lend. Under the harrowing worriment you get a distressful feeling at the base of your brain. Insomnia and nervous dyspepsia lay hold of you. Your health goes down with your fortune. Your circle of acquaintances narrows, and where once you were oppressed by the fact that you had not time enough to return one-half of the social calls made upon you, now the card basket in your hallway is empty, and your chief callers are your creditors and the family physician, who comes to learn the effect of the last prescription.

Now you understand how people can become pessimistic and cynical and despairful. You have reached that stage yourself. Now you need something that you have not. But I know of a reenforcement that you can have if you will accept it. Yonder comes up the road or the sidewalk a messenger of God. Her attire is unpretending. She has no wings, for she is not an angel, but there is something in her countenance that implies rescue and deliverance. She comes up the steps that once were populous with the affluent and into the hallway where the tapestry is getting faded and frayed, the place now all empty of worldly admirers. I will tell you her name if you would like to know it. Paul baptized her and gave her the right name. She is not brilliant, but strong. There is a deep quietness in her manner and a firmness in her tread, and in her hand is a scroll revealing her mission. She comes from Heaven. She was born in the throneroom of the King. This is Patience. "Ye have need of patience."

Many of the nations of the earth have put their admiration of this virtue into proverb or epigram. One of those eastern proverbs says: "With time and patience the mulberry leaf becomes satin." A Spanish proverb says: "If I have lost the rings, here are the fingers still." The Italian proverb says: "The world is his who has patience." The English proverb declares: "When one door shuts, another opens." All these proverbs only put in another way Paul's terseness when he says: "Ye have need of patience."

First, patience with the faults of others. No one keeps the Ten Commandments equally well. One's temperament decides which commandments he shall come nearest to keeping. If we break some of the commandments ourselves, why be so hard on those who break others of the ten? If you and I run against one verse of the twentieth chapter of Exodus, why should we so severely excoriate those who run against another verse of the same chapter? Until we are perfect ourselves we ought to be lenient with our neighbor's imperfections. Yet it is often the case that the man most vulnerable is the most hypercritical. Perhaps he is profane, and yet has no tolerance for theft, when profanity is worse than theft, for while the latter is robbery of a man, the former is robbery of God. Perhaps he is given to defamation and detraction, and yet feels himself better than some one who is guilty of manslaughter, not realizing that the assassination of character is the worst kind of assassination. The laver for washing in the ancient tabernacle was at its side burnished like a looking glass, so that those that approached that laver might see their need of washing, and if by the Gospel looking glass we discovered our own need of moral cleansing we would be more economic of denunciation.

Again, this grace is needed to help in time of physical ailments. What vast multitudes are in perpetual pain while others are subject to occasional paroxysm! Almost everyone has some disorder to which he is occasionally subjected. It is rheumatism or neuralgia or sick headache or indigestion. A draft from an open window or hasty mastication or overwork brings on that old spell, and you think you would rather have almost anything else, but that is because you have not tried the other. Almost everyone has something which he wishes he had not. There are scores of diseases ever ready to attack the human frame. They have been in pursuit of our race ever since Adam and Eve resigned their innocence as well as the world's health. It is amazing how persistent and methodic those disorders are in their attack on the world and how regular is the harvest which with the sharp scythe of pain they mow down for the grave. No such disciplined and courageous army ever marched as the army of physical suffering. They do their work in the order I name, and you may depend upon their keeping on in that same order for a good while yet; first of all tuberculosis, next organic heart disease, next pneumonia, next in number of its victims is apoplexy, next Bright's disease, next cancer, next typhoid fever, next paralysis. Those eight diseases are the worst despoilers of human life. The doctors with solutions and lancets and anodynes and cataplasms are in a brave fight against the physiological devils that try to possess the human race. But after all the scientists can do there is a demand for patience. Nothing can take the place of that. It is needed this moment in every sick room and along the streets and in business places and shops where breadwinners are compelled to toil when physically incompetent to move a pen or calculate a column of figures or control a shovel. But every pastor could show you instances of complete happiness under physical suffering. He could take you to that garret or to that hospital or to some room in his parish where sits in rocking chair or lies upon a pillow some one who has not seen a well day in ten years and yet has never been heard to utter a word of complaint. The grace of God has triumphed in her soul as it never triumphs in the soul of one who is vigorous and athletic.

That grace helped the soldier during the American civil war. His arm had been amputated, and he said to a delegate of the Christian commission: "It seems to me I cannot be grateful enough for losing my arm. It made me thoughtful and opened the way for your delegates to visit me." This grace was well demonstrated by a prominent Christian man who was laid aside by a severe illness during a revival when his services were most needed, and when some one deplored his he said, cheerfully: "My part is to lie here and cough." My friend, do not give up useful activities because you are in pain. Some of the world's best work has been done while in physical distress. Walter Scott was in agony of pain while writing "Ivanhoe." Oh, beautiful grace of patience! It takes discords and turns them into harmony. It smooths the chopped sea. It kindles gloom into glow. It turns requiem into grand march. It trusts when it cannot understand. It forgives before forgiveness is asked. Gracious God! Give it to us, give it to us now, give it to us in abundance.

Now, let us this hour turn over a new leaf and banish worriment and care out of all our lives. Just see how these perversities have multiplied wrinkles in your face and acidulated your disposition and torn your nerves. You are ten years older than you ought to be. Do two things, one for the betterment of your spiritual condition and the other for the safety of your worldly interests. First, get your heart right with God by being pardoned through the atonement of Jesus Christ. That will give security for your soul's welfare. Then get your life insured in some well-established life insurance company. That will take from you all anxiety about the welfare of your household in case of your sudden demise. The salutary influence of such insurance is not sufficiently understood.

Many a bread winner long since deceased, would now have been alive and well but for the reason that when he was prostrated he saw that in case of his decease his family would go to the poorhouse or have an awful struggle for daily bread. But for that anxiety he would have got well. That anxiety defied all that the best physicians could do. Supposing these two duties attended to, the one for the safety of your soul in this world and the next, and the other for the safety of your family if you pass out of this life, make a new start. If possible, have your family sitting-room where you can let in the sunlight. Have a musical instrument if you can afford it, harp or piano or bass viol or parlor organ. Learn how to play it yourself or have your children learn how to play on it. Let bright colors dominate in your room. If there are pictures on the wall, let them not be suggestive of battlefields which are always cruel, of deathbeds which are always sad, or partings which are always heartbreaking. There are enough present woes in the world without the perpetual commemoration of past miseries. If you sing in your home or your church do not always choose tunes of long meter. Far better to have your patience augmented by the consideration that the misfortunes of this life must soon terminate. Hardly anyone lives to 100 years, but few live to 80, while the majority quit this life before 50. You ought to be able, God helping you, to stand it as long as that, for then by the grace of God you will move into an improved residence and be compassed by all benign and excellent surroundings, into an atmosphere every breath of which is balmy, and a region where every sound is music and every emotion rapture. A land without one tear, without one parting, without one grief.

This last summer I stood on Sparrow hill, four miles from Moscow. It was the place where Napoleon stood and looked upon the city which he was about to capture. His army had been in long marches and awful fights and fearful exhaustions, and when they came to Sparrow hill the shout went up from tens of thousands of voices: "Moscow, Moscow!" I do not wonder at the transport. A ridge of hills sweeps round the city. A river semicircles it with brilliance. It is a spectacle that you place in your memory as one of three or four most beautiful scenes in all the earth. Napoleon's army marched on it in four divisions, four overwhelming torrents of valor and pomp. Down Sparrow hill and through the beautiful valley and across the bridges and into the palaces which surrounded without one shot of resistance, because the avalanche of troops was irresistible. There is the room in which Napoleon slept, and his pillow, which must have been very uneasy, for, oh, how short his stay. Fires kindled in all parts of the city simultaneously drove out that army into the snowstorms under which 95,000 men perished. How soon did triumphal march turn into horrible demolition. To-day, while I speak, we come on a high hill, a glorious hill of Christian anticipation. These hosts of God have had a long march, and fearful battles and defeats have again and again mingled with the victories, but to-day we come in sight of the great city, the capital of the universe, the residence of the King and the home of those who are to reign with Him for ever and ever. Look at the towers and hear them ring with eternal jubilee. Look at the house of many mansions, where many of our loved ones are. Behold the streets of burnished gold and hear the rumble of the chariots of those who are more than conquerors. So far from being driven back, all the 12 gates are wide open for our entrance. We are marching on and marching on, and our every step brings us nearer to the city.

At what hour we shall enter we have no power to foretell, but once enlisted amid the blood-washed host our entrance is certain. It may be in the bright noonday or the dark midnight. It may be when the air is laden with springtime fragrance or chilled with falling snows. But enter we must, and enter we will through the grace offered us as the chief of sinners. Higher hills than any I have spoken of will guard that city. More radiant waters than I saw in the Russian valley will pour through that great metropolis. No raging conflagration shall drive us forth, for the only fires kindled in that city will be the fires of splendor that shall ever hoist and never die. Reaching that shining gate, there will be a parting, but no tears at the parting. There will be an eternal farewell, but no sadness in the utterance. Then and there we will part with one of the best friends we ever had. No place for her in Heaven, for she needs no Heaven. While love and joy and other graces enter Heaven, she will stay out. Patience, beautiful Patience, long suffering Patience, will at that gate say: "Good-by! I helped you in the battle of life, but now that you have gained the triumph you need me no more. I bound up your wounds, but now they are all healed. I soothed your bereavements, but you pass now with the reunions of Heaven. I can do no more for you, and there is nothing for me to do in a city where there are no burdens to carry. Good-by! I go back into the world from which you came up, to resume my tour among hospitals, and sickrooms, and bereft households, and almshouses. The cry of the world's sorrow reaches my ears, and I must descend. Up and down that poor suffering world I will go to assuage and comfort and sustain, until the world itself expires, and on all its mountains, and in all its valleys, and on all its plains, there is not one soul left that has need of patience."

INJUSTICE TO FARMERS.

They Work Out Prosperity Unaided by Tariff Laws or Combines.

Mr. L. G. Porter, the head of the statistical branch of the census bureau, has announced the "incontrovertible conclusion" that the farmers of Minnesota are enjoying prosperity to the extent that they are richer than ever before. He shows that if they received less for their agricultural products the cause was not the reduction in their profits, but the reduced cost of production due to improvements in machinery.

Everyone must rejoice in this fortunate condition of the Minnesota farmers. They are to be congratulated. From the scythe and cradle and the flail to the machine that marches through the grain field severing behind it tied bags of grain that a moment before was waving in the air is a great stride. Invention has done wonderful things in reducing the cost of agricultural products. Improvement in transportation has given the consumers the opportunity to get these products at a very low cost above production cost. Our farmers feed the world. Every country in the world depends on us for some of our food products. It would be the rankest injustice if those engaged in agricultural pursuits were not enjoying prosperity, and we are glad that the Minnesota farmers are prosperous.

But it should not escape attention that this prosperity has been worked out by the farmers in free and open competition with all the world. The farmers are the great unprotected producers. It is not such a wonderful thing that a tin plate industry should be built up in this country, after the government gave tin plate makers a protective tariff which guaranteed that the industry would pay from the start. But the farmer had no such guarantee. His products had to be sold in the markets of the world, beyond the reach of the power of this government to control the price. There can be no farmers' trust, for the reason that the field of their business is world-wide and the farmers too many to organize. They cannot do as the steel manufacturers did recently in New York. A dispatch from Pittsburgh tells what was done:

"Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 1.—The steel manufacturers who had been in session in New York last week returned home to-day. They succeeded in establishing two additional pools.

"The products protected by the pooling agreements are rails, structural shapes, plates and billets. Several weeks ago plates were protected by an agreement when the price was advanced to $25 per ton. A pooling arrangement was completed, at which every platemaker in the country is a member. The orders or their equivalents will be divided among the firms in the business according to their capacity. Prices were advanced to $27 per ton. A billet pool was also organized, of which every billet-making concern in the country is a member, and a minimum price of $29 per ton was made. The price on billets had been $17.75 and $18 previously. This only covers domestic sales and does not interfere with prices for export.

"The demand since election aided in the manufacturers coming together. Circulars will be prepared to-morrow by the steel billet manufacturers announcing the new price.

"It is expected the Bessemer Furnace association will meet again this week at Cleveland to establish Bessemer pig iron at $14 per ton as a result of the advance in billets. This will cause an advance on sheet bars and all products into which Bessemer billets enter."

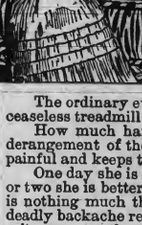
Is that fair to the farmer? The steel manufacturers are protected to the extent of seven or eight dollars on a ton. They can combine and add that much to the selling price which would rule with free competition. Those who use steel would pay trust prices, because even then it is cheaper than to buy abroad and pay the duty to get the product into this country. This tariff duty enables them to charge exorbitant prices, thereby making it cost the farmer more for every implement used in production; making the railroads pay more for rails over which the products are carried, making everyone using a thing into which steel enters pay tribute to the gentlemen who met in New York. Is it any wonder they are prosperous? The farmer struggles single-handed not only against this handicap at home, but against all the world. If he is prosperous we are glad. He has only himself to thank for it.—Utica Observer.

Subservient to the Trusts.

Mr. McKinley's first administration was devoted to faithful service in behalf of the trusts at the expense of the American people. Under no other president had there been witnessed so complete a sacrifice of the rights of the many to the privileges of the few. The American government was transformed into a caste government—the very evil most dreaded by its founders, and against which they most strenuously warned those who should come after them. The result has been a tremendous increase of trust formations and a trust power so great that the combines were enabled to reelect to the presidency the man who had so signally represented their interests in the government.—St. Louis Republic.

—It is most desirable, in our view, that responsibility should be brought home to the republican party and at whatever cost to the country. It will not learn otherwise what republicanism means to it. And the democratic party can well afford to endure the pain of a temporary defeat this year in order that the lesson to the country may be taught so thoroughly for once that it will never be forgotten again.—Charleston News and Courier.

—President McKinley's retention of his cabinet indicates that he does not intend to make any change in his policy—whatever that policy may be.—Philadelphia Record.



The ordinary every-day life of most of our women is a ceaseless treadmill of work.

How much harder the daily tasks become when some derangement of the female organs makes every movement painful and keeps the nervous system all unstrung!

One day she is wretched and utterly miserable; in a day or two she is better and laughs at her fears, thinking there is nothing much the matter after all; but before night the deadly backache reappears, the limbs tremble, the lips twitch—it seems as though all the imps of Satan were clutching her vitals; she goes to pieces and is flat on her back.

No woman ought to arrive at this terrible state of misery, because these symptoms are a sure forerunner of womb troubles. She must remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is almost an infallible cure for all female ills, such as irregularity of periods, which cause weak stomach, sick headache, etc., displacements and inflammation of the womb, or any of the multitudes of illnesses which beset the female organism.

Mrs. Gooden wrote to Mrs. Pinkham when she was in great trouble. Her letter tells the result.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am very grateful to you for your kindness and the interest you have taken in me, and truly believe that your medicines and advice are worth more to a woman than all the doctors in the world. My troubles began with inflammation and hemorrhages from the kidneys, then inflammation, congestion and falling of the womb, and inflammation of the ovaries. I underwent local treatment every day for some time; then, after nearly two months, the doctor gave me permission to go back to work. I went back, but in less than a week was compelled to give up and go to bed. On breaking down the second time, I decided to let doctors and medicines alone and try your remedies. Before the first bottle was gone I felt the effects of it. Three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and a package of Sanative Wash did me more good than all the doctors' treatments and medicine. I have gained twelve pounds during the last two months and am better in every way. Thanking you for your kind advice and attention, I remain. Yours gratefully,

"MRS. E. J. GOODEN, Ackley, Iowa."

THE GRAVE IS EMPTY.

Some Intimate That the Alleged Forger Merrick Is Not Dead—His Wife Remarried.

Princeton, Ky., Dec. 1.—There have been more sensational developments in the Merrick forgery case. The newly made grave of Merrick is empty, and no one can conjecture why this is so

Merrick was arrested several days ago, charged with having forged the name of his firm, R. U. Kevil & Sons, to checks on banks in Illinois and Missouri. The fact that he was a forger was disclosed in depositions which accompanied his wife's petition for a divorce, otherwise he might never have been found out. Merrick was taken suddenly ill at his home, and physicians advised against his being taken to jail. Merrick grew steadily worse, though the cause of his illness was a mystery. On his death bed he revealed his wife's disregard for his affections.

On Saturday, November 24, Mrs. Merrick was married to James Moore, who had been her husband's bosom friend.

Nobody can be found who knows anything about the body having been exhumed, though from Merrick's sudden and peculiar illness it was rumored at the time that he had been poisoned.

Princeton, Ky., Dec. 3.—Frank Merrick's father has refused to allow his son's grave to be reopened to ascertain or not whether the body has been removed. Most people are satisfied that the grave was opened. The fact that the aged father is opposed to disturbing the grave caused comment, but no significance is attached to it by those in a position to judge. The father is a man of integrity. His decision is prompted by his love for his only son. Mrs. Moore has left Princeton and can not be located.

Merrick's widow, who was married to James Moore on the day following his burial, swore when the license was issued that her husband was dead, regardless of the fact that nearly everybody was inclined to believe that his reported death was merely a ruse, as he had not seen him for possibly a week. It has been ascertained since, however, that Merrick died, though whether of natural causes or not is not explained to the satisfaction of everybody. The fact that his body was swollen has caused many to believe that he was poisoned, though by whom it is hard to determine. The general opinion is that in case Merrick was poisoned the guilty parties were desirous of getting rid of the body to escape detection if the authorities exhumed him.

James Merrick, cousin of the dead forger, was the last man who left the grave after the burial, and he marked the grave in anticipation of grave robbers. On investigation the next morning it was found that some of the marks were remaining or marks of the same kind, but they were at the foot of the grave. It has since been found that a man disguised as a tramp watched the burial from the cover and was seen to examine the mound. On that night a tightly curtained, closed wagon was seen by many to issue from the lane leading to the burying ground, and the driver drove his team at a very rapid rate over a rock road. All this leads to the belief that the grave was opened.

William Gibson Captured.

Ashland, Ky., Dec. 3.—William Gibson, the child murderer, is undoubtedly captured, and officers of the law have given up the chase. A direct message from Rush, Ky., says that he has been captured there and is being held for a reward. His captors are miners and have him secreted in the mines. Gov. Beckham is expected to offer a reward Monday and it probably will be $500. As sure as it is offered the man will be taken to Catlettsburg and turned over to the proper officials.

Banks Incorporated.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 3.—The following banks have filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state: People's Bank of Shepardsville, Bulitt county. Capital stock, $15,000. Incorporators, William and G. W. Simmons and Marriman Bros. Henderson County Savings bank, of Corydon. Capital stock, $25,000. Incorporators, G. W. Crutcher, John Bassket and 50 others.

Christian Church Jubilee.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 30.—There was a jubilee service at the Central Christian church here Thursday for the double purpose of celebrating the reduction of the church debt from $10,000 to about $4,000, and to commemorate the anniversary of the entry of the pastor, Rev. I. J. Spencer, into the Christian church ministry just a quarter of a century ago.

Lives With a Broken Neck.

Mayfield, Ky., Dec. 3.—Chas. Hayden, who fell from the Baptist church Saturday afternoon, is still living. The fall caused the dislocation of the neck, but Dr. J. H. Wooley reduced the dislocation, and the patient may survive.

Judge O'Rear Fined.

Williamsburg, Ky., Dec. 1.—Judge Ed C. O'Rear, who was hunting with two friends near Gray's, was arrested with them for trespassing on the farm of a man named Cox. He was let off with a small fine.

ON THE FLOOD.

Nearly 100,000 Logs Floated Down the Ohio River South of Louisville Thursday Night.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 30.—It is estimated that nearly 100,000 logs Thursday night floated down the Ohio river south of Louisville. They came from the Miami, Big Sandy, Kentucky and Kanawha rivers and were set adrift by the floods that followed the recent rains. The logs are valued at from $5 to $10 each and a number were caught at Louisville. For a while there was great danger of a gorge forming under the Big Four bridge, but this was prevented. The ferryboats were seriously interfered with and some of the river steamers tied up for fear of being sunk by the floating logs.

NEITHER WAS HURT.

Capt. Dugan and His Son Bob Went Over the Falls in a Flatboat at Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 30.—Capt. Austin H. Dugan and his son "Bob" went over the falls on a flat boat Sunday morning, but escaped death, the little craft passing through the rapids and whirlpools in safety, and lodged on the bank below the Pennsylvania bridge. The men were at work on the boat when the lines snapped, and it drifted out. Three boats, manned by life-savers, tried to catch the boat, but in vain. Two barges loaded with coal also went over the falls, but escaped without injury.

The Prisoner Removed.

Louisa, Ky., Dec. 3.—The jailer and coroner of Lawrence county and another guard left here Sunday for Mt. Sterling with John Abbott, who has been held without bail for killing Jay Burton last week. There were apparently well-founded rumors that a mob was being formed to lynch Abbott, and it was thought best to remove him at once to Mt. Sterling.

Ashland, Ky., Dec. 3.—John Abbott, who killed Attorney Jay Burton, was brought here Sunday night. He was first taken to Catlettsburg, but the officers found a crowd waiting to lynch Gibson and were afraid the enraged citizens might decide to dispense with a trial for Abbott.

Left a Quarter of a Million.

Williamsport, Ky., Nov. 30.—J. H. Renaker, aged 76, died at his home near Dry Ridge Thursday morning of typhoid fever. Mr. Renaker was a farmer, and reputed to be worth $250,000, which is nearly double the wealth of any man in the county. He leaves only one child, Mrs. Kate Conrad, of this place. It is understood that he died without a will, but was trying to frame one when he died.

Col. Nelson Arrested.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 1.—Col. W. A. Nelson, an attorney of Louisville, and Mrs. Ben Maiden, of New Albany, Ind., were arrested in New Albany Friday afternoon by United States Marshal Fite and Chief of Police Adams. Mrs. Maiden is charged with making, at the instance of her attorney, Col. Nelson, a false affidavit for the purpose of securing a pension. The accused will be taken to Indianapolis to answer before the United States court.

Stockholders Must Pay.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 3.—Judge Miller has handed down an important decision in which he holds that the stockholders of the defunct German-American Title Co. are liable under the double liability act for the unsecured debts of the company, which amount to $117,611.49. The decision was in the case of Sol Levy against the stockholders.

Divorced and Remarried.

Owensboro, Ky., Nov. 30.—Thursday at the court house J. E. Coomes and Martha Coomes, who were divorced just a year ago, married again. Squire Sutherland performed the ceremony. Friends of theirs brought about a reconciliation, and they chose Thanksgiving day as the day upon which to begin married life again.

Murray Succeeds Gen. Castleman.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 1.—Adjt. Gen. John B. Castleman's resignation became effective Friday, and Gov. Beckham promoted Assistant Adjt. Gen. David R. Murray to the vacancy. Percy Haley, of Frankfort, succeeds Murray as assistant adjutant general.

No Witnesses.

Louisa, Ky., Dec. 1.—John H. Abbott, who, it is charged, killed Attorney Jay Burton, was held without bail on the charge of murder in the first degree. Abbott testified that Burton attempted to draw a revolver, but there were no witnesses to the affair.

Kentucky University Defeated.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 30.—In a game finished in the dark, State college defeated Kentucky university, retaining the local championship, by a score of 12 to 0. Two touchdowns were made in the last ten minutes. Four men had to leave the game because of injuries.

Fell From a Church.

Mayfield, Ky., Nov. 30.—Canse Hayden, a laborer on the new Baptist church, fell from the top of the cupola, 80 feet, and sustained fatal injuries

ECHOES FROM INDIA.

In his recent report on the Indian famine the viceroy, Lord Curzon, says that it is impossible to tell the actual mortality, but there has apparently been an excess of deaths over the normal number of 750,000.

The infantile mortality in Calcutta last year was very high, giving a ratio of 366.8 to every 1,000 children born during the year, the Mohammedan ratio being 504.3, the Hindu ratio 254.7, while the Christian was only 174.4.

The Chinese Almanac.

There is no work in the world of which so many copies are printed annually as of the Chinese almanac. It predicts the weather, and notes the days which are considered lucky or otherwise for commencing any undertaking, for marrying, burying, or for applying remedies to diseases. A lucky day is not necessary when Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is taken for constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness, liver or kidney troubles. It will cure all these disorders.

A Discerning Woman.

"Oh, yes," said young Mr. Blackstone, "I have been admitted to the bar, but I am not practicing regularly at it."

"Indeed!" murmured Miss Gooph, "I thought you practiced very often."

And the young man wished that he had not placed so much reliance in those cloves.—Baltimore American.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

"Just for de luxe of the thing, I suppose."—Boston Courier.

A Physician's Prescription.

About four years ago Miss J. M. Desmond of 1360 B Street, S. W., Washington, D. C., wrote: "I am so well pleased with the effect on my skin of Palmer's Lotion, which was prescribed for me by one of our leading physicians, that I recommend it to all my friends." Many others who have used Palmer's Lotion find it so beneficial that they claim there is nothing else so good for skin diseases. Palmer's Lotion Soap possesses all the medicinal properties of this Lotion and should be used in connection with it in preference to any other soap. If your druggists does not keep it send to Solon Palmer, 374 Pearl Street, New York, for sample of Palmer's Lotion and Lotion Soap.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

WOES OF WORKERS.

The American man or woman is industrious. Our leisure class is small, our working world very large. Many of our leading citizens of great wealth are hard-workers. Our laboring classes are found in herds and hordes in the "hives of industry." What is all this work for? In most cases it is for daily bread, in many for maintenance of others. Great numbers also work to acquire wealth. Some for great commercial prominence. Some to preserve intact a splendid inheritance. Necessity, generosity and ambition are the inspiration of all classes of industry, and the object of every one falls to the ground when ill-health attacks him.

Maintaining health is the most vital thing in the world for workers of every class, and the usefulness of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, as a strengthener of the constitutional and vital powers, is beyond all question. This great remedy enters into partnership with Nature and helps human beings do their work without giving up to premature decay. The strain of work is on the minds of some, on the bodies of others, but the nourishing of either, or both, is in the nerves and blood. Nervura acts directly on the fountains of health and its strengthening power is wonderful.

Dr. Greene's NERVURA for the Blood and Nerves.

What does the worker do when some chronic trouble manifests itself? He takes some stimulant or something which is designed for temporary effect, and simply weakens his already overworked system. How different from this is the work of Nervura! How beautiful its support to the natural powers! Without shock of any kind its purely vegetable elements seek out the weak spots and build them up. Immediately the circulation of the blood improves and the sluggish elements are expelled. The nerves are quieted, the quality of the blood is enriched and the new and strengthening tide communicates itself to every muscle of the body.

Mr. JOHN D. SMITH, Electrician for the Thomson-Houston Electric Co., of Lynn, Mass., says:

"When a man has been sick and is cured, it is his duty to tell others about it, that they, too, may get well. Three years ago I had been working almost night and day, could not eat regularly, and got only a few hours' sleep at night. No man can stand that long, and I soon began to be prostrated. I could not sleep when I tried, and my food would not stay on my stomach. I was in a terrible condition, and was much alarmed.

"I went to doctors, but they did me no good. Learning of the wonderful good done by Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, I determined to try it. It cured me completely of all my complaints. I eat heartily and sleep well, thanks to this splendid medicine. I believe it to be the best remedy in existence."

Dr. Greene, Nervura's discoverer, will give all health seekers his counsel free of charge. His office is at 35 West 14th Street, New York City, and his advice may be secured by personal call or by letter through the mail; no charge is made in either case. The worn-out in body, mind, or sexual powers will get prompt help from Dr. Greene. His advice is absolutely confidential and is free to all.

Pt. Pleasant.

Miss Clementine Waiton is visiting friends in Williamstown.

Owing to the rain the teachers meeting at this place was not well attended

Rev. Atckinson, of Lexington, will fill the pulpit at Pt. Pleasaut on the fourth Suuday in this month.

Miss Margaret Tupman, one of Covington's charming belles, has returned home from a short visit with friends here.

The many friends of Miss Estelle Sederberg were glad to see her smiling face in this neighborhod again. Miss Estelle is teaching at Waterloo, and spent the Thanksgiviug holidays at home.

Limaburg.

A great deal of corn is in the shock. Everybody is looking forward to Christmas.

Owen Ross had a fine mare to get her leg broken and had to be killed.

Miss Josie Vance, of Dry Creek, was the guest of Miss Dora Baker, Saturday.

If the three first days this month rule the winter, we will have a fine winter.

Miss Belle Baker gave a Thanksgiving dinner to about forty of her friends and relatives.

James Crisler, of Gunpowder gave us a call, Saturday. He was on his way to visit Joe Brown.

James Barlow and Wm. Beemon and their families, of Gunpowder, were the guests of T. S. Aylor, Suuday.

Hebron.

Hog killing has begun.

Mr. Henry Crigler is quite sick at this writing.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Bart Aylor on the 25th ult., a girl.

J. W. Crigler bought fourteen shoats from Thos. Hafer, Saturday.

Several young gentlemeu from here will start west after Christmas.

Edward Aylor and wife entertained quite a number at dinner, Sunday.

Miss Neva Hafer was the guest of Miss Grace Bullock, Saturday night and Sunday

The C. E. Social will meet Saturday evening next at Mr. John Aylor's, of this place. The program of the evening will be the discussion of "Which is preferable, city or country life?" All are luvited to be present.

Gunpowder

Considerable corn was cribbed last week.

Omer Macrandar, with his best girl, passed through our burg last Sunday evening.

B. C. Surface is attending United States court at Covington. He is a grand juryman.

L. M. Rouse and family and Otis Rouse and family were guests of the writer, last Sunday.

After a stay of several weeks Daniel Foulke and wife have returned to their home in Ashland, Ohio.

Otis Rouse had the misfortune to lose another valuable horse, last week, being the second one he has lost this year.

The many friends of Michael House will be sorry to hear of his death, that occurred recently in Tennessee. We are not informed as to the date or the place of his death.

A large crowd attended the funeral services of Mrs. Susan Dixon, last Thursday at Hopeful. After a brief but impressive service conducted by Rev. Buffington, the remains were interred in the Hopeful cemetery.

Idlewild.

Mr. Jimmie Clore is away on a prospecting tour.

Mr. Thos. S. Whitaker and Ernest Brown are on the sick list.

December came in like a spring lamb but may go out like a roaring lion.

R. C. Gaines and Mr. W. L. Cropper shipped a fine drove of hogs from Garrison, Wednesday.

Mr. Harrison Clore's turnpike is as smooth as a race track, and he is the boss road manager in the county.

We purchased a beef steak from Ves Gaines, Friday, that was the tenderest, juciest one that it was ever our happy lot to taste.

Col. Willis will finish his third assessment of the county on Monday next. He has had fine weather and roads in good condition for which he is doubtless duly thankful.

The meeting of the Cooking Club at Dr. Hays' on Thanksgiving day was a great success. The next meeting will be held at Mr. Clinton Gaines' in January or near the beginning of the twentieth century.

Tommy Randall has a cat—there's nothing very strange in that, but he has such very funny habits. Tommy says he catches rabbits. Besides performing the offices of an ordinary house cat, this one goes hunting with his master and drives the rabbits out of their hiding places in culverts and sink holes and performs the offices of a ferret.

W. T. Berkshire has a fox hound named Cruiser, that sometimes fails to distinguish between a dog track and that of a fox. In his cruisings the other day he trailed Geo. Walton's St. Bernard into the latters kennel and finding his mistake undertook a hasty retreat which would have been successful, but for the length of his caudal extremity which St. Bernard seized just as Cruiser passed over the fence—Cruiser now is a bob tailed dog.

Midway.

The Excelsior Literary Society met with Misses Emma and Elizabeth Cleek at their pretty and hospitable home near here, last Friday evening, at the usual hour. The weather was all that could be desired, and the assemblage was simply immense. The program was one especially prepared for the entertainment and edification of this delightful occasion, and its execution was of an order that entitled it to more than mere general mention. Therefore a limited expatiation of individual merit is highly necessary to full appreciation of the enjoyment of the evening's feast of intellectual delicacies.

The first feature of the delightful program was a piano solo artistically rendered by the talented young musician, Miss Stella Taylor, who had to respond to an encore by playing "At a Georgia Camp Meeting."

"A Highly Moral Recitation" by Marion Johnson elicited hearty applause. Then followed a choice selection of up-to-date music on the harp and piano by Joe Noell and Elizabeth Cleek. Miss Bessie Waterfield kindly indulged the club with an admirable recitation, entitled, "I'll Be Satisfied with Anybody."

A charming vocal solo by Miss Minta Glacken in her incomparable operatic style, won for the pretty young songstress many remarks of praise. A recitation by Miss Elizabeth Waterfield was greatly enjoyed.

The crowning feature of the evening's variegated entertainment was the reading of the unique and humorous Club Paper by Elizabeth Cleek. The club was highly honored by the presence of two of Covington's most distinguished members of its social smart set, Misses Bessie and Elizabeth Waterfield, also, Mr. Tom Miller, of the same city; Dr. Doolittle, of Colorado, and Charles Sleet, of Crittenden.

A splendid collation of choice oranges and grapes were served at the adjournment of the club's memorable session.

Rumor has it that there will be a couple of weddings to report from here in the near future. We will let the readers hear about them.

A. C. Roberts, while moving to this place, last Wednesday, had the misfortune to have his piano thrown from the wagon, rendering it necessary to send the instrument to the factory for repairs.

Walton.

Miss Mabel Bagby is home from Georgetown College on a brief stay.

Mrs. Mattie West, of Washington, D. C., is the pleasant guest of Dr. and Mrs. Bagby.

Mrs. Malvina Swetnam and Mrs. N. L. Moffett, of Kenton, were welcome guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Watson, on Sunday last.

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Christian church will give an old time festival and oyster supper at the Walton Opera House, Saturday evening, December 8th.

Misses Ada and Effie Lermond made a trip to Cincinnati on Saturday to select some text books for the Preparatory Department of the Walton Graded Free School.

Leon Pryor, of the Georgetown college, is visiting his sister, Mrs. S. W. Myers, and incidentally assisting her in packing up, preparatory to her removal to Vernont.

Mr. Weeden Dean, of the firm of Richards & Dean, who were the heaviest losers by the big fire, will be found at the store of W. B. Norman, where he will be pleased to see his old friends and customers.

The 4 per cent. bonds authorized by the vote of the district to be issued will not be put on the market till next spring. The trustees being opposed to paying interest on money until they are ready to use the same.

The Watson Bros. shop and contents were a total loss in the great fire on Saturday morning, but before night they were selling meat at the old stand of Mrs. Eliza Gorman. Monday they had bought the meat store of J. A. Sanders, and commenced moving it. The friends of Ranson (Hugh) Watson were startled at this unusual display of energy on his part.

On Monday the first two crops of new tobacco were unloaded at Glasscock's—the old Whipps warehouse. They were brought in by Frank Chance and Thomas Portwood, and realized for the sellers 5 cents per pound for the leaf and 4 cents for the tips, lugs and trash. The new crop has one recommendation over that of 1899: it is sweet while the other is bitter—caused by having been cut before it was ripe.

The destructive fire that raged here in the early morning of Dec 1st, should teach the people a lesson—if indeed any calamity can teach them one. Had it happened two weeks ago the place would now have been in ruins. There was not water enough in the cisterns for culinary and drinking purposes. But one cistern was available for the fire engine to draw from. Two streams could have been forced from the engine, but there was about twice or three times as much hose as we have at present needed to make use of two streams and it was wanted as badly as the man wanted a gun in the Texas barber shop. The fire was fought gallantly and was finally got under control by as desperate work as ever was done by a lot of undisciplined men and very notably one woman—Mrs. R. M. Jones, pumped water from her cistern without faltering for two long hours. Thos. Henson, Wm H. Metcalfe, Logan McKinney, Harry Black and a lot of others did nobly. The wonder is so much was accomplished by an unorganized mass of men. The fire engine paid for itself that night and with twice as much more hose could have done as much more good. The work of forcing two streams could have been accomplished with no more work.

Union.

Otis Rouse lost a very valuable horse last week.

N. C. Tanner is out again after several days illness.

Miss Martha Lassing's friends are glad to have her home again.

Miss Bessie Harter, of Covington, is the guest of Mrs. J. W. Conner.

It is reported that there will be another wedding here during the holidays.

Nearly everybody around here celebrated Thanksgiving day with their guns.

Shucking corn and stripping tobacco constitute the principal work of the farmers.

James Rice, of Hathaway, was the guest of his mother a couple of days last week.

Leonard Kite sold to Harvy Edington, a three minute horse he bought in Cincinnati.

Tony Rne was the guest of his daughter, Mrs. Henry Wingate, of this place, Sunday.

Samuel Pope has moved from the Botts place near Bellevue to the Clore farm on the East Bend road.

Some young men from the city spent a week with Everett Clore. They employed the time hunting, killing 123 rabbits and one bird.

Anyone having an item they would like published, will please write it on a slip of paper and leave it at Mr. Kite's store. It will be appreciated. The item may not be news to you, but it may be to someone else.

Francesville.

Hog killing season is now on.

Mr. Holland Goodridge killed a fine young beef, last Friday.

Chas. Scothorn moved to his new residence, last Wednesday.

Carlton Crisler, of Ludlow, is the guest of his aunt, Mrs. E. Gaines.

Miss Adelia Dimmick spent Thanksgiving with relatives in Cincinnati.

Mrs. Mollie Davis, of Cincinnati, spent several days with her sister, last week.

Mrs. Wash Watts received notice, this week, of the illness of her mother, whose home is in Louisville.

Florence

Dr. Eugene Rice and wife, of Indiana, are guests of Mrs. Abel Carpenter.

Chas. Geisner and family, of Lewisburg, spent Sunday with Mr. Henry Geisner.

Miss Anna Carroll, of Banklick, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Sidney, of this place.

Miss Minnie Hoggins has returned home after a visit with relatives in Covington.

Mr. and Mrs. Elijah Green, of Covington, spent Thanksgiving with Mrs. Dr. Dulaney of this place.

Mrs. Joshua Tanner and daughter, Mrs. Frances Clutterbuck, spent last Friday with Mrs. B. H. Tanner, of Pt. Pleasant.

Large Skeletons Exhumed.

Charles Portwood, son of Milton Portwood, of Locust Grove neighborhood, is distinguishing himself as a locator of Indian graves, of which there a great many in his neighborhood on the steep bluffs overlooking Gunpowder creek and its tributaries. He has exhumed several large skeletons of the Red Men, takiug from the graves numerous relics, many of which he prizes highly. He recently located one of these ancient burying grounds on the farm of his neighbor, Owen Conner, and last Monday he opened one of the graves in the presence of Albert Conner, son of the owner of the land. This burying ground, as are several others in that neighborhood, is located where the land has been cleared and under cultivation, and the earth has gradually disappeared from over the graves until the stones covering the bodies are only a few inches below the surface. The grave youug Portwood investigated Mouday was opened with very little labor. The removal of less than twelve inches of dirt exposed a layer of flat stones that constituted the top of the receptacle for the body. The sides, bottom and ends of the receptacle were made of flat stones also, the sepulchre thus formed being rather a neat and comfortable looking resting place for the occupant. The skeleton in this grave was well preserved, and the tomahawk and scalping-knife lay by the side of the skeleton. These were taken by Portwood, and after the stone lining was torn out of the grave, the skeleton was unabled into the excavation, which was filled again with dirt. Mr. Portwood says there are as many as seven more at that point, and Mr. Conner has given him permission to explore them at his pleasure. Mr. Portwood has a novel way of locating the burying grounds. He has an iron rod with which he walks, and coming upon a spot he thinks might be an Indian cemetery he begins probing the earth with the iron rod, and if strikes a stone he continues to probe, and in few minutes he can tell whether or not there are any good Indians near. By this means the young man has located a great many of the last resting places of the noble Red Men, who use to flourish in this part of the country, where nature was so generous in its contributions to their every want. On the farm of the late E. A. Hughes, near Burlington, are several Indian graves, and to these Mr. Portwood will shortly turn his attention. He has recovered several relics for which he expects to receive good prices. One skeleton he has measures over seven feet in height.

The Best Plaster.

A piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound to the affected parts is superior to any plaster. When troubled with lame back or pains in the side or chest, give it a trial and you are certain to be more than pleased with the prompt relief which it affords. Pain Balm also cures rheumatism. One application gives relief. For sale by Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; Grant, Bellevue; Balaly, Bullittsville; McKim, Burlington.

Local News.

Roads are getting ugly.

Good winter weather this

This is good pneumonia weather.

Sheriff Beall went to Frankfort, yesterday.

A very small crowd attended Court Monday.

The local weather prophets are predicting snow.

So far this fall the local bird hunters have made no big killings.

Thanks to V. W. Gaines, our local butcher, for a nice young duck.

Some very fine weather, last week, for butchering, and many farmers took advantage of it.

Rev. Hoover preached at the Woolper school house every night last week. He had good congregations.

Uncle Tommie Adams gave the temple of justice its fall cleaning, last week and is now ready for Circuit Court.

There was no demand for milch cows Monday. Jerry Blyth offered a good cow and her calf and only $40 was bid. He wanted $45.

W. E. Vest sold for John Bentham his farm of 62 acres, near Florence, to Joseph Welsenberger, of near Covington, for $4,075.

Bentler & Blyth are hauling a purchase of 40 cent corn from Bellevue. They deliver to Richard Utz, for whom the purchase was made.

Business is not so brisk over at the Sheriff's office as it was about this time last week. Those who were caught by the penalty are willing to stay caught for a while.

J. M. Conner sold on the Cincinnati market, last week, at 5¼ cents a pound, eleven of the cattle he bought of the Rice boys, of Utzinger. They averaged 1,818 pounds.

In the matter of conflagrations Walton is decidedly the most unfortunate town in the county. Every few years a considerable portion of the town is destroyed by fire.

For good, reliable work at the most reasonable prices there is not a better place to go than to the Lawrenceburg Granite and Marble Works. D. M. Snyder, Grant P. O., agent.

Timotny Westbay who worked in this office for several years is now engaged as salesman at Dan Cohn's shoe store, Covington, where he will be pleased to serve Boone county people.

The December term of the Boone Circuit Court will begin next Monday. Not much new business has accumulated since the last term, but there is considerable old business on the docket.

The bad weather the past two weeks has very much discommoded the Rouse boys by delaying the work of putting up their mill. When they began to move they expected to have the mill in operation before this time.

Chas. Westbay's big gray horse died of inflammation of the bowels, last Saturday night. Charley came home from the city Friday evening, and in a few hours his horse was very sick. The horse showed no signs of illness before getting home.

The fly has injured the wheat greatly in the North Bend bottoms, and large areas in many of the fields has died out. In the Bellevue bottoms the growing wheat looks exceedingly fine, there being no indications of the fly having attacked any of the fields.

Sued for a Divorce.

Minnie Bruce filed suit Friday in the Kenton Circuit Court against Frank P. Bruce for divorce. In her petition she alleges that they were married in West Covington, in 1889, and on Sept. 2st. 1899, she was compelled to leave the defendant on account of his cruel treatment. She asks for allmony and custody of their two children.

Craddock Out On Bail.

William Craddock, who was lodged in jail here about ten days age for the shooting and wounding his brother-in-law, Albert Fuilliove, at Walton on the afternoon of the Congressional primary election, was released from jail, last Thursday. His bond for his appearance at Circuit Court was fixed at $500 by Judge Roberts, and was signed by J. G. Tomlin and John Conner.

Meeting at Universalist Church.

The pastor, Rev. J. F. Carney, will preach in the Burlington Universalist Church, next Sunday, Dec. 9th, at 10½ a. m., and 7 p. m. Morning subject:—"Courrage and Fear personified." Evening subject:—"The Parable of the Rich Man and Lazarus, in the light of reason and revelation." Preaching at the Woolper School-house on Saturday night at 7 p. m. The public cordially invited.

Wild Tobacco Seed.

Jacob Lodge, of the Hebron neighborhood, was in town Friday, and the tobacco crop, was spoken of, when Jake said that he had some of the old time Yellow Pryor. The seed he said were saved by the late William Neal, and after his death the package of seeds was found by his sons, who were satisfied they had been put away for at least 20 years. Very few of the seed came up when sowed.

A Quiet Wedding.

A very quiet wedding occurred at the editor's manse, on West High stret, in this city, in the presence of but a few near relatives. The groom is a resident and native of Boone county, Ky., on duty in the internal revenue service as a storekeeper, stationed at Petersburg, Ky., The bride is the youngest daughter of the editor of the Recorder, and is a native of Rising Sun. After a Thanksgiving dinner, the couple departed for Petersburg.—Rising Sun Recorder.

Mr. Walter Kelly and Miss Jessie Waldo are the contracting parties.

Among the tens of thousands who have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for colds and la grippe during the past few years, to our knowledge, not a single case has resulted in pneumonia. Thos. Whitfield & Co., 240 Wabash Ave., Chicago, one of the most prominent retail druggists in that city, in speaking of this, says: "We recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for lagrippe in many cases, as it not only gives prompt and complete recovery, but also counteracts any tendency of la grippe to result in pneumonia. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Baisly, Bullittsville; Grant, Bellevue, and Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg.

Executive Board.

At a meeting of the Executive Board of the North Bend Association of Baptists held at Florence, last Friday, Elds. M. J. Hoover, (Chairman), S. M. Adams and Bro. D. M. Snyder were appointed a committee to consult with the East Bend Baptist Church about moving their house of worship up on the hill opposite Rabbit Hash. The Board authorized the committee to offer the church some financial aid to help them build the new house. Eld. Hoover will call his committee to meet with East Bend church on the Saturday before the 5th Sunday in December, when steps looking to the removal of the church will be taken.

Sold at Commissioner's Sale.

Master Commissioner Duncan made the following land sales at the court house door, last Monday:

The following first four parcels constitute the farm owned by the late Jno. Hoffman, in the Florence neighborhood:

69 acres to Mike Bauer, at $40 50 per acre.
31 acres to Perry Utz, at $50 per acre.
10 acres to James Cary, at $35 50 per acre.
15 acres to same, at $37 per acre.

The following parcels constitute the farm owned by the late E. W. Weaver, near Union:

14 acres to James A. Smith, at $450.
15 acres to W. W. Conuer, at $585.
1 1-16 acres to Joseph Weaver, at $45½.
25 acres, subject to the homestead right of the widow, to Mike Kualy, at $230 07.

Big Fire at Walton.

The town of Walton was visited by a destructive fire at 2 o'clock last Saturday morning, and before the flames were under control, the large drygoods store of Dean & Richards, Elza Gorman's drug store and John Watson's butcher shop were reduced to ashes.

The fire originated in E. Gorman's sitting room, and all the surroundings being frame buildings a hot fire was soon raging. Kahn's drygoods store which is a portion of the illfated block was saved by the heroic work of the citizens, although its destruction looked so certain that all the goods were removed. The store was damaged considerably. Mrs. King's residence just across the street from the buildings that were destroyed, was badly scorched.

The Masonic and Odd-Fellows Hall was over Dean & Richard's store, and both lodges lost all their paripherualia and lodge room furniture.

Dean & Richard's loss is about $7,000 with only $2,000.

Gorman had $2,300, which about covered his loss.

It is often said that the Universalist doctrine will do to live by but wont do to die by. That which is wrong wont do to live by. Then if we live right we will die right. Again, it is asked if the Universalist doctrine is true, why preach it? Because the Bible teaches you should live right in this present life, so it is preached that you should try to live as the Bible teaches. It is said also if the Universalist be true we are all saved anyhow—saved after you get your just dues for every wrong. If you choose to gather evil deeds to mingle with your soul to be cleansed through the treatments of hell, this is your privilege. There is evidence that this treatment is not for a short time but for ages, and according to the evil deeds done in the body, then after you receive what you deserve you are fully restored to holiness and happiness. This is why the Universalist doctrine is preached to have us live as we know we should live in this present life.

Pomona Grange Meeting.

An enthusiastic meeting of Pomona Grange was held at Union, Saturday, November 24. Grange work in the county is moving forward with sure pace, and the educational advancement, improvement of roads, rural mail delivery, and many other things beneficial to our farmers, that will be attained by county organization, are already in evidence.

The next regular meeting of Golden Grange at Union, Saturday, December 8, will convene at 10:30 a. m. instead of 1:30 p. m. as usual, and the Pomona Grange will hold a meeting in the afternoon. All members of subordinate Granges are requested to be present at both sessions, and to bring lunch, as a social feast is to be enjoyed at 12 o'clock.

It is much to be desired that every Patron of Husbandry in the county shall be present, and share both social and business benefits of the meeting.

NANNIE D. BRISTOW,
Secretary Golden Grange.

Woolper Meeting.

Elder M. J. Hoover is still carrying on the meeting at the Woolper school house. The congregations are very large, the attention splendid and much interest is manifested. Up to Monday night ten professions of faith had been made, five of whom united with the Bullittsburg Baptist church, and five with the Bellevue Baptist church. Two were baptized Monday afternoon in Woolper creek near the upper ford. The meeting will be protracted for some days. Elders Hoover and Atwood will each make arrangements to preach on Woolper once a month. Mrs. Doc Grant, Mrs. Mary Achan, Misses Smith, Nichols, Acra, Sebree, and John Grant, a Mr Bachelder, David R. Kettle and a Mr. Achan have made professions of faith.

LATER.—Since the above was put in type the meeting has closed. Baptizing next Sunday at 4 p. m. There were eleven additions.

This the right time of the moon to plant holiday advertisements in the Recorder.

Rouse, and assisted in nursing her until she began convalescing, when her attention was called to another sister, Miss Emma, who had contracted the same malady, typhoid fever, with which she has now been confined to her bed for six week. Friends will regret to learn that Miss Emma has not yet improved.

How to Cure Croup.

Mr. R. Gray, who lives near Amenia, Duchess county, N. Y., says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best medicine I have ever used. It is a fine children's remedy for croup and never fails to cure." When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough has developed, it will prevent the attack. This should be borne in mind and a bottle of the Cough Remedy kept at hand ready for instant use as soon as these symptoms appear. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; Baisly, Bullittsville; O. Grant, Bellevue.

Men who, though slight, yet reach the chest standard, are preferred as recruits to those that are stout, the former being considered to possess the better frame.

Moths fly against the candle flame because their eyes can bear only a small amount of light. When, therefore, they come within the light of the candle their sight is overpowered and their vision confused, and, as they can not distinguish objects, they pursue the light itself and fly against the flame.

Don't work with an electric light close to your hair unless you wish to become baldheaded before your time. This is the latest edict published by French scientists, and substantiated by physicians here in San Francisco. According to these learned savants the surest road to baldness lies in the path of the electric light. A mechanical Delilah is the electric light, shearing the Samsons who come under its glare.

Devotees of golf are fond of referring to it as "the ancient and royal game." It is probably more royal and certainly far more ancient than most of them have any idea of. At all events a pictured tablet was recently unearthed at Carchemish, the old capital of the Hittites, whereon are depicted men and women engaged in a pastime, which, if not exactly golf as played at present, is something extraordinarily like it.

There is living in Paris to-day a man blind from his birth, who claims to be able to see through his nose. The severest tests have been applied, with the result that the most skeptical are convinced that the man's eyes are absolutely sightless and that he can distinguish objects by some means inexplicable on any other hypothesis than the one claimed. There are recorded instances of a similarly unaccountable gift of sight.

The feast of Bot-Yet, or "Mid-August Moon Worship," was celebrated recently by the Chinamen of Baltimore. The observance was commemorative of the supposed kindness of the moon toward the loyal soldiers during one of the battles in the Chinese rebellion, 800 years ago. According to Chinese history, fair Luna shed her beams on the hostile Emperor's legions at a critical period of this ancient war and largely contributed to their defeat.

The kangeroo is to be saved by the tendons in its tail. The demands of surgery for the strong chords that bind the muscles to the bones may prevent the rapid extermination of the animal and make profitable its cultivation under conditions more or less foreign to its native country. And it is more than likely that America will be the kangeroo's future home. For some time past surgeons have known of the use of tendons of the kangeroo tail for sutures and ligatures.

What it means to feed the hordes that flock into Paris at exhibition time words can only feebly convey. In 1889 the quantity of butchers' meat brought into Paris was 7,140 tons greater than the total of the previous year. Game and poultry showed an increase of nearly 3,000 tons, fish an increase of 600 tons and butter of 1,120 tons. The total of these commodities brought into the capital during 1889 was 194,000 tons of butchers' meat, 27,200 tons of game and poultry, and 25,400 tons of fish.

A new idea for utilizing the power of the wind in order to produce electricity has just been successfully tried. Windmills are too uncertain to permit of their being used for driving dynamos, so it is proposed that windmills be used to pump water into a high reservoir or tank, and this would drive a dynamo in an ordinary way by means of a turbine. Although the windmill might work fitfully, it would be sufficient to keep up a constant supply of water so that the production of electricity would be continuous.

The emperor of Germany drinks nothing but Mexican coffee, and a year's supply is sent regularly after each harvest from a plantation in the state of Michoacan. That intended for the use of the emperor's personal household is known as the Caracollo, carefully selected and sent to him in bags made of silk, while that for the court goes in the ordinary gunny sacks. Coffee is at its best when three or four years old, and as the supply from each harvest is received it is put aside to ripen in the emperor's garret.

CHINESE SETTLEMENT

America's Attitude on the Subject Made Plain to Mr. Conger.

No Demands Should Be Made Upon the Chinese Imperial Government Which It Is Not Able to Fulfill.

Tien-Tsin, Dec. 5.—Four companies of the German troops are reported to be seriously menaced 35 miles west of Pao Ting Fu. Eight companies of French troops, with three days' rations, have left to go to their relief.

Washington, Dec. 3.—Administration officials continue sanguine that the ministers of the powers at Peking will soon reach a common ground of agreement in the demands to be made upon the Chinese imperial government in satisfaction for the Boxer outrages. The state department is in communication with the ministers and ambassadors of the United States to the European courts and advices which have come from them from time to time lead the officials here to hope that the powers will be brought to the position maintained by the United States in dealing with the Chinese, viz.: That there should not be demands made upon the imperial government which it is not able to fulfill.

Our government has persistently held to this view in the progress of the negotiations between the ministers at Peking, and if the principle of this contention can be maintained in the conibined note to be handed to the Chinese plenipotentiaries, a decided advantage will be had at the start. The attitude of our government on this subject has been made clear to Mr. Conger. The meeting between him and the German and French ministers Saturday at Peking presumably was in compliance with the minister's latest instructions from Washington. Nothing has been heard from Minister Conger by the state department for several days.

London, Dec. 3.—"Count von Waldersee expresses some solicitude," says the Peking correspondent of the Morning Post, "concerning expeditions into the surrounding country, but he believes that they are necessary and salutary. Most of the British officers approve them.

"Sir Robert Hart, in the course of a conversation, said he considered the resentment against foreigners to be partly just and the outgrowth of the last 80 years of treaty relations. He seemed to think the settlement a difficult problem.

"Chinese militia forces are being formed everywhere, and even if the importation of foreign arms is prohibited a supply will be easily obtainable from Chinese arsenals.

"A body of 100 American cavalrymen is escorting some Chinese officers to Tien-Tsin.

"Chang Chi Tung has received a dispatch from Sian Nu," says the Shanghai correspondent of the Standard, "directing him to stop the forwarding of further supplies to the province of Shen Si. It is rumored that Emperor Kwang Su will return to Peking immediately, and that the empress dowager will follow if the reception given him is satisfactory."

The Shanghai correspondent of the Times also reports that it is believed in well-informed circles that the Chinese court is anxious to return to Peking, but he says that such a course would not be agreeable to Li Hung Chang, who hopes to gain an advantage from dissensions among the powers.

THE DUCAL PAIR.

The Duke and Duchess of Manchester and Mr. Zimmerman Passed a Quiet Sunday.

New York, Dec. 3.—The duke of Manchester, the duchess of Manchester and Eugene Zimmerman, her father, passed the day quietly at the Holland house. The two detectives who met them at the pier have been withdrawn, and Capt. McClusky explained their presence there by saying:

"Two letters, evidently from a crank, making vague threats of 'egging' the duke and duchess, were the cause of my sending Detective Sergeants Valley and Stripp to meet them on their arrival. The need for their services no longer exists, and they have been withdrawn from their attendance upon the duke and his wife. Beyond this there is nothing to say. I refuse most decidedly to make public the wording of the letters."

United States Mint Products.

Philadelphia, Dec. 3.—The United States mint executed during November 12,355,000 coins, valued at $2,254,458.14. Of this $116,338.14 was of gold and was for the government of Costa Rica. The rest was in American silver, nickel and copper. The value of silver coins was $1,908,000 and of base metal $230,120.

Attacked By Wolves.

Demidji, Minn., Dec. 3.—While a party of settlers near Roseau were burying a little girl an attack was made by wolves, who severely bit several persons in their endeavors to get at the body. The animals were finally driven away by fire.

Forty-Five Lost.

London, Dec. 3.—A special dispatch from Naples says the steamer St. Marie, trading between Naples and Marseilles, has been wrecked and that 45 of her passengers and a part of her crew have been lost.

THE NORTHAMPTON CASE.

Multimillionaire Robert J. Clapp Confesses to the $3,000,000 Bank Robbery of 1876.

Northampton, Mass., Dec. 1.—The whole mystery of the famous $2,000,000 Northampton bank robbery of 1876 has just been cleared up. Robert J. Clapp, worth $5,000,000, gained in honest pursuits, has confessed that as a youth he helped James Dunlap, Bob Scott, "Red" Leary and "Shang" Draper, a clever gang of safe crackers, to put through the gigantic scheme which was at once the talk of the world. Clapp's life has been full of romance. He has run gamut from a scapegrace and tramp to a comfortable millionaire. His wife was an Indian squaw, but she died shortly after their marriage. It was she who revealed to him the secret of the Pelly river, Alaska, ar[illegible] to him the [illegible] has given him his gold. Dunlap and Scott, with Leary and Draper, planned the great Northampton bank robbery and got away with nearly $2,000,000. Leary and Draper restored their share and got off without a sentence. Dunlap and Scott were sent to state prison for 15 years each. Scott died in prison in 1882. Dunlap was pardoned in 1892 by Gov. Russell, of Massachusetts.

Till Thursday it was never known that Clapp was ever in the gang.

LIVE STOCK SHOW.

One of the Greatest Ever Held in This Country Opened in Chicago Saturday Morning.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—What promises to be one of the greatest live stock shows ever held in this country opened Saturday morning in the Dexter Park pavilion at the stock yards. Over 10,000 pedigreed animals have already been received and it is expected that this number will be increased considerably by Monday morning. The display of blooded stock will represent a cash value of over $2,000,000. Six hundred classes are listed and prizes amounting to $75,000 will be awarded. Hundreds of visitors have already arrived and the hotels are crowded with stockmen from all parts of the United States and Canada. The first of the judging will be done on Monday and although the show was open Saturday, the formal opening will be on Monday morning.

FERRY BOAT CAPSIZED.

Four Men Lost Their Lives in the Spokane River—Five of the Passengers Swam to Shore.

Spokane, Wash., Dec. 1.—Four lives were lost here Friday night by the capsizing of a ferry boat in the Spokane river. The ferry is about two miles down the river. It was crossing the stream with 18 workmen who had ended their day's work in a construction camp near the Great Northern's new bridge. The men crowded to the bow, and it was forced under the swift current and the boat was swamped.

All the men were thrown into the water. Five swam to shore and the others climbed on the capsized boat. The waves ran high and washed four of them off to death.

AN EPIDEMIC OF SMALLPOX.

Over 300 Cases of a Mild Character in Winona, Minn., Mostly in the Fourth Ward.

Winona, Minn., Dec. 1.—According to Secretary Bracken, of the state board of health, who was called to Winona Friday to investigate the epidemic that is gaining grounds in this city, gives out the statement that the disease is evidently smallpox of a mild character. It is said that there are over 300 cases, mostly in the Fourth ward, which is largely a Polish settlement. It was said Friday night that all the schools, churches and saloons in the Fourth ward will probably be closed and will remain closed until the board of health recommends their opening and a strict quarantine will be established in the infected district.

The Army Bill.

Washington, Dec. 1.—The house committee on military affairs began consideration of the army bill Friday having as basis the measure prepared in the war department. No definite conclusion was reached because the committee had not a quorum present, but it is understood that the sentiment is strongly in favor of the maxium number of men asked for in the was department.

Kearney's Second Big Fire.

Kearney, Neb., Dec. 1.—Kearney suffered its second disaster this week by the burning of its gas plant Friday night. If the Standard oil tanks should now be destroyed, the citizens would have to resort to tallow candles. Tuesday the canal pipe which supplied the electric light plant burst and the flood from the lake wrecked the lighting plant, causing a loss of $59,000.

Will Hang December 21.

Manila, Dec. 1.—Gen. MacArthur has confirmed the sentence of hanging passed upon four natives recently convicted of murder at Lingayen. The condemned were members of the Guardia de Honor, a band of assassins whose victims were kidnaped and bolced. They will hang December 21.

Fatal Gridiron Sport.

Chicago, Dec. 1.—Thomas Kelly, 18 years old, was thrown while playing football in a game between scrubs, and sustained internal injuries which may result in his death.

OPENING OF CONGRESS

But Little Business Was Transacted During the First Session.

The Leaders of the House Are Prepared to Press With Great Vigor the Important Business of the Short Session.

Washington, Dec. 3.—Both houses of congress opened at noon Monday and but little business was transacted. The president's message was read. In the senate the new members —Messrs. Dolliver and Dillingham— were sworn in. Senator Allison announced the death of Senator Gear during the recess, and Senator Nelson announced the death of Senator Davis. The usual committees to wait upon the president and house of representatives were appointed, and the senate adjourned until Tuesday.

Mr. Frye expects to get up the shipping subsidy bill on Tuesday, and if not on that day, then on Wednesday, and, in doing this, to have the Spooner Philippine bill displaced. This will be the beginning of the important work of the session, and upon the success or failure of the scheme may depend much of the future course of proceedings for the entire session. In order to accomplish this result it will be necessary first to get the consent of the republican committee on order of business, and to this end a meeting of that committee was held after the adjournment of the senate Monday afternoon.

There is some talk of an effort during the week to get up the Hay-Pauncefote treaty in executive session, but there is yet no definite programme to this end. A movement is on foot now to secure the assent of the committee on foreign relations to the abandonment of the Davis amendment to the treaty for the fortification of the proposed canal.

The usual custom of adjourning over from Thursday until the following Monday during the first weeks of the session probably will be departed from this session. That is the desire of the republican leaders now here, and they say there will be no such adjournment this week.

The leaders of the house are preparing to press with great vigor the important business of the short session of congress which convened on Monday. Already considerable preliminary committee work has been done on the important measures—the bill for the reduction of the war revenue taxes, the army reorganization bill, the river and harbor bill and several of the appropriation bills—and the legislative mill will start under a full head of steam. The army reorganization bill is considered particularly urgent owing to the possibility of its meeting strenuous opposition after it reaches the senate, and it is the intention of the leaders to get it out of the way at the earliest possible moment.

It will be reported probably on Tuesday and will be taken up at once unless, after further consultation, it is decided to let the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, which also will be ready Tuesday, in ahead of it. The democrats held a caucus on the army bill on Monday, and the indications now are that they will offer a substitute for the permanent reorganization measure—a bill extending for two or three years the present law for a provisional army. The bill to reduce the revenue taxes has been practically completed by the republican members of the ways and means committee, and it will be submitted to the full committee on Tuesday unless in the meantime a caucus of the republicans should be found advisable. Some of the republican members are not satisfied with the list of articles relieved of taxation by the bill.

At the session of the house Monday no business was transacted except the reading of the president's message.

The deaths of the late Representatives Daly, of New Jersey, and Hoffecker, of Delaware, which occurred during the recess, as well as the deaths of Senators Gear and Davis, were announced immediately after the roll was called, and the house adjourned at once out of respect to their memories.

Towboats Collide.

Huntington, W. Va., Dec. 3.—The steamers Tom Dodsworth and Volunteer, both Pittsburgh towboats, collided 20 miles above here Sunday morning. Almost 30 coal boats, containing 600,000 bushels of coal, sank. The loss is $100,000. Both steamers and coal are owned by the Pittsburgh coal combine.

William Halley Insane.

St. Joseph, Mo., Dec. 3.—William Halley was sent to the insane asylum here Sunday. He can not recover. Halley was with Quantrell at the burning and sacking of Lawrence, Kan., being the noted guerrilla's chief lieutenant. For many years he had been a member of the local police force.

A Cincinnati Creditor.

New York, Dec. 1.—Lewis Seasongood, of Cincinnati, is the largest secured creditor of Charles L. Freedman, a cloak maker, of New York, who filed a petition in bankruptcy Friday with liabilities of $73,876 and assets of real estate worth $30,000.

Mrs. McKinley Gives a Doll.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Mrs. McKinley has given a beautiful doll for the Ohio booth at the national suffrage bazaar, which is to be held in Madison Square garden, New York, next week.

FREDERIC DE GETAU.

Porto Rican Delegate to Congress Says His People Want to Become Root and Branch American.

New York, Dec. 3.—Porto Rico's first delegate to congress, Frederic de Getau, is in the city. He arrived on the steamer San Juan Saturday night and will stay here to visit friends for a few days before he goes to Washington. He has a great desire to study the English language.

"My people want to become, root and branch, American," he said Sunday. "We can not do it too quickly. We recognize that we are naturally Americans and that our future is part of the future of this country. After centuries of sleep, Porto Rico is getting there with alacrity. The first sign is the development of the natural resources of the island.

"The evolution of the people, their development, their education and their enrionment will follow. The only question now in Porto Rico is between the federalists who want to hurry up and be made a state with an autonomous government at once and the republicans, who want to go slow and first be made a territory with a territorial government and later graduate into full statehood."

Senor de Getau is a republican and was chosen by a large majority over his federalist opponent. He is about 43 years old. His home is in Ponce, where he formerly edited La Isla de Porto Rico.

IN VIGAN.

Twenty-Two Hundred Natives of the Region, Mostly Fighting Rebels, Take the Oath of Allegiance.

Manila, Dec. 3.—Sunday in Vigan was a great day for the American cause. Twenty-two hundred natives of the region, nearly all fighting rebels, crowded the church and took the oath of allegiance to the United States. The oath was administered by the priest. All but 500 of those sworn were Bolomen. The number included the 1,200 Bolomen who had previously surrendered.

The proceedings in the church occupied the entire day, and included an address by Gen. Young and an exhortation by the priest. Scarcely any rebels remain in the vicinity of Santa Maria. Gen. Young attributes this fact to three causes—the re-election of President McKinley, the arrival of a stronger body of troops, and the especially rigid enforcement of war measures, and the deportation of prisoners to Manila. He reports that it is necessary to occupy all the barracks in order to protect the natives from the vengeance of Tagalog raiders."

POWDER EXPLOSION.

Over 300 People Were Killed at Nanking, China—A Valley Obliterated.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 3.—A special from Tacoma says:

The steamer Energia brings details of the terrible powder explosion at Nanking, China, which killed over 300 people last month. During a violent thunder storm lighting struck a powder magazine containing half a million catties, which exploded. The result was to utterly obliterate the small valley where the magazine was located. Throughout the district were found heaps of mangled and twisted bodies. The rescuing of the bodies was carried on for a week by Chinese soldiers, over one hundred being recovered the first day.

TURKISH CRUISER.

A Contract Has Been Signed With the Cramps For the Construction of One to Cost £350,000.

Constantinople, Dec. 3.—Hassan Pasha, Ottoman minister of marine, and Gen. Williams, representing the Cramp Shipbuilding Co., of Philadelphia, have signed a contract for the construction of a cruiser for the Ottoman navy. The price to be paid is £350,000, which includes £23,000 as indemnity to the United States for losses sustained by Americans during the Armenian massacres.

Iron Works Shut Down.

Portsmouth, O., Dec. 3.—The Burgess steel and iron works were closed down indefinitely, throwing 800 men out of employment. The plant is owned by the American Crucible Steel Co., which announces that it can not be successfully operated until practically remodeled. It states that this work will be commenced in the early spring.

Rev. Dr. Noble Resigns.

Chicago, Dec. 3.—Rev. Dr. F. A. Noble, pastor of the Union Park Congregational church, resigned his pulpit Sunday night after a ministry of nearly 22 years. The resignation, which was written in Salt Lake City, where Dr. Noble is spending the winter, is to take effect as soon as the church accepts it.

Beer For the Philippines.

Vancouver, B. C., Dec. 3.—The outgoing steamship Empress of China, which sailed from this port for the Orient Monday, carried a record-breaking cargo of beer for the Philippines. Fifty thousand barrels, brought hither in seven trains, were consigned to Manila.

One of His Wives Dead.

Salt Lake, Utah, Dec. 3.—Sarah A. Snow, one of the wives of President Lorenzo Snow, died Sunday of heart failure. She was married to Mr. Snow in Ohio in 1846.

OLDEST MAN IN AMERICA

Tells How He Escaped the Terrors of Many Winters by Using Peruna.

Mr. Isaac Brock, the Oldest Man in the United States.

Mr. Isaac Brock, of Madison county, Ala., has attained the great age of 114 years, having been born in 1788. He is an ardent friend to Peruna and speaks of it in the following terms:

"During my long life I have known a great many remedies for coughs, colds, catarrh and diarrhoea. I had always supposed these affections to be different diseases, but I have learned from Dr. Hartman's books that these affections are the same and are properly called catarrh.

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Peruna, I have found it to be the best, if not the only reliable remedy for these affections.

"Peruna has been my stand-by for many years, and I attribute my good health and my extreme age to the remedy. It exactly meets all my requirements.

"I have come to rely upon it almost entirely for the many little things for which I need medicine. I believe it to be especially valuable to old people." Isaac Brock.

Catarrh is the greatest enemy of old age. A person entirely free from catarrh is sure to live to a hale and hearty old age. A free book on catarrh sent by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

SOMETHING OF A TRAVELER.

A Busy City Man Who Still Finds a Little Time to Cover a Few Thousand Miles.

"I traveled 5,000 miles last year," said the mild clerk of the ribbon counter, "and had no idea we had so extensive a country."

He looked around with conscious pride and a swelling bosom. A veteran in the shoe department took him up, says the New York Sun.

"Five thousand miles!" said he, with scorn. "Only 5,000 miles? Why, bless your innocent young heart, I traveled 18,720 miles last year, and will do it again this year, and all I know about the extent of our great and glorious country is gleaned from the map. How did I do it? Easy enough. Twenty-five years ago I married, and for the benefit of future generations I bought a little place 30 miles in the country. Twice a day for six days in a week I have been going up and down to that little place for 25 years, not counting side trips. That is to say I have traveled 300 miles a week, which, multiplied by 52, makes 468,000 miles. Nearly 20 times around the world, that is, and almost from here to the moon and back. Oh, my boy, you don't know what traveling is until you live in the suburbs and become a commuter. Five thousand miles? My soul and body, that's hardly a constitutional."

And the ribbon clerk shrunk into himself and wished he hadn't mentioned his journey.

HORSES NEED HAIR RENEWER

Uncle Reuben Thought There Wasn't Much to Brag About in the Show.

"City folks is easily pleased," remarked Uncle Reuben, who has a farm down in Egypt, relates the Chicago Chronicle. "I went in to see that there horse show, and there wasn't a single critter there that had more than a stump of a tail. What they need is a hair renewer for those prize animals. A stiff young man that kept looking at nothing and holding his arms out as if he don't let his coat sleeves touch his coat says to me when I asked him about those poor tailless, stuck-up looking animals that they were that way on purpose because it's the fashion. Queer what will come in for style. I looked round and most of the big men they said was millionaires didn't have any hair on their heads. The bald spots was about as nunnerous as the bob-tailed hosses. The young dudes that I see promenading about with big flowers in their buttonholes didn't one of them have a sign of mustache or even a prospect of any whiskers. It was queer—horses without hardly any tails, men without any hair on their heads, and boys without any mustaches. It do beat all."

Comforting Poor Papa.

A well-known business man whose head is bare, yet who wears a luxuriant growth of whiskers, was being railed recently for being bald by some of his intimate friends in the presence of his small daughter. M'KINLEY'S MESSAGE

The Annual Communication of the President to Congress.

MANY IMPORTANT RECOMMENDATIONS

Outlines Our Policy in China—Approves of Ship Subsidy—Proposes Legislation for the Philippines and Asks Ratification of Hay-Pauncefote Treaty.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The following is a comprehensive synopsis of the president's annual message to congress:

The president gives first place in his message to the troubles in China, and our connection with the allied forces operating there. He reviews the causes leading up to the present outbreak, and the first murders of foreigners in Chinese territories. In this connection he says:

"The [illegible] gravity of the occasion in China and the immediate peril to our own diversified interests in the empire, as well as to those of all the other treaty governments, were soon appreciated by this government, causing it profound solicitude. The United States from the earliest days of foreign intercourse with China has followed a policy of peace, omitting no occasions to testify its sincere will, to further the extension of lawful trade, to respect the sovereignty of its government, and to insure by all legitimate and kindly means in our est means the fullest measure of protection for the lives and property of our lawabiding citizens and for the legal exercise of their beneficent callings among the Chinese people.

Mindful of this, it was felt to be appropriate that our purposes should be pronounced in favor of such course as would hasten united action of the powers of Peking to promote the administrative reforms so greatly needed for the welfare of the imperial government and maintaining the integrity of China, in which we believed the whole world was to be additionally benefited. To these ends I caused to be addressed to the several powers occupying territory and maintaining spheres of influence in China the circular proposals of 1899, inviting from them declarations of their intentions and views as to the desirability of and the adoption of measures insuring the benefits of equality of treatment of all foreign trade throughout China.

Proposals Well Received.

With gratifying unanimity the responses received in that common policy, enabling me to see in the successful termination of these negotiations proof of the firmly established friendship of the various powers interested in the untrammeled development of commerce and industry in the Chinese empire as a source of vast benefit to the whole commercial world.

In this connection, which I had the gratification to announce as a completed engagement to the several powers on the 20th of March 20, 1900, I hope was fully discerned a potential factor for the abatement of the distressful conditions supervening in the year past had appeared to inspire the policy of the imperial government, and for the effective exercise of its power and authority to quell the critical anti-foreign movement in the northern provinces and the perils thereby menaced by the Manchu sentiment.

Seeking to testify confidence in the willingness and ability of the imperial administration to redress the wrongs and prevent the outbreak of the threatened storm, the marine guard, which had been sent to Peking in the autumn of 1899 for the protection of the legation, was withdrawn at the earliest practicable moment, and all pending questions were remitted, as far as was possible, to the ordinary resorts of diplomatic intercourse.

Horror of the Siege.

The history of the efforts made at relieving the beleaguered legationers in Peking is thoroughly covered, no important detail is lacking, and ample enlargement with the Chinese forces is mentioned, when the various forces were engaged or not. To show the vigor with which the siege of the legations was pushed by the Chinese the quotes reports from Minister Conger, as follows:

"From June 20 until July 17," writes Minister Conger, "there was scarcely an hour during which there was not firing upon some part of our lines and into some of the legations, varying from a single shot to a general and continuous attack. On several days the artillery was placed around the legations and on the over-looking palace walls, and thousands of three-inch shells were fired, destroying some buildings and damaging all. Fortunately of the balls rein that, when the ammunition of the besieged ran low, five quarts of Chinese bullets were gathered in an hour in one compound and recast.

Attempts were made to burn the legations by setting neighboring houses on fire, but the flames were successfully fought off, although the Austrian, Belgian, Italian and Dutch legations were then and subsequently burned. With the aid of Chinese Christians converted by the missionaries, to whose helpful cooperation Mr. Conger awards unstinted praise, Christian legation was made a veritable fortress. The British minister, Sir Claude Macdonald, was chosen general commander of the forces and to that secretary of the American legation, Mr. E. G. Squiers, as chief of staff.

Defense of the Legations.

To save life and ammunition the besieged sparingly returned the incessant fire of the Chinese soldiery, firing only to repel attack or make an occasional successful sortie for strategic advantage, such as that which captured a quantity of Russian marinos led by Capt. Myers, of the United States marine corps, which resulted in the destruction of a formidable barricade on the wall that gravely menaced the American position. It was held to the last, and proved a invaluable defensive work because commanding the water gate through which the relief column entered.

During the siege the allies there lost 68 killed, 135 wounded and seven by disease—the last in cholera.

On July 14 the besieged had their first communication with the tsung-li-yamen, from whom a message was sent inviting to a conference, which was declined.

The correspondence, however, ensued and a sort of armistice was agreed upon, which effected the bombardment and lessened the rifle fire for a time. Even then no protection whatever was afforded, and the people were glad to send to the legations a small supply of fruit and three sacks of flour.

Inquiry of the Chinese government.

Indeed, the only communication had with the Chinese government related to the occasional delivery or dispatch of a telegram or to the demands of the latter for terms for the withdrawal of the legation to the coast under escort. Not only are the protestations of the Chinese government that it protected and succored the legations positively contradicted, but irresistible proof accumulates that the attacks upon them were made by imperial troops, regularly uniformed, armed and officered, belonging to the command of Jung Lu, the imperial commander in chief. Decrees encouraging the Boxers, organizing them under prominent imperial officers, provisioning them, and even granting them large sums in the name of the empress dowager, are known to exist. Members of the tsung-li-yamen who counseled protection of the foreigners were beheaded. Even in the distant provinces men suspected of foreign sympathies were put to death, imprisonment among these being Chang Yen-Hoan, formerly Chinese minister in Washington.

With the negotiation of the imperial armistice of July 14, a proceeding which was doubtless promoted by the representations of the then envoy at Washington, the way was opened for the conveyance to Mr. Conger of a best message sent by the secretary of state through the good offices of Minister Wu Ting-Fang. Mr. Conger's reply, dispatched from Peking on July 17, through the same channel, was the first from the outside world the first tidings that the inmates of the legations were still alive and hoping for success.

Preparations for Relief.

All the preparations for relief by the combined powers are gone into, and when that object was finally accomplished on August 14 the conditions met with in Peking are described as follows:

The imperial family and the government had fled a few days before. The city was without visible control. The remaining imperial soldiery had made on the night of the 13th a last attempt to exterminate the besieged, which was gallantly repelled. It fell to the occupying forces to restore order and organize a provisional administration.

Our Chinese Policy.

He recalls the circular note to the powers issued by this government on July 2, outlining our policy as one of moderation, guaranteeing the integrity of China, and says:

As was then said, "the policy of the government of the United States is to seek a solution which may bring about permanent safety and good will to China, preserve Chinese territorial and administrative entity, protect all rights guaranteed to friendly powers by treaty and international law, and safeguard for the world the principle of equal and impartial trade with all parts of the Chinese empire."

Faithful to those professions which, as it proved, reflected the views and purposes of the other powers operating in sympathy, all our efforts have been directed toward ending the anomalous situation in China by negotiation at the earliest moment as the earliest possible moment. As soon as the sacred duty of relieving the legations and its dependents was accomplished we withdrew from active hostilities, leaving our right to the principle of equal and impartial trade with all parts of the Chinese empire.

To Acquire A Good Vocabulary.

"A good vocabulary by reading good books, as well as by hearing the talk of those who express themselves in the speech of educated people," writes Margaret E. Sangster, in the Ladies' Home Journal. "Thought lies back of speech and the more subjects interest us the more command of language we shall have in which to describe them. They who read scientific books will have a grasp of scientific terms; they who discriminate nicely and use the very best word to say what they have in their minds will consult a dictionary and see what are the similarities or the contrasts of certain words; will choose, as among gems the flawless ruby or crystal; will not be satisfied except with the exact word which can express precisely the meaning they wish to convey. The reading of good authors lifts our vocabulary from meanness and meagerness to nobility and splendor enriches our speech with words which are like a beautiful embroidery on the garment of daily life, and furnishes us with allusions, quotations and phrases which are picturesque apposite or convenient for illustration."

The Cream.

Be sure to always milk clean.

A good thermometer is indispensable in the dairy.

Keep cream and butter away from all odors possible..

Corn should never be alone fed to the dairy cow.

Uniformity in the quality of butter is an important item.

Never set milk where there are bad odors or impure atmosphere.

A good dairy cow will turn her extra food into milk.

Butter churned from clear cream with little or no milk will usually have an oily or shining look

The cows should be bedded and treated so as to keep them in full milk as long as possible.

The function of milk giving is maternity and the mother needs shelter, warmth and comfort.

The all the-year-round cow is the paying cow, and the real dairy cows tend in that direction.

Some cows are more subject to diseases of the udder than others and such animals should be discarded.

An animal that is not sheltered in cold weather will probably eat a third more than one that is.

A cow's teats are very sensitive and the animal's restiveness is often owing to the fact that she dreads rough treatment.

If a cow has not some fat in her inside there will be deficiency of fat in the udder and there is where the butter comes from.

With the dairy cow liberality in feeding in the extreme point of digestive ability of each animal will be found the most economical.

It is nearly always the case that when a cow's coat appears rough something is wrong as the skin is a certain index of an animals' condition.

There is not much difference in the cost of keeping and feeding a cow but there is a difference all of the way up to 100 per cent. in the profit.

A good grade butter cow will make more butter from a certain amount of feed than a common cow will and it is certainly reasonable that the more butter or milk secured from a given amount of feed the better the opportunity for profit.

With butter as with other products of the farm appearance is an important factor. On this account with a good quality of butter it will be found a good plan to use parchment paper with which to wrap the prints as rolls rather than cloths. The paper now can be secured so cheaply that all things considered it will be found most economical.

A bunch of stock hogs which was owned by Simmie Temple, of Simpson county, strayed from home, and a search for them discovered that they had fallen into a sinkhole on the farm of W. P. Rowland. In the effort to relieve the hogs from their imprisonment an excavation was made and a human skeleton was found several feet from the mouth of the sinkhole. From the boots and a part of the clothing found on the skeleton it was identified to be that of George Saddler, who mysteriously disappeared twenty years ago. It is believed that he was killed and his remains placed in the sinkhole to cover up the crime.

Two negroes held the position of United States Senators, Twenty-two served in Congress in the House of Representatives. Two have been Registers of the Treasury. Several have been Lieutenant Governors of States. Nearly a score have been foreign ministers or counsuls. Six have been Recorder of Deeds in the District of Columbia. Several have been officers in the army, and a large number have filled other prominent positions.

Both Sides of the Question.

[Western Horseman.]

Ohio has a law imposing a severe penalty for docking horses. Recently the Humane Society of that State have caused a number of arrests, notably in Toledo, and fines of $100 and court costs have been imposed in several cases. The advocates of docking claim it is not so painful as severing the tail of a pet dog and clipping his ears or chopping off the finis of the innocent spring lamb. The Advocates of docking claim a horse's tail is mostly bone, with but few nerves of sensibility, and that the tail is a useless appendage of a horse that is kept in a stable; that docking prevents the horse from throwing his tail over the lines, and is therefore safer. On the other side of the subject we will quote the answer of Dr. George Fleming: Nothing can be further from the truth than the assertion that the tail is endowed with little sensibility. It is composed of bones, mucles, nerves and blood vessels as abundantly as any other part of the body. From inquiries instituted during many years and from peronal experience, we find that when horses have run away, or kicked, owing to the reins getting under the tail, they have nearly always been 'docked,' and their behavior was no doubt, due to their remembering the painful operation and consequent dread of anything touching the tail. A short tail is more readily thrown over the reins than a long one, as it is more horizontal, and the reins can more easily drop under it. Besides, a person who would allow the reins to drop under his horse's tail is not fit to be a driver." The above gives you both sides. Docking has been the practice in Egg land since the year 1700, or about 1200 years ago. It was first introduced into this country with the introduction of English manners, and just as long as it is fashionable it will prevail in spite of lockjaw or barbarity.

Connecticut is suffering from drunk and disorderly cows. The conditions are unprecedented. Staid and dignified milkers of good repute have suddenly gone off the hooks and started on wild debauches, entering into sprees with an abandon hard to reconcile with their previous good character.

Last week's storm is the cause of all this distress. The 40-knot breeze knocked all the apples from the trees and the cows did the rest. Cold facts show that no Connecticut cow will deliberately pass by a pile of cider apples.

Farmers throughout the state are getting very busy and gathering in all the apples, in order that their cattle may sober up through lack of booze. The present cider drunk has been costly to farmers. The cows get too drunk to stand, and do not give a drop of milk; and those that get ugly drunk bar per down fences, causing considerat e damage.

In Winchester, Daniel Murray's 12 cows had their fill of apples. Other farmers in the vicinity of Bridgeport who experienced the same trouble are Horace Burr, Edward Humphrey, Miles Wetmore, Elihu Dayton, William Martin and Spencer Pierce.

The Care of Horses.

The horse that is compelled to pull his hay from a rack above his head will generally be troubled with inflammation of the eyes. When he throws up his head and noses the hay all the loose dirt and feeds will fall from the hay, and the horse will get more or less of it in his eyes. Much trouble may be caused by such racks, even with the cleanest of hay. Lower the racks.

"Most of the snakes seen in circus and dime museum shows come from South America and Florida," said a dealer in reptiles to a Washington Star writer. In Florida the colored folks make the best snake hunters, and their method of catching the reptiles is peculiar and interesting. The hunting parties usually consist of from three to four men. One of them carries a long pole, having a forked or bent head and a strong slip noose at the end. The noose is put over the snake's head with the aid of the pole. The darkies then draw the noose tight on the snake's neck. Then the cord is passed through the inside and bottom of a canvas bag and the snake's head is pulled up tight to the bottom of the bag. The snake will now begin coiling himself up to get a purchase to pull the cord off. As he does so the hunters raise the mouth of the bag and twist it around until the snake is twisted up into a circle at the bottom. Then the bag is tied around close down to the snake and the main cord is cut close to the bottom of the sack, so that when the snake extends its head it will throw off the noose from its neck. The snake can't throw its head far enough back to strike, and it may, when thus captured, be carried with perfect safety for any distance with only the thickness of the bag between it and the hunter.

Mr. Rockefeller's income this year will be over $60,000,000. The care of his enourmous fortune and the disposal, by reinvestment or otherwise, of his income gives Mr. Rockefeller more work than one man can well attend to. The job is growing bigger every year. It will soon be necessary for Mr. Rokefeller to incorporate himself and have a board of directors and set of officers to manage his millions. Retaining a controlling interest in his artificial soulless body created by the state he can turn it over to the board of directors, and can give his flesh and blood body a rest and let his soul expand, undisturbed by the inflow of countless millions.—P. D.

"By a misplaced comma," says the Kansas City Journal, "a paper in Greely county raised a dickens of a row. It said: 'Two young men from Leoti went with their girls to Tribune to attend the Teachers' Institute, and as soon as they left, the girls got drunk.' The comma belonged after the word girls."

What an improvement in the general appearance of the premises after things are picked up.

Beets and turnips, stored in bulk in a dry cellar, are liable to wilt. Cover them with sods or sand.

In feeding for butter anything that tends to better digestion and assimilation of the food gives a better profit and to a considerable extent it is this helping or increasing the usefulness of other feed that succulent feed often performs an important part, and this is especially the case during the winter when the stock are fed so largely upon dry feed.

The cow which yields a generous return for the food consumed is the one for profit and the one that it will pay to feed generously, and the cow which will profitably convert the largest amount of food into milk or butter is the most profitable to keep. But such cows must have the raw material out of which to manufacture milk. It takes a certain amount of the food consumed to maintain the life of the cow and it is the surplus over and above this from which a profit is possible.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 12, 1900. NO. 8.

THE parade at the inauguration, yesterday at Frankfort, was the grandest civil and military display in the history of the State.

CONGRSS will comply with every request of the President. Some of the members, of his own political pursuasion, may occasionally protest, but there will always be enough to down the opposition to his desires.

IT is wonderful how much mail matter finds its way to the Dead Letter Office in Washington, D. C., and the receipts of undelivered mail matter are on the increase, the increase last year being nearly 10 per cent. The only way to prevent this is for each person to address all letters plainly and fully. A letter should never leave the writer unless addresse's name, village, town or city, with county and State, or street and State, are plainly inscribed on the envelope. No person should attempt to address a letter that can not write very plainly, and in such bold characters as to read at a glance. There were 7,534,158 letters received at the Dead Letter Office last year, and they contained $44,-140 in cash and $1,136,645 in drafts, notes and money orders, that could not be delivered on account of illegible superscription, or failure to give full address.

THE following is taken from Gov. Beckham's inaugural address, and has the proper ring :

"My inauguration at this time, in consequence of the election held Nov. 6, does not mean any change from the course pursued in the Executive Department of the State since the 3rd of last February, when, upon the death of Governor Goebel, I was sworn in to fill the office until a successor should be chosen .....

"The best service that I can render my party will be in giving the State a clean and honest administration of its excutive affairs, in a spirit of fairness and tolerance, with no feeling of partizan hate or malice, with the sincere desire to remove as far as possible all friction and ill feeling from among our people and to restore, as much as I can, among them an era of fraternity and prosperity.

"Let us all forget the bitterness engendered by political strife, clasp hands as Kentuckians and, shoulder to shoulder, proud of our State and hopeful of its future march forward in the unanimous effort to develop its material and moral welfare.....

"The respective rights of capital and labor should be justly and equitably protected by wise and conservative legislation.....

"I want to say to you, however, that, while it shall be our policy to keep the State Guard in a first-class condition, the military power, during my term of office, shall always be in absolute subordination to the civil authorities, and shall never be called into active service except as a last resort in carrying out the decrees of judicial tribunals. The court must be respected, the laws must be enforced, and life, liberty and property should be as safe from one of the Commonwealth to the other, as they are anywhere else on earth.

"No sectional feeling among the people of the State should exist, and the citizens of the mountains, the citizens of the Blue Grass, the citizens or the pennyrile, and the citizens of the purchase should unite in the beautiful strains of that grand old song, "My Old Kentucky Home," that always fills the heart of the Kentuckian with deepest emotions, and together in fraternal bonds they should struggle to make that home the happiest on earth, wherein peace and content and brotherly love may dwell, and bannish the gaunt specter of sectional hate and party animosity.

THE HORSE PERPETUAL.

The horse Show proves that the horse has survived the tremendous shock delivered to him by the electricity of modern inventions, and has even thrived under it. Our street cars are all run by trolley. Automobiles throng the streets. They stand at the club doors and their advertisements shine in the newspapers. They are seen on the innermost country roads. Yet there are more horses and better horses at Madison Square Garden, this week than have ever been there before, says the New York Sun.

They show that in the circle of wealth, at least, the man is put above the dollar. To "get there," to reach the end of a journey here or there, is not the only thing in life. Means of getting there in a way to interest the mind, restore the spirit and at the same time pay tribute to human art and animal beauty are enthusiastically and lavishly cultivated. As the use of the power-wagon extends, the horse becomes more and more marked as one of life's elegancies, but it possesses too many irreplaceable attractions to lose its hold on society at large. The automobile cannot jump, yet what is the exhilaration like that which comes from the jumping horse? The automobile won't carry you across the country or along the bypaths of the woods. Yet there man's delight in mastery over the brute creation and his sense of freedom on the face of nature are the keenest. The automobile will carry you comfortably about town and may cease to be ugly, but it will never give distinction to its owner like a pair of horses that are perfectly made, matched and turned out. Automobiles may be built to carry many people, yet they can't afford the physical and intellectual pleasure of holding the reins that guide four horses. You could hitch one automobile before another, yet it would'nt be a tradem. And when you struck a stretch of long, smooth road, you might pull the throttle wide open, but, if you had still the natuaal spark of excitement in you you would give your machine for the thrill felt by the man being whirled along by a trotter, intent on that delicate touching of the bit that keeps his flyer's back level when at speed and gay with the noise of his pattering feet. So the horse flourishes. Thanks to the increase of wealth and the spread of the taste for sport, and in this city, particularly, to Speedway Park, there are at present a surpassing number of people who cultivate the higher type of horse. Consequently the show at Madison Square Garden is unprecedently large and brilliant, and the good horsemen who have made it what it deserves the reward of having their animals visited in countless thousands by an enlightened and appreciative public.

Allie Jones has sold his farm near Harrisburg consisting of 800 acres at a nice sum per acre. Mr. James Samford purchased one tract of 500 acres, and Mr. Sam Hicks took the remainder.

The revival at the Baptist church continues with much interest, but is likely to come to a close at any time, as the services are only announced from day to day. There has been 37 additions to date, 18 by experience and two by restoration and 7 by letter.

City Marshal, "Top" Stegar, made a raid on some "crap shooters" last Saturday about noon. They were arrested within the sacred precincts of Owen county's old and honored temple of justice —the Court House— and were even bold enough to invade the grand jury room, the place of all most dreaded, and "wuz a rollin' de bones" on the very table that has for a half century served the foreman of the grand jury in the discharge of his official duties. The "crap shooters" proved to be a gang of boys both white and black, ranging in age from ten to eighteen years.

The State Labor Commissioner of North Carolina estimates the cost of producing tobacco at 6½c a pound. The farmers of Kentucky, according to what the trust says it intends paying for the crop this year, will come out loser if the cost of production is the same in Kentucky as in North Carolina.

One of the finest bunches of fat cattle that ever left Washington county consisted of 27 head of corn fed steers sold by Brother Anthony, manager of St. Rose farm, to Fox and McDowell, of Boyle, and shipped by them to Jersey City for export trade. The cattle averaged just 1,500 pounds each and ten of the number were barely two years old. They were high grade Shorthorns and Polled Angus. The price paid at the scales here was $4.80 per hundred.—Springfield News.

The Pendletonian scribe had the pleasure Monday of sampling some Burley tobacco of the mature age of thirty years. It was of bright leaf and splendid flavor. The weed was raised by Frank M. Pearl, an aged and respected farmer, of Bracken county, who passed to the life beyond on last Thursday, at the ripe age of 77 years. In 1870, Mr. Pearl raised a fine crop of Burley and nailed up a box of about 50 pounds, the choice of the crop, and directed that it should not be opened until his death. The sample presented to us was from this box.—Pendletonian.

Deputy Collector W. T. Hawkins and a posse of revenue men made a successful moonshine raid in Nelson county, about nine miles south of New Hope, last Saturday night. They destroyed a fine copper still of 100 gallons capacity, together with 150 gallons of singlings, a quantity of meal, malt, and everything necessary in a well-equipped moonshine distillery. Deputy Collector Hawkins reports it as the best equipped moonshine still he has ever destroyed.

STATE NEWS.

Walter Champ, one of the editors of the Burbon News, at Paris, Ky., died suddenly Saturday of heart disease.

The annual report of the Commissioner of Immigration shows that only 306 immigrants came to Kentucky last year.

Checks aggregating $423,102.15 were sent out by State Treasurer Hager Saturday in payment of the fourth twenty per cent. of the school per capita.

Nelson Burkhead, the oldest patient in the Lexington lunatic asylum, died Saturday. He had been an inmate of the asylum fifty-one years.

The collections for the Goebel monument fund has reached $11,-000, but a statement should be made showing the amount paid by each county, for the public.

The official count of the Kentucky vote shows that the total number of votes cast for the two leading candidates for Governor exceeded that cast for the leading presidential electors.

Bowling Green is in the middle of a school sensation. Four pupils of Ogden College have been expelled and two suspended for two weeks as the result of boyish pranks played by them. A number of other cases are to be investigated. The trouble all grew out of the selection of the best twelve Manual Training students for the purpose of having a flash-light photograph made. Those selected and the manual training instructor were at the college with the photographer when they were suddenly stormed by a crowd of boys who attempted to break in the doors, and did break some of the plate-glass window with stones.

The Populist and Prohibition vote polled in Kentucky this year fell far below any former vote. Cardin, Populist, for Governor, received 1666; White, Prohibitionist, 2269. John Young Brown, Independent, 154. Doyle, Social Labor, 408. Roberts, Socialist, 456.

Things a Mother Shouldn't Do.

She should not forget that if she treats her boy as a gentleman, she will do much towards making him a gentleman.

She should not treat her boy to perpetual frowns, scoldings and fault-findings. "Sugar attracts more flies than vinegar." Love wins her boy to a noble manhood.

She should never be so busy or hard pressed for time that she cannot listen to him. If he lives to be a man he will all too soon leave her. She should make the most of him while she has him.

She should never allow him to form such habits as coming to the table in his shirt sleeves, neglecting his nails or teeth, or carrying soiled handkerchiefs about with him.

She should never nag him, or forget that he is a creature of reason, not an animal that requires to be driven.

She should not try to break her boy's will, but be thankful that he is manly enough to have a mind of his own, and devote herself to training it to the noblest uses.

She should not fail to instill in him a distaste for all that is vulgar.—Household.

A Successful Farmer.

The man who makes the farm pay is a busy man, but there are some things he does not let his busy life prevent attending to.

He is never too busy to keep up with his work. The way he accomplishes so much is to have everything in season. He is never to busy to plan out his work, days, weeks and months ahead.

He finds time to keep up with modern methods and discoveries, and is a deep student of those sciences which apply to his business.

He finds time to attend the meeting of farmers and listen to the papers, discussions and lectures given for his benefit.

He finds to attend the poultry, cattle and horse shows, and local fairs and expositions where agriculture and kindred vocations are given attention.

He is never too busy to see that his stock is rightly treated. His horses are carefully groomed after the day's work, and hogs and cows are never without an abundance of pure, fresh water.

He is never too busy to take care of his farm machinery as soon as through using it for the season, painting and oiling all exposed parts.

He finds time for repairing all the farm buildings as soon as they need it, and never neglects needed repairs.

He finds time to cut all the weeds in the fence corners and other nooks about the farm and does not allow the road bordering his farm to grow weeds and ripen seeds to seed his farm.

He finds time to work his garden, cultivate his orchard and care for the trees and shrubs about his farm.

He finds time to build and keep up a neat little lawn with choice beds of flowers and ornamental shrubbery.

He is not a slave to the soil, but finds time to mix with society and do his duty in social, political and religious affairs.

He is never so busy but he can spend a few moments dressing up before going into town or to a neighbor's. He knows nothing is lost by dressing as a gentleman.

He finds time for a little vacation occasionally with his faithful wife, for his attention to details has made his farm a paying institution, and he can afford it.

In his old age he finds time to rest from his labors and enjoy the satisfaction of knowing that he earned his reward and has been a benefit to his fellowmen by these lessons his farm has been to his neighbors.—J. L. I., in Journal of Agriculture.

One of the worst bills of its kind ever proposed is now pending in Congress. By its provisions, all veterans, whether disabled or not, are to have preference for appointment and promotion in the Government service. If the bill passes, it will mean that the entire government service will be put into the hands of the veterans to the exclusion of all civilians.

If you would outshine your neighbors acquire a good reputation and then keep it polished.

Editorial Paragraphs.

The Isthmian Canal Commission has reported in favor of the Nicaraugan route as the only really feasible one, although it admits that it will cost about $50,000,000 more than the Panama

It is reported that 1,200 bolomen have surrendered in the Philippines. If so, good. But be not hopeful, brethren, that the war is over. There have been similar surrenders before, only to have the surrendered go back to the fighting line after they have had a few full meals and had seen their families.

After all the talk of the decadence of the merchant marine of the United States, there may be some surprise at the statement that the United States stands second among the nations in the tonnage it has afloat. It is exceeded only by Great Britain, and no subsidy bill is likely to enable it to pass that country.

Congress is well under way and the Republican measures are booming all along the line. Some of them may be prevented from passing at this session, but, if so, they will get through next time and therefore the chances are that the Democrats will content themselves with going on record in opposition and then letting the g. o. p. do its worst.

American girls who are going to marry foreigners should look very carefully into the laws. In most European countries, it is entirely possible for a foreign girl to have her marriage declared void because of the omission of certain technicalties. In France, for instance, a marriage is void without the written consent of the parents of the groom.

POLITICAL.

Mr. McKinley does not seem to share Mr. Hanna's view that there are no trusts, nor yet Senator Scott's that trusts are a good thing. Nor does he maintain, as his party did during the late campaign, that the Government has exhausted its powers for the suppression of the trusts. He gingerly admits that the subject should have "the studied deliberation of Congress."—N. Y. Journal.

What the Fry-Grosvernor bill proposes to do is to pay $9,000,000 a year for 30 years, or $270,000,-000, out of the National Treasury to certain ship interests which find it advantageous to operate steamship lines under present conditions. The principle of the bill is wholly wrong. If public money, under any circumstances, is to be given to encourage shipbuilding, it should be given where otherwise ships would not be built, not to companies that will build and sail ships at a profit without any subsidy.—Philadelphia North American.

Grant county has had three elections in sixty-seven days. Beginning on September 22nd, with the Congressional election at which 1500 Democratic votes were cast. That election was followed in November by a hot general election at which 2023 Democratic votes were cast for W. J. Bryan, and on last Saturday the primary brought out a Democratic vote of 2263. Grant county Democrats are good voters and when they are called on, come to the polls. Not less than 200 Republicans and non-residents noted in the primary election. Who got the most of them we are unable to say.—Williamstown Courier.

The Greenup Gazette, Republican, sets at rest a story that has been considerably discussed. It says: "It is going the rounds of the press that Congressman Pugh was deprived of 180 votes in Greenup county. This is not true. The election commissioners at first refused to count Pugh's vote at Russell precinct because the certificate was not signed. The election officers came forward and signed the certificate and then the vote was counted by the election commissioners. Mr. Pugh's vote at Russell was 180. It was an oversight of the election officers at Russell. There was no intention on their part to do any candidate a wrong. They are honesmen that wish to see every candidate get every vote that is cast for him."

Ah Sin's propensity for walking in ways that are dark has been demonstrated in New York's Chinatown, where nine Mongolian merchants and restaurant- keepers have been arrested for stealing several thousand dollars worth of electric light from the Edison company. The theft was accomplished through the use of an ingenious device arranged by an expert electrician, who farmed it out to the Chluese at $10 per month.

The town of Eatonville, Fla., has 1,200 inhabitants, with not a single white among them. It has a full quota of public officials, a bank and other business establishments requisite to a town of its size. James E. Clark, the Negro postmaster, is in trouble for alleged violation of the local option law and it develops that in addition to his federal office he holds a local office and conducts a mercantile business.

Peach trees in the vicinity of St. Joseph, Mich., are threatened by a more dangerous enemy than the yellows. Local white insects with red heads invade the orchards and cover the trees with tiny holes, and the trees die for lack of nourishment. An expert local fruit grower was surprised when notified of the supposed existence of this disease. He says: "It is common in Van Buren county, but I had not heard of its spreading to Berrien."

The prescription for the cure of consumption, freely published to the medical world by Prof. Hoff, is more and more stimulating physicians to hope that a cure for phthisis has been found at last. Prof. Hoff's prescription, as given here by cable, is in the metric system: Acid arsen, 1; acid cynnamic, 3; kal. carb. dep., 2; aqua distil., 5. Make a perfect solution; add cognac 2.5; mix. Take after meals according to instructions of physician.

Official trial of the Gathmann gun for firing higa-power explosives was made at Sandy Hook recently by the board of ordnance and fortifications of the army, preliminary to other trials of a more extensive nature. Eight rounds were fired from the gun with 300 pounds of smokeless powder recently invented by Gathmann. The highest velocity reached with an average pressure per square inch of 19,600 pounds was 1,905 feet at the muzzle of the gun.

Finnish immigration, which reached a high-water mark last year, is likely to show a great falling off this year. Although it la not known it may be the czar's policy toward the Finns is taking a less strenous course. Of all the foreigners coming to this country none make better citizens than the Finns. Of the 6,753 who came over last year only 17 were refused admittance, only 62 were unable to read and write and only 14 were said to be in danger of becoming public charges.

A Maltese cat jumped into the large flywheel of the Plymouth Refrigerator Co.'s engine and as the engineer could not very well stop and shut off the lights to release the animal from its perilous position he waited until the usual time of shutting down. On stopping the engine he found the cat alive and clinging to the flywheel. The wheel is 12 feet in diameter and 36 in circumference and makes 57 revolutions, consequently during the two and one-half hours the engine was in motion the cat covered a distance of about 120 miles.

Many exchanges printed a paragraph announcing the daily population of the Equitable building in New York as 3,100, and that mail averages about 18,000 pieces a day. This record is outstripped by buildings in the Monadnock block, Chicago, which at present has a daily population of close to if not quite 5,000. So vast is the postal business that it was found necessary to establish on the main floor a branch post office with four mail carriers. The Monadnock block is 400 feet long, 70 feet wide, 16 stories high at one end and 17 at the other, and has in all 1,200 offices.

The wife of Li Hung Chang has the credit of being not only the richest lady in China, but also of being the most luxurious woman on earth. Twice daily Mrs. Li bathes in oil of oranges and acacia flowers, and she has a staff of 1,000 servants. Her wardrobe is most extensive and contains no less than 2,000 coats and 1,200 trouserettes. Mrs. Li is only able to walk a few feet at a time, being crippled like the majority of Chinese ladies; but, if report be trustworthy, she is not by any means an idle woman.

THE MINISTERS AGREE

The Note Was Altered to Suit the American Idea.

The German Government Still Insists Upon "the Severest Admissable Punishment," as the Note Puts It.

London, Dec. 7.—The Daily News publishes the following from Nagasaki dated December 4.: The order to send 5,000 Rusian troops back to Odessa has been countermanded. They will remain in the far east until further orders.

Negotiations for the peace settlement have not yet been opened, says the Peking correspondent of the Morning Post wiring yesterday. The French, German and Japanese ministers are awaitiug instructiou and Princess Ching and Li Hung Chang are awaiting a more satisfactory edict. The impressions is growing among men of all nationalities that peace is impossible, that a resumption of the campaign in the spring is inevitable and that partition is the only solution. Two American missionaries complain that the Germans at Cho Chau loot converts equally with other Chinese.

Berlin, Dec. 8.—With reference to the news communicated from London that an agreement has been reached at Peking, a high official of the German foreign office, who is empowered to speak in the name of Count von Buelow, imperial chancellor, said Friday evening:

"The report is correct, but there are still some minor points unsettled. It was clear from the first that the note formulated by the foreign envoys in Peking would not be accepted, inasmuch as the United States disavowed Mr. Conger instantly and Russia raised some formal objections. Now that the envoys are agreed, and the note is acceptable to the United States, there should be no exultation as if the other powers had been bowed to the will of one nation. All were free to take whatever course they chose, and they chose in the interest of peace and harmony. They altered the note to meet the views of the United States. It is to be hoped that the fact that Germany has gone so far in complying with the wishes of the United States will meet with recognition in America."

Refering to the question of punishments, the official in question pointed out that Germany still insists upon "the severest admissable punishment," as the note puts it.

Li Hung Chang has informed Gen. Chaffee that he and all the people of the province of Chi Li are extremely pleased and gratified at the behavior of the American troops toward the Chinese. This is considered no light matter. From all sections of the portion of the city under American supervision come words of praise, thankfulness and commendation regarding the behavior of the Americans.

Washington, Dec. 10.—The next important step in the Chinese situation will be the formal presentation to the Chinese plenipotentiaries of the agreement arrived at between the representatives of the powers at Peking for reparation for the Boxer outrages. In just what manner this will be done Mr. Conger has not informed the state department, although the probability is that the document will be handed to the Chinese by the direction of the diplomatic corps. As has been stated already, the agreement is simply a statement of the terms upon which the powers will negotiate with China for final settlement, and it is laid before the Chinese officials as a matter of form.

The negotiations for final settlement will come later after the Chinese have been given a reasonable opportunity for the consideration of the conditions laid down by the powers. The complete agreement, deciphered from the code, is now in the hands of the president. Officials decline to make its text public in advance of the receipt of information that it has been formally accepted by the powers, although the advices which have heretofore come from Mr. Conger leave no doubt that this will be the case. The essential features of the agreement already have been outline in the press dispatches.

Well-Known Artist Killed.

New York, Dec. 10.—John McAuliffe, a well-known artist, aged 70, was accidentally killed by falling from a window of his residence. Mr. McAuliffe was especially well known in connection with his pictures of horses.

Sang the Boer Anthem.

The Hague, Dec. 10.—Mr. Kruger attended religious services Sunday morning at the cathedral, and the congregation sang the Boer anthem as he withdrew. After the service he conferred with Dr. Gleichman, president of the second chamber.

Duke of Westminster Engaged.

London, Dec. 10.—It is authoritatively asserted that the duke of Westminster is engaged to marry Miss Shelagh West, daughter of Col. Cornwallis West. By the marriage the duke will become the brother-in-law of Mrs. George Cornwallis West (Lady Randolph Churchill).

Queen's Son Coming.

London, Dec. 10.—Lloyd's Weekly Newspaper says it learns that the duke and duchess of York will visit the United States on their return journey from Australia via Canada.

TELEGRAPHERS' STRIKE.

Officials of the Santa Fe Road Claim That the Backbone Is Practically Broken.

Topeka, Kan., Dec. 10.—The officials of the Santa Fe road take a decidedly hopeful view of the telegraphers' strike situation. They all say the backbone of the strike is virtually broken already, and that the affairs of the road will be in their normal condition inside of two weeks. The officers felt justified Sunday night, in view of the alleged improvement in conditions, in rescinding the order closing the shops.

H. U. Mudge, general manager of the road, sent out a general order Sunday afternoon to all operators who had not yet gone out, offering to promote them if they would continue in their resistance to the strikers. He told them that they had been faithful to the interests of the company thus far and that they could fill out their application blanks for better positions at once. The general manager added that all the men not taking part in the strike should have better positions, if they were capable of filling them, and their old places would be filled from outside sources.

Albuquerque, N. M., Dec. 10.—The strike of the Santa Fe operators is beginning to be felt here. Passenger trains were all several hours late Sunday night and while there are plenty of operators here, freight trains are tied up waiting for orders at several stations where men have gone out. The closing of the shops here will throw 600 men out of work, greatly interfering with business.

Topeka, Kan., Dec. 10.—The following information is given out by strikers' representatives:

At 8 o'clock Sunday night practically all the telegraphers on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe proper, are still out. A few men returned to work Sunday morning under the impression that the strike had been called off and were later on induced to join the strikers. Later in the day they were all out to a man west of Emporia. Not a man will return to work unless their grievances are settled in the fullest possible manner. Some of them have already other prospects offered them on other roads and will accept them if the Santa Fe management persists in its present course.

ACUTE HEART AFFECTION.

Mrs. Mary L. McLean, Mother of John R. McLean, Expires at Her Home in Washington, D. C.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Mrs. Mary L. McLean, mother of John R. McLean, of the Cincinnati Enquirer, died here at her residence at 1:30 o'clock Sunday morning of acute heart affection. She had been ill since Friday last, and from the first attack her life was despaired of.

At the bedside of Mrs. McLean when the end came were her daughters, Mrs. Dewey and Mrs. Ludlow, the wife of Rr. Adm. Ludlow; her son, John R. McLean, and Adm. Dewey.

Mrs. McLean was a native of Kentucky, but previous to coming to Washington, several years ago, she spent most of her life in Cincinnati. She was the widow of the late Washington McLean, proprictor of the Cincinnati Enquirer. Mrs. McLean was in her 72d year.

MAJ. JOHN M'BRIDE.

Commander of the Irish Brigade Recruited in America For the Boer Army Arrives in New York.

New York, Dec. 10.—On board the steamer La Bretagne, which arrived at quarantine Saturday night, was Maj. John McBride, late of the Boer army. Maj. McBride was in command of the Irish brigade which was recruited in this country, and served with distinction under Col. Blake until Maj. McBride, who is a native of County Mayo, Ireland, was given the command on May 3. Maj. McBride spoke very enthusiastically of the Boer cause, and expressed the opinion that they would eventually win in spite of their recent reverses. The major after leaving Lourenco Marques proceeded to Paris and from thence to New York.

Author of "Fanchon" Dead.

St. Louis, Dec. 10.—August Waldauer, a widely known professor of music, died here Sunday of a complication of diseases, aged 75 years. He was best known as the author of "Fauchon," in which Maggie Mitchell made a hit some years ago. Prof. Waldauer played first violin in the orchestra that accompanied Jennie Lind on her tour in this country.

Three Killed in a Wreck.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Dec. 10.—A freight wreck on the Southern railway three miles south of Sanford, Tenn., resulted in the death of Conductor David L. Glover and two unknown tramps. Thirty-two cars got loose on a grade and ran into an engine that was alding in pulling on the track two derailed cars.

Five Millions of Capital.

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 10.—A prospectus has been issued for the Charles G. Howe Consumers' Flour Milling Co., to be incorporated for $5,000,000. The mill is to have a capacity of 35,000 barrels of flour a day, and is seeking a site in Duluth.

Will Test the Law.

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 10.—The American Tobacco Co. has taken steps here to test the anti-cigarette law of Tennessee. By prearrangement Roy Scott, a dealer in tobacco, sold a package of cigarettes and was arrested.

EIGHT WERE DROWNED.

Iron Ore Barge Goes to the Bottom of Lake Erie During a Gale.

The Vessel Was Valued at $19,000, But the Insurance Had Elapsed December 1—The Cargo Was Covered By Insurance.

Erie, Pa., Dec. 10.—In the midst of the most bitter gales that ever swept Lake Erie, the iron ore barge Charles Foster, in tow of the Iron Duke, went to the bottom at 4 o'clock Sunday morning ten miles off Erie, and eight persons were drowned, as follows: Capt. John Brindge, of Cleveland; first and second mates, names unknown; Seamen Robert Wood and William Kelly, both of Port Austin, Mich.; Mrs. May, cook, of Detroit, Mich., and two unknown deck hands.

The Charles Foster was one of the fleet of James Corrigan, of Cleveland, and for two months has been running from Duluth to Erie with iron ore. Her cargo consisted of 1,500 tons of ore. Capt. Ashley, of the Iron Duke, made Erie in safety. In an interview he said:

"The Foster was in tow 600 feet astern. I was up all night, and there were three men on watch with me. The seas were rolling tremendously from the northwest, and the gale carried with it a blinding snow storm. We made the harbor light all right. When we turned for the harbor a sea much heavier than any other experienced struck us. I ran to the stern. Just as I got there the Foster plunged in an awful sea and dove down nose first. There was not a cry from a soul of the crew of eight she carried. Just as she pitched down I saw a man on her forecastle with a lantern.

"The towline parted when she went down. The storm was so heavy that I could not put about to hunt for any one. There would not have been a particle of use anyhow, because in those tremendous waters no one could have lived a minute even if they had not been icy cold. Had there been a cry for help I would have turned and risked my ship, but it was no use. I had all I could do to make port in safety myself."

When asked for an opinion as to the cause of the sinking of the Foster, Capt. Ashley said that he could not tell.

"Apparently everything was all right aboard until she took that fatal dip. There had not been a single signal of distress from her up to that time."

There are 80 to 100 feet of water where the wreck occurred, and there is little hope of ever being able to locate the place. The Foster was valued at $19,000, but there was no insurance, as it elapsed December 1. The cargo was not insured. The lifesaving crew took a trip out Sunday, but could find no trace of wreckage.

NOT GUILTY.

Rev. Wm. B. Johnson, Acquitted of Murder Sunday at 5 a. m., Filled His Pulpit at 11 O'clock.

Columbia, S. C., Dec. 10.—Rev. William B. Johnson was on Sunday acquitted of the murder of William T. Bellinger, a court stenographer, at Bamberg, last April. The jury retired Saturday afternoon at 6 o'clock and did not come to a verdict until 5 o'clock Sunday morning. Rev. Mr. Johnson received the verdict calmly, and filled his pulpit at 11 o'clock. He and Bellinger had a dispute over a fence separating their homes. He used a shotgun and Bellinger a pistol.

IN FRIENDLY TERMS.

Ex-President Paul Kruger Receives A Message From the Czar of Russia.

London, Dec. 10.—"Mr. Kruger received a message from the czar Friday night," says the correspondent of the Times at The Hague.

"It was couched in very friendly terms, but the fact that its existence has been kept a close secret is sufficient to indicate its author's intention to abstain from any active steps friendly to intervention. The czar naturally pleads his illness as a sufficient excuse for not interfering.

"Mr. Kruger, when cheered by the crowd on his return from the cathedral, turned and roundly rebuked those near him for such a desecration of the Sabbath."

Number of Vessels Built.

Washington, Dec. 10.—The vessels built in the United States, and officially numbered, from June 30, 1900, to November 30, 1900, were 495, of 149,963 gross tons. The principal items of the total are seven steel steamships on the great lakes (34,933 gross tons) and four smaller steamships (8,856 gross tons, which would pass through the new Welland canal) and one steel schooner barge (2,790 tons).

Died at the Age of 103.

Denver, Col., Dec. 10.—Adnah Adams Treat died here Sunday, aged 103 years and 8 months. He had long been the oldest living mason in point of age, and the second oldest mason in point of time connected with the order.

New Persian Minister.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Gen. Isaac Kuhn, the new Persian minister to the United States, arrived on Sunday from New York. He probably will be presented to the president during the present week.

MINISTER SAVED

Rev. Henry Langford entirely cured of Nervous Prostration by Dr. Greene's Nervura Blood and Nerve Remedy.

REV. HENRY LANGFORD.

Rev. Henry Langford, the eminent Baptist divine, of Weston, W. Va., has just escaped utter nervous and physical prostration. He is pastor of four churches. "For ten years," he said, "I have been nervous and growing worse all these years. During the last four or five years I became so nervous I could scarcely sign my name so it could be read. I was so nervous that I could not read my own sermon notes after they had been laid aside awhile.

"I was unable to hold my head steady in the pulpit, nor could I hold or handle my books and papers without embarrassment, owing to the trembling and weakness of my hands and arms. I was so nervous that I could scarcely feed myself. In fact my nervous system was wrecked.

"I tried many remedies recommended by physicians, but found no permanent relief.

"One day I was in the store of R. S. Ogden, at Sardis, W. Va., and he said to me: 'You take two bottles of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and if you say it don't help you, you need not pay for it.'

"I took two bottles of this medicine and found so much relief that I bought two more bottles, and now I am wonderfully improved in health and in strength. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy did it. I can heartily and truthfully recommend it to the sick. Too much cannot be said in praise of this splendid medicine. I say this for the good of other sufferers from nervous and prostrating diseases who can be cured by this remedy. For myself, I am thankful to God that I found Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and for what it has done for me."

DR. GREENE'S OFFER OF FREE ADVICE.

Dr. Greene, Nervura's discoverer, will give his counsel free to all who write or call upon him at his office, 35 West 14th Street, New York City. His advice is from his great skill and experience and will shorten the road to health. Thousands come to him and write to him constantly. Do not put off getting the right advice, if you are ill.

Wade Tolin's gun exploded, one day last week, while hunting, bursting two inches of the barrel near the muzzle. Wade was slightly powder burnt.

If there ever was a town that needed a new school house, it is this. The old building looks well enough on the outside, but it is a veritable death trap. It is wind shaken.

There is a lively rate war on between the independent packet line (Workum) and the White Collar line (Indiana) between Cincinnati and Vevay. Each company has lots of money.

By the same authority that the traveling public is kept off of the public square, the loyal ones should be kept from reposing in slumber on the sidewalks at night as they retard the progress of pedestrians.

Aurora was treated to some capers of frontier life, one day last week. A young man from the hills of Loughery came to town, filled up on Aurora touch-me-not, mounted his horse about dark and rode up and down the streets, shooting at the globes of the electric lights.

The shantyboat people that stole Garrett Riley's and W. P. Cropper's skiffs at North Bend, Saturday, passed here about 9 o'clock that day. Had the boys used the telephone they would have caught them before they reached Rising Sun.

Earl Whiting and Geo. Bachelor got nice gold watches out of coffee packages. They have good works and are warranted for ten years. Allie Delph is offering several dollars for a certain letter, as that is all that keeps him from sporting a stem winder.

Chas. Kritzer, of Milan, Ind., was visiting his sister, Mrs. John Klopp, last week. He is a hero of San Juan, and draws a pension of $20 per month. He was shot in the leg and paralyzed on one side from being in the water so much. He says for four months he was in water to his waist day and night.

Midway.

An interesting revival meeting closed, last Thursday night at the Fairview Christian church.

William Isbel is preparing to build a nice residence at the Springs on the lot he lately bought of M. E. Hance.

M. C. Carroll, who has been prostrated for some weeks, with a severe attack of pleurisy, we are glad to learn is convalescent.

John Fink, an adept knight of the brush, of Walton, has just finished a pretty coat of paint on the M. E. Chapel, which adds much to its appearance.

Joseph H. Rich, one of our prosperous farmers, of upper Big Bone creek, shipped 18 hhds. of tobacco to the Louisville market, last week, and sold it for $4.75 net.

Many of the citizens of Midway who are usually disposed to lead a quiet life, "got a move on themselves," last week. Joe Ackman left for Grant county; "Uncle Jeems" Newcom moved into Joe's house and Ben Kennedy moved into the house lately vacated by F. L. Gordon, who moved in with George Moore at Beaver.

Quite a number of our citizens left for Burlington, Monday morning to attend Circuit Court, while quite another large number left for parts unknown to visit friends and relatives, owing to their deep seated abhorrence of the possibility of an official notice to appear before the "big 12," who are in session there this week.

Sunday afternoon this entire community was startled by the telephone report that the "Old Griffith home" was being consumed by fire. The house which at the time of the fire was occupied by John Eldred and owned by L. D. Jackson, was the residence of John W. Griffith, deceased. It was one of the old land marks of Beaver Lick precinct and made a large fire which could be seen for a considerable distance. Although, Mr. Eldred and family were at home, they were unable to save much of their household plunder, the loss of which is a great burden on him. We failed to learn whether there was any insurance on the building.

Idlewild.

Jas. A. Duncan assisted with the butchering at J. W. Gaines', Saturday.

Hubert Walton sold his tobacco to Thompson & Wingate for 5cts. around and threw in 100 pounds.

Col. James Riley made a tour of this neighborhood, last week, prospecting with a view to purchasing tobacco later on. The Colonel is of the opinion that tobacco will be low.

Mr. Asa Meacham, of Florence, has been in this neighborhood canvassing for a very prolific variety of corn, said to yield from 100 to 160 bus. per acre. We want to try it.

Rice Bros. have a new corn grinder, and Ed says the cattle are so fond of the ground corn that they will come up at break-neck speed whenever they hear the mill running.

The neighbors have about finished their winter hutchering, and, judging from the number of hogs killed, there is little danger of a meat, lard or sausage famine for a year to come.

Mrs. Julia Ann Keyton who has been very sick, is improving. This is her first illness in 27 years. She has been blessed with excellent health all her life, which we hope will be spared to a ripe old age.

Col. Chas. Gaines dresses about 50 turkeys a week for his city trade, and will dress 300, Christmas. He is paying 7 cents gross. We judge from the broad smile he brings home each week his business is prospering.

We have our tobacco stripped and ready for market, and would like to put it in keeping order in hogsheads, and put into a combine to be held for living prices. This thing of putting our products on the market at the mercy of the buyers, without competition, doesn't set well with many of us.

Gunpowder

Mrs. A. J. Utz has been on the sick list for a few days.

J. S. Surface and wife were guests of Ben Snyder, last Sunday.

Arthur Tanner and wife are entertaining a little boy at their home.

A great many hogs were slaughtered in this neighborhood, last week.

E. H. Snyder sold to Mr. Foutz, near Covington, some nice shoats, last week at $2 50 per head.

Jerry Beemon has improved his farm near Union very much by putting up sever rods of wire fence.

Miss Emma Bentham, who we reported on the sick list, some time ago, is still confined to her bed, but she is improving slowly.

Alonzo Whitson and Miss Cordie Rouse were married on the 5th inst. Elder E. Stephens officiated. We wish them a long and happy life.

The writer and family, Jerry Beemon and wife, and Ephraim J. Utz and wife broke bread with A. J. Utz and wife, at Erlanger, Sunday.

We are in receipt of an interesting letter from Leslie Tanner, formerly of Gunpowder, but for several years last past, of Bartow, Florida, in which he gives quite an experience he had, recently, with a couple of rattlesnakes. The story runs as follows: He was driving some cattle through a forest, when his horse stopped suddenly, and he heard the snake give the alarm. Looking down he saw the monster almost directly under his horse, to which he put the spurs, causing it to jump out of danger. Seeing a negro cutting wood hut a short distance away, he called him to assist in captuaing the reptile. Having killed it Mr. Tanner, suggested that its mate was near by, and a search for it was begun, and in a short time the second snake was discovered and killed. They then measured the snakes, finding them about 8 feet in length and 10 or 12 inches in circumference at the largest part of the body. The rattles taken from the snakes are on exhibition at Gunpowder, to which place they were sent by Mr. Tanner. They will, after thirty days become the property of Perry and L. P. Aylor.

Hathaway.

D. H. Ryle is ahle to be about again. Elmore Ryle was very sick one night last week.

Blue spent Thanksgiving day in Rising Sun.

Prayer meetiug at Big Bone church every Wednesday evening at 6:30.

B. D. Adams has purchased a farm of 50 acres in Grant county, for $1,800.

The farmers were very busy, last week, stripping tobacco and husking corn. There is considerable corn yet in the shock here.

Walton.

Bruce Roberts has been tendered the agency of the McCormick Harvester machines.

Several insurance adjusters were at the Phoenix, during the week, and it is said, speedy adjustments were in order.

Hon. W. W. Dickerson was at the Phoenix Hotel, last week, rumor says, to view the surroundings whence has arisen a suit for heavy damages.

It is uncertain whether Richards and Dean will continue their business. Ike Kahn resumed on Friday morning, having reopened five days after the calamity.

The festival and oyster supper held at the Opera House, on last Saturday night, by the Ladies' Aid Society of the Christian church was a decided success. The changing of the auditorium to a banquet room, brilliantly lighted and tastefully decorated was well concieved and artistically executed. The soup was excellent with delicious oysters in abundance; turkey roasted to a turn, juicy ham, and the managers only know what else made one feel it was good to be here. There was a large attendance and not a grumble was heard in all that crowd as to the quality and quantity. Indeed, the most of them were too intent on overloading their stomachs, to find fault with anything at all. It was not often they were up against such a jolly spread.

There were several applicants for the position of Principal of the Walton Graded Free School. A tender of the position was first made to Prof. James Craven, of the Verona Free School, which the Professor had engaged to teach five months, which will be out in February. The trustees of the Verona school refused to release him from his engagement, and then a tender was made to Miss Virginia Southgate, Professor of Mathematics in the Minnesota University, who had come home for a year's rest. Professor Southgate declined the proffered position, as her State of Kentucky certificate was void because she had taught two years in another State. Chairman Curley of the Walton Graded Free School Board, wrote to Frankfort about having Miss Southgate reexamined for a new State certificate and was informed by the consequential official that there could be no examination until next May. Whereupon Kentucky has always prided herself upon her statesmen, orators, pretty women and race horses, but, never has she taken any airs on herself about her breed of—well—donkeys. But, "revenous a nos nonton." (literally, let us return to our mutton.) The Board then selected Mr. John N. Gosney, formerly of the Butler and recently of the Dry Ridge School, who will occupy the principal's chair after January 1st. Mr. Gosney is highly recommended by those of his acquaintances residing here.

Bellevue.

Uncle Jonas is seriously sick with heart trouhle.

Jesse Kelly, of Aurora, was seen on our streets, last Sunday.

Mr. Evans and wife, of Petersburg, attended church here, Sunday.

Eld. Hays, of Ohio, preached for the Disciples at this place on the 9th inst.

Ira Powell, of "Conspicuous Hill," Indiana, attended church here, Sunday.

E. B. Atwood is prosecuting his studies under Dr. Harry, of Cincinnati, but recently of Georgetown College.

W. I. Rouse delivered 13 hogs to A. Corbin & Son, on the 10. Price, 25 cents per cwt. less than the highest quotations that day.

Charles Acra went to Petersburg on the 10th for flour and bran. Charles wants the bran to feed those fine Brahma chickens.

James Botts drove 22 cattle to the city and sold them for $2 per head less than he paid for them, having grazed them for eight months.

Charles Maurer, who resides hard by the river, and his neighbor, "Pat" Sandford, are making collections preparatory to establishing a Zoo. Charles has a pair of squirrels that live in a tree to which their cage is joined, in which they get their food and drink. "Pat" has a tortoise of considerable note, and has his eyes on a white quail on the hills near, which he will capture and add to his collection.

The club-house on the other side of the river, opposite Caugherty Island, is nearing completion, and is absolutly a convenient building. Lighted hy electricity, water supply from the tank on the towes adjacent, spacious halls, dining room, reading room, the outside of which is mostly glass, etc. The club has built an icehouse, pond, and pike from the main pike to the river and all necessary outhuildings. One of the Industries in which they will engage is the propagation of the Belgian Hare, of which they have many on the grounds. This specimen of the hare sells in the Portland, Oregon, market from 60 to 75 cents each.

Union.

Mrs. Perry Weaver is quite sick.

Killing hogs is the order of the day.

Mrs. John Elston has been sick for quite a while.

The cabin in Mr. Harvey Hicks' yard burned Saturday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Abe Rice spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Baker.

Miss Ella Norman spent Saturday and Sunday with friends near Verona.

Rev. J. A. Kirtley spent Saturday night with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kennedy.

Don't forget the installation services at the Presbyterian church next Sunday night.

Howard Smith and mother, of Verona, were visiting at Mr. John Hogan's, last week.

The Ladies' Society will meet with Miss Nancy Bristow, Saturday, December 15, at 2:30 o'clock.

Mr. Josep Hughes entertained several of his Masonic friends at his home with a most delightful supper, last Saturday night.

If there is anything that will make a lame person forget his lameness, it is to enter a coal house after dark and step on a 'possum.

Mr. Alonzo Whitson and Miss Corda Rouse, were married last Wednesday, by Rev. S. M. Adams, at his home in Walton. Joseph Weaver and Miss Lizzie Rouse were their attendants.

The Pomona Grange held a very enthusiastic and successful meeting last Saturday. Golden Grange was honored by a visit of Master Oscar Gaines, J. H. Walton and Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Riley. We would be glad to have them with us often.

Gasburg.

Ben Berkshire shipped 54 fat hogs to the city, Monday.

The receding river is leaving an unusually heavy coat of mud along the shores.

Jake and John Klopp sold seven hogs that averaged 305 pounds to Huey and Clore, of Bellevue.

Gasburg was lucky in the last drawing from the jury wheel—three of her citizens drew prizes.

Hal Wells, who was raised in this place, died last Thursday, at his father's in Ohio county, Ind.

Rev. T. B. Cook, who was recently assigned to this circuit, and your correspondent served together in the Orphan Brigade, C. S. A.

Miss Josie Hartman was married in Cincinnati, one day last week, to Chas. Dinkle. The wedding was a surprise to her folks and friends, as she let none of them know of her intentions.

While hunting, one day last week, Philip Klopp was seriously hurt by his gun bursting. A part of two fingers on his left hand were so badly mangled that amputation of them at the second joint was necessary; another finger and the palm of his hand were badly injured. The gun was charged with smokeless powder.

Hebron.

Mrs. Harriet Hafer is quite sick.

Born, on the 4th inst., to Oliver Dye and wife, a boy.

Practicing for Christmas exercises at the church, began here last Friday night.

Miss Eva Dolwick spent a few days with her cousins at this place, last week.

The young men of this place treated the girls to an oyster supper, Thursday night, at Thomas Hafer's.

Mr. Arthur Grant and little daughter, Gladys Chrystena, were visiting Mrs. Garnett's parents, Thursday and Friday.

Charles Clore gave the young people a play party over his store on the 5th. A delightful time was reported by all who were present.

The C. E. Social was held at John Aylor's Saturday night. In the debate it was decided that the country has more advantages than the city.

Mr. Henry Crigler, whose illness was noted in this column last week, died at an early hour last Thursday morning. The funeral services were held at the Lutheran church on the 8th, after which the body was placed in the vault.

Florence

Miss Julia Marshall, of Richwood, was the guest of Mrs. Henry Tanner, Sunday.

Cary Carpenter and wife were guests of James Tanner and wife, Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Arch Corbin and children, of Erlanger, spent a few days last week with Mrs. Frances Price.

Mrs. Joseph Clark, of Cincinnati, has been the guest of her mother-in-law, Mrs. Jane Clark, for the past week.

Alonzo Whitson and Miss Etta Rouse, of near Union, were quietly married at the home of the bride, last Thursday.

Mrs. Harry Fisk entertained quite a number of her relatives, Thursday. They were Mrs. Abel Carpenter, Mrs. Frances Price, Mrs. Carl Price and daughter, Mrs. Albert Fisk and Mrs. Albert Price.

Plattsburg.

Will Woffort is home from Illinois.

Mrs. Dick Hensley is quite ill again.

Ben Passens has returned from Illinois.

Miss Lou Sebree has been spending a few weeks in the city.

Ben Akin and family spent last Sunday with Henry Jarrell.

D. M. Hewitt has been laid up for several days with a lame back.

The Sunday school will have a Christmas tree for the children on the 22d inst.

J. W. Berkshire, of Petersburg, was buying tobacco in this neighborhood, a few days ago. He bought two small crops, paying $5 and $2 for one, and $4 and $2 for the other.

Rev. J. S. Cantwell, editor of the Universalist Leader, will preach in the Universalist church in Burlington, on Sunday morning, December 23d, at 10:30 a. m. The day is one known to Universalists as Twenty Century Day. Dr. Cantwell is an old friend and former pastor, and will hope to meet and welcome all his former acquaintances at that time.

The atmosphere in this locality was evidently conducive of scraps, last Wednesday, but, fortunately there were no serious altercation, as only in one instance did the belligerents indulge in a mix-up, and they did not continue the mill until a knock-out blow was administered. As the big twelve are in session this week, it may be as well to state here that the above is based on hearsay, entirely.

Among the tens of thousands who have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for colds and la grippe during the past few years, to our knowledge, not a single case has resulted in pneumonia. Thos. Whitfield & Co., 240 Wabash Ave., Chicago, one of the most prominent retail druggists in that city, in speaking of this, says: "We recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for lagrippe in many cases, as it not only gives prompt and complete recovery, but also counteracts any tendency of la grippe to result in pneumonia. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Baisly, Bullittsville; Grant, Bellevue, and Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg.

A Neat Piece of Work.

Deputy Sheriff Allphin executed a very neat piece of official work one night not long since. A young man in his bailiwick was indicted for carrying a pistol, and the bench-warrant was placed in his hands to serve, and some time previous to the night in question the officer took the young man into custody, and they went to a country store, where it was understood a bond for the young man's appearance for trial would be executed. Supposing that the party under arrest was acting in good faith with him the officer was not so watchful as he otherwise would have been of his charge, and it was not long before and opportunity for escape offered when the prisoner availed himself of it, and gave the unsuspecting officer the shake, very much to his surprise and chagrin, while those present regarded the occurrence as a huge joke on the Deputy Sheriff. Mr. Allphin made no attempt at pursuit, neither did he make any public declaration as to his future policy in the case, but to himself took a solemn vow to recapture his man before the present term of circuit court, and he put his wits to work, planning for carrying into execution the vow he had made. A protracted meeting began at a church in the young man's neighborhood, not long since, and it at once occurred to the officer that his young friend would attend that meeting at night, and that it would afford the opportunity he so much desired for his rearrest. The guardian of the peace and dignity of the Commonwealth waited patiently until he supposed the meeting had grown so interesting as to be attended by every person for miles around, when late one afternoon the officer rode out of Burlington, headed for the protracted meeting above referred to. When he arrived at the church services had been in progress for some time, and everybody was in the house, giving their undivided attention to an interesting sermon. Quietly and unobserved the officer passed around the building, looking in at the windows to see who were present, and before the circuit was completed he discovered the party in whom he was particularly interested. He did nothing then but very unconcernedly walk into the church, and, seemingly, unconsciously seated himself by the young man who caused his presence at that church that night. In order to provide against a recurrence of his recent experience with the young man, the officer, without attracting the attention of anyone slipped from his pocket a pair of modern hand-cuffs, and with "click," about like closing a watch, one hand-cuff closed around the young man's arm, and with another "click" the officer fastened the other about one of his own arms. This all occurred without a word having passed between the two, Mr. Allphin apparently giving his undivided attention to the preacher all the while. The two men thus linked together sat the sermon out, when the young man arranged his bond for his appearance for trial. So successful was the officer in the execution of his plans that when the congregation was dismissed only three or four were aware of what had occurred during the services.

A Boone County Boy an Easy Winner.

For Superintendent of schools, C. C. Adams, of Sherman, won by a handsome majority over both his opponents, Hill and Fledge. He made an active canvass and many friends. His race was one of the best of all. He worked hard for success and after all he wins, who tries the hardest to win. Prof. Adams is well qualified for the position and ought to be able to give satisfaction in the place of County Superintendent of Schools.—Williamstown Courier.

The above is one of the Courier's comments on the recent primary election in Grant county. Prof. Adams is a son of Robert Adams, who, not many years since, moved from the Hathaway neighborhood, to near Sherman, Grant county. The Professor has many relatives and friends who are glad to hear of his success. This is another instance that proves although Boone county boys have close and exciting contests for office among themselves at home, yet, when they move to other counties and compete for offices the other fellows, their opponents, are not in it.

Another Old Citizen Gone.

Mr. Henry A. Crigler died at his home, near Hebron, of pneumonia, on Thursday morning, December 6th—He was one of the county's oldest citizens, being eighty years and twenty-one days old. He was born in Madison county, Virginia. He came to this county when yet a boy, and led a long, honorable and useful life, having lived for 60 years on the farm where he died, and was highly esteemed by all who knew him. The funeral took place at 2 p. m., last Saturday, Rev. Duncan, of Ludlow, officiating. A quartet of selected voices sang, sweetly, several numbers in church and at the vault. Mr. Crigler will be greatly missed by the aged and beloved wife, and the son, Leonard.

The family desire to thank the many friends and neighbors for their kindness during the short illness of Mr. Crigler, and especially Miss Lizzie Conner for the beautiful floral piece.

How to Cure Croup.

Mr. R. Gray, who lives near Amenia, Duchess county, N. Y., says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best medicine I have ever used. It is a fine children's remedy for croup and never fails to cure." When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough has developed, it will prevent the attack. This should be borne in mind and a bottle of the Cough Remedy kept at hand ready for instant use as soon as these symptoms appear. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; Baisly, Bullittsville; O. Grant, Bellevue.

H. P. Stephens, of Nashville, is attending court here this week, and meeting many of his old friends. He is looking as well as we ever saw him, and appears to be identically the Perry of old. He gave us the first information of our friend George Brown's recent good luck, viz: the marrying of a most excellent woman, who will take good care of him. He reports the remainder of the Boone county people in and about Nashville, as all well and doing well.

Circuit Court.

C. C. CRAM, SPECIAL JUDGE.
[And probable candidate for Circuit Judge.]

At one o'clock Monday Circuit Clerk Duncan had the members of the bar called, when he announced the absence of the regular Judge, Hon. John W. Greene. Commonwealth's Atty. Gray then stated that the court must be organized on the first day of the term, and the clerk proceeded to elect a special judge for the term, and Judge C. C. Cram receiving a majority of the votes cast, was declared elected, and he was sworn in and took his seat.

The sheriff was directed to call the grand jury, and as the jurors responded the beauty of selecting jurors by means of the jury wheel was fully illustrated, the jury being nicely bunched, one neighborhood getting about half of the graud jury.

The grand jury is composed of the following persons:

Edgar Cropper, foreman; James Allen, Peter Hager, J. Rau Ryle, George Rector, B. H. Stephens, W. H. Harrison, Glen Crisler, John Cleek, John Hogan, Walter Crigler, J. K. Roberts.

The jury was given a very comprehensive charge by Commonwealth's Attorney Gray, nearly every crime known to the law being referred to in the charge.

The petit jurors were summoned to appear the second day, consequently very little business could be done on the first day.

Tuesday morning the petit juries were organized and are as follow:

No. 1.—J. J. Berkshire, Chas. Westbay, A. B. Sullivan, P. P. Neal, Marion Bruce, O. P. Conner, Waller Campbell, Lee Clutterbuck, John Ernst, J. M. Barlow, L. P. Aylor, Jerry Garnett.

No. 2.—Charles Gaines, Thos. Jones, J. W. Gaines, H. C. Duncan, J. J. Ferris, W. P. Beemon, Noah Clore, A. C. Porter, Robert Nixon, J. R. Clutterbuck, J. E. Smith, J. J. Smith.

When court adjourned Tuesday night the record showed the following fines had been imposed:

Charles Stevenson, $100 for betting on the result of the November election, 1899.

William Howard, $25 and trimmings for carrying a pistol.

John Ryan, $10 for assault.

Rell Robinson, $100 for betting on result of the November election, 1899.

Albert Cleek, $10 for racing horse on public highway.

J. A. Sauders' claim on the reward of $100 offered by the Governor for the apprehension and arrest of Wm. Craddock for shooting and wounding Albert Fullilove in Walton, on the 22d day of last September, was certified to the Auditor of Public Accounts for payment.

The following out of town attorneys have put in their appearance: H. P. Stephens, of Nashville, Tennessee; J. S. Gaunt, Carrollton; M. D. Gray, C. C. Cram, H. C. White, Williamstown; C. Y. Dyas, J. G. Tomlin, F. E. Curley, of Walton; S. M. Adams, O. M. Rogers, of Erlanger; J. C. Clore, Cincinnati; Elijah Greene, Covington.

Miss Ella Duncan is assisting her father, and is making an efficient court room deputy.

Judge Greene arrived last night, and is presiding now. His health is poor, but he never allows that to interefer with his duty to the public if he is able to be about.

The third annual exhibition of the Cincinnati Poultry Show will be held January 14 to 19 inclusive. Entries close January 7th.

While ringing some shoats a few days ago, J. S. Tanner's finger was bitten by one. He thought nothing of it, but at the earnest solicitations of friends he came to Burlington and had applied the Tanner mad-stone, which adhered to the wound for 210 minutes.

The Best Plaster.

A piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound to the affected parts is superior to any plaster. When troubled with lame back or pains in the side or chest, give it a trial and you are certain to be more than pleased with the prompt relief which it affords. Pain Balm also cures rheumatism. One application gives relief. For sale by Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; Grant, Bellevue; Baisly, Bullittsville; McKim, Burlington.

Personal Mentions.

E. H. Baker, wife, son and daughter, of Covington, are in town to-day.

Mrs. J. R. Clutterbuck has about completed the addition to her residence.

E. S. McKim was assigned to duty in the revenue service at Falmouth, last week.

Mrs. McAtee, of Ludlow, was the guest of her father and mother, Mr and Mrs. O. P. Conner, last week.

Attorney James Terrill and wife, of Covington, were guests of Dr. E. W. Duncan and wife, Saturday night.

While carying a hog at Ezra Aylor's yesterday, James Strouse slipped and broke a bone in one of his legs near the ankle.

C. C. Hughes, who is now on revenue duty in Cincinnati, was at home from Saturday evening until Monday morning.

Joe Fisher and J. H. Rogers, of Walton, constituted the crew that brought Judge Roberts' commissary train in from Walton, last Thursday.

W. N. Hind, of Covington, and Mrs. Annie A. Hind, of Walton, were in town yesterday. They administered on the estate of the late Sam Hind, jr.

County Attorney J. M. Lassing and Arthur Rouse, went down to Frankfort, Monday afternoon, to attend the inauguration of Gov. Beckham, yesterday.

Mrs. Hoover returned home the latter part of last week from Virginia, where she had been several weeks, having been called there by the fatal illness of her mother.

Rev. M. J. Hoover has gone to Alexandria, Louisian, where he has been called to preach. He has not decided as to whether he will accept the call. He will be gone ten days.

Edwin Gaines made a record as a bird hunter, one day last week, of which he is proud. John Baldon, who heard Edwin describe the excellent work of his dog, says he went into the particulars too extensively.

Mr. John Henke was in town yesterday and had the address of his paper changed to his new home, Kansas City, Mo. Mr. Henke takes with him to his new home the good wishes of many Kentucky friends.

F. A. Hall, of this office, had a guess in on the Enquirer's contest, and missed the number of inhabitants in the United States, 54,684, his guess being that much too short. Several others about here sent in guesses, but that was the closest from hereabouts, so far as heard from.

James Clore, of Idlewild neighborhood, was in town, Monday, and ordered bills printed for his sale on the 26th of this month. He has purchased a livery stable at Rushville, Indiana, and will take charge of it on the first of January. His sale is advertised in this issue. He has many friends who will be sorry to see him leave Kentucky.

CROSSING THE FERRY

Dr. Talmage Tells of David's Passage Over the Jordan.

He Draws a Lesson of Comfort and Hopefulness to All God's Children—The Ferry to Heaven.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.]

From an unnoticed incident of olden time Dr. Talmage in this discourse draws some comforting and rapturous lessons. The text is 2 Samuel 19:18: "And there went over a ferryboat to carry over the king's household."

Which of the crowd is the king? That short man, sunburnt and in fatigue dress. It is David, the exiled king. He has defeated his enemies and is now going home to resume his palace. Good! I always like to see David come out ahead. But between him and his home there is the celebrated river Jordan which has to be passed. The king is accompanied to the bank of the river by an aristocratic old gentleman of 80 years, Barzillai by name, who owned a fine country seat at Rogelim. Besides that, David has his family with him. But how shall they get across the river? While they are standing there I see a ferryboat coming from the other side, and as it cuts through the water I see the faces of David and his household brighten up at the thought of so soon getting home. No sooner has the ferryboat struck the shore than David and his family and his old friend Barzillai, from Rogelim, get on board the boat. Either with splashing oars at the side or with one oar sculling at the stern of the boat they leave the eastern bank of the Jordan and start for the western bank.

That western bank is black with crowds of people, who are waving and shouting at the approach of the king and his family. The military are all out. Some of those who have been David's worst enemies now shout until they are hoarse at his return. No sooner has the boat struck the shore on the western side than the earth quakes and the heavens ring with cheers of welcome and congratulation. David and his family and Barzillai from Rogelim step ashore. King David asks his old friend to go with him and live at the palace, but Barzillai apologizes and intimates that he is infirm with age and too deaf to appreciate the music, and has a deliecate appetite that would soon be cloyed with luxurious living, and so he begs that David would let him go back to his country seat.

I once heard the father of a president of the United States say that he had just been to Washington to see his son in the white house, and he told me of the wonderful things that occurred there, and of what Daniel Webster said to him, but he declared: "I was glad to get home. There was too much going on there for me." My father, an aged man, made his last visit at my house in Philadelphia, and after the church service was over, and we went home, some one in the house asked the aged man how he enjoyed the service. "Well," he replied, "I enjoyed the service, but there were too many people there for me. It troubled my head very much." The fact is that old people do not like excitement. If King David had asked Barzillai 30 years before to go to the palace, the probability is that Barzillai would have gone, but not now. They kiss each other goodby, a custom among men oriental, but in vogue yet where two brothers part or an aged father and a son go away from each other never to meet again. No wonder that their lips met as King David and old Barzillai, at the prow of the ferryboat, parted forever.

This river Jordan, in all ages and among all languages, has been the symbol of the boundary line between earth and Heaven. Yet when on a former occasion I preached to you about the Jordanic passage I have no donbt that some of you despondingly said: "The Lord might have divided Jordan for Joshua, but not for poor me." Cheer up! I want to show you that there is a way over Jordaa as well as through it. My text says: "And there went over a ferryboat to carry over the king's household."

All our cities are familiar with the ferryboat. It goes from San Francisco to Oakland and from Liverpool to Birkenhead, and twice every secular day of the week multitudes are on the ferryboats of our great cities, so that you will need to hunt up a classical dictionary to find out what I mean while I am speaking to you about the passage of David and his family across the river Jordan.

My subject, in the first place, impresses me with the fact that when we cross over from this world to the next the boat will have to come from the other side. The tribe of Judah, we are informed, sent this ferryboat across to get David and his household. I stand on the eastern side of the river Jordan, and I find no shipping at all, but while I am standing there I see a boat plowing through the river, and as I hear the swirl of the waters and the boat comes to the eastern side of the Jordan and David and his family and his old friend step on board that boat I am mightily impressed with the fact that when we cross over from this world to the next the boat will have to come from the opposite shore.

A guide at Niagara falls said to me: "Do you see that rock down in the rapids?" I said: "Yes." "Well," he said, "some years ago a man got into the rapids and floated down until he came to that rock, and he clutched that and held on. We sent five lifeboats at different times out to him, and they were all broken to splinters. After awhile we got him some food, but he could not eat it. He seemed to have no appetite. He wanted to get ashore, and the poor fellow held on and held on, and with a shriek louder than the thunder of the cataract he went over." When a man puts out from the shore of this world on the river of Death in a boat of his own construction, he has worse disaster than that—shipwreck, eternal shipwreck.

Blessed be God, there is a boat coming from the other side! Transportation at last for our souls from the other shore; everything about this Gospel from the other shore; pardon from the other shore; mercy from the other shore; pity from the other shore; ministry of angels from the other shore; power to work miracles from the other shore; Jesus Christ from the other shore. This is a faithful saying and worthy of all acceptation that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners," and from a foreign shore I see the ferryboat coming, and it rolls with the surges of a Saviour's suffering; but as it strikes the earth the mountains rock, and the dead adjust their apparel so that they may be fit to come out. That boat touches the earth, and glorious Thomas Walsh gets into it in his expiring moment, saying: "He has come! He has come! My Beloved is mine, and I am His." Good Sarah Wesley got into that boat, and as she shoved off from the shore she cried: "Open the gates! Open the gates!" I bless God that as the boat came from the other shore to take David and his men across, so, when we are about to die, the boat will come from the same direction. God forbid that I should ever trust to anything that starts from this side.

Again, my subject suggests that when we cross over at the last the King will be on board the boat. Shipcarpentry in Bible times was in its infancy. The boats were not skillfully made, and I can very easily imagine that the women and the children of the King's household might have been nervous about going on that boat, afrnid that the oarsman or the helmsman might give out and that the boat might be dashed on the rocks, as sometimes boats were dashed in the Jordan, and then I could have imagined the boat starting and rocking, and they crying out: "Oh, we are going to be lost. We are going down!" Not [illegible] The King was on the boat, and those women and children and all the household of the king knew that every care was taken to have the king—the head of the empire—pass in safety.

Now, I want to break up a delusion in your mind, and that is this: When our friends go out of this world, we feel sorry for them, because they have to go alone; and parents hold on to the hands of their children who are dying, and hold on to something of the impression that the moment they let go the little one will be in the darkness and in the boat all alone. "Oh," the parent says, "if I could only go with my child, I would be willing to die half a dozen times. I am afraid she will be lost in the woods or in the darkness; I am afraid she will be very much frightened in the boat all alone." I break up the delusion. When a soul goes to Heaven, it does not go alone; the King is on board the boat. Was Paul alone in the last extremity? Hear the shout of the sacred missionary as he cries out: "I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand." Was John Wesley alone in the last extremity? No. Hear him say: "Best of all, God is with us." Was Sir William Forbes alone in the last extremity? No. Hear him say to his friends: "Tell all the people who are coming down to the bed of death from my experience at has no terrors." "Oh," say a great many people, "that does very well for distinguished Christians, but for me, a common man, for me, a common woman, we can't expect that guidance and help." If I should give you a passage of Scripture that would promise to you positively when you are crossing the river to the next world the King would be in the boat, would you believe the promise? "Oh, yes," you say, "I would." Here is the promise: "When thou passest through the waters, I will be with thee, and through the rivers, they shall not overflow thee." Christ at the sick pillow to take the soul out of the body; Christ to help the soul down the bank into the boat; Christ midstream; Christ on the other side to help the soul up the beach. Be comforted about your departed friends. Be comforted about your own demise when the time shall come. Tell it to all the people under the sun that no Christian ever dies alone; the King is in the boat.

Again, my text suggests that leaving this world for Heaven is only crossing a ferry. Dr. Shaw estimates the average width of the Jordan to be about 30 yards. What, so narrow? Yes. "There went over a ferryboat to carry the king's household." Yes, going to Heaven is only a short trip—only a ferry. It may be 80 miles—that is, 80 years—before we get to the wet bank on the other side, but the crossing is short. I will tell you the whole secret. It is not five minutes across, nor three, nor two, nor one minute. It is instantaneous transportation. People talk as though leaving this life, the Christian went plunging and floundering and swimming, to crawl up exhausted on the other shore, and to be pulled out of the pelting surf as by a Ramsgate lifeboat. No such thing. It is only a ferry. It is so narrow that we can hail each other from bank to bank. It is only four arms' lengths across. The arm of earthly farewell put out from this side, the arm of Heavenly welcome put out from the other side, while the dying Christian, standing midstream, stretches out his arms, the one to take the farewell of earth, and the other to take the greeting of Heaven. That makes four arms' lengths across the river.

Blessed be God, that when we leave this world we are not to have a great and perilous enterprise of getting into Heaven. Not a dangerous Franklin expedition to find the northwest passage among icebergs. Only a ferry. That accounts for something you have never been able to understand. You never supposed that very nervous and timid Christian people could be so unexcited and placid in the last hour. The fact is, they were clear down on the bank, and they saw there was nothing to be frightened about. Such a short distance—only a ferry. With one ear they heard the funeral psalm in their memory, and with the other ear they heard the song of Heavenly salutation. The willows on this side the Jordan and the Lebanon cedars on the other almost interlocked their branches. Only a ferry.

My subject also suggests the fact that when we cross over at the last we shall find a solid landing. The ferryboat as spoken of in my text means a place to start from and a place to land. David and his people did not find the eastern shore of the Jordan any more solid than the western shore where he landed, and yet to a great many Heaven is not a real place. To you Heaven is a fog bank in the distance. Now, my Heaven is a solid Heaven. After the resurrection has come you will have a resurrected foot and something to tread on and a resurrected eye and colors to see with it and a resurrected ear and music to regale it. Smart men in this day are making a great deal of fun about St. John's materialistic descriptions of Heaven. Well, now, my friends, if you will tell me what will be the use of a resurrected body in Heaven with nothing to tread on and nothing to hear and nothing to handle and nothing to taste then I will laugh, too. Are you going to float about in ether forever, swinging about your hands and feet through the air indiscriminately, one moment sweltering in the center of the sun and the next moment shivering in the mountains of the moon? That is not my Heaven. Dissatisfied with John's materialistic Heaven, theological thinkers are trying to patch up a Heaven that will do for them at last. I never heard of a Heaven I want to go to except St. John's Heaven. I believe I shall hear Mr. Toplady sing yet and Isaac Watts recite hymns and Mozart play. "Oh," you say, "where would you get the organ?" The Lord will provide the organ. Don't you bother about the organ. I believe I shall yet see David with a harp, and I will ask him to sing one of the songs of Zion. I believe after the resurrection I shall see Massillon, the great French pulpit orator, and I shall hear from his own lips how he felt on that day when he preached the king's funeral sermon and flung his whole audience into a paroxysm of grief and solemnity. I have no patience with your transcendental, gelatinous, gaseous Heaven. My Heaven is not a fog bank. My eyes are unto the hills, the everlasting hills. The King's ferryboat, starting from a wharf on this side, will go to a wharf on the other side.

Again, my subject teaches that when we cross over at the last we shall be met at the landing. When David and his family went over in the ferryboat spoken of in the text, they landed amid a nation that had come out to greet them. As they stepped from the deck of the boat to the shore there were thousands of people who gathered around them to express a satisfaction that was beyond description. And so you and I will be met at the landing. Our arrival will be like stepping ashore at Antwerp or Constantinople among a crowd of strangers. It will be among friends, good friends, those who are warm-hearted friends, and all their friends. We know people whom we have never seen by hearing somebody talk about them very much; we know them almost as well as if we had seen them. And do you suppose that our parents and brothers and sisters and children in Heaven have been talking about us all these years, and talking to their friends? So that, I suppose, when we cross the river at the last we shall not only be met by all those Christian friends whom we knew on earth, but by all their friends. They will come down to the landing to meet us. Your departed friends love you now more than they ever did. You will be surprised at the last to find how they know about all the affairs of your life. Why, they are only across the ferry, and the boat is coming this way, and the boat is going that way. I do not know but they have already asked the Lord the day, the hour, the moment when you are coming across and that they know now, but I do know that you will be met at the landing. The poet Southey said he thought he should know Bishop Heber in Heaven by the portraits he had seen of him in London, and Dr. Randolph said he thought he would know William Cowper, the poet, in Heaven, from the pictures he had seen of him in England; but we will know our departed kindred by the portraits hung in the thronerooin of our hearts.

But there is a thought that comes over us like an electric shock. Do I belong to the King's household? Mark you, the text says: "And there went over a ferryboat to carry over the king's household," and none but the king's household. Then I ask: "Do I belong to the household? Do you?" If you do not, come to-day and be adopted into that household. "Oh," says some soul here: "I do not know whether the King wants me!" He does; he does. Hear the voice from the throne: "I will be a father to them, and they shall be my sons and daughters, said the Lord Almighty." "Him that cometh unto me," Christ says, "I will in nowise cast out." Come into the King's household. Sit down at the King's table. Come in and take your apparel from the King's wardrobe, even the wedding garment of Christ's righteousness. Come in and inherit the King's wealth. Come in and cross in the King's ferryboat.

THE ROBBER TARIFF.

Duties That Serve Only to Protect Manufacturers Against Americans.

Says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat: "In nine months ended with September the exports of American steel and iron products amounted to $97,313,000, an increase of $21,000,000 over the same months last year. According to free traders the Dingley tariff should have closed against us the markets of the world. The free trader has ceased to chirp on the subject of American foreign trade."

The free trader is at least not ignorant of the fact that steel and iron products are among those most vigorously guarded against foreign competition by republican high tariff laws.

Being aware of this fact he may be permitted to "chirp" to the extent of demanding that the Dingley bigots or the Dingley robbers state a reason why Americans who are able to sell their products abroad to the value of $97,300,000 in nine months, or at the rate of $129,700,000 a year, need protection equivalent to 40 per cent, or more in their home market, or they need it in order that they may sell below cost to foreigners and make up their losses by exacting exorbitant prices from their own countrymen? If not, it is pretty plain that they need no Dingley law to enable them to realize fair profits on their product.

Whatever an American sells abroad he must sell not only without the benefit of any favoring legislation, but generally in the face of adverse legislation intended to give an advantage to those competitors who produce in the counries where he makes his sales. In view of this fact it is a reasonable presumption that, when our iron and steel makers sell $130,000,000 worth of their products abroad in a year with transportation always and legislation often against them, they are abundantly able to compete against all comers in their home markets without protection.

If they cannot we must conelude, as above suggested, that they sell at a loss abroad and get even by overcharging their own countrymen.

But we can hardly suppose that they sell great quantities at a loss, or without realizing a fair profit, anywhere. They are not doing business "for their health." They are not exporting at loss or without profit for the glory there is in big export figures.

We are compelled to believe that they make a fair profit on what they export, and therefore that they are abundantly able to meet any competition at home, where they have transportation and close touch with their customers in their favor, without any help from Dingley laws.

That being the case, will some tariff bigot or beneficiary kindly "chirp" to the extent of offering some little excuse for the monstrous Dingley duties which serve only to shelter our manufacturers in combining to wring extortionate prices from their own countrymen?

As to the alleged contention of the free traders, it is sufficient to say that the Dingley law has provoked retaliatory restrictions and to no inconsiderable extent closed foreign markets against us. The fact that we are exporting largely does not prove that we would not export more if we had not the Dingley law to excite the commercial hostility of European countries and provoke hostile legislation on their part.—Chicago Chronicle.

POINTS AND OPINIONS.

——Hanna is right in saying that a republican congressman opposed to the ship subsidy bill is opposed to his party. The word has been spoken. "Everything goes."—N. Y. World.

——McKinley's big plurality is due more to the fatal mistakes of the democratic party than to the popularity of the republican party and the McKinley administration. — Oneida Union.

——The protectionist theory is that the tariff, by stimulating production, makes things cheaper for the home consumer, but McKinley's prohibitory protection has not worked out that way. By its favors to the trusts it has made American manufactured productions 25 to 50 per cent. cheaper to foreigners than they are sold for to Americans.—Columbus (O.) Press-Post.

——What the republicans are accustomed to call a "democratic funeral" has repeatedly been only the prelude to a democratic victory. With this fact of history for their enlightenment, we cannot suppose that the republican leaders are hugging the delusion that they have nothing to apprehend in the way of opposition in the congressional elections of 1902 or the presidential and congressional campaign of 1904.—Washington Post.

——Hanna's subsidy bill is in harmony with the general trend of republican legislation in that it gives an immediate gain to the few existing steamship lines without making it any easier to establish others. The commissioner of navigation thinks it will cause a larger increase of American tonnage, but the opinion is based rather on assumption than argument, such argument as he employs being that which is familiar in the defense of the protective tariff.—Philadelphia Times.

——Our illuminating experiences in the Philippine Islands have not proved, to say the least, of a nature to encourage further "expansion" in the far east. It has even been suggested by notable republican leaders that in the event of certain contingencies this country should abandon the Filipinos to their own devices. The thought of more "benevolent assimilation" by Mr. McKinley's administration, and in crowded China at that, is calculated to bring last dreams even to so fervent an expansionist as young Senator Beveridge.—Boston Globe.

REPRESENTING THE SOUTH.

Prospects of Another Force Bill by Way of Punishing the Democrats.

The radical wing of the republican party is evidently anxious to revive the bloody shirt. The Washington dispatches hint of another force bill, modeled after the one which passed the house but was beaten in the senate ten years ago; of a reduction in the congressional and electoral representation of the south; of an attempt to unseat Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, and to throw out Kentucky's electoral vote; and of wholesale unseating of southern democratic representatives in the next congress—all of which seems to be detached parts of a more or less carefully-arranged plan to punish the south and make it suffer for the crime of remaining democratic. For the democracy of the south, and not her denial of the suffrage to the negro, will be the real reason for whatever war may be levied against her by the republicans in congress. The republican party long since ceased to care what becomes of the negro, if it ever cared for him except for his vote. The south could to-day purchase immunity and carte blanche to disfranchise every negro, if in return Mark Hanna and his agents could be sure that republican congressmen and electors would be forthcoming.

How is the south to be punished for the crime of being democratic? By another force bill? It is rather late in the day for ideas which smack of the reconstruction period, and recall the terrible wrongs inflicted upon the south by the republicans during that era. By a reduction of southern representation, so as to base the representation not on the population, but on the vote? How would such a plan affect old abolitionist Massachusetts, which enforces an educational test? Take North Carolina, for instance. No one doubts that it is constitutional to enforce an educational test; the disputed point is in regard to the "grandfather clause," which is intended to protect illiterate whites in the right to vote, while the illiterate negroes are excluded. The supreme court has not yet passed upon the constitutionality of this provision. Should it be declared unconstitutional, that would dispose of the race discrimination; all illiterates would be treated alike. But should it be declared constitutional, what then? Would congress actually reduce North Carolina's representation as a punishment for exercising a constitutional right?

The south is dealing with the race question as intelligently and well, probably, as any community in the world could do. Upon the south has fallen the burden imposed by the wholesale enfranchisement of a race just out of slavery. With the general support of popular sentiment in the north, the negro has been eliminated as an element of control in the administration of public office in the south. The elimination of the negro may be made the pretext, but should the south suffer it will be not for that, but for her democracy.—Albany Argus.

TARIFFS AND ROYALTIES.

An Incident That Is Strongly Significant of Obnoxious Trust Methods.

There is nothing strange in the fact that the armor plate trust, confronted with the senate threat of the establishment of a government plant for the manufacture of armor plate, suddenly discovered that it could accept contracts at a much lower figure than that for which it originally contended, and so averted a serious danger of loss of business.

The incident is extremely significant of trust methods. The argument of the armor plate trust to the effect that it could not sell its product for less than $545 a ton because of a royalty of $45 per ton that had to be paid was of a kind with that other trust argument that a high protective tariff is necessary to prevent European competition which would destroy the "infant industries" now known as trusts. Admiral O'Neill proved that there was no patent on the Krupp process, that royalties did not, therefore, figure in the case—and the armor plate trust promptly closed the contract at reduced rates. Just so, confessing the falsity of their claims for protection, are the tariff trusts now underselling European competitors in European markets, and, equally, by the removal of the protective tariff, should they be compelled to lower their prices to the American consumer.

The trust idea, however, under the fostering care of McKinleyism, is to bleed the American government and people to the full limit as long as possible. A senate committee, ably assisted by Admiral O'Neill, has managed to out wit the armor plate trust, but this was almost accidental. The combines count confidently on the continued success of their game of robbing the American government and consuming public. Why, else, did they contribute so lavishly for the purpose of reelecting Mr. McKinley? And for what else is Mark Hanna in public life?—St. Louis Republic.

——The wise and sound policies of true democracy, the enunciation of which, unweakened by association with less worthy principles, has always inspired a popular confidence resulting in democratic victory, must constitute the platform upon which the national democracy goes before the people.—St. Louis Republic.

——It is neither kind nor just to criticise those more or less distinguished democrats who have come over to the republican party since the election. These gentlemen are really self-sacrificing patriots. They realize that the democratic party is in need of purification; hence they get out of it.—Chicago Chronicle.

CONGRESS IN SESSION.

Army Reorganization and the Oleomargarine Bills Passed.

A Resolution to Appropriate $250,000 and to Admit Exhibits Free of Duty to the West Indian Exposition Passed.

Washington, Dec. 5.—The programme of the senate leaders for a business session was taken up in earnest Tuesday and material progress was made. What is popularly known as the ship subsidy bill was made the unfinished business of the senate, instead of the Spooner Philippine measure, and the discussion of it was opened by Mr. Frye, (Me.) chairman of the committe on commerce, from which the measure was reported.

Bills on the calendar were passed as follows: To authorize the use of depositions before naval courts in certain cases, with an amendment restricting its operation to depositions taken at the instance of the accused; to authorize Captain N. M. Brooks, superintendent of foreign mails, to accept the decoration of the Red Eagle of the third class from the emperor of Germany; to authorize Hon. John D. Meiklejohn to accept a decoration of the first class from the government of Sweden and Norway; to encourage the holding of an interstate and West Indian exposition in Charleston, S. C., in 1901. The measure appropriates $250,000 and admits exhibits free of duty.

The session of the house Tuesday was brief. The real work began on Wednesday, when the house took up the consideration of the army reorganization bill, which Mr. Hull, the chairman of the committee on military affairs, reported Tuesday.

Washington, Dec. 6.—When the session of the senate opened Wednesday the credentials of Samuel D. McEnery and Murphy J. Foster, as senators from Louisiana, and George P. Wetmore, from Rhode Island, were received. Bills were passed permitting Capt. B. H. McCalla and Commander W. C. Wise, of the United States navy, to accept decorations from the emperor of Germany.

Washington, Dec. 6.—The house devoted the day to the army reorganization bill, which was brought up under a special order adopted at the opening of the session, which limited general debate to two hours on a side.

Washington, Dec. 7.—The house of representatives Thursday, at the end of a long sitting, passed the army reorganization bill by a vote of 166 to 133.

Quite a number of amendments were placed upon the bill before it was passed. The liveliest fight was made on a substitute offered by Mr. Littlefield (Me.) for the canteen section. The substitute absolutely prohibited the sale of intoxicants at military posts.

The senate was in executive session for more than four hours, the entire time being devoted to the discussion by Senator Morgan of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty for the abrogation of that portion of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty which relates to the Nicaragua canal.

Washington, Dec. 8.—The house Friday passed the Grout oleomargarine bill by a vote of 168 to 92. The substitute offered by the minority committee on agriculture, which imposed additional restrictions on the sale of oleomargarine to prevent its fraudulent sale as butter, and increased the penalties for violators, was defeated by a vote of 113 to 178.

The bill as passed makes all articles known as oleomargarine, butterine, imitation butter or imitation cheese, transported into any state or territory for consumption or sale, subject to the police power of such state or territory, but prevents any state or territory from forbidding the transportation or sale of such product when produced and sold free from coloration in imitation of butter. The bill increases the tax on oleomargarine colored in imitation of butter from 2 to 10 cents per pound, and decreases the tax on oleomargarine uncolored from 2 cents to ¼ of a cent per pound.

A bill was introduced to bring about federal prohibition of polygamy by Representative Taylor, of Ohio.

No business of importance was transacted in the senate Friday in open session. Practically the entire legislative day was consumed by an executive session.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Senate—The senate was not in session Saturday.

House—A resolution was introduced calling on the secretary of war to direct the United States engineers in charge to make a survey of the Green and Barren rivers, Kentucky, to ascertain the practicability and cost of securing a six-foot depth of water at pool stage.

New Western Railway.

Santa Fe, N. M., Dec. 8.—The Santa Fe, Albuquerque & Pacific Railway Co. Friday filed incorporation papers. One hundred and fifty miles of road is to be constructed from Santa Fe to Albuquerque, connecting with the Denver & Rio Grande at San Pedro.

Condition of the Treasury.

Washington, Dec. 8.—Friday's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $137,926,438; gold, $76,809,388.

STATE ODDS AND ENDS.

THE NURSERY FARM.

August Belmont, of New York, Sold Thirteen Filly Foals of 1900 to John E. Madden.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 8.—August Belmont, of New York, has sold from his nursery farm, Lexington, Ky., 13 filly foals of 1900, seven by Henry of Navarre and six by Hastings, to John E. Madden, of Hamburg Place, Lexington. The report that Mr. Madden had sold Hamburg Place is incorrect, he says. It is not for sale and he declares has not been on the market.

Mr. Madden is training 29 yearlings at Lonisville, among them being the Hanover-Correction colt for which Mr. Madden paid $20,000 at the Morris and Young sale in New York in July.

CAPT. NOEL GAINES.

In a Letter He Tells of an Encounter Between a Squad of the 39th and Filipinos.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 8.—A letter received here from Capt. Noel Gaines, formerly of this city, now in the Philippines, tells of an encounter between a squad from the 39th infantry, under command of Corp. William Steele, of this city, and a band of hostile Filipinos. At one shot Steele killed two and wounded a third Filipino, all of them standing in line. Several were captured.

Col. Bullard, of the regiment, added a postscript to the letter confirming the statement as to details and testifying to the heroism of Steele.

PARDONED BY GOV. BECKHAM.

The Alleged Victim of Morgan Barlow Pleaded in Behalf of the Convict.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 7.—Gov. Beckham Thursday granted a pardon to Morgan Barlow, of Nicholas county, who ten years ago was sent to the state penitentiary here from Pendleton county for horse stealing and who made his escape a few months after his arrival at the prison.

He fled the state and located in Chicago, where he became a good citizen. He left his family in Kentucky, and, longing to see them, he after ten years came back and gave himself up. His pardon was asked by the man whose horse he was convicted of stealing.

Stratton Must Hang.

Lawrenceburg, Ky., Dec. 8.—Holly Stratton was on Friday found guilty of the murder of Newton Searcy and sentenced to be hanged. Holly and Leroy Stratton literally cut to pieces Newton Searcy in the court house yard here last August during the session of the circuit court. There was talk of mob violence before the prisoners were removed to Shelbyville for safe keeping. This is the first death penalty ever given by a jury in Anderson county.

Will Not Pay the Insurance.

Ashland, Ky., Dec. 7.—A message was received here from the life insurance company's headquarters in New York to the local agency not to pay the insurance held on the child William Gibson tortured to death. Mrs. Gibson took the policy out on November 12, and had it made payable to her. Only one payment had been made.

Will Get the Alimony.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 8.—The court of appeals Friday reversed the judgment of the lower court in the case of Mary B. Greer vs. Simrall and others from Covington, and decided that Mrs. Greer's alimony of $5,000 could be taken out of the proceeds of the sale of certain real estate on which a trust company asserted a prior lien.

Haggin in Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 10.—James B. Haggin, the millionaire horseman and owner of Elmendorf stud, arrived on Sunday night from New York to attend the sale of horses which opened Monday and at which a large consignment from his establishment will be sold.

Weaver Barred Out.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 10.—George Franklin Weaver, the strolling barber who gained such notoriety by his testimony at the trial of Caleb Powers and was indicted for perjury therefor, made an attempt to join the barbers' union in this city. Weaver was rejected by an overwhelming vote.

Drowned in a Spring.

Corbin, Ky., Dec. 10.—Mrs. W. A. Spangler, of Wells Springs, was found dead in a spring a foot deep near her home. She had gone to the place to churn. As she was subject to fainting spells, it is supposed she fainted and fell into the spring.

Stepped on His Foot.

Corbin, Ky., Dec. 10.—In the Diamond saloon at Jellico John David slashed Henry Lovit so badly in the face that it is likely the latter will die. Lovit accidentally stepped on David's foot, but begged his pardon. The latter did not reply, but began cutting Lovit with a barlow knife.

May Defeat Gompers.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 10.—A resolution introduced by socialist democrats has caused trouble in the ranks of the American Federation of Labor and may defeat Gompers.

GIBSON CAPTURED.

The Child Torturer Was Arrested at Ironhill, Carter County, and Taken to Maysville.

Catlettsburg, Ky., Dec. 6.—Gibson, the child murderer, was captured Wednesday morning at Ironhill, in Carter county, by John Davis, of that place, and was brought to the home of Sheriff Field, who resides two miles outside the city, at dark on Wednesday evening. County Judge L. T. Everitt made an order removing the prisoner for safe keeping to Maysville. Deputy Sheriff Wm. Geiger and Jailer I. S. Hurd left the city secretly with the prisoner for Russell, Ky., from whence they took the 4:40 train for Maysville. But few persons are aware of the fact that the prisoner has been captured.

Horse Sale at Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 10.—The first sale of thoroughbreds to be held by the Fasig-Tipton Co., of New York, in Lexington began here on Monday. Among consignors are James B. Haggin, C. E. Fleischmann's Sons, J. R. and F. P. Keene, A. L. Ferguson, E. W. Lee and James Galloway. D. T. Pulsifer, of New York, will sell the famous Tenny, whose winnings amounted to $91,920. Maladu, dam of Tom Collins, Dangerfield and Protector, and Lidiva, by Longfellow, are also catalogued.

Ordered to Frankfort.

Owensboro, Ky., Dec. 7.—Capt. J. Tandy Ellis received orders Thursday from Adjt. Gen. Murray to move his military company to Frankfort to attend the inauguration of Gov. Beckham. The company will be joined here by the Morganfield and Mayfield companies, and the trip will be made in a special train over the Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis railroad.

Ground Glass in the Jelly.

Paducah, Ky., Dec. 7.—The wife of Lockup Keeper Robert Menifee had her mouth cut Thursday night at supper by a sliver of glass in some grape jelly, and, becoming suspicious, an examination was made. It revealed enough ground glass in the jelly to kill several persons. Menifee suspects a former cook of having placed it there with the intention of killing his family.

Death in a Peculiar Manner.

Lebanon, Ky., Dec. 7.—John Martin, the 11-year-old son of Thomas Martin, of Raywick, this county, met death in a very peculiar manner. The child got hold of a bottle of whisky kept by his parents in a closet at home for medical purposes and drank a quantity, said to have been almost a pint, and died from the effects in a short while afterward. The lad was never known to use liquor and it is thought he took it through mistake.

Swore He Was a Soldier.

Paducah, Ky., Dec. 7.—Geo. Jackson, of Mayfield, was held over in $1,000 bond by Commissioner Puryear, of the United States court, on the charge of fraudulently attempting to secure a pension by claiming that he belonged to the 15th Pennsylvania infantry during the civil war, while the roster shows him to have been only a messroom cook.

Two Families Poisoned.

Ashland, Ky., Dec. 8.—The families of Mrs. Matilda Beatty and Mrs. Nora Dunn were poisoned at supper. Arsenic had been placed in the coffee. Mrs. Dunn and family were taking supper with Mrs. Beatty. All are out of danger but Mrs. Beatty. Dr. Williams, one of the attendants, has a clew as to who the guilty one is, and an arrest may follow.

Four Murder Indictments.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 7.—Among the indictments returned by the Fayette grand jury were four for murder, three against white men who killed Negroes and one against a Negro woman who slew a man.

New Captain.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 8.—The Kentucky State College Athletic association has elected L. W. Martin to be captain of the team next season.

City in Darkness.

Owensboro, Ky., Dec. 7.—On account of the breaking of a gas main the city Thursday night was in darkness. The broken main has not been found.

Boy Refused to Exit.

Morganfield, Ky., Dec. 10.—Robert Chancellor, aged 12, physically pointed an apparently empty gun at his playmate, Roy Biddle, and commanded him to halt. Young Biddle refused to obey, whereupon Chancellor fired, killing Biddle instantly.

Bissick's Narrow Escape.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 10.—Frank Bissicks, the popular turfman, had a narrow escape from drowning. He went to sleep in a bath tub at the Phoenix hotel and in his slumbers turned the water on with his foot.

HE WAS READY FOR MORE.

Not Even a Railway Collision Could Subdue the Ardor of a Football Man.

The two trains came together with an awful crash. Some one had blundered. That, however, was a matter which would have to be left for future investigation.

As soon as those who were uninjured could extricate themselves from the wreck they turned manfully to the work of rescuing their less fortunate fellow-passengers, says the Chicago Times-Herald.

It was a sickening sight. Cars were heaped on top of one another. People were pinioned under seats, beams and trucks. Steam was hissing from the overturned boilers, the rails of the track were warped and torn loose from the ties, and the moans and cries of the injured could be heard afar off.

Finally, after long, hard work, the rescuers reached the bottom of the mass, where the legs and body of a man protruded from beneath a twisted platform. Beside him lay a cane decorated with colored ribbons, and a long tin horn.

Fearfully and anxiously a score of strong men lifted the weight from the head and shoulders of the prostrate one and carried him up the embankment. As they reached the higher level he opened his eyes, passed a hand in front of them, as if brushing away a dim screen of some kind, and shouted:

"Rah! rah! rah! Sizz! boom, ah! Ki-yi! hip-hip! hoo-gah-yi! Come on, fellows! Which side has the ball!"

"Are you going to Europe then, as you expected," said Mrs. Fosdick to Mrs. Spriggs.

"No," was the reply. "It is so difficult for Mr. Spriggs to leave his business, and I really couldn't go without him. And, then, I read the other day about a ship that broke her record. Think how dreadful it would be to be on a ship in the middle of the ocean with her record broken."—Detroit Free Press.

Nothing Better

can be had for use in the shop, factory or family than Palmer's Lotion, the great cure for every form of disease, or injury, that can be reached by an external application. A short time ago Messrs. W. H. Shearer & Co., wholesale and retail druggists of York, Pa., wrote: "We consider Palmer's Lotion one of the best preparations we sell and we do not hesitate to recommend it." No home or place of business should be without this wonderful remedy for use in case of accident. If your own druggist does not have it don't buy something else, but write to Solon Palmer, 374 Pearl St., New York, for free samples of Palmer's Lotion and Lotion Soap.

THE USUAL RESULT.

Dog Fights in Kentucky Do Not Terminate with the Whipping of a Dog.

"The colonel and I sat talking under a shade tree in front of the town post office when a dog fight started down the street," said a traveling man, relating an incident of a recent trip to Kentucky, relates the Washington Post.

"'Come on!' I said, as I sprang up.

"'Come this way!' replied the colonel, as he seized my arm and drew me into a doorway.

"'But I want to see the dog fight,' I protested.

"'Yes, I reckon you do, but you also want to keep clear of the shootin'.'

"'Why should there be any shooting?'

"'Bekase one dog has got to lick t'other, and the owner of the licked dog ain't goin' to let it rest that way. There they go!'

"Ten minutes later we stepped out to find one man lying on the ground with two bullets in him and some people carrying away a second with half a dozen.

"'Dog fights are bewtiful affairs,' said the colonel, as we walked away together, 'but the safest way to see one in Kentucky is to wait till it's all over and the dead carried off.'"

WHY MRS. PINKHAM

Is Able to Help Sick Women When Doctors Fail.

How gladly would men fly to woman's aid did they but understand a woman's feelings, trials, sensibilities, and peculiar organic disturbances.

Those things are known only to women, and the aid a man would give is not at his command.

When a case properly it is necessary to know all about it, and full information, many times, cannot be given by a woman to her family physician. She cannot bring herself to tell everything, and the physician is at a constant disadvantage. This is why, for the past twenty-five years, thousands of women have been confiding their troubles to Mrs. Pinkham, and whose advice has brought happiness and health to countless women in the United States.

Mrs. Chappell, of Grant Park, Ill., whose portrait we publish, advises all suffering women to seek Mrs. Pinkham's advice and use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as they cured her of inflammation of the ovaries and womb; she, therefore, speaks from knowledge, and her experience ought to give others confidence. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass., and her advice is absolutely free.

MRS. BREWER RECOMMENDS PERUNA FOR GRIP AND FEMALE CATARRH

The Home of Mrs. Lizzie M. Brewer at Westerly, R. I.

In a letter to Dr. Hartman concerning the merits of Pe-ru-na, Mrs. Brewer writes, among other things:

Westerly, R. I.

"Dear Dr. Hartman—I find Pe-ru-na a sure cure for all catarrhal affections so common in this part of the country. It cures a cold at once. There is no cough medicine that can at all equal Pe-ru-na. As for la grippe, there is no other remedy that can at all compare with Pe-ru-na.

"I am among the sick a great deal in our city and have supplied many invalids with Pe-ru-na, simply because I am enthusiastic in my faith as to its results. I have never known it to fail to quickly and permanently remove that demoralized state of the human system which follows la grippe.

"In all cases of extreme weakness I use Pe-ru-na with perfect confidence of a good result. In cases of weakness peculiar to my sex I am sure that no other remedy can approach in good results the action of Pe-ru-na. It meets all the bad symptoms to which females are subject. The irregularities and nervousness, the debility and miseries which afflict more or less the women from girlhood to change of life, are one and all met and overcome by this excellent remedy. I wish every young lady in our city could read your book.

"Mrs. Lizzie M. Brewer."

Pe-ru-na will cure the worst cases of catarrh. La grippe is acute epidemic catarrh, for which Pe-ru-na is a specific.

Mrs. J. W. Reynolds, New Lisbon, Ohio, suffered for many years with chronic catarrh of the lungs, head and throat; continuous cough; many physicians failed to cure. Permanently cured by Pe-ru-na. Thousands of testimonials could be produced. A valuable treatise on catarrh sent free by The Pe-ru-na Medicine Company, Columbus, O.

Each volume has an Introduction by BLISS PERRY.

The Little Masterpiece Library is edited by PROFESSOR BLISS PERRY, formerly Professor of English Literature in Princeton University, now Editor of The Atlantic Monthly. It is no hastily selected compilation for an ephemeral sale. The Editor has chosen, with the greatest care and conscientiousness, those CHEFS D'OEUVRES of the greatest English-speaking writers which are of such beauty and value as to be at the foundation of English culture.

Yet how many people can say that they have thoroughly assimilated, or even hastily read all of these immortal works?

The binding and printing of the volumes are beautifully executed. The size and shape are so convenient that the reader will invite the reading that every intelligent American would want to have as a part of his or her intellectual culture. Each volume, bound in the seductive red cloth, contains a really fine and artistic photogravure frontispiece of the celebrated writer whose Masterpiece it contains.

A most charming addition to a library. No one that will be REALLY READ, or a more tasteful Christmas gift—or twelve Christmas gifts, for the volumes are not numbered—could not be imagined.

The publishers of the Masterpiece Library have sold it at the rate of $8.00 for the 12 volumes, and have claimed it was at that rate an exceptional bargain.

THE REVIEW OF REVIEWS.

Under Dr. Albert Shaw's editorship The Review of Reviews has come to be considered "indispensable" by thinking Americans. It has monthly—

1. Dr. Shaw's comprehensive, impartial history of the current month.
2. Important contributed articles to the amount of an ordinary magazine.
3. The gist of the other notable magazines and reviews of the month's contents.
4. "Current History in Caricature." A Record of Current Events. "The New Books," and other always valuable departments.
5. An average of over a hundred timely pictured to the number.

The regular price for The Review of Reviews one year and The Little Masterpiece Library, is $10.50, and it is an exceedingly low price. By cutting out this offer and sending it with 50 cents in stamps, you will receive The Little Masterpiece Library in its entirety at once, also The Review of Reviews throughout 1901, and the balance of the payment can be completed by seven dollars a month for eleven months.

If you desire to make a cash remittance, $5.75 will close the transaction.

CARROLL COUNTY.

[News.]

John Thompson, one of the finest tobacco raisers in the county, sold a small crop to C. A. Harsin at 6 cents all round.

Some two thousand nice logs were caught here, and the men were well paid for their time, as they got 25 cents apiece salvage and many caught from fifty to a hundred.

Mr John Young, the superintendent of construction of public buildings, was sent here Sunday by the Goverment to begin the building of Carrollton's new custom house and at once telegraphed the contractor to come immediately and begin work. He says work must commence this week and it will take about eight months to complete it. While the building is not so large, he says it will be one of the finest and prettiest public buildings in the country.

Geo T White, the civil engineer, has been out with a force of assistants the past week making a survey of the electric line from here to Worthville. There is no doubt now about this route being the first to be built in the county. While the distance is about nine miles, while that to English will be about half the distance, the road can be built, get good sidings and then connect with every train on the L. & N. railroad, as all trains stop at Worthville.

The editor was busy when he asked, "How are the markets?" He was referred to the office wit, who looked wise and said: "Young men unsteady; girls, lively and in demand; papas, firm but declining; mamas, unsettled, but waiting for higher bid; coffee considerably mixed; fresh fish, active and slippery; wheat, a grain better than barley; eggs, quiet, but expected to open shortly; whisky is still going down; onions, strong and rising; bread stuff, heavy; boots and shoes—those on the market are sold and constantly going up and down; hats and caps not as high as last year except foolscap, which is stationery; tobacco, very low and has a downward tendency; silver, close, but not close enough to get hold of; cheese very lively."

What do you do with your soap suds? Although generally deemed only fit for being run into the common sewer in the easiest and most expeditious manner possible, they are never-the-less, highly beneficial to vegetable feeders, as useful insect preventives. Hence they should never be wasted, especially by those having gardens. Their application to the ground, whether in winter or in summer, will show beneficially, not only on berry bushels, shrubs, border flowers, but even window pot plants; while if poured or syringed over roses, cabbage etc., they will prevent or at least mitigate, the mischievous doings of the green fly or caterpiller.

The present annual production in this country of excelsior is about 60,000 tons. Put to a great variety of uses, excelsior is most commonly used for packing purposes, and in such uses it is employed for many very different kinds of things. It is used, for example, in the packing of things so fragile as eggs, and things so solid as iron toys. In the variety of uses to which it is put excelsior is most in demand where manufacturing is carried on, so that the larger part of the great quantity of this material now produced in this country is used east of the Mississippi river.

If you have a vicious cow that kicks when milked, don't hit her, says a writer in the Farm Journal, but take a half inch rope, pass it around the body in front of the bag, and over the hips, just behind the joints. Tighten firmly and tie. Now be careful when you commence to milk her, because if she gives a vigorous kick she will very likely go down as quick as if see had been shot. She may repeat it twice but very seldom three times.

Gov. Thomas, of Colorado, has declined to honor a requisition from Gov. Mount for the return of an Indiana fugitive now in Colorado. While technical grounds are alleged for the refusal, it is intimated that Gov. Thomas' action is chiefly due to a desire to rebuke Gov. Mount for his failure to honor requisitions in the cases of the Kentucky fugitives, Finley and Taylor.

We note in many of our exchanges, says the Harrodsburg Democrat, that the farmers are having their lands posted, and are putting up notices on their farms, and having them published in their county papers warning hunters to keep off. This is a good move and all farmers and land owners should do likewise. Then enforce the provisions and ours will be protected.

The Jackson Democratic Association of Washington, is arranging for a celebration of Jackson Day, [illegible] with as much enthusiasm as the members could possibly be displayed, had the party been victorious in the late campaign.

Poultry Notes.

Ducks never have cholera, roup or gapes.

The shape of the egg has nothing to do with the lite germ.

Healthy fowls pick up their food quickly and relish it.

The usual causes of roup are cold, dampness and exposure.

Inbreeding is a cause of weak, sickly chicks and infertile eggs.

Feed broken oil cake to hens once a week to promote laying.

Good management has much to do with success in any pursuit.

Do not breed from a crooked breasted or deformed fowl.

Give the poultry the kitchen scraps and the vegetable parings.

Sell all of the cockerels in good season except the breeders.

Poultry may be made a source of considerable profit or an intolerable nuisance.

Anything that is worthy of a place on the farm should receive its share of care.

A very good remedy for scaly legs on fowls is three parts of sweet oil and one of powdered sulphur.

Do not allow the droppings to accumulate, the odor arising from fermenting manure will lay the foundation for disease.

One advantage in selecting eggs from mature hens for hatching is that a large proportion of them are liable to prove fertile.

The Pekin duck can be raised with out much water, and this together with their very large size and their hardiness make them a valuable fowl.

On the farm where the fowls are allowed a free range one male is sufficient for every dozen hens unless an inactive breed is kept.

While fowls drink more water in summer than in winter they more frequently sufler for it in winter; see that they have a good supply daily.

In no animal product may the quality of the food given the animal be more readily or certainly determined than in eggs.

It is claimed that when the hens are allowed free access to the stable and barn lots the white of the egg laid by the hens is watery and uneven and the dark colored yolk sinks readily to the bottom.

The Pekin are very prolific layers of large white eggs. They usualy begin laying early in Feb. and will continue to lay very regularly until hot weather. They ought to have a dry shelter during cold weather at least and it will add materially to their comfort if the floor is kept well bedded with straw changing sufficiently often to prevent its becoming too foul. In feeding they require less grain and more bulky, coarse material than either chickens or turkeys Society is, after all but a conglomerated mixture of mysteries and miseries.—Chicago Daily News.

At the bedside of little Felix Machut, of Chicago, Dec. 5th, 12 boys bared their left arms and allowed surgeons to slice from two to four inches of skin from their arms, directly over their biceps. This was engrafted upon the thigh of Machut's where previously a pocket had been cut into the skin and the hand inserted. In all 37 inches of skin was removed from the boys' arms and planted on the wound in Machu's hip. The case is one of the most successful and extensive attempts at skin grafting on record. When Machut's hand was injured, in order to avoid amputation, a pocket was cut into the unfortunate lad's hip and the hand sewed in. In three weeks the hand took on enough flesh to cover the bones and remaining muscles, and an advertisement brought the boys to the operating table to furnish the skin to cover the wound in the hip. The boys were given $3 an inch for the skin taken from their arms.

An Anti-Jag Map.

The Rev. Dr. George W. Young, Field Secretary of the Kentucky Temperance Societies, who, with his associate, Rev. J. W. Mitchell, has been in the city this week in the interest of temperance work, is collecting data for a unique and interesting map which will be so made designed and arranged with shade and dots, as to show the "wet" sections and "dry" of the State, and, strange to say, the "dry" area will overshadow the "wet" spots in the proportion of about nine-tenths to one-tenth.

Dr. Young has been engaged on the task several months and the result of his labors has been astonishing to everybody.

It is shown that there are remarkably few altogether "wet" counties in Kentucky.

Thirty of Kentucky's counties are entirely "dry," as many more are "wet" in one spot, or, to be more exact, liquor is retailed only at the county seat.

All but five are "dry" in spots, that is, there are no retail liquor stores in certain voting precincts.

The five entirely "wet" counties are located mostly on the slope of Muldrauh's Hill, where peach orchards and small licensed brandy distilleries are numerous.

Most of the entirely "dry" counties are located in tho mountain counties of East Kentucky. Of course illicit distilling and blind tigers thrive in all or nearly all of the local option counties.

There are only four places where liquor is sold openly and legally in the Seventh Appellate district which is composed of twenty-one big counties in the Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh Congressional districts.—Kentucky New Era.

Much of the value of a cow in the dairy depends upon the first two or three year's management. A cow may possess all of the signs in the world that are tokens of a good milker and yet be a poor milker from the fact that the early care of the cow and heifer was bad and the first year in the dairy she was poorly managed. No care was taken to develop her milking qualities, either by proper feeding and management, while in many cases she was allowed to go dry in six or seven months of milk-giving, and no matter how she may be treated afterwards, the effect of her earlier management cannot be entirely overcome.

As Congress is to meet in a few weeks for the short session we hope that the bill (which was introduced and reported favorably by the Committee, at the last session), to provide for two U. S. District Courts in this State will be pushed to its early passage.

Senators Lindsay and Deboe both favor it, and the reasons for its prompt passage are so numerous and so strong that it will meet with but little, if any, opposition.

The fact is that Tennessee, which does not have half the amount of business in her. U. S. Courts that we do in Kentucky, has three districts and three judges, &c. And there are a number of other States similary situated.

The vast amount of work required in this State, with its one district and one judge, forced Judge Barr (one of the best and purest of judges) to retire because he could no longer stand the strain, although he was by no means an old or infirm man.—Roundabout.

When the horse is suffering from collar and harness rubbing bathe the sore spots in lukewarm water and Castile soap, and, after drying throughly with a soft cloth, apply witch hazel. The witch hazel is mildly astringent, and therefore closes the lacerated pores, and thus soothes by protecting the exposed nerves from the air. The warm water keeps up circulation of the blood in the congested area and the alkali in the soap disinfects the galled spots. This simple treatment if it can be followed by rest for the galled animal, will hasten the formation of a new coat on the galled places.—Exchange.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 19, 1900. NO. 9.

THE following editorial appeared in the Anderson News of Wednesday, December 5. Mr. J. M. B. Birdwhistle is the editor, and we sincerely wish that every music throated bird would whistle the sentiment of this editorial throughout the length and breadth of Kentucky:

"The Louisville Commercial of last Monday contained a two-and-a-half-column article from the pen of R. M. Kelly on the subject, "Kentucky's Needs." It seems that what Kentucky needs at present is a little rest from the yawps that daily issue from the offices of the Commercial and Evening Post. Mr. Kelly begins his article with a lot of rot about the friends of civil liberty, as though he does not know that every honest man and honorable citizen of the State is in favor of true civil liberty. Then he continues on the same strain discussing the election law, gerrymanders and so on ad nauseam.

"In the Evening Post of last Saturday there was an article similar to the one above mentioned, in which the writer took more than a page of space to recount all the incidents connected with the Sandford tragedy, which occurred more than five years ago.

"The papers that can feed on such stuff can have but one object, and that is to keep alive political prejudice, and to as great an extent as possible keep alive all those questions that engender strife and promote bitter feeling. It would be a blessing to the entire State if papers which persist in destroying all political peace should be denied the use of the mails.

"The News is in favor of a free and full discussion of all political questions that concern the public welfare, but when it comes to exhuming these old dead and decaying political corpses we wish to be distinctly understood as voting in the negative.

"There are matters of consequence to all, which may be discussed in an open, and free and unpredjudiced manner, questions of State, and let us talk about these matters for a while. If a man may be known by the company he keeps, it seems that a paper may be known by the character of its editorials. Are there not great industrial enterprises to be promoted, are there not the financial and commercial interests of the commuuity that call for your support, are there not our educational, religious and charitable institutions that need to be assisted and whose causes you should champion?

"Then, give us a rest on "Goebelism," "Civil Liberty" and all kindred topics. There should be penalty of both fine and imprisonment to every man who uses one of these terms in a public manner.

"There is not a man in Kentucky at all informed on public matters, who does not know that the agitation of these and similar questions have caused a great deal of the bitter feeling that exists between the members of the two great political parties in the country today. It is almost a year before we must enter upon another political campaign, and let us have at least a few months of rest from all this strife and bad blood."

ATTORNEY S. M. ADAMS, of Erlanger, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the Legislature in the first district in Kenton county. He has a host of friends in this county who hope to see him successful. The district is now represented by Hon. Stephen Henry, who is also a candidate for renomination.

IT is said Dr. J. N. McCormack, who attended Gov. Goebel after he had been shot, and some of the lawyers who represented him in the contest over the governorship, contemplate filing suit against the Goebel estate for their fees, their claims aggregating about $25,000.

CHICAGO is now pluming itself on the alleged fact that it is morally purer than London. Possibly, although good judges say that the two cities are a tie—for the booby prize.

THE only trouble with that announced surrender in the Philippines is that experience has taught that a boloman is never so dangerous as after he has surrendered.

No, Anxious readers, the high price of corn consequent on the Chicago corner in that useful cereal did not last long enough to affect the price of whiskey.

THE country refuses to become interested in the electoral college. In fact the only way that institution can attract attention it seems is to become modern and organize a foot ball team.

THE bill giving preference in civil service appointments to all honorably discharged soldiers of the Civil, Spanish and Philippine Wars, was defeated by 51 yeas and 105 nays in the House.

IT seems that Governor Pingree violated the law in pardoning out his theiving generals and that they will be obliged to remain in jail, after all. This is better fortune than the country expected.

COVINGTON'S City Council has been having exciting sessions for several weeks past, and the citizens are taking a hand by way of injunctions. The trouble grew out of the council's proceedings in an effort to let a twenty years' gas contract.

THE brewers have failed to get the recognition from the House that they believe they earned from the Republicans in the last campaign and will now apply to the Senate. They say, if it will cripple the government to reduce their tax further, let the tax be put back on bank checks.

THERE is a man in New Jersey who claims that he has been feeding hens on asbestos and that he has obtained a set of fireproof eggs in consequence. This may be true, but we'll wager that a year hence the man who told it will be wishing for the asbestos for personal protection—and not getting it.

OF course, no one would seriously expect such a thing but all the same it is just possible that Lord Kitchtner may overdo things so that Britian will lose all of South Africa. The Boer cause is no more desperate than was that of the United States more than a century ago before France intervened.

THE lynching of the two negroes at Rockport, Ind., on the night of the 16th inst., for murdering a barber, is another incident which shows that human nature is the same the country over, and that the people of the North, under the same circumstances, are as ready to resort to lynch law as are the people of the South.

Hon. William Jennings Bryan has turned down all the flattering offers made to him to become employee of others at a princely salary and has decided to establish a paper of his own. It will be called The Commoner and will be issued weekly from Mr. Bryan's home city, Lincoln, Neb. Mr. Bryan will not only be the editor, but the owner as well. If will be his to use as he pleases and be made the vehicle through which he will continue his championship of the principles in which he so firmly believes.

THE farmers of the San Joaquin Valley, in California utilize the largest machines in the world for harvesting and thrashing their wheat crops. These machines are combined harvesters, that cut, thrash, clean, sack and dump the grain on the ground ready to be stored. The traction engines which operate them are of 50-horse power. Last season some great records for harvesting were made. A 20-foot sickle harvester, with what is called a four-foot extension cut, threshed, cleaned and sacked 1772 bags of wheat, or over 3000 bushels a day. Wheat fields containing as many as 25,000 acres are common sights all over the West.—Home Magazine.

THE Republican delegate convention that met in Scottsville, last Monday, to certify to the vote cast in Saturday's precinct conventions for county officers met pursuant to the call and elected B. H. Dalton chairman, and Watson Graham, secretary. When the question of credentials for precinct delegates was presented only two delegates, representing the town precincts, held duly-certified credentials and the chairman thereupon ruled that no precinct delegates should have a voice in the convention except those who had complied with the exact letter of the call. After considerable discussion and wrangling by many leading Republicans in which charges of unfairness and "Redwine rulings" were hurled thick and fast, many delegates withdrew and the convention finally adjourned sine die in pandemonium without declaring any nominees for county offices or representative. It is probable that the Republican State Central Committee will be appealed to to settle the dispute.

French Methods.

In France they manage the habitual criminal question better than in any other country in the world. For instance a pickpocket, a professional beggar, or a habitual "drunk and disorderly" is brought up for his or her fourth or fifth conviction. It is proved beyond doubt that he or she is incapable of performing the duties, and therefore of exercising the rights, of a free citizen; sentance is passed for the last time, a term of imprisonment is imposed which is really a preparation for the new life which the hopeless case, the piece of human refuse, is to lead:

"At the expiration of your sentence you will be placed in relegation," says the Judge.

That means banishment for life. The criminal never sees his old haunts, never mixes with his old companions again save in exile. It will no longer be possible for him to commit crime, or to contaminate the society which has now finished with him. Moreover, he has got to work, and if he won't do that, he will find his food cut down and himself in a prison, which is made just about as uncomfortable for him as it can be.

France possesses two of these dumping grounds for human refuse, as they may be called. One is French Guiana, which is about one of the best places in the world to get out of and stay away from. The other is the Isle of Pines, which is a coral-fringed paradise far away in the South Pacific, one of the most beautiful spots ever trodden by human feet, or darkened by the presence of human crime.

Their working day is about seven hours and a half. They are well treated, well fed, and by no means overworked. Of course, very few of them know anything about a trade. Their only idea in life has been to loaf from cradle to the grave. Those who can never be made into workmen or workwomen are put on the fields, farms and coffee plantations. Others are taught trades, and gradually the aimless, shiftless loafer of the slums becomes a more or less skillful carpenter, blacksmith, wheelwright or stonemason.

Farm, Stock and Crop.

Every tobacco journal with whom we exchange advises people in the White Burley District to hold their tobacco for good prices. The farmers should take this advice and stand squarely on their ground. If you need money and have a crop you can easily get it, and it will be but a short time until the price will come to you. One or two weak-kneed fellows may do much harm by selling too cheaply. If your tobacco is good demand a good price and hold for it, but if bad, sell in winter order. Farmers must stand together or starve. It is a thousand pities that the tobacco growers are not well organized.—Farmer's Friend.

Mr. R. B. Craig is the possessor of a powder gourd that was brought from Virginia to Kentucky in 1781, eleven years before the State Government was organized, by the three Craig brothers, Lewis, Elijah and Joseph, who were all Baptist preachers, and the last named being our Mr. Craig's great-grand-father. The gourd is perfectly smooth from much handling and is highly prized by its owner. Its capacity is one pound of powder. An offer of $10 for it was made by a Baptist minister, last week, on account of its association with the organization of that church in Kentucky.—Owenton Herald.

SERVES THE PEOPLE.

Value of The Local Paper to A Community.

Some time ago the editor of the Richmond (Ind.) Enterprise published an article in which are catalogued all the services of the local paper, coupled with injunctions as to how to help the editor thereof in return for the paper's help. He says:

"The paper has done 50 things for you and is only anxious to do 50 more.

"It told your friends when your parents were married; it announced to the world when you were born.

"It recorded the great events of your childhood—when you were lost as a wandering baby, when you had the measles and scarlet fever, when you fell into the washtub and nearly drowned, when you fell from the cherry tree and broke your collar bone, when you earned your first prize.

"Later on it told how you had completed the studies of the district school and how eloquently you recited your graduating oration.

"It told of your entering high school or academy. It told of your contests in baseball and tennis. It told of your departure for college or your first venture in business.

"It told of various visits back to the old home neighborhood, and it always wished you well in your greatest undertakings.

"It hinted modestly about the first time you went a-courting and gave timely warning to 'her folks' that the neighbors knew that matters were growing interesting over their way.

"It announced the time of your expected wedding and it published the notice of the marriage license and gave you a nice puff concerning the wedding ceremony.

"It told of your extended honeymoon tour and of your setting down to housekeeping.

"When you were sick, the home paper week by week informed your more distant neighbors of your lapse and improvements.

"It told about your lost cow and led to her recovery. It told how your horse had been stolen and led to the arrest of the thief.

"When you were getting dull and tired through the monotony of your labor, the paper urged that the people get up a celebration, and you were named as one of a suitable committee on arrangements. And when it was all over it gave you just praise for the success of the undertaking.

"In numerous ways the paper has helped to put your name before the people, and you would never have had your lucrative office or your honorable recognition from the community but for the kind aid of the local printer

"If you are a member of a Sunday school or society of any sort, that same paper publishes your announcements and the various proceedings of your meetings.

"It tells the people much which you would like to have known, but which modesty or necessity prevents you from telling.

"If you and all your folks have been prosperous and fortunate in your affairs, tha paper has boosted you all the way. If you have had misfortune, the paper asked for sympathy in your behalf.

"Thus the paper has rejoiced when you rejoiced and wept when you wept. If you are a good citizen, the paper will always be your friend and will back you in your enterprises and will help to find you business friends.

"It tells you where to buy and where to sell. It tells of rogues to be avoided.

"It tells you of current prices and prevents you from being cheated and swindled in a hundred ways.

"Finally, when you die the paper will publish your obituary and will cover over your faults and will recite the story of your good deeds.

"All these things the local editor will cause his paper to do, but no one else in the world will do them or can do them for you, even for love or money. The city paper will tell you of the world, but it won't tell the world about you or yours. The outside Paper is a stranger to your little world and is not at all interested in its improvement. Yet your local paper does all this free of cost to you if you are willing to receive it in that way. However, for your sake, we hope you are too generous to accept so many unrequitted favors and that you are willing to reciprocate the same.

"Help the editor. Be his friend and he will prove his friendship to you.

"Subscribe for his paper and pay for it regularly in advance and get your neighbors to do the same.

"Send him the news.

"Invite him to your picnic and family dinners, so that he can eat a square meal occasionally.

"Don't call the ticket you give to the church concert a deadhead. He can't buy tickets from everybody to everything, but he will say kind words of your performance and thus lead others to buy tickets.

"If you have anything to buy or sell, let the paper assist you to find customers. Advertising that really pays the printer benefits both advertisers and readers.

"If you have any job printing to do, don't take it to an outside office but give your newspaper the first chance.

"Give the editor a pointer occasionally or write him sensible short articles, and don't get mad if he fails to see everything your way. When he does say a good thing, tell him so.

"In short remember the golden rule, and don't forget the editor of your local paper."

Wheat stubble proves injurious to hogs allowed to gorge themselves

But we like farrowing in the more care of both the sow and the piglets.

Of late years many have made it a practice to mow the ragweed before it forms its pollen. In this way hogs escape the sore eyes and running noses.

The usual way of feeding corn to pigs is easy and cheap, but in the end it results badly. Corn fed pigs suffer greatly from breaking down in the back, from paralysis, from general weakness or muscle and from rheumatism.

Every breed of sheep has its special scale of points of excellence; but while these differ to some extent, they are all alike in regard to those special forms and types of body here suggested. For instance, we have all those parts of the animal which are of little or no value as small and fine and light as possible. And this qualification gives elegance to the body and a certain attractiveness which excites pleasure and satisfaction at first sight. There are the small, fine head, having ample capacity for a full brain, which gives nervous force to the system and to all the functional organs. The feeding quality depends on this characteristic, and so does the breeding ability. Indeed, every natural function is controlled by this well-balanced head—the strong jaws, the clear, bright, vivacious eyes, and the fine expanded nostrils; all these are to be judged in regard to their fitness, and equally as to their activity.—Farmers' Voice.

STATE NEWS.

Mr. J. H. Boggs, a former citizen of Madison county, but now one of Jessamine's progressive farmers, passed through here Monday enroute to Richmond court with the largest sweet potato we ever saw raised in this part of Kentucky. It was grown on his own farm and measured three feet, nine inches in length and was worthy to rank with the Georgia product, which is described as being so large that a darkey can sit on one end and play the fiddle while the other end is roasting.—Valley View Argent.

Miss Florida H. Parrish, of Richmond, was sworn in as practicing attorney in the Court of Appeals at Frankfort, last week. She is the second woman to be admitted to practice in that tribunal, Miss Sophonsiba Breckinridge, of Lexington, having been admitted two years ago.

The Baptists have decided to establish an academy at Pineville under the direction of the General Association. A building costing $21,000 and valuable land connected with it was given by the people of the town.

MANY persons in Minneapolis, Minnesota, are giving away their property, getting their ascension robes ready and in other ways are preparing for the coming to an end of the world, which they are certain will be brought about in the near future by the second coming of the Lord. All of these persons are disciples and followers of H. W. Wild, an old resident a deep Bible student, who claims to have a vision in which the Lord appeared to him, saying the end of the world is near at hand.

Bermuda provides beautiful roads for cyclists. The roadbeds are of coral, smooth as the floor of a bedroom, and as clean as it is possible for any road to be. The delights of a spin on one's bike in the neighborhood of any city in these delightful isles are beyond comparison.

Peter J. Carolus, judge of a St. Louis police court, suggests a new way of solving the tramp problem. He suggests that all vagrants be sent to some lonely island in the Pacific, where they would get strict military instruction for six months, after which they should be sent to chase Aguinaldo in the Philippine islands.

Edmund A. Vogelsang, of Chicago, ... from his brother Otto a present of the most valuable pipe in the world. It is held to be worth no less than $16,000, considering the time spent in its construction, apart from its artistic and historical value. The pipe represents the labor of 18 years of the life of Rev. Father Adolph Ebel.

Advantages accruing from a recent heavy rainfall in Western Texas have been largely offset by the fact that the unusual supply of moisture has greatly increased the growth of the loco weed. Many horses and cattle have died from eating this insidiously poisonous weed. Exactly what the element of poison in this weed is has never been fully determined.

In setting and distributing type a compositor's hand travels on an average of 11 miles a day. Leaving Sundays and holidays out of account, this means about 3,000 miles a year. More than half the deaths among compositors are due to lung diseases. In the course of his lifetime an average man gets through about 2,500 miles of reading matter.

The United States once tried the half cent, in imitation of the cheap and nasty farthing of England. For more than half a century, from 1793 to 1857, it indulged itself in coining half cents to the magnificent aggregate of 7,985,222, worth $39,926.11. Then having reached the age of discretion in small things, it put away such childish things as half cents and has never regretted it.

Russian photographers who are unable to get a settlement from their sitters hang the portraits of the latter upside down in the showcases before their studios. The significance of this position is, of course, understood by the general public, and it is said that photographers' debtors in many instances hasten to place themselves right again in the eyes of their fellow townsmen.

In the New Hebrides human life has been made safer by the introduction of pigs into the island. The cannibals are said to prefer roast pork to roast man, and as the porcine tribe increases among the natives they may give up their feasts on human flesh altogether, excepting when something unusual happens, such as entertaining a king of some other cannibal island or state occasions of rare ceremony.

Twenty miles from the town of Bozeman, Idaho, is an establishment devoted entirely to the raising of wild animals. The stock is made up exclusively of the wildest, rarest and most ferocious creatures. This animal farm is owned and operated by Mr. Richard W. Rock, who has spent all his life in the west. As trader, hunter, scout and animal fancier he has been the hero of remarkable exploits. Thirty years ago he was a valued scout for Gens. Gibbon, Hayden and Howard.

Mark Twain detests the autograph hunter. To an applicant on one occasion he sent a letter, the substance, of which is as follows: To ask a doctor or builder or sculptor for his autograph would be in no way rude. To ask one of these for a specimen of his work, however, is quite another thing, and the request might be justifiably refused. It would never be fair to ask a doctor for one of his corpses to remember him by. There was no autograph to the letter which was typewritten throughout.

Passengers who travel on the new Siberian railroad will find all the comforts of home on the cars. Journeys may be long, but the trains will furnish libraries, pianos, barber shops, hot and cold water, and every possible convenience for their occupants. There will be physicians aboard and no cost will be made for medical attendance. Porters, who can speak all languages, and who, it may be understood will not be averse to accepting tips, will also be on the trains. Any one with a sufficient amount of money can enjoy thoroughly the seven days' trip from St. Petersburg to Irkutsk.

Capt. Bernier, of Quebec, has gained the support of Sir Clements Markham, president of the Royal Geographical society, for his scheme to reach the north pole, and hopes the British government will co-operate with the Canadian minister. His plans contemplate an expedition from Vancouver, with a wooden or steel ship, a crew of six sailors and five scientists. Entering the polar basin by August, a month earlier than Nansen did, she ship would begin to drift miles farther east than Nansen did.

DELAYS PROCEEDINGS.

British Minister Wants a Modification of the Joint Note.

The Russian Government Repudiates the Charge That the Yang Tsun-Shan Hai Kwan Railroad Was Held Illegally.

Tien-Tsin, Dec. 15.—According to credible sources of Chinese information Emperor Kwang Su will agree to the following ten demands of the powers:

First—Indemnity to the amount of 700,000,000 taels, payable in 60 years and guaranteed by the Li Kin.

Second—The erection in Peking of a suitable monument to the memory of Baron Von Ketteler.

Third—An imperial prince, a near relative to the emperor, to go to Berlin to apologize and to express regret for the murder.

Fourth—Foreign troops to hold the lines of communication between Taku and Peking.

Fifth—Punishment of the Boxer officials.

Sixth—Candidates from districts where anti-foreign outrages have been perpetrated not to be allowed to compete in the Chinese examinations in Peking for five years.

Seventh—Abolition of the Tsung Li Yamen.

Eighth—Foreign envoys to have access to the emperor at all times.

Ninth—Importation of arms and ammunition into the province of Chi Li to be abolished.

Tenth—The land and sea forts between Shan Hai Kwan, Taku and Peking to be destroyed.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 17.—The official Messenger publishes an inspired statement as to the views of the Russian government concerning the Yang Tsun-Shan Hai Kwan railroad, repudiating the charge that the Russians have acted illegally in holding the line, contending that Russia's action was necessitated by military considerations, declining to recognize the British as owners of the line, but admitting that they have the preponderating financial interest, and finally promising to restore it to the former administration after the foreign troops have evacuated the province of Chi Li.

Peking, Dec. 17.—Definite instructions, supplementing Saturday's communication from London, have been received by Sir Ernest Mason Satow, the British minister, and he now demands a modification of a point in the joint note which the foreign governments generally regard as important. This means further delay, as all the ministers must communicate anew with their respective governments. Just what is the nature of the objection raised by Great Britain the ministers decline to say, but they admit that the new demand will involve a good deal more diplomatic procedure.

Washington, Dec. 17.—Officials here are at a loss to understand the reasons for the important modification in the joint Chinese note which it is reported the British minister to Peking is to demand before signing that document preparatory to its presentation to the Chinese plenipotentiaries. They have no information on the subject, as nothing has been heard from Mr. Conger on the matter for some days. The understanding here has been that the joint note as agreed upon by the envoys was in the main satisfactory to the British government. She simply desired a slight amendment, said to be in the nature of a mere change in style of language to be used, rather than any amendment to the scope of the agreement. This did not conflict with any of the principles held out for by our government. Such being the case, it was expected that the signature of the British minister would be promptly affixed to the agreement and the note soon presented to the Chinese.

Berlin, Dec. 17.—A portion of the German contingent that recently arrived from China was publicly received here Sunday in accordance with the express desire of Emperor William, great enthusiasm being displayed by the crowds that lined the route from the Lehrter railway station, which was beautifully decorated.

The troops bore the shot-riddled German flags which were taken into action at the storming of the Taku forts, together with several captured Chinese flags and guns. The procession went to the arsenal, where the Chinese colors were deposited. Everywhere the men were greeted with tumultous cheering.

In front of the arsenal were Emperor William, the empress, Prince Henry of Prussia, Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria, Count von Buelow (imperial chancellor), members of the general staff and other persons of high rank. After saluting the troops the kaiser inspected them, speaking to those who had been wounded or had received decorations, and then addressing all formally.

A Yokohama Bank Failed.

Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 17.—The San Shi bank of Yokohama has failed, owing 900,000 yen in consequence of the defalcation of the cashier of the Tokio branch. He lost 70,000 yen speculating, and then absconded, taking as much more.

Kruger Invited to America.

The Hague, Dec. 17.—In reply to a dispatch from Grand Rapids, Mich., inviting him to the United States, Mr. Kruger has wired that he has not arrived at any decision with regard to visiting America

MANY PERSONS DROWNED.

The German Training Frigate Gneisenau Foundered 65 Miles Northwest of Gibraltar.

Madrid, Dec. 17.—The German training frigate Gneisenau has foundered off Malaga, 65 miles northeast of Gibraltar. Private dispatches say that 40 persons were drowned.

According to the naval pocket-book, the Gneisenau, which was built at Dantzic in 1879, was an iron vessel, sheathed with wood, and had a displacement of 2,856 tons. She was 242 feet 9 inches in length and 45 feet 11 inches in the beams, having a mean draught of 19 feet 8 inches and a coal capacity of 400 tons. Her speed was 13 knots. Her armament consisted of 14 5.9-inch Krupp breech-loaders, two ¾-inch quick-firers, one boat or field gun and several torpedo tubes. She was used for training boys.

The Gneisenau foundered at the entrance to the port of Malaga, where she was about to take ... from the terrible storm prevailing. At the present time only the masts of the vessel are visible.

A large number of the cadets can be seen from the shore clinging to the rigging. They are shouting and signaling for help. The captain and many of the cadets have been drowned. It is believed that 40 who had left in one of the ship's boats, and have not been seen since, are also lost. The total loss is now thought to be not less than 100. Some dispatches say 140. Forty of those saved are badly hurt.

ISLAND OF PANAY.

The American Troops Have Been Moving Northward and Westward—Several Skirmishes.

Manila, Dec. 17.—Advices from Iloilo, Island of Panay, reports that the American troops have been moving northward and westward for several days and that detachments of the 6th, 12th and 20th ... have been active near their stations.

The insurgent losses during the last ten days have been five killed, seven wounded and 40 taken prisoners. The Americans have lost two killed and three wounded.

Large numbers of the natives, however, are swearing allegiance to the United States.

In several recent attacks and expeditions in Southern Luzon the insurgents have lost eight killed, seven wounded and about 20 captured.

The Americans have lost one killed and two wounded. Gen. Wheaton reports that 430 natives have entered Calanao for registration.

FIRE AT NORFOLK, VA.

The Building Occupied By the Construction Department at the Navy Yard Destroyed.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 17.—The building occupied by the construction department at the Norfolk navy yard was destroyed by fire Sunday evening. Shortly before 6 o'clock a warehouse man discovered the office of Constructor Stath to be on fire. The navy yard and Portsmouth fire departments responded, but found the blaze gaining headway rapidly, and in a short time the whole building was a mass of flames. The firemen then devoted their time to saving surrounding buildings. The building destroyed contained all the important papers, models and plans of the construction department. Over 7,000 drawings and $100,000 worth of live oak timber were destroyed. Loss to building and contents over $200,000. Origin of the fire unknown.

Counterfeiters Arrested.

Oil City, Pa., Dec. 17.—United States marshals arrived here Sunday night having in custody Samuel R. Latshaw and George E. Coast, who are charged with counterfeiting. Fifty spurious dollars, which were still warm, and a counterfeiting plant were captured with the prisoners at Coast's home at Lisbon. The prisoners are supposed to belong to an organized gang of whom secret service men have captured 11 since October last.

England Wants Turkey to Settle.

Constantinople, Dec. 17.—Owing to the success of the United States in pressing claims for compensation in connection with the Armenian disorders, Great Britain is now urging the Ottoman government to pay similar claims put forward by British subjects. It is said that energetic means will be taken to obtain settlement.

Earthquake Shock at Santiago.

Santiago de Cuba, Dec. 17.—A sharp earthquake shock was felt here Saturday about midnight. It was the most severe that had been experienced in several years and almost created a panic at the San Carlos club, where a grand ball was in progress.

John Addison Porter Dead.

Putnam, Ct., Dec. 17.—John Addison Porter, former private secretary to President McKinley, died at his residence here. He had been sick for many weeks with a malignant intestinal disease.

Quit Repairing Rainbow.

Bristol, R. I., Dec. 17.—The Rainbow, Cornelius Vanderbilt's 70-foot yacht, which has been undergoing extensive repairs at the Herreshoffs's shops, has been put overboard in order to make room for the work of running the keel of the new defender.

The Duke's Wine Bill.

London, Dec. 17.—Judgment for £250 was entered against the duke of Manchester in the queen's bench court for wine and cigars supplied by a city merchant. The claim was not contested.

AN INDIANA LYNCHING.

Two Colored Men Put to Death by Infuriated Citizens.

One of the Murderers Confessed, Implicating the Other One—The Swinging Bodies Were Filled Full of Bullets.

Rockport, Ind., Dec. 17.—Two Negroes, Jim Henderson and Bud Rowlands, who waylaid, brutally murdered and robbed Hollie Simons, a white barber, early Sunday morning, were lynched in the jail yard by a mob of 1,000 frenzied citizens ... night. The Negroes were arrested early in the morning, and, although Rowlands' clothing had blood stains on it, the men claimed they were innocent of the crime. In the meantime Sheriff Clemens, of Union county, Kentucky, arrived with a trained bloodhound in response to a telegraphic summons.

When the dog was placed on the trail he followed it until he reached the house where Rowland lived, six blocks from the scene of the murder, and went baying to the bed the Negro had occupied. This was enough for the excited citizens. Within a few minutes a mob of a thousand howling, bloodthirsty citizens, with sledge hammers, ropes and guns, were running to the jail.

Sheriff Anderson and his two deputies made a stand and attempted to protect the prisoners. The officers were seized by the leaders of the mob, who disarmed them. The sheriff was then locked in a room and placed under guard, but he stoutly refused to give up the keys or to tell where the prisoners were hidden.

Failing to get the keys, the mob made a determined but unsuccessful attempt to break in the jail door. By this time the mob of ly... were in a perfect frenzy, and, securing a telegraph pole, they used it as a battering ram and caved in the side wall of the jail. The door of Rowlands cell was then quickly broken in with sledge hammers and he was dragged from the jail to the east side of the court yard, where a noose was placed about his neck.

He was given time to make a statement, in which he implicated Jim Henderson and another Negro. Rowland then begged piteously for mercy, but the mob swiftly swung the confessed murderer to a tree and riddled his body with bullets.

Leaving the body of Rowland dangling from the limb of the tree, the mob rushed back to the jail and attempted to burst open the cell occupied by Henderson, but before the steel bars yielded to the blows of the sledges some one in the crowd fired upon the terrified Negro as he crouched in the corner of his cell. A few moments more and the door of the cell was broken in. The Negro, more dead than alive, was dragged at a rope's end to the court house yard and swung on the tree beside the body of Rowland.

Firing a parting volley at the swinging bodies, the mob, eager for another victim, hurried away to locate the other Negro implicated by Rowland in his confession. He was found at a hotel where he was employed as porter. The Negro escaped to the roof of the building, and Manager Debruler succeeded in convincing the mob that the porter had nothing to do with the crime, proving an alibi for him.

The Negroes' victim, Hollie Simons, was waylaid and murdered in the most brutal manner one square from the main street of the city as he was going to his home from his barber shop at 2 o'clock Sunday morning. As was customary with him, he carried the receipts of the day at his place of business.

The Negroes were aware of this, and evidently laid their plans accordingly. Crouching behind a fence, they waited for their victim to pass, when they jumped out from the place of concealment and attacked him from behind, striking him over the head with a heavy club with a large nail driven into the head of it. Although terribly beaten, Simons made a desperate fight, and his cries and struggles soon attracted two boys, who went to his assistance, but they were a moment too late, the victim of the two Negroes had succumbed to the terrible beating and was lying dead at their feet. The murderers then drove the would-be rescuers away and accomplished their original design—that of robbery, securing a bag containing something over $40.

Walter Evans, one of the young men who attempted to save Simons' life, and afterward assisted in the removal of the murdered man's remains to his home, was greatly affected and almost suffered nervous collapse. Sunday night he witnessed the lynching, and he lost his reason.

The dead man's wife is prostrated, and it is believed she will die from the shock. Hollie Simons came from Winslow, Ind., some years ago, find was a popular young man.

Exposition Lost Two Millions.

Paris, Dec. 17.—The official report of the finances of the exposition shows a loss of 2,000,000 francs. The total of expenditures is 116,500,000 francs. The receipts amounted to 114,500,000 francs. The loss is less than in the case of either of the preceding expositions.

Took Strychnine.

Grand Island, Neb., Dec. 17.—Because of unrequited love, L. M. Hansen, 24 years old, committed suicide Sunday morning by taking strychnine.

FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

Washington, Dec. 12.—Senate—Bills introduced Tuesday: By Senator Scott, directing the secretary of the treasury to pay Edward Tearney, of Jefferson county, West Virginia, and Walter Shirley, also of Jefferson county, West Virginia, $4,243 and $6,739 for supplies taken by United States troops during the civil war. The first speech in opposition to the ship subsidy bill in the senate was delivered by Mr. Clay. The oleomargarine bill, just passed by the house, was referred to the committee on agriculture.

House—Bills introduced Tuesday: To pension T. B. Lehane at $24 a month; to pension John P. C. Shanks, colonel of the 7th Indiana cavalry, at the rate of $50 a month; directing the secretary of the treasury to pay to G. W. Ratleff, of Ivy, W. Va., $250 for building material taken by United States troops during the civil war. The ... on the war revenue reduction bill opened Tuesday.

Washington, Dec. 13.—Senate—No business was transacted Wednesday. The members went over to the house to participate in the centennial celebration over the removal of the national capital to Washington.

House—No business was transacted owing to the centennial celebration ceremonies in the house.

Washington, Dec. 14.—Senate—In executive session on Thursday an amendment to the Hay-Pauncefote treaty was passed. This amendment in the essence will permit the United States to defend an isthmian canal, but not to fortify it. For nearly three hours Thursday Mr. Hanna, of Ohio, addressed the senate on the pending ship subsidy bill. While he had spoken heretofore on the floor of the senate, his effort Thursday really was his first formal speech to the body since he became a member of it.

House—Bills introduced Thursday: To pension William Gould at $35 a month; to pension James Mantock at $30 a month; to pension Anthony McCall at $20 a month; to pension Jorge J. Wilson, Joseph Farnsworth, Nancy J. Marpie at $20 a month; Benjamin J. Dewees at $24 a month; to pension William H. H. Miller at $50 a month; to pension Fannie Wigginton at $30 a month; directing the secretary of the treasury to pay $130 to Nancy Gates for supplies taken by United States troops.

Washington, Dec. 15.—Senate—Nearly all of Friday the senate was in secret session, discussing the Hay-Pauncefote treaty. No business of importance was transacted in the brief open session except the adoption of the house resolution providing for a holiday recess to extend from Friday, December 21, to Thursday, January 3.

House—The house adjourned Friday without disposing of more than half the war revenue reduction bill. An effort to reduce the tax on beer failed. Mr. Smith (Mich.) had an amendment passed compelling the express companies to pay for stamps on express receipts instead of the shipper. A reapportionment bill was introduced making the membership of the house 357.

Washington, Dec. 17.—No business of importance was transacted in the senate Saturday.

House—The house Saturday passed the war revenue reduction bill. The amendment placed in the bill to tax express receipts was defeated by a vote of 125 to 139. Mr. Powers (Vt.) offered an amendment providing that the income tax would not be levied on the estates of persons who died prior to June 13, 1898. It was adopted—84 to 43. The pension appropriation bill, carrying $145,745,230, also passed. Representative Norton introduced the following bill: Providing that any regularly enlisted soldier of the war of the rebellion who served, by detail or assignment, on duty as a commissioned officer, shall be entitled to the same pay as a regularly commissioned officer for duties so performed, and shall be considered as promoted and mustered to that rank, whether commissioned or not, and shall be entitled to the same grade of pension as is provided for officers of the rank in which said soldier was assigned to duty.

Famous Scout Dead.

Crawford, Neb., Dec. 17.—Batiste Garnier, known as "Little Bat," the famous scout, who was shot by James Hague Wood, manager at Dietrich's saloon here, Saturday night, during a dispute over a bar bill, died at 3 a. m. Sunday. Wood was arrested immediately after the shooting. An inquest is being held.

New Racing Association.

Portland, Ore., Dec. 17.—Horsemen from Oregon, Washington, Idaho and British Columbia met here Sunday and organized the Pacific Northwest Racing association. W. H. Wehrung, of Salem, Ore., was elected president, and M. D. Wisdom, of Portland, secretary-treasurer. The season of 1901 will open at Vancouver.

Boers to Settle in German Africa.

Berlin, Dec. 17.—According to the Lokal Anzeiger, 50 Cape Colony Boers, now in Amsterdam with their families, have been granted permission to settle in German Southwest Africa, the German government having just assented to the purchase of lands by them in Damaraland and Great Namaquiliand. The Boers will leave Amsterdam January 5.

Foul Play Suspected.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 17.—Two boys, skating on the Mississippi river, Sunday found imbedded in the ice the dead body of a man. His skull had been crushed. The fact that the pockets of the dead man had been rifled suggests a murder.

Death of Dr. Henry Barton Fellows.

Chicago, Dec. 17.—Dr. Henry Barton Fellows, former dean of the Hahnemann Medical college, and for 30 years a professor in that institution, died at his home Sunday. Dr. Fellows, was in his 64th year.

A Great Drive.

There was a loud, hissing noise. The heavens were brilliantly lighted. The man with the crimson coat and the long leather bag stopped and looked upward. He saw what seemed to be a ball of fire coming directly toward him, leaving a long, red streak behind it. Before he could move out of his tracks he heard the object strike the earth a few feet away, and after a short search he found a gravish ball, perhaps 14 inches in diameter. He stood for a moment gazing thoughtfully down at it. Then he raised his hat, scratched his head solemnly and said: "Holy St. Andrew! What a drive that was!"—Bangor News.

Our Nation's Wealth.

Gold and silver are poured abundantly into the lap of the nation, but our material wealth and strength is rather in iron, the most useful of all metals, just as the wealth of a human being lies in a useful stomach. The many friends of T. J. Porter will be sorry to hear of his death, which occurred at the home of his half sister in Missouri on the 2d inst. When he left here to go to his sister's, about two years ago, he was in bad health, and had been for some time, and the friends he left behind did not expect him to live very long. Mr. Porter, as long as he was able to render the service, was a most excellent nurse in the sick room, and he was always among the first to tender services when one of his neighbors or friends were ill and needed attention, and many persons in the circle of his acquaintance have been nursed by him through long sieges of illness. He was a bachelor and about 70 years of age. He was a native of this county, where he spent nearly all his life. He was a carpenter and while not a rapid workman, he was one of the best in this part of the country. T. J. Porter was a man with a good heart and correct intentions, and many kind acts mark his long journey through life, and now may his ashes rest in peace.

Nearly every inhabitant in a radius of five miles aronnd the little village of Gunpowder, this county, is interested in an immense fortune which is to come down to them from an ancestor whose name was Susan House, and who was a granddaughter of King George, of England. It is claimed that there are 65,000 acres of land in Maryland and 20,000 acres in Illinois, which the United States government appropriated at the close of the revolutionary war as part of the domain of King George, when in fact it was the property of one House to whom the king had long before given it. This real estate is now worth millions upon millions of dollars, and is claimed by a small army of heirs who descended from the House who, it is alleged, was the rightful owner of the land at the time the United States took charge of it after the revolution.

In the Gunpowder neighborhood are a great many persons who have no difficulty in tracing their relationship to the original House through Sallie House, who married a Holsclaw, and Barbara House, who married Samuel Floyd, these two women being very closely related to Susan House, the granddaughter of King George.

The heirs to this gigantic fortune are scattered over many States, and the work of locating them has required considerable time, but is now about accomplished, and the heirs will file their claim to the estate in the United States Court in Washington, D. C., the first of next month. The attorneys who are prosecuting the claim for the heirs are very sanguine of success, and think it will require but a short time to adjust the matter, the claim set up being so clear.

J. J. Tanner, of Richwood, is taking the lead in the matter for the heirs in this county, and has made several trips to Richmond, Indiana, where the secretary of the association of heirs resides. He has arranged for a meeting of the heirs in Williamstown, Grant county, during the holidays.

POMONA GRANGE.

On Saturday, December 8th, at Union, the Boone County Pomona Grange completed its organization with forty-seven members present. The following is the list of officers, the most of whom were installed in form and entered upon their duties:

Master—Oscar Gaines.
Overseer—H. C. Tanner.
Lecturer—J. H. Walton.
Steward—J. W. Kennedy.
Assistant Steward—F. E. Sayre.
Chaplain—J. E. Crigler.
Treasurer—J. W. Conner.
Secretary—Mrs. F. E. Riley.
Gatekeeper—H. P. Wilson.
Pomona—Mrs. M. G. Sayre.
Flora—Mrs. G. O. Hafer.
Ceres—Mrs. Shellie Tanner.
Lady Assistant Steward—Mrs. Anna Smith.

This body of representative Patrons started the work of the Pomona Grange in an enthusiastic manner. Committees upon active features of work were appointed, and they will be heard from in an active way in all that appertains to the interests of the farming classes.

The next session of this Grange will be held in the Hall of Mt. Pleasant Grange, at Bullittsville, on Saturday, January 19th, 1901. Let all the Patrons in the county prepare to make this a memorable meeting.

F. E. RILEY, Secretary.

The following are the nine richest men in the world, according to the New York Financial Review:

Li Hung Chang	500,000,000
John D. Rockefeller	250,000,000
Prince Demidoff	200,000,000
Andrew Carnegie	200,000,000
Wm. K. Vanderbilt	125,000,000
John Jacob Astor	100,000,000
William Rockefeller	100,000,000
William W. Astor	100,000,000

Personal Mentions.

N. E. Riddell and wife spent Saturday night and Sunday in the city.

Judge Cram spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Gaines at their pleasant home near Idlewild.

Roy Clutterbuck and wife spent last Saturday and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Hal Prosser, of Hathaway.

Charles Tanner has moved from Richwood, and now occupies his new residence on the Burlington pike, near Florence.

John D. Smith, of Scott county, was in Burlington, Monday, delving in some of the old records in the county clerk's office.

John Tanner, of Richwood, was in town Monday. He has been very busy for weeks getting up papers establishing heirships to the gigantic House estate.

A few issues since the death of Michael House in Tennessee, was announced in the Gunpowder news, but it turns out it was a mistake, we are glad to say.

D. M. Snyder, of Bellevue, was in town Monday on his way to the Florence neighborhood, in the interest of the Lawrenceburg Marble and Granite Works for which he is agent.

Chas. Long, of the Union neighborhood, has shipped a complete trapping outfit to Arkansas, where he will spend the winter in the jungles. He has been there on a like expedition before.

George and John Goodridge were in town Monday, and called on the RECORDER. When John came in we supplemented he wanted some sale bills printed, but we soon learned that he came over to subscribe for the paper, and to incidentally attend to some other business.

Jake Cook, of Bellevue; H. O. Adams, of Hathaway; Lucy Rouse, of Gunpowder; C. M. Delph, of Union; W. C. Rouse and Ephraim Tanner, of Limaburg; B. I. Hood, Constance; W. Lee Cropper, of Constance, and Day, of Walton, each came within the money given by the Enquirer in its census guessing contest, neither of them getting to exceed $10.

A few weeks since a young man from Covington named Heckman, applied to the County Clerk here for marriage license, but did not have the proper credentials and was refused the desired documents. Yesterday he appeared again and renewed the request, having all the necessary credentials from the parents of the young lady. The clerk then asked him if he was 21 years old and he said he was. He then asked him if his father's name was A. C. Heckman, and he said it was. The clerk then exhibited to the young man a letter and also a telegram from A. C. Heckman, of Covington, requesting him not to issue a marriage license to Albert Heckman, his son, as he is only 19 years old. The officer then asked the young man who knows best about his age, he or his father. This knocked all the sand from under the young fellow, and for the second time he retired from the presence of the County Clerk foiled in his matrimonial efforts.

How to Cure Croup.

Mr. R. Gray, who lives near Amenia, Duchess county, N. Y., says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best medicine I have ever used. It is a fine children's remedy for croup and never fails to cure." When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough has developed, it will prevent the attack. This should be borne in mind and a bottle of the Cough Remedy kept at hand ready for instant use as soon as these symptoms appear. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; Balsly, Bullittsville; O. Grant, Bellevue.

Among the tens of thousands who have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for colds and la grippe during the past few years, to our knowledge, not a single case has resulted in pneumonia. Thos. Whitfield & Co., 240 Wabash Ave., Chicago, one of the most prominent retail druggists in that city, in speaking of this, says: "We recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for lagrippe in many cases, as it not only gives prompt and complete recovery, but also counteracts any tendency of la grippe to result in pneumonia. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Balsly, Bullittsville; Grant, Bellevue, and Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg.

Local News.

Last Saturday evening James Slayback was somewhat how-come-you-so and got into an altercation with James Webb, colored, and slashed the boy with a knife across the side of the head, laying open one of his ears. The sheriff took Slayback into custody, but in a few minutes he made a break for liberty, going down the street towards Geo. Blyth's at a high rate of speed. Mounting a horse that was near by, the Sheriff gave chase, and recaptured Slayback near Mr. Blyth's residence, and brought him back to town. He gave bond to appear for trial, Monday, when Judge Roberts fined him $2, which, with the cost amounted to $10 50.

The Best Plaster.

A piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound to the affected parts is superior to any plaster. When troubled with lame back or pains in the side or chest, give it a trial and you are certain to be more than pleased with the prompt relief which it affords. Pain Balm also cures rheumatism. One application gives relief. For sale by Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; Grant, Bellevue; Balsly, Bullittsville; McKim, Burlington.

The Covington-Erlanger electric railway is the principal topic in the latter town again, and many think it is sure to be a go this time. Such enterprises are always preceded by a vast amount of talk, and the Erlanger people are thinking enough of that kind of preliminaries has been done, and are anxious to see dirt broken, which they would consider subtantial proof that the company means business.

Wauted.—An honest young man who has had some experience in the clothing and shoe business. Must have good reference, and should also be a favorite with people. Good wages.

Circuit Court.

Judge Greene held court last Wednesday, and Thursday until noon, when, owing to his ill health, he vacated the bench and started home, leaving Special Judge Cram in charge of the business for the remainder of the term.

The grand jury was in session five days and found 14 indictments, none of which are of a serious nature except the one against William Craddock for shooting and wounding Albert Fullilove. The jury returned the names of a long list of witnesses to be placed under bond to appear before the next grand jury, and the court fixed the bond of each at $100.

There were no funds in the hands of the trustee of the jury fund, with which to pay the jurors, and they returned home no wealthier than when they came.

D. Beall, of Hebron; John F. Green, of Big Bone, and Cyrus Coffman, of Walton, were summoned and sworn as jury commissioners, and entered upon their duties as such, Friday morning. It required two days to do the work.

William Craddock who was indicted for shooting Albert Fullilove, was admitted to bail in the sum of $500 for his appearance at the next term for trial.

Phil Edmons, deputy sheriff of Carroll county, who arrested Geo. Herzog in Colorado, to which place he fled from Carrollton August 5th, 1900, after killing James T. Martin, who at that time was city marshal, appeared in court, last Friday morning, and filed a receipt of the jailer of Carroll county, showing that Herzog had been lodged in the Carroll county jail; he also filed claim for the reward of $500 offered by the Governor for the arrest and return of said Herzog to the jailer of Carroll county, which claim was approved by the court and ordered certified to the proper officer for record.

The county clerk reported $60 68 taxes collected on deeds, mortgages, etc., since last term of court, and the circuit clerk reported $13 80 taxes collected on suits, etc., for the same length of time.

Friday was the most interesting day of the term up to that time. The cases on that day gave the attorneys engaged therein especially good opportunities to talk, and they kept up the performance for some time after supper.

One of the interesting cases disposed of last week, was that of W. E. Vest against J. G. Tomlin. Mr. Vest is a real estate agent, and sued Mr. Tomlin for $100 as his commission on a real estate deal between J. G. Tomlin and Geo. B. Powers, Mr. Vest alleging that he was Tomlin's agent in the matter, which Tomlin denied. At the conclusion of Mr. Vest's testimony, the defendant's moved the court to give the jury a peremptory instruction on the ground that Mr. Vest's testimony showed that he was acting as agent for both parties, and, therefore, could not recover a commission from either. The question provoked a long argument on the part of the attorneys, and numerous authorities were cited. The court took the matter under advisement over night, and when court convened in the morning he sustained the defendant's motion, and instructed the jury to find for defendant. Clore & Greene for plaintiff; Menifee and Rogers for defendant.

The case of Butler Carpenter against Columbus Carpenter and others, was decided in favor of the defendants, it being adjudged that the plaintiff take nothing because of the notes sued on. Hughes for plaintiff; Lassing & Riddell for defendants.

Stamler against Tomlin, continued generally.

Jacob Stahl, of Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, sued his neighbor. Esq. J. H. Walton for $125 to remunerate him for damages he alleges 100 turkeys belonging to the defendant did to his wheat, rye, millet and tomatoes. The defendant denied that he had to exceed 68 turkeys, and admitted they did trespass upon the plaintiff's premises some, but denied that they damaged his crops to the extent of $125. Each side had quite an array of witnesses, and it took about all day last Saturday to try the case. The jury assessed the damages at one cent, which will carry the cost, about $25, against the defendant. For plaintiff, Clore & Greene; for defendant, Rogers and Castleman.

The petit jurors were excused from Saturday evening until Tuesday morning.

After a long, hard fight J. M. Baker was given a judgment against Mrs. Lucie H. Baker for $2,620 35, and an execution was ordered to issue immediately. The attachment levied on the land in the Big Bone neighborhood, was discharged. This was about the hardest fought case of the term. The plaintiff was represented by O'Neal & Wright and Castleman; The defendant, by Clore & Greene and Rogers.

The suit of John Watson vs. Martin and Ben Michaels for $15,000 damages, growing out of the pistol duel between the Michaels and Watsons on Sunday, Sept. 11, 1898, was called for trial yesterday morning, and both sides announced ready, and the selecting of a jury was then begun. The jury was completed by noon, and is composed of the following persons: J. J. Ferris, Thos. Jones, J. J. Smith, Robert Nixon, Jerry Garnett, Wells Campbell, A. C. Porter, O. P. Conner, J. J. Berkshire, H. C. Duncan, Marion Bruce, P. P. Neal. The jury, as soon as completed, was sworn and court adjourned for dinner. When court met afternoon the witnesses for each side were called, there being 17 for the plaintiff and 27 for the defendant. The witnesses were sworn and admonished by the court, and excluded from the court room. Atty. O. M. Rogers then proceeded to state plaintiff's case. Watson is represented by Rogers and Hargit, and Michaels, by Harbeson, Clore & Greene, Lassing & Riddell and Tolin.

The plaintiff, John Watson, was called to the witness stand, and his direct examination consumed the entire afternoon. He gave a detailed account of the bloody encounter, from his standpoint, and told of the three ugly wounds he received—one in the left jaw, one in the left shoulder and one in the right side. His lower jaw was broken, and he says it has never assumed its natural position as regards the upper jaw. The clothing Watson wore at the time of the shooting, two teeth that were taken from his broken jaw, several fragments of the jaw bone, and the bullet that entered at the jaw and lodged in the throat, and which Watson coughed up several weeks after the shooting, were offered in evidence. The plaintiff's attorney produced a paper signed by the Watsons and Michaels, in which they, some time previous to the shooting, had agreed to drop all past differences and to live in peace with each other, and proposed to introduce it in evidence, to which the defense objected. A lengthy argument followed, at the conclusion of which the objections were overruled and the agreement was permitted to be read to the jury, which had been absent from the court room during the arguments. This concluded the day's proceedings. Attorney Harbeson stated the defense, it being that the Michaels did not do the shooting complained of, but if they did it was done in self-defense.

When court convened this morning Mr. Watson took the stand for cross-examination, but was first asked a few more questions by his attorneys. When we went to press the witness was undergoing a rigid cross-examination.

The trial of the case now before the court will not be concluded before to-morrow or next day.

The jurors not on the Watson-Michaels jury were allowed for six days services each, and were discharged yesterday immediately afternoon.

NOTES.

This term of the circuit court will send no one to the pen.

Judge Cram has performed his duties in a very satisfactory manner.

The petit jurors were detained only a few hours in the morning two or three days last week.

The daily attendance at court was small, being limited to litigants, witnesses and attorneys.

The name of B. F. Menifee, of Crittenden, was inadvertently omitted last week from the list of out-of-town attorneys. Ben is always entitled to especial mention.

Miss H. Best, an experienced court stenographer, of Cincinnati, is taking the evidence in the Watson-Michaels case in short hand. She is employed by both parties.

Uncle Noah Clore, of Florence, over 80 years old, was one of the regular petit jurors, and was on hand every morning promptly at the appointed hour, ready for duty.

Conner & Hogan have bought about 50,000 pounds of tobacco at an average of 4½ cents.

Rev. Cook filled his regular appointment in the Methodist Church at this place Sunday morning and night.

James Clore took his family to the city yesterday to do some shopping and to introduce them to Santa Claus.

The local rock breakers are very busy now trying to finish their work and draw their money for Christmas.

John Bentler, aged 74, of Florence, died Monday, after a painful illness of several days. He was the farther of Tony Bentler, of this place.

Three negroes have been lynched in Indiana, this week. Kentucky is not in it any more as compared with Indiana, any more, when it comes to lynchings.

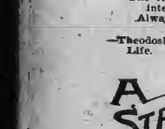
A Christmas Correspondence



FROM her to him:
"Dear Jim,
I'm so perplexed.
So altogether tired out and vexed.
I've tramped through miles and miles and miles of store,
I've handled gloves and ties and trash galore.
The girls are all disposed of—any stuff
That looks expensive's always good enough—
But you men, who grow humorous at a tie
And mock us for the poor cigars we buy,
This wisdom isn't cribbed from out the pater's—
For my enlightenment, see comic papers)
You know a smoking cap would make you mad;
Please, is there anything you haven't had?
Just mention any trifle you prefer—
What is it that you want for Christmas, sir.
And I will bless you with my latest breath,
Most cordially, your friend.
Elizabeth."

"Dear Girl," he wrote,
"I'm sorry that you're harassed,
Although you've made me frightfully embarrassed.
Each Christmas of my life I've been so haunted
By all the awful things I haven't wanted,
I hardly can believe the tale is true
That I'm at last to have a thing, I do.
In fact, your letter really seems to say,
You are to dictate, I am to obey.
So poor, rash child, no longer I demur;
These are the little trifles I prefer:
Imprimus then: Two certain eyes of blue
That tell unbid the hidden thoughts of you;
Second: Your strong, young hands, alert to lend
Their tender strength to help and hold a friend;
And third: That laugh of yours that rings as gay
As happy bells upon a holiday;
And fourth: Your sweetness, tenderness and truth,
The glory and the gladness of your youth.
Dear little Madam Santa Claus, a line
To tell me if this present may be mine.
Oh, child, be generous this Christmas day,
And your petitioner will ever pray
The right to sign himself, with sweet intent,
Always your grateful, glad Recipient."

—Theodosia Pickering Garrison, in N. Y. Life.

A Stranger And Ye Took Me In.

THE Auberts were taking a step up in life. From being birds of passage in a tenement house, free to flit by the midnight train to Canada whenever fancy dictated, they were evolving into landowners and had bought a house. It was a very little house on the hillside, which overlooked the village where Jean Aubert and Delia and Henri worked in the mills, but two acres of land went with it, and already the little Auberts were growing rosy and fat-legged. Hitherto the gates of Paradise had been effectually closed to them, and while woods and fields no more than half a mile away and the whole street on the other side lined with green lawns to tempt their very eyes, they had never till now kicked up their heels on grass.

Peeping out of the two street windows of the yardless double tenement house which had been their home, or playing softly round the doorstep on hot summer evenings, they had looked like a family of mice, noiseless, bright-eyed and shy. Mamma Aubert was the mother mouse, a thin, dark-eyed, decent French-Canadian woman, seldom seen outdoors, but often of an afternoon by the window with a half-headed baby in her arms and a rather hectic flush upon her cheeks. In school the little Auberts wore perennial high-necked, long-sleeved, pink calico aprons, and still maintaining their mouse-like manners did excellent work. The boys were black-eyed rogues, but like true Frenchmen took kindly to instruction in cap-doffing and excuse-me. They all had a gift for penmanship and drawing, and Robert Aubert was the artist of the school.

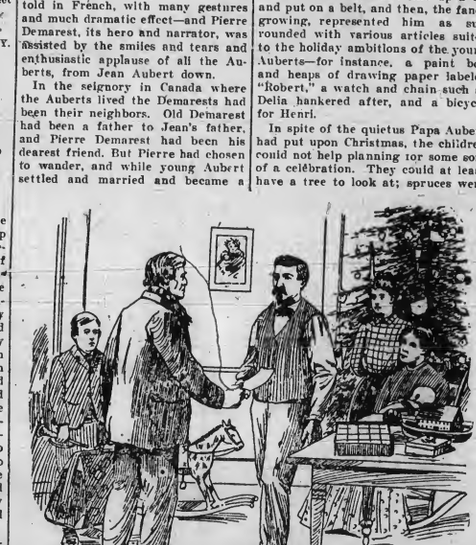
The year before the horse was bought the two eldest children had graduated into the woollen mill, and Delia's deft fingers earned enough money to pay her board, clothe herself tastefully and have a little margin left, which she laid by for furniture for the room which they were going to call parlor.

There was one shadow on the family happiness, and that was the mortgage; and just before Christmas this shadow began to assume alarming proportions. It had looked easy in the spring, when they first moved into the new home, to meet the payment which was due in December. Jean Aubert was carpenter and mason in one of the factories, and a steady and capable man, but the process of evolution is never without a struggle, and, do the best he could, interest was all he could pay, for that, what with the cold and suddenly on and his restful days ones being uncommonly and hard on their clothes their summer out doors, the resources were strained to the Delia and Henri contributed savings, the parlor that was to out up, and they all came pretty strict diet of pudfolk. It was a poor outmas, for ahead of them interest and other besides the continuous or Bring.

"I don't know but I've undertaken too much," Jean Aubert said, soberly. "It costs more over here than is did on the street. If we don't save more this winter than we have since we came, we shall have to move back," and in the melancholy silence that followed Mamma Aubert gave up her chickens and cow, Delia saw her dream of muslin curtains and an organ vanish in air, and the children suffered that depression of spirits which is always induced by a verdict adverse to Christmas.

Fortune has a way of experimenting with full cups to see how much more they can hold after they are apparently brimming. The Auberts thought they had all the mouths they could feed and all the cares they could compass consistent with the ambition, which they were not yet prepared to relinquish, of owning their house, when the very next day after the family council a knock came at their humble door and Madame Aubert opened it on an old man, who asked if Jean Aubert lived there.

"I come to see him from Canada," said he.



It was three o'clock in the afternoon, but Madame Aubert made the visitor comfortable by the fire. He was old and poorly dressed, and had with him a shabby carpetbag.

"You know me?" he asked, as he took off his coat and prepared to make himself at home. "No? Ah, Jean remember. His father my old neighbor—frien'—up in Chateau-grand."

Madame Aubert went about her work, the little Auberts resumed their play, the older children came stamping in from school. The questions they all entertained in respectful silence about the stranger who sat dozing by their fire—Who was he? Had he come to stay? What should they do with him?—waited till Jean should come.

That evening they all sat up and listened to the fine old story of the Boy Who Went to Seek His Fortune —or was it the Prodigal Son? It was told in French, with many gestures and much dramatic effect—and Pierre Demarest, its hero and narrator, was assisted by the smiles and tears and enthusiastic applause of all the Auberts, from Jean Aubert down.

In the seignory in Canada where the Auberts lived the Demarests had been their neighbors. Old Demarest had been a father to Jean's father, and Pierre Demarest had been his dearest friend. But Pierre had chosen to wander, and while young Aubert settled and married and became a farmer on the land adjoining old Demarest's, Pierre went west and disappeared. No word came from him, and except in Aubert's stories to his children of the friendship he and Pierre had had together in the days when Aubert was a stranger and Father Demarest had taken him in, the very memory of Pierre Demarest seemed to have died. Gone 30 years! His audience gathered that he had first drifted beyond the pale of civilization in company with a party of railroad engineers; that he had been a guide and hunter in the Rocky mountains; that he had had some experience in mining, and that he had been to Alaska. He talked of Indians and bears with a familiarity that made the Aubert boys' hearts burn within them. But he dwelt with most particularity upon his home-coming.

"I think I see my home before I die," he said. "I come to Chateau-grand. I take my bag and walk down the road—two miles—to my old home. No one know me. My father dead, my mother dead, my brother Selim say no room for me. He not care. He say he think me dead. Why not me write so many years? My brother Leonard live in Chateau-grand. I go to him. I walk back all the way to his house. He have big, good house. He woman scowl at me—so! —and say: 'You ole man, you poor, you come to live on us, you go 'way.' They give me no supper. I take my bag and think of my frien' Aubert. I go again into the country. I come to my frien' Aubert's house. He dead, too, but ils won just like him. Glad to see me 'fore he knew me. Give me supper. When he find out who I am, he seize my hand, he laugh, he cry, he say: 'My father's frien'!' I cry, too. I stay two weeks with him and his brother on next farm. They very kind to me. I say: 'Where your brother Jean? He little boy when I leave home.' They say: 'He in the states, in Harwichtown, New Hampshire. He work in mills. Do well. Have wife and children.' I say: 'I go to see him. Spen' Christmas with him, if he glad to see me.' Not see my brothers any more. They 'fraid I cost them money. I not trouble them."

Jean Aubert grasped the old man's hand.

"We are truly glad to see you," said he. "We are not so well off as we were, because we struggle hard to buy this house. The little children want the air. My woman like a cow and chickens. My girl here, Delia, want a little room—a parlor—for her beaux. We work hard all together for the pay. But we see our friends. If you'll take what we can give you, you are kindly welcome. Many times I've heard my father tell how kind your father was to him. And the children here will like to hear some more about your life."

In the days that followed the family made good Jean's welcome, and both by word and act caused their old visitor to feel at home. Their native French politeness, united with real kindliness of heart, concealed the inconvenience which his presence caused them, and in truth, except for the fact that the family divisor had already seemed as big as it could well be, and that it is always a problem how to put 12 persons to sleep in five beds, Pierre was very little trouble. He sat for the most part by the fire, quiet and content. In the evening when they were all at home he told stories and talked with Jean about old times. The children ceased to be shy before him. Robert furtively drew his picture—on a shingle, as many a brother artist has been driven by stress of circumstances to do. He was a man of medium size and much weather-beaten—a study in brown, with a keen old face, little gold rings in his ears, bright eyes, and small, strong hands. He was old, but not feeble, he was silent, but not stupid, and after his own fashion seemed entirely at and at ease. Robert finished him, and after a moment's contemplation added a beard, a fur cap, and trimmed his old coat with fur; rounded his waist line up a bit and put on a belt, and then, the fancy growing, represented him as surrounded with various articles suited to the holiday ambitions of the young Auberts—for instance, a paint box and heaps of drawing paper labeled "Robert," a watch and chain such as Delia hankered after, and a bicycle for Henri.

In spite of the quietus Papa Aubert had put upon Christmas, the children could not help planning for some sort of a celebration. They could at least have a tree to look at; spruces were to be had for the cutting on the hill that overshadowed the village. The little boys would get one. Robert should make a paper angel for the top. They would color egg shells for ornaments, and Mamma Aubert promised them a cake and snow ice-cream.

"And we will say," they declared, and it was a piece of philosophy worthy of older heads, "we will say, when the time comes to take off the presents, that this house is our present."

What was that? Did old Demarest chuckle, or merely cough in his sleep? They thought he was dozing, as, with six heads in a bunch, they whispered their plans in the corner on the other side of the fire. If they only could have seen what was written inside that rusty old envelope of a man! Has anybody imagined how it must feel to be Santa Claus? If it is true that it is more blessed to give than to receive, and that, whatever the joys of possession, generosity feels better than gratitude, St. Nick must be the happiest being in the universe. And Pierre Demarest was planning to be the Auberts' St. Nicholas.

The day before Christmas he buttoned on his coat and trudged over to the village.

"I buy some little things for you' young ones," he said to Mme. Aubert. That night he took Robert and Delia into his confidence. Robert was to go next day and get what he had bought and Delia was to smuggle the parcels into the house and put them on the tree.

"You not tell," he said, impressively; and then with a twinkle: "I like to see what the chil'ren say."

Delia will never forget that Christmas, not merely for what happened in the evening, but for the responsibilities which beset her during the day. If they had not all gone off to church in the morning except Robert and herself and the baby, she never could have managed it. Robert came home fairly staggering under the weight of the things the old man had bought.

"There are candles, Delia," he panted, "and a lot of those shiny things from Seaforth's to hang on the tree, and I haven't got them all, either. The team's coming from Brown & Taylor's to bring the rest."

"Why," said Delia, "why—I thought he was poor! He said: 'A few little things to please the children.' Where shall we put them all? I know, here in the parlor, and oh, Robert, bring the tree in there, and we'll hang up evergreens, and nobody'll mind if there isn't any furniture; they'll be looking at the tree."

At seven o'clock that Christmas evening the parlor door was opened and the Auberts, with mingled feelings of self-denial and expectancy, were marshaled in.

"There are presents!" they gasped. Where were Robert's angel and the egg-shells? "There are candles! And candy! And stars! And shining balls!" And from awe-struck surprise they mounted by rapid strides into ecstasy, and from gasping took to shouting. There were dolls and dishes and a rocking-horse. There was a pasteboard village and a Noah's ark and a box of blocks. In bewildered surprise Robert saw a paint-box and a parcel of drawing paper labeled "Robert." Delia fairly turned pale at finding that a small package for her contained a little silver watch and chatelaine. Henri was speechless over an order for a bicycle.

"What does this mean?" demanded Jean Aubert, sternly.

"It means," said Pierre Demarest, standing before him, "that I not a poor man. My brothers make one big mistake. They think me come to live on them—I buy them out if I like! They turn old, poor man—brother—many years gone—out into the street. They not get any of my money! But frien' —ol' frien's boys—ol' frien' Aubert's boys, who know me not, they think of their father, pity poor old man—kind to me, take me in, make me at home. I pay them back! Ay you, that was frien' Aubert's little boy, you glad to see me, too. I come to try you! You many chil'ren—good chil'ren, little house, work hard to pay for it. You give me what you got, you make me feel at home. I hear the little chil'ren whisper 'bout their Christmas. They not look cross at me and wish me go away. I see what Robert draw—ol' Santa Claus that look like me an' what he bring him. I hear the chil'ren say this house their Christmas present. I give it to them! You say the mortgage thousand dollars. I give you $2,000. I give you' brothers same. Because you kind to me. I stranger and you took me in!" and into Jean's astonished hand Pierre thrust a check for that amazing sum.

"And now I go away," said the old fellow; "to-night, right now. I stay two weeks. I fin' my frien's. They know me when I come again—remember ol' Pierre! You pay your mortgage. «Be happy."

And in spite of their remonstrances, as if he would not burden them with having to express their gratitude or did not care to see them try, he then and there, before that wonderful evening was half over, girded on the old coat, seized his faded bag and trudged off manfully in the moonlight, vanishing as suddenly as he came.

I shall not try to describe the emotions that possessed the Aubert family on that never-to-be-forgotten Christmas night and during the succeeding week. The older ones walked in a dream, doubting whether that precious piece of paper which was to set them securely on the plane of independence might not be worthless, until word came from New York that it was genuine and Jean might get $2,000 for it any day. Which he did—2,000 one-dollar bills, and sat up all night with his wife counting it over and trying to realize the magnitude of his good fortune.

"The fact is, sir," he said next day when he went to discharge the mortgage, "my wife and I never saw so much money before in all our lives. We wanted to sort of take it in. So we kept it all by us over night. Put the rest of it in the bank? Well, no sir. You see we feel richer to have the real money right by us. And maybe we shall use some of it to fix up the house. My girl, she set on having some parlor furniture, and my wife, she want piazza on the front."

A MEAN MAN.

Gilson—I understand that Gilcarret's wife has left him.

Willets—Is that so? What was the trouble?

Gilson—She asked him what he was going to give her for a Christmas present.

Willets—Yes?

Gilson—He said he had decided to let her get her teeth fixed.—N. Y. Press.

Day of Thanksgiving.

The deepest note of Christmas is thanksgiving. The angels sang its first Te Deum for all men to learn. And our Christmas prayer shall be: "Give us day by day this day's doxology; teach our common lives to sing 'Glory to God.'"—T. L. Darlow.

STATE NEWS HAPPENINGS.

THE INAUGURATION.

Gov. Beckham Takes His Seat For the Remaining Three Years of the Present Term.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 12.—Gov. J. C. W. Beckham was inaugurated Tuesday for the remaining three years of the present term as governor. Nearly all of the state militia and many visiting political clubs, including the Duckworth club, of Cincinnati, and civic societies, were in line.

The city was gayly decorated in honor of the event and a vast throng of people witnessed the ceremonies. Perfect December weather marked the day and the festivities wound up Tuesday night with the conventional inaugural ball, which has been a feature of the inauguration in this state for many years and at which the elite of the state were in attendance.

Gov. Beckham, in his inaugural address, among other things, said:

"My inauguration at this time, in consequence of the election held November 6, does not mean any change from the course pursued in the executive department of the state since the 3d of last February, when, upon the death of Gov. Goebel, I was sworn in to fill the office until a successor should be chosen. * * *

"The best service that I can render my party will be in giving the state a clean and honest administration of its executive affairs, in a spirit of fairness and tolerance, with no feeling of partisan hate or malice, with the sincere desire to remove as far as possible all friction and ill feeling from among our people and to restore, as much as I can, among them an era of fraternity and prosperity.

"Let us all forget the bitterness engendered by political strife, clasp hands as Kentuckians and, shoulder to shoulder, proud of our state and hopeful of its future, march forward in the unanimous effort to develop it material and moral welfare.

"The respective rights of capital and labor should be justly and equitably protected by wise and conservative legislation. * * *

"You see here a large part of the state militia, reorganized in the last few months, and placed upon a footing of efficiency that makes it a credit to the state.

"I want to say to you, however, that, while it shall be our policy to keep the state guard in a first-class condition, the military power, during my term of office, shall always be in absolute subordination to the civil authorities, and shall never be called into active service except as a last resort in carrying out the decrees of judicial tribunals. The courts must be respected, the laws must be enforced, and life, liberty and property must be as safe from one end of our commonwealth to the other, as they are anywhere else on earth.

"No sectional feelings among the people of the state should exist, and the citizen of the mountains, the citizen of the Blue Grass, the citizen of the Pennyrile and the citizen of the purchase should unite in the beautiful strains of that grand old song, 'My Old Kentucky Home,' that always fills the heart of the Kentuckian with deepest emotions, and together in fraternal bonds they should struggle to make that home the happiest on earth, wherein peace and content and brotherly love may dwell, and banish the gaunt specter of sectional hate and party animosity.

"The most difficult and trying duty placed in the hands of the governor is the pardoning power. The power should not be abused, and it is my purpose to exercise it only in extraordinary cases, where the facts in the case clearly show that the petitioner is beyond question entitled to it. Courts of justice and juries, if they err at all in such matters, generally do so on the side of leniency and mercy, and cases are very rare where further indulgence should be asked of the executive. The certainty of punishment has more to do in the prevention of crime than the severity of it.

"I have faithfully and earnestly endeavored to perform the duties of the office in accordance with my oath and for the best interests of the commonwealth.

"Therefore, invoking the aid of Almighty God and appealing for support to the responsive hearts of chivalrous Kentuckians, I assume the duties of this office with the prayer upon my lips that you shall never have cause to regret this day and that no act of mine, as your chief executive, shall ever deserve your just censure."

INSTANTLY KILLED.

A Louisville Gravedigger Was Shot Through the Heart While Abusing His Family.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 17.—William Ellerman, a gravedigger at Cave Hill cemetery, was shot and instantly killed at his home, 731 Coke street, Sunday night. The identity of the man who fired the shot is not known, but William Newrad and John Pearce, who had left the house only a few minutes before, are suspected. The shooting is the result of a quarrel between the dead man and his wife. They began quarreling early Sunday evening, and it is said that Newrad and Pearce, who were visiting Mrs. Ellerman's daughter, Miss Nellie Maerhart, took the part of the women. This angered Ellerman, and he ordered the men to leave the place. This they did, after which Ellerman began abusing the girl. Finally she was forced to leave the house, making her exit through the front door, with Ellerman in pursuit. She ran down the street screaming. When Ellerman reached the gate a shot rang out and he fell dead, the bullet having pierced his heart. Mrs. Ellerman said Sunday night that she did not believe her husband had been shot by either Newrad or Pearce.

Smallpox at the Asylum.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Dec. 17.—Two well-defined cases of smallpox have developed among the colored patients at the Western Lunatic asylum, and steps have been taken to prevent its spread.

Stricken While Preaching.

Paducah, Ky., Dec. 15.—Rev. Harper, of Danville, Ky., who is here conducting a revival meeting at the Second Presbyterian church, was stricken with vertigo while delivering a discourse, falling while at the middle of his sermon.

A Chance For Howard.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 16.—Jim Howard's attorneys secured a continuance in the court of appeals Friday, and his case will not be heard till some day in January, when the new court has been organized.

RACING EVENTS.

New Louisville Jockey Club Makes Announcement of a Number of Stakes to Close January 5.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 14.—The new Louisville Jockey club Thursday announced the following stakes to close January 5, 1901:

Spring Meeting, 1901.

The Debutante stakes, for 2-year-old fillies. The value of the race to be $1,300, of which $200 to second and $100 to third. Four furlongs.

The Wenonah stakes, for 2-year-old colts and geldings. The value of the race to be $1,300, of which $200 to second and $100 to third. Four and a half furlongs.

In addition to the above stakes, there will be run at the spring meeting (April 29 to May 11) the Kentucky Derby, $6,000; Clark stakes, $4,000, and Kentucky Oaks, $3,000.

AT A FUNERAL.

The Dead Man's Wife and Brother Were Fatally Hurt in a Runaway Near Hopkinsville.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Dec. 15.—Returning home from the burial of Thomas Carver, at Vaughn's Chapel, the horses attached to the carriage containing Mrs. Carver, widow of the deceased; F. M. Price, a brother-in-law, and Mrs. Price, a sister, took fright and ran off, upsetting the vehicle and throwing the occupants violently to the ground. Price, who is 70 years old, became entangled in the lines and was dragged 30 yards. He is fatally injured. Mrs. Carver had her right arm broken and was internally injured. She will probably die.

SHOT TO DEATH.

John Parker Apparently Ignored an Order of the Smallpox Guard, and Was Killed.

Williamsburg, Ky., Dec. 15.—John Parkey, of La Follette, who was returning home from work, was shot and instantly killed while passing through the guard line of that town. La Follette has been quarantined for some weeks, owing to smallpox, and guards were stationed around the town. Parkey apparently ignored the order of Guard Steve Adkins and he drew his revolver and fired.

An Unlucky Number.

Mayking, Ky., Dec. 15.—U. U. Craft, a Letcher county teacher of note, has 13 indictments against him in the circuit court. One is for riding through the court house and shooting right and left when intoxicated. He is a son of John W. Craft, circuit court clerk, and stands well in society.

Smallpox at Lexington.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 17.—Seventeen cases of smallpox are now at the local pesthouse, and the disease seems to be spreading rapidly. A white child who has been attending the schools has been stricken.

No Murder Case on the Docket.

Mayking, Ky., Dec. 15.—The Perry circuit court is in session this week at Hazard. For the first time in the county's history there is not a murder case on the docket.

A Girl's Terrible Death.

Saylersville, Ky., Dec. 15.—Margaret Tinsley, aged 22, was standing before an open grate, when her clothing became ignited, inflicting fatal injuries.

The Case Dismissed.

Columbia, Ky., Dec. 17.—The examining trial of Azure Damron, who killed Ervin Bottoms in this county Monday evening, was held before Judge Butler. The proof indicated that Damron acted in self-defense, and the case against him was dismissed.

John J. McKenna Removed.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 17.—John J. McKenna has been removed from his position as deputy in the county clerk's office, and L. E. Pearce has been made chief deputy.

A FAVORED NATION.

Dr. Talmage Speaks of Prosperity of American People.

Divine Blessings Showered Upon Us —He Draws Comparisons Between Our Own and Other Countries.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

Dr. Talmage preaches a discourse of Christian patriotism and shows the resources of our country and predicts the time when all the world will have the same blessings. His two texts are Revelation xxi., 13: "On the south three gates;" Psalm cxlvii.: "He hath not dealt so with any nation."

Among the greatest needs of our country is more gratitude to God for the unparalleled prosperity bestowed upon us. One of my texts calls us to international comparison. What nation on all the planet has as of late had such enlargement of commercial opportunity as is now opening before this nation? Cuba and Porto Rico and the Philippine islands brought into close contact with us, and through steamship subsidy and Nicaragua canal, which will surely be afforded by congress, all the republics of South America will be brought into most active trade with the United States. "On the south three gates." While our next-door neighbors, the southern republics and neighboring colonies, imported from European countries 3,000 miles away $675,000,000 worth of goods in a year, only $126,000,000 worth went from the United States—$126,000,000 out of $675,000,000, only one-fifth of the trade ours, European nations taking the four fingers and leaving us the poor thumb. Now all this is to be changed. There is nothing but a comparative ferry between the islands which have recently come under our protection, and only a ferry between us and Bolivia, Peru, Paraguay, Uruguay, Venezuela, Salvador, Nicaragua, Colombia, Costa Rica, Equador, Brazil, while there are raging seas and long voyage between them and Europe. By the mandate of the United States all that will be changed through new facilities of transportation. The Hispano-American congress just closed at Madrid will fail in its attempt to divert all the trade of South America from us to Europe. What encouraging symptoms that our trade with Cuba and Porto Rico has been quadrupled! But that is only a prophecy. "On the south three gates"—yea, a hundred gates!

In anticipation of what is sure to come, I nail on the front door of this nation an advertisement:

Wanted. — One hundred thousand men to build railroads through South America and the islands of the sea under our protection.

Wanted.—A thousand telegraph operators.

Wanted.—One hundred million dollars' worth of dry goods from the great cities of the United States.

Wanted.—All the clocks you can make at New Haven and all the brains you can spare from Boston and all the bells you can mold at Troy and all the reapers you can fashion at Chicago and all the hams you can turn out at Cincinnati and all the railroad iron you can send from Pittsburgh and all the statesmen that you can spare from Washington.

Wanted. — Right away, wanted by new and swift steamers, wanted by well-trained lawyers to plead our causes.

Wanted.—Doctors to cure our sick.

Wanted. — Ministers to evangelize our population.

Wanted. — Professors to establish our universities.

"On the south three gates." yea, a thousand gates. South America and all the islands of the sea approximate are rightfully our commercial domain, and the congress of the United States will see to it that we get what belongs to us.

And then tides of travel will be somewhat diverted from Europe to our islands at the south and to the land of the Aztecs. Much of the $125,000,000 yearly expended by Americans in Europe will be expended in southern exploration, in looking at some of the ruins of the 47 cities which Stephens found only a little way apart and in walking through the great doorways and over the miracles of Mosaic and along by the monumental glories of another civilization, and ancient America will with cold lips of stone kiss the warm lips of modern America, and to have seen the Andes and Popocatepetl will be deemed as important as to have seen the Alpine and Baikan ranges, and there will be fewer people spoiled by foreign travel, and in our midst less of the poor and nauseating imitation of the French shrug and the intentional hesitancy of a brainless foreign swell. The fact is that many are made vain by European travel, and, though sensible when they embarked, they return with a collar and a cravat and a shoe and a coat and a pronunciation and a contempt for American institutions and a bend of the elbow that make one believe in evolution backward from man to ape. Of the many thousands who now cross the sea annually thousands will, on pleasure and business, visit southern lands, and so tourists and merchants and scientists and capitalists will all help in this national development. "On the south three gates." And what other nation has such openings for commercial enlargement as ours?

Again, in this international comparison notice the happy condition of our country as compared with most countries; Russia, under the shadow of the dreadful illness of her great and good emperor, who now, more than any man in all the world, represents "peace on earth, good will to men," and whose empress, near the most solemn hour that ever comes to a woman's soul, is anxious for him to whom she has given hand and heart, not for political reasons, but through old-fashioned love such as blesses our humbler dwellings; India under the agonies of a famine which, though somewhat lifted, has filled hundreds of thousands of graves and thrown millions into orphanage; Austria only waiting for her genial Francis Joseph to die so as to let Hungary rise in rebellion and make the palace of Vienna quake with insurrection; Spain in Carlist revolution and pauperized; Italy under the horrors of her king's assassination; China shuddering with a fear of dismemberment, her capital in possession of foreign nations. After a review of the condition in other lands can you find a more appropriate utterance in regard to our country than the exclamation of the text? "He hath not dealt so with any nation?"

Compare the autumnal report of harvests in America this year and the harvests abroad. Last summer I crossed the continent of Europe twice, and I saw no such harvests as are spoken of in this statement. Hear it, all you men and women who want everybody to have enough to eat and wear. I have to tell you that the corn crop of our country this year is one of the four largest crops on record—2,105,000,000 bushels! The cotton crop, though smaller than at some times, will on that account bring bigger prices, and so cotton planters of the south are prosperous. The wheat fields have provided bread enough and to spare. The potato crop, one of the five largest crops on record—211,000,000 bushels! Twenty-two million two hundred thousand swine slain, and yet so many hogs left!

But now I give you the comparative exports and imports, which tell the story of national prosperity as nothing else can. Excess of exports over imports, $544,400,000. Now, let all pessimists hide themselves in the dens and caves of the earth, while all grateful souls fill the churches with doxology. Notice also that while other countries are at their wits' ends as to their finances this nation has money to lend. Germany, we are glad to see you in Wall street. If you must borrow money, we have it all ready. How much will you have? Russia, we also welcome you into our money markets. Give us good collateral. Meanwhile, Denmark, will you please accept our offer of $3,000,000 for the island of St. Thomas? My hearers, there is no nation on earth with such healthy condition of finances. We wickedly waste an awful amount of money in this country, but some one has said it is easier to manage a surplus than a deficit.

Besides this, we have in our country plenty of room, while the trans-Atlantic nations are crowded—crowded cities, crowded governments, crowded learned institutions; the population crowded, packed in between the Pyrenees and the Alps, packed in between the English channel and the Adriatic. Yes, on our continent plenty of room. Eight million square miles in North America and all but one-seventh capable of rich cultivation, implying what fertility and commerce! Four basins pouring their waters into the Atlantic, Pacific, Arctic and Gulf of Mexico! When I hear a man expressing the fear that this country is going to be crowded, I know right away he has not been in Texas. France has about 59,000,000 of people, but Texas is larger than France; Germany about 67,000,000 of people, but Texas is larger than Germany.

Again, there is no land on earth where the political condition is so satisfactory as in ours. Every two years in the state and every four years in the nation we clean house. After a vehement expression of the people at the ballot box in the autumnal election they all seem satisfied, and if they are not satisfied, at any rate they smile. An Englishman asked me in an English rail train this question: "How do you people stand it in America with a revolution every four years? Would it not be better, like us, to have a queen for a lifetime and everything settled?" But England changes government just as certainly as we do. At some adverse vote in parliament out goes one party and in comes another. Administrations change there, but not as advantageously as with us, for there they may change almost any day, while with us a party in power continues in power at least four years.

It is said that in our country we have more dishonesty in the use of public funds than in other lands. The difference is that in our country almost every officer has a chance to steal, while in other lands a few people absorb so much that the others have no chance at appropriation. The reason they do not steal is because they cannot get their hands on it. The governments of Europe are so expensive that after the salaries of the royal families are paid there is not much left to misappropriate. The emperor of Russia has a yearly little salary of $8,210,000. The emperor of Austria has a yearly salary of $4,000,000. Victoria, the queen, has a salary of $2,200,000. The royal plate of St. James palace is worth $10,000,000. There is a host of attendants, all on salaries, some of them $5,000 a year, some $6,000 a year. Comptroller of the household, mistress of the robes, captain of gold sticks, lieutenant of silver stick, clerk of the powder closet, pages of the back stairs, master of the horse, chief equerry, equerries in ordinary, crown equerry, hereditary grand falconer, vice chamberlain, clerk of the kitchen, grooms in waiting, lords in waiting, grooms of the court chamber, sergeant-at-arms, barge master and waterman, eight bedchamber women, eight ladies of the bedchamber and so on and so on. All this is only a type of the fabulous expense of foreign governments. All this is paid out of the sweat and blood of the people. Are the people satisfied? However much the Germans like William, and Austria likes Francis Joseph, and England likes her glorious queen, these stupendous governmental expenses are built on a groan of dissatisfaction as wide as Europe. If it were left to the people of England or Austria or Germany or Russia whether these expensive establishments should be kept up, do you doubt what the vote would be? Now, is it not better that we be overtaxed and the surplus be distributed all over the land than to have it built up and piled up inside of palaces?

Continuing this international comparison, I have to say to you that we have a better climate than is to be found in any other nation. We do not suffer from anything like the Scotch mists or the English fogs or the Russian ice blasts or the typhus of southern Europe or the Asiatic cholera. Epidemics in America are exceptional, very exceptional. Plenty of wood and coal to make a roaring fire midwinter, easy access to sea beach or mountain top when the ardors of summer come down, Michigan wheat for the bread, Long Island corn for the meal, Carolina rice for the queen of puddings, Louisiana sugar to sweeten our beverages, Georgia cotton to keep us warm. In our land all products and all climates. Are your nerves weak? Go north. Is your throat delicate? Go south. Do you feel crowded and want more room? Go west. I declare it: This is the best country in all the world to live in. How do I know it? I have 650,000 new reasons for saying it. Six hundred and fifty thousand people in one year came from the other side of the Atlantic to live in America, and they came because it is the very best country to live in.

While making this international comparison let us look forward to the time which will surely come when all nations will have as great advantages as our own. As surely as the Bible is true the whole earth is to be gardenized and set free.

Many years ago in this city I gazed upon a scene which for calamity and grandeur one seldom sees equaled. I mean the burning of the Smithsonian institution. It was the pride of our country. In it art had gathered rarest specimens from all lands and countries. It was one of those buildings which seize you with enchantment as you enter, and all the rest of your life holds you with a charm. I happened to see the first glow of the fires which on that cold day looked out from the windows of the costly pile. I saw the angry elements rear and rave. The shout of affrighted workmen and the assault of fire engines only seemed to madden the rage of the monsters that rose up to devour all that came within reach of their chain. Up along the walls and through the doors were pushed hands that snatched down all they could reach and hurled it into the abyss of flame beneath. The windows of the tower would light up for a minute with a wild glare and then darken, as though fiends with streaming locks of fire had come to gaze on in laughing mockery at all human attempts and then sunk again into their native darkness. With crackle and roar and crash the floors tumbled. The roofs began here and there to blossom in wreaths and vines of flame. Up and down the pillars ran serpents of fire. Out from the windows great arms and fingers of flame were extended, as though destroyed spirits were begging for deliverance. The tower put on a coronet of flame and staggered and fell, sparks flying, the firemen escaping, the terror accumulating. Books, maps, rare correspondence, autographs of kings, costly diagrams burned to cinder or scattered for many a rood upon the wild wind, to be picked up by the excited multitude. Oh, it seemed like some great funeral pile in which the wealth and glory of our land had leaped to burn with its consuming treasures. The heavens were blackened with whirlwinds of smoke, through which shot the long red shafts of calamity. Destruction waved its fiery banner from the remaining towers, and in the thunder of falling beams and in the roaring surge of billowing fire I heard the spirits of ruin and desolation and woe clapping their hands and shouting: "Aha! aha!"

I turned and looked upon the white dome of yonder capitol, which rose through the frosty air as imposing as though all the white marble of the earth had come to resurrection and stood before us, reminding one of the great white throne of Heaven. There it stood, unmoved by the terrors which that day had been kindled before it. No tremor in its majestic columns, no frown on its magnificent sculpture, no flush of excitement in its veins of marble. Column and capital and dome, built to endure until the world itself shatters in convulsions of the last earthquake. Oh, what a contrast between the smoking ruin on the one hand and that gorgeous dream of architecture on the other! Well, the day speeds on when the grandest achievement of man will be consumed and the world will blaze. Down will go galleries of art and thrones of royalty, and the hurricane of God's power will scatter even the ashes of consumed greatness and glory. Not one tower left, not one city unconsumed, not one scene of grandeur to relieve the desolation. Forests dismasted, seas licked up, continents sunk, hemispheres annihilated. Oh, the roar and thundering crash of that last conflagration! But from that ruin of a blazing earth we shall look up to see the temple of liberty and justice rising through the ages, white and pure and grand, unscarred and unshaken. Founded on the eternal rock and swelling into domes of infinitude and glory, in which the hallelujahs of Heaven have their reverberation. No flame of human hate shall blacken its walls. No thunder of infernal wrath shall rock its foundations. By the upheld torches of burning worlds we shall read it on the dome and architrave and throne of eternal dominion: "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but truth and liberty and justice shall never pass away."

HE WAS CONSIDERATE.

The Subject Was Painful But He Had to Enter His Objections.

In every up-to-date and well-regulated hotel the force of waiters is rigidly disciplined and each one is intrusted with special duties aside from those of the dining-room. The disciplinary system at one of Detroit's prominent hotels is as severely exact almost as that controlling a body of soldiers. The head waiter is an Irishman with a thick brogue and every morning before the duties of the day begin he lines his men up in the dining-room and impresses upon them the rules of the establishment and lectures them as to their behavior. He looked unusually serious the other morning as he stood before the soberly-dressed waiters and nervously flapped the ends of his swallow-tail coat, says the Detroit Free Press.

"Gintlemin," he began, "O'im obloiged toh make a few rema-arks this mornin' an a subject that is very painful toh me, an' wan that consarns all iv yez votally. It has bin reported an good atority that wan iv yez (Oi won't say which wan) has bin so sa—Oi mane indiscrate—as toh be makin' dipreciatory rema-arks about th' prop-pryter iv this hotel an' th' way 'tis conducted. Restoration of the hair is seldom accomplished after it begins to fall out. But there are instances like the following: Mr. S. L. Smith, formerly superintendent of Omnibus Line, Cincinnati, Ohio, wrote: "My hair commenced falling off about three years ago until I became quite bald, occasioned, I suppose, by dandruff and a slight disease of the scalp. But your Lotion removed the dandruff and all traces of the disease, and I have now nearly as much hair as ever. I have also used Palmer's Lotion for other skin diseases with equal benefit." GOVERNOR OF OREGON in His Family and Grip.

Uses Pe-ru-na For Colds

CAPITOL BUILDING, SALEM, OREGON.

A Letter From the Executive Office of Oregon.

The Governor of Oregon is an ardent admirer of Pe-ru-na. He keeps it continually in the house. In a recent letter to Dr. Hartman he says:

STATE OF OREGON,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
SALEM, May 9, 1898.

The Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Dear Sirs:—I have had occasion to use your Pe-ru-na medicine in my family for colds, and it proved to be an excellent remedy. I have not had occasion to use it for other ailments.

Yours very truly, W. M. Lord.

Any man who wishes perfect health must be entirely free from catarrh. Catarrh is well-nigh universal; almost omnipresent. Pe-ru-na is the only absolute safeguard known. A cold is the beginning of catarrh. To prevent colds, to cure colds, is to cheat catarrh out of its victims. Pe-ru-na not only cures catarrh, but prevents. Every household should be supplied with this great remedy for coughs, colds, and so forth.

It will be noticed that the Governor says he has not had occasion to use Pe-ru-na for other ailments. The reason for this is, most other ailments begin with a cold. Using Pe-ru-na to promptly cure colds, he protects his family against other ailments. This is exactly what every other family in the United States should do. Keep Pe-ru-na in the house. Use it for coughs, colds, la grippe, and other climatic affections of winter, and there will be no other ailments in the house. Such families should provide themselves with a copy of Dr. Hartman's free book, entitled "Winter Catarrh." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

WALTHAM WATCHES

Great Britain has blocked the peace negotiations in China. Minister Satow has been instructed to demand a modification of the joint note signed by all the other Powers. The demand will necessitate new diplomatic exchanges. The Boxers are close on Pekin, and there have been several engagements. The whole country is in a state of anarchy, and pacifying expeditions are rendered necessary.

Brer Masterson, of the Carroll county Republican, tickles us. He was first Consul to Arabi; then a rampant editor for the Democratic paper, the News, and the worst sort of a Goebel man. Now he is editor of the Carroll county Republican and has jumped right in to convince people that the negro, especially, ought to vote. But Brer Masterson is getting paid for his work, and that is more than a Democratic editor can get around here.—Trimble Banner.

Many of the pasture fields are grazed too close to the ground. When a herd of cows have free access to pasture they really cut the grass down many times, and much closer than is usually done with the mower. No plants will thrive if not given an opportunity to make growth, and the grass on some pastures is killed by continually checking the growth, while the feet of the animals greatly damage the grass, as the smaller the supply the more trampling by the stock.

What queer things the average person laughs at. If some one slips and falls, or is unfortunate enough to make any awkward blunder, the average person thinks it very funny and laughs, and repeats the affair for a funny story. If some one makes an unfortunate remark accidently his embarrassment is always a theme for merriment. Women, who are supposed to be sympathetic are the ones who have the largest stock of such funny stories. They always seem to be a success, people love to laugh at the misfortunes of others—Atchison Globe.

It is hinted by some of those who are familiar with the course of legislation at Washington that the Senate will put the canteen back in the army bill. Probably many members of the House who voted for its abolition, through politic motives rather than on principle expected the Senate would be less moved by sentimental influences. Of course the Representatives and the President will argue that it would be against sound public action to aeto the measure because it embraces some minor features with which they do not agree. The United States Senate is the Jorkins of our legislative establishment.—Enquirer.

Disregarding Edmund Burke's famous opinion that a whole community cannot be indicted, the President of the Indianapolis Gas Company charges nearly all the people of Benjamin Harrison's burgh with stealing gas from the pipes of the company all the year round. In the circular embodying this charge as an excuse for not paying dividends the company roundly declares that the wholesale thefts of gas "are not confined to the poor or vicious, but include city officials, lawyers, churches, ministers of the gospel, physicians, architects and some of the most prominent residents and business houses in the city of Indianapolis."

At the present prices that are prevailing for cottonseed and cottonseed meal, the latter is the cheaper and better feed. Every grower of cotton should also be something of a stockman since he is producing one of the very best of stock foods, and should utilize it at home so as to keep up the fertility of the soil. Just when to feed cottonseed and when to feed cottonseed meal is a question which troubles many farmers. In so far as the feeding value goes, it is true for all practical purposes that when what is received for a ton of cottonseed will pay for 750 pounds of meal, it is economy to buy meal. At the present prices it will do more than that, and no cottonseed should be fed this fall. The addition of about two pounds of cottonseed meal per day to the ration of corn or Kafir meal usually fed to steers that are being fattened, is profitable, especially when corn or Kafir stover is used for roughness. The cottonseed meal supplies the flesh and muscle-making materials which corn and Kafir-corn lack, and produces better growth and more rapid growth. It is better for this purpose than cottonseed because the oil which is taken out at the mill is not needed in the feed of cattle which are being fed on corn or Kafir. The stockmen and dairymen of the northern and eastern states can afford to pay high freight and still feed cottonseed meal as feed for their stock. It would certainly be profitable for Oklahoma farmers to make use of that is grown here and thus fertilify at home. Every ton of cottonseed meal is worth $20 as a fertilizer, and practically all this fertility belongs where it belongs.

The Cream.

Milk of different temperatures should never be mixed.

Make butter to suit the tastes of your customers.

The globules that rise to the surface in the first twelve hours make the finest butter.

Milk giving is a maternal function, and a mother should never be abused.

The growth of a heifer is so much deducted from what would otherwise go to milk production.

No cow should be retained in the dairy herd unless she has some good quality to recommend her.

Butter should be exposed as little as possible to air from the time it is churned until it is packed.

Care should be taken never to overwork butter as the grain and texture should be preserved.

A cow that is a poor milker by nature cannot be made a good milker by any amount of good feed or care.

The churn should never be filled more than half full and then if the temperature is right it will churn easily.

It is very important to see that milk or cream is not exposed to anything which would contaminate by absorption.

The more uniform the fodder and feed of the cows the more advantageous they will be as the milk will be more uniform.

The dairy farmer should own the best land, milk the best cows, hire the best hands and make the best profit.

Butter will come much quicker sometimes than others due generally to a difference in temperature, use a good thermometer.

Winter dairying affords a good opportunity to market all kinds of grain and roughness to a good advantage by feeding to the cows.

There is always a loss in selling poor dairy products. They cost as much to produce as that of a good quality while they sell at a lower price.

Will some friend of the Hay treaty kindly point out the particular advantages the United States would be getting under such conditions in return for its investment of $200,000,000? What single benefit should we have, in peace or in war, that would not be equally possessed by any nation that had not risked a cent on the work?

We have a double claim to special advantige in the Nicaragua Canal—first the claim of guardianship over a work on the American continent, and second the claim of proprietorship based on out payment of the entire cost of the enterprise. No other power has either of these titles.—N. Y. Journal.

Col. John M. Brooke, who designed the ram Merrimac and thus revolutionized marine warfare, is still living at Lexington, professor emeritus of physics in the Virginia Military institute. He is now 79 years old, but is still vigorous, and walks from his residence on the outskirts of the city to the postoffice at the same hour every morning.

Congressman Wheeler has presented a bill directing the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to the Auditor of the State of Kentucky the sum of $22,022,31, being the amount due the State for arming and equipping soldiers under the act of July 27, 1861, and now remaining unpaid. Mr. Wheeler introduced this bill after an interview with the Auditor for the War Department, who has gone over the claim and given this much of it his approval.

Geese for Profit.

Good house wife's geese lay Candlemas day.

Geese usually sell best in the fall and early in the winter.

Chinese geese are very noisy but excellent guards.

Geese begin laying late in January, or early in February.

Ganders become ferocious when the geese are hatching.

Access to water and a grass run are absolutely necessary in breeding geese.

When hatching, the geese should be interfered with as little as possible.

For practical purposes there is really very little choice between the Toulouse and Embden varieties.

The goose wants to make her own nest, and will not, like the turkey, allow herself to be set anywhere.

The New York market depends more or less upon New England for supply of green geese in the summer.

The goose will lay from ten to fifteen eggs and then sit diligently on them, and seldom fail to bring off a good brood.

The Chinese geese, both the white and gray varieties, are very ornamental, and make an attractive appearance on a body of water.

A gander and a couple of geese are sufficient to start with, for their eggs, as a rule, are very fertile, and they are excellent sitters.

Geese should have a house to themselves and be plentifully supplied with straw, with which to make their nests on the floor.

At ten weeks of age, or when the tips of the wings reach the tail, young geese are ready for market, and should weigh between 8 and 9 lbs.

Geese will come nearer living on pasture and taking care of themselves than any other class of poultry. Goslings come in for the table as "green geese" in the summer, and should be fine birds for the Michaelmas board.

A gentleman in Washington claims to have discovered the elixir of life and offers to extend the existence of persons who obey certain simple rules he will furnish them to 150 years or more. His theory is that "the particles of matter composing the human body are continually undergoing change, and in the course of seven years you have an entirely new body. If the atoms of our bodies could be continually supplied we would live on this earth forever in a physical body." The gentleman referred to, who is a draughtsman in a patent lawyer's office, claims to have discovered the secret of supplying these atoms by a certain formula which any person can follow. He will furnish typewritten instructions for each person in a form so simple that those of the most ordinary intelligence can comprehend the subject fully; but having spent 35 years in study and thought he asks remuneration to the extent of $100 for poor people and $500 for rich people before he will disclose his elixir of life.

Young Women

The entry into womanhood is a critical time for a girl. Little menstrual disorders started at that time soon grow into fatal complications. That female troubles are filling graveyards proves this. Wine of Cardui establishes a painless and natural menstrual flow. When once this important function is started right, a healthy life will usually follow. Many women, young and old, owe their lives to Wine of Cardui. There is nothing like it to give women freedom from pain and to fit young women for every duty of life. $1.00 bottles at druggists.

Miss Della M. Strayer, Tully, Kan.: "I have suffered untold pain at menstrual periods for a long time, was nervous, had no appetite, and lost interest in everything, in fact was miserable. I have taken four bottles of Wine of Cardui, with Thedford's Black-Draught, when needed, and to-day I am entirely cured. I cannot express the thanks I feel for what you have done for me."

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVI. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 26, 1900. NO. 10.

ABOLISH the hand-car.

THIS is the genuine article of Christmas weather.

MR. GOEBEL'S body will not be removed from Frankfort.

OUT West bank robberies and abductions have become epidemic.

EVERY well regulated gang of bank robbers has a hand-car in its outfit.

THE RECORDER, observing a long established custom, appears as usual, this week.

THE RECORDER is going to give several good guessers nice presents some time during the first year of the new century.

THE Boers are giving the British a great deal of trouble again, and John Bull is very uncertain as to the outcome of his war with them.

SMALL-POX has got a hold in several localities in this State. The State Board of Health is making a vigorous effort to stamp it out.

Capt. Haygate, of the British army, is at Kansas City to purchase 50,000 mules and horses for the British army in South Africa.

Samuel MacDonald, the Treasury clerk, who killed Frank H. Morris in Washington Saturday, is believed to be dying of his self-inflicted wounds, Renewed efforts are being made for a pardon for Col. H. Clay King, the Memphis attorney, who is serving a life term in the Tennessee penitentiary.

GOV MOUNT, of Indiana, says those who lynched the three negroes in his State, last week, shall be punished. He has been known to make a like declaration in the past, but it amounted to nothing.

HAD ex-President Harrison's Ann Arbor lecture preceded last November election, it would have dazed the Republicans. It is very plain now why he could not be prevailed upon to take the stump for the g. o. p. last fall.

SOME of the dollar a year exchanges that have been coming to this office, have increased their price fifty cents, having learned that a local paper without an immense advertising patronage cannot live with the subscription price at only one dollar a year.

AND ex-President Cleveland has announced that the Democratic party does not need reorganizing. It only needs to make its fights on live issues. "Jes" so—nominate Grover for President next time and let him dictate the issues, and then the party will be regenerated and rejuvenated.

A dutchman wanting to find out what business his son was going to follow placed a dollar, a deck of cards and a bottle of whiskey on a table in the young man's room and hid himself to watch what was done. On his arrival the young man seeing the things, first pocketed the coin, the cards and then drank the whiskey. The old Dutchman in his joy said to himself: "He'll make a bolidishun, py dam."

BEGINNING with the issue after the holidays the RECORDER will keep open house for the candidates, and those who desire to announce their candidacy for the nomination for any of the various county offices will find the latch string on the outside. A "V" strictly in advance is all the entry fee required at this end of the line. Don't be bashful, boys, remember the saying about a faint heart, and it applies with equal force to a good, fat office.

THAT lecture which ex-President Harrison delivered before the students at Ann Arbor, Michigan, was nothing less than a severe criticism of the President's colonial policy, and it has brought down on the ex-President the censure of such supporters of the new and dangerous policy as Grosvenor of Ohio, who finds that Mr. Harrison is "waspish," "selfish," "an ingrate," "mean minded," "egotistic and spiteful." Certainly a charming characterization.

CAN anyone answer the following question propounded by ex-Speaker Thomas B. Reed: "If killing 10,000 Filipinos in ten months, as our soldiers are said to have done, is benevolent assimilation, how many must the Spanish have killed in 300 years to warrant us in calling their rule in the archipelago tyrannous?

Some idea as to the magnitude of the turkey traffic throughout Kentucky can be obtained when it is stated that nearly 7,000 of these birds have been slaughtered at the Falmouth pens alone, to say nothing of the large number that have been sold to the hucksters and by the market people this season.—Pendletonian.

Thomas C. Ball has a novel way of collecting rent from slow payers. He makes a trip or two to see his tenants, and if they do not "pony up" he takes a door off the hinges or a window sash out and lets them cool out for a night or so. Usually before the second night comes the rent is paid.—Stanford Interior-Journal.

Mr John McGayock, an extensive farmer living on Honey Locust Creek, on the line of this and Breckinridge county, has a gander that is more than sixty years old. Mr McGayock is sixty-eight years of age and his first recollection as a boy was, the gander belonging to his mother. It was noted from the fact that it had a bunch of jet-black feathers on his back, and, notwithstanding its great age, it paddles around as spry as a gosling.—Hawesville Clarion.

THE Saturday Review protests vigorously against the Hay-Pauncefort treaty as adopted by the Senate of the United States. It says: "We have always held that President McKinley is the weakest of politicians, but if he falls to interpose to prevent this gross breach of the comity of Nations by the Senate nothiug can reinstate his reputation. We had not thought the Hey-Pauncefort treaty would end so disreputably; we have only ourselves to thank for our perpetual concessions. The overstrained eulogium of American statesmen meets no response except fresh demands and increasing insolence. We hope that English statesmen will be at last induced to resent their humiliations."

As will be seen by an article copied from the last issue of the Warsaw Independent, the recent primary election held in Gallatin county was certainly highly demoralizing in effect. The same complaint comes from Gallatin county that has followed recent primary elections in the other counties in this part of the State. It is hoped that Boone, which will follow with a primary election in a few months will set her neighbors a good example. None of the prospective candidates are possessed of any great amount of wealth, and it is hoped that, in their canvass, they will only use so much of it as is necessary for legitimate purposes. The candidates can shut off the corruption complained of in other counties if they will resolve so to do at the beginning of the campaign. Let Boone have an old time primary election, the successful candidates winning simply on their merits.

The surest evidences of the prosperity that has come to us and the abundance and cheapness of money, is the unprecedented demand for farms. For every farm offered for sale in Montgomery county there are always a dozen buyers. The demand far outruns the supply. Of course farms containing from 100 or 200 acres are in greatest request. One gentleman who owns about 600 acres, for which he paid less than $50 per acre some years ago, said to the Gazette man Monday: "I am just simply scardd out of my boots!" Asked what caused such perturbation, he answered: "In an ungarded moment I priced my farm to a man for $80 per acre, and I believe on my soul, he is going to take me up. I don't know what I will do with the money."

Parson Hopkins will not contest the Congressional election in his district. He will be a candidate for United States Marshal in the new Judicial district.

Secretary Hay's formal statement that he alone drew up the Hay-Pauncefote treaty and that Britain accepted it without altering a single word, is calculated to take one's breath away. It is understandable that the treaty might have been worked out on a give and take basis as the best that England would concede, but that an American Secretary of State should promise such a document and then should declare that Britain would never, never, never consent to any amendment in it, is about as incredible a proposition as we can well imagine.

GALLATIN COUNTY.

(From Warsaw Independent.)

The Democratic primary election for the nomination of candidates for county offices was held in Gallatin county, last Saturday, and was the hottest ever held in the county for many a day. There were a great many things done during the canvass and on the day of election that would have been better left undone; but politics have degenerated and is now won by any means possible, and all candidates are forced to resort to extreme measures to meet the tactics of their opponents. It is no worse here than elsewhere, but the general behavior and method of conducting campaigns are undignified and disruptable. It is corruption from start to finish. Money and whisky are the factors in securing votes and the fellow who does not use these methods isn't in it. The candidates however cannot be blamed much, for the fault lies with the voters, who as a rule, encourage these corruptable methods. No system of this kind could keep up with a strong, healthy, public sentiment against it, and if many of the voters were not willing that such methods should be practiced they could easily stop it. But last Saturday was a high water mark in Gallatin county politics, and everybody is glad it is over. The candidates were all clever, good fellows of good character and genial disposition, and that is what made the contest so heated, as all had active friends. When the returns were first received at Warsaw it indicated the nomination of Geo. Snyder for Sheriff, and his admirers carried him about on their shoulders. Later it was found that a mistake in the report from the Napoleon district had been made in transmitting the figures over the telephone and the correct returns gave James Connley the nomination. The same means made a tie in the jailer's race between T. H. Morris and Herndon Gibson, but after it was conceded to Mr. Gibson. The committee met here Monday and canvassed the returns, and the vote by districts is given below. The committee declared the following the nominees: County Judge, Jas. S. Brown; County Attorney, Robert Wood; County Clerk, Lafe J. Spencer; Sheriff, Jas. W. Connley; School Supt., Thos. P. Anderson; Assessor, Edward Skirvin; Jailer, Herndon Gibson; Surveyor, S. B. Grubbs; Coroner, Wm. Craig; Justices of the Peace, Hoggins district, Wm. Fothergill; Warsaw district, Wm. R. Payne; Napoleon district, John T. Connley; Sparta district, Curtis M. Gullion; Glencoe district, Wm. F. Ames. Constables, Sparta, Wm. Furguson; Warsaw, Sam'l Hutchinson; Glencoe, W. N. Thompson.

Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock one of the prettiest weddings that has ever taken place in Warsaw was consumated at the residence of Mrs. Sallie B. Chambers, when her talented daughter, Miss Willie Bailey Chambers, was united in the bonds of holy wedlock to Dr. John Kirtley Bannister.

A novel suit has just been decided at Winchester, this State, in which Commonwealth's Attorney R. E. Byrd posed on the witness stand as an epicure, with regard to flavor of a turkey gobbler. Byrd bought from a countryman what he thought was a 30-pound wild turkey. The bird formed a leading feature of the menu at a supper which Byrd tendered the Winchester bar and judiciary. It seems that one Walter Johnson shot the turkey, which was later claimed by Samuel Braithwaite, a farmer, as the prize gobbler of his tame flock. Johnson turned the turkey over to Braithwaite, and it was given to the countryman, who sold it to Lawyer Byrd for a wild turkey. After the bird had been served to Byrd's guests, Johnson, who killed it, still believing that it was a wild and not a tame turkey, brought suit against Braithwaite to recover the price of the bird. All the lawyers and Judges were summoned to testify, and Lawyer Byrd volunteered his testimony that the bird had a distinctly game flavor and was certainly wild, Judge Albin, who was at Byrd's supper and partook of the turkey, held to a different opinion, and decided the case in favor of Owner Braithwaite.

A very unusual and extraordinary event transpired in Williamstown last Saturday morning. Nothing like it ever occurred here before, and it is not at all likely that anything approaching a parallel happening will ever occur here again. Eight brothers, all grown and five of them married, ranging in age from twenty-two to forty-three years, and averaging 178 pounds each in weight, and six feet in height, came in to town together and went to Maj. Barbour's art gallery and "grouped" for a picture. They are, of course, hale, hearty and wholesouled fellows and dyed-in-the-wool Democrats. Their father and mother are both living, and their paternal grandfather, R. N. Roland, sr., is lively as a cricket at ninety-five, and is probably the oldest man in the county. These eight brothers are named James, Neat, L. C., H. B., R. D., Lewis, W. W. and J. N. Roland, and they were all born and reared in Grant county and now reside mostly in the Holbrook and Lawrenceville neighborhoods.—Courier.

W. G. Phillips, an oil well driller, well known in the oil fields of Pennsylvania, a few days ago performed a feat which is attracting the attention of oil men far and wide. Tied securely by the feet, he went head first into an oil well, 2000 feet deep, to remove a chain which had fallen in such a way as to obstruct the tools and stop operations. When it was found that the obstruction could not be removed by the ordinary methods, Mr. Phillips threw off his coat and laid aside his hat, then down he went into the 13-inch casing head first for 100 feet. As the rope was lowered with the human weight on the end of it, the air rushed out like a whirlwind, until, in a sepulchral voice, which seemed to come from the infernal regions, he called out to the men above: "Don't go so fast," As soon as he had reached the obstruction, the clank of the chain could be heard and then came the command, "Pull me up." Slowly they drew him up, feet foremost, with the chain clanking in the well below him, when suddenly the rope seemed to catch on something and the human weight refused to come further. "Quit your pulling," called Mr. Phillips from the bowels of the earth." I am caught on a spike." In the wooden tubing there was a spike which he had passed all right going down, but which caught him as he came back. While the men above were considering what to do to get him back to earth again, one of them noticed that the rope was slipping, and he told them from below that the rope was slipping off his feet. Suspended, head down, in a 13-inch casing, in a well 2000 feet deep, with the only tie which holds one to earth slipping, is not an enviable position to be in, and every device known to the drillers was suggested. Finally the rope was twisted back and forth several times, and at last the nail was passed, and the man, almost over come, was drawn out just as the cope slipped over the ankle of one of his feet. But the chain was gotten out, and the well, which cost several thousand dollars, was saved.

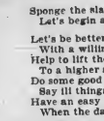
SOME NEW YEAR'S THOUGHTS

LET'S have fewer errors,
Try to make each day
Better than the former,
As we go our way;
Have less idle talking,
And commence to do—
Sponge the slate all over,
Let's begin anew.

Let's be better neighbors,
With a willing hand
Help to lift the fallen
To a higher stand;
Do some good for others,
Say ill things of none,
Have an easy conscience
When the day is done.



Let's try smiles for frowning,
Scatter wide the seeds
Of good thoughts and kindness,
Reaping noble deeds;
Put in daily practice
What we often preach;
Truth and right and justice
Let us try to teach.

Let's think less of dollars,
More of our own kind,
That we may be wealthy,
Not in purse, but mind;
Shun the false and evil,
Clasp the good and true—
Sponge the slate all over,
Let's begin anew.

When a man's Married

By Laurence Archer Hext.

IT WAS New Year's night; the clock was on the last stroke of nine, and John Kimball was on his way home. He was not hurrying home; indeed, he was proceeding rather leisurely for a man who had been married only six months. But John was meditating, and when a man meditates and walks at the same time he generally forces his feet to keep pace with his thoughts.

John had just parted from a crowd of his old friends of bachelor days, such dear old fellows—I don't mean dear old bachelors, but dear old friends, for John was only 25, and none of his friends were much older than himself. They had given him such a cordial invitation to go with them to the rooms of the Bachelors' club; they were such jolly good fellows, so free and easy and so utterly devoid of care, that they made John feel as though he were one of them again, and the parting from them had caused his thoughts to meander slowly back to the time when he was one of them.

John was thinking of those sweet old days of bachelorhood, when he didn't have to go home early at night; when it didn't really matter much whether he went home at all. He was thinking of the wonderful games of poker he used to play, and the funny stories that were so often related at the club, but he was thinking more particularly of the boys who were up there now, celebrating another anniversary of its birth—or suppose I say its origin; clubs cannot boast of parentage. He was thinking of the rare old wines that were being drunk and the fragrant odor of the imported Havanas. He was thinking of the various ridiculous resolutions that were being made, and he smiled as he thought how recklessly they would be broken.

A year ago he was a member of the Bachelors' club, and a year ago he had repeated, for the fourth time, his ironclad oath to always remain a member of the Bachelors' club. But a year works many wonders, creates many changes, and makes many mistakes.

When John took his fourth ironclad oath, a year ago, to the effect that "he would live and die a bachelor," that "he preferred single blessedness to married cussedness," and that "a wife, next to a mother-in-law, was a nuisance around the house," he was perfectly honest in what he said. But six months had hardly passed before he had "fallen like other fools," as his bachelor chums expressed it. Of course it was a hard blow to the fraternity, for John was one of its charter members and stanchest supporters; but the club rallied, passed red-hot resolutions, and posted a memorial: "To the memory of a departed brother," on its bulletin-board, and rocked along just as usual, without the presence of Mr. John Kimball.

Now, John Kimball wasn't a depraved man by any means—women think all clubmen like wine and cards better than women, and are, therefore, bound to be depraved; John, by uniting himself in marriage to a woman, had shown, much to the disgust of his club-mates, that he preferred the society of a woman to the society of his friends and wine and cards.

But recollections of old times, brought so forcibly to his mind, and remembrances of fond ties, so recently broken, brought him to a point where he found himself—like many men before him—debating a question that should have been settled forever, long before he took unto himself a wife, namely, which did he love best, his wife or his club? He loved his home and he adored the little woman who presided over it and endeavored, with all her might, to make it the happiest, dearest place on earth for him, but he could not banish from his mind the sweet recollections of the old days. And the more he thought of them the stronger became the yearning for his old associates and surroundings.

He felt like a social outcast. He had never before quite comprehended how good it is to be free. True, he was still the "autocrat of his own breakfast-table," but not quite "monarch of all he surveyed," and, be it said to his disgrace, if he hadn't found himself so near his own door he might have wandered back among the boys.

Suddenly, pausing in his meditations and glancing at his surroundings, he saw that he was within a block of his little home. His conscience smote him; he felt as if he had brought unhallowed thoughts on hallowed ground. He looked sheepish for a moment, then tried to change the current of his thoughts by whistling a love-song that he knew his wife admired. He was still whistling when he turned the night-latch and entered the door, to be greeted with a kiss from the little woman he had sworn to "love, honor and protect."

She was one of the dearest, sweetest little creatures in all the wide world—a woman must necessarily and naturally be very dear and very sweet when she is able to capture a clubman—and her first thought was for John's health and well-being.

After the kiss of greeting the first thing she did was to exclaim, not in a tone of reproof, but of solicitude: "Oh, John, dear, you will catch your death with your overcoat unbuttoned in the cold night air—and did you walk home?" Now that alone was enough to make John feel like a culprit, but he smiled and said something about "needing exercise," and "not feeling the cold," which was all probably very true, and together they walked, arm in arm, back to the cozy little dining-room, which also served as sitting-room for the little family.

Another reproof smote John's conscience the moment he entered the room. In front of the cheerful little hearthstone, where a bright fire was burning, stood his easy chair. Across the back hung his smoking-jacket. By one side were his slippers, and by the other, on a table, was his pipe, that he loved next to his wife.

"WHY—ER—I WAS—THINKING OF THE WAY SOME FELLOWS SPEND NEW YEAR'S NIGHT."

John felt abashed, to say the least of it, and it was fortunate for him that his wife was at his back at that moment, assisting him in removing his coat, instead of looking in his face, otherwise she might have asked some questions that he would have found difficulty in answering to her satisfaction.

Mrs. Kimball hung her husband's coat on its proper peg, helped him on with his smoking-jacket, chatting gayly all the while, and paused only for him to take his seat. John seemed to suddenly realize that the time had arrived for him to do something, and he accordingly sat down, very clumsily, in his chair and stared, very vacantly, at the fire. His wife's voice aroused him, and he jumped like a man who has suddenly and unexpectedly come in contact with the business end of a pin. "John, dear," she was saying, "won't you remove your shoes, put on your slippers, light your pipe, and let me finish reading to you the story I began the other night?—or are you too tired to hear it to-night?"

"Certainly, Helen, I'll take pleasure in listening to you. There is, really, nothing that I enjoy more. I—I was so busy with—er—my own thoughts that I quite forgot myself." And John proceeded to divest himself of his shoes and don his slippers in the greatest haste.

"Of what were you thinking, John?" she asked, coming over and placing her hand fondly upon his shoulder.

John's face crimsoned, and he tied two hard knots in his shoestring before he realized what he was doing.

"Why—er—I was thinking of the way some fellows spend New Year's night."

"How do 'some fellows' spend New Year's night, John, dear—more pleasantly than you do?"

John had just succeeded in untying the two knots in his shoestring when his wife's last question frightened him into tying three others. She noticed his embarrassment, but could not account for it, and, without waiting for his reply, she said: "Come, John, you'll never get your shoes off at this rate; let me help you, and when we have finished you can tell me how some fellows' spend New Year's night." And before he could enter protest, even if he had possessed the courage to try, she was down on the floor untying his shoestrings.

John's face, if it were possible, turned a shade redder, and he squirmed uneasily in his chair. All married men have occupied the same position, have experienced the same feelings that John Kimball occupied and felt when his wife kneeled by his side and assisted him in removing his shoes, and for their sakes I will refrain from elucidation. For the benefit of unmarried men, I will say that John felt like a young fellow who had just been requested to purchase a marriage license for his best girl and another fellow; I think they will understand. And for the benefit of the fair sex I will say that John felt like a girl who has proposed to a young man during leap year, and been rejected; I know they will understand. "Small," I think, defines John's feelings about as well and about as thoroughly as any word in the English language.

John has never been able to quite recollect just when his shoes came off, and just when his slippers went on. He was in the act of lighting his pipe—his wife had taken her seat on the other side of the fireplace, and was turning the leaves of her book in such an abstracted manner that he felt encouraged to hope that she had forgotten something—when she suddenly asked: "How do some fellows spend New Year's night, John?"

John forgot to light his pipe; he held the lighted match between his fingers until it burned their tips, and then he blurted out: "Why, my dear, these fellows I was thinking of assemble in a large room, drink cigars—I mean, drink wine, smoke cigars, tell vulgar tales, make ridiculous resolutions, and tack home at three a. m." When John finished, he looked as if he had been invited to attend his own funeral, and had accepted the invitation, under protest.

His wife laid aside her book, and coming over she seated herself on the arm of his chair, and, throwing her arms around his neck, she asked: "Why should my John think of such things? You never spent a New Year's night in that manner, did you, John?"

"Yes, Helen, I have," he answered, and there was a tremor in his voice, "and I have been thinking too much about those nights. They say an 'open confession is good for the soul;' hear mine, Helen, and judge me as you will,' and with his wife's arms still clinging fondly around his neck, and with her eyes looking straight up into his, he told her all about his temptation. And when he had finished he tenderly removed her arms, and, with his right hand upraised, he said: "And now, Helen, I want to make one more New Year's resolution, and while we both live it shall never be broken: 'Resolved, that I shall never allow my thoughts to wander backward, as they have today; and resolved, further, that my feet shall never stray beyond the threshold of my own domain, in the pursuit of pleasures, so help me God!"

"Amen," murmured his little wife, between her sobs, as she flung her arms around his neck.—Copyright, by Leslie's Weekly, and printed by permission of the same.

ONE WOMAN'S WAY.

How She Got Her Bashful Admirer to Pop the Question.

At a married women's luncheon recently a sprightly young matron challenged each on the company to relate the way she became engaged. "As for myself," she continued, airily, "I will confess, to give you all courage, that I proposed to Jack—and I will be willing to wager that two-thirds of the women here, if they did not actually 'pop the question,' at least gave very timely and necessary help."

At this, relates the Chicago Chronicle, there was a storm of protest and much laughter, but when the proposition was made to "swear in" each narrator to tell the "whole truth and nothing but the truth" there was much conscious and blushing dissent.

"Methinks you all protest too much!" said the first speaker. "I am sure that nearly every one of you are thinking this very minute of how you helped on your respective husbands at the crucial moment. Well, Mrs. Blank, am I not right?" she added, turning suddenly to her vis-a-vis across the table, whose expressive face showed inward appreciation of the charge. "How was it with you? I feel sure that you assisted your William—how did you do it?" And after a little urging and the promise from her neighbors to be equally frank Mrs. Blank began her confession.

"I knew that William really liked me," she began.

"Oh, of course, that goes without saying," laughed the self-constituted grand inquisitor.

"Otherwise I would never have dreamed of helping him," continued Mrs. Blank, with dignity, "but he was very slow! For months I waited, but he went on, sending me flowers and taking me to drive and devoting himself to me at dances without any result. You see, the poor fellow hadn't the courage to risk a refusal!" she explained, half defiantly — evidently rather repenting her confidences—but her listeners nodded understandingly, and she went on. "So I concluded I would first show him that there would be no risk, you understand. I thought and thought how to manage it, and finally an idea struck me. I wrote a supposed epistle to a girl I knew out west who had been my most intimate friend at school and of whom I had often spoken, and left a sheet from the letter in a book that I lent William to read. As I thought he might hesitate to read a private letter, I began the page with his name. I knew no man would resist that if he were in love and wanted to know what a girl thought of him. I wrote as if my friend had been teasing me about Mr. Blank, and, although I did not actually say I liked him, I said enough to make him feel pretty sure he could have me. Anyway, it answered. William wrote his proposal that very night, and after we were married I told him all about it!"

WOOING IN SPAIN.

There Is Much of the Ancient Troubadour Style About It Still.

Horace Lee Washington, the United States consul at Valencia, Spain, has evidently been observing some things around him that do not strictly concern his official duties. On a recent visit to this country he describes a Spanish wooing in an interesting manner. "One of the first things that strikes an American in Spain," he says, "is the manner in which they treat their women a domestic price—the former the lower of the two—is not entitled to tariff protection. — Chicago Tribune (Rep.).

——The subsidy bill hints very strongly of a determination on the part of the republican leaders to abuse their power to the end of inaugurating a period of prodigal extravagance and unbridled debauchery in public funds. It is time for the leaders of the party to stop short in their progress and consider soberly how the party will stand before the nation if it thus abuses the trust which the people have reposed in it.—Chicago Record (Ind.).

——On off days and for campaigning purposes many of the republican leaders have declared that in cases in which tariff duties levied for protection and not for revenue are made the basis of combinations to fleece the home consumer such duties should be repealed. Senator Clay, of Georgia, has been so verdant as to take these leaders at their word. He has introduced a bill to provide for the admission, free of duty of articles controlled by trusts. It is safe to say that Mr. Clay's bill will never see daylight again after its reference to committee.—Philadelphia Record.

AS TO THE SUBSIDIES.

Tariff Duties Should Not Be Reduced When Manufacturers Beat Their Own Country.

The people would rather see congress at work taking away subsidies than granting them. If the Fifty-sixth congress wishes to end its life creditably it will repeal the subsidies enjoyed by Mr. Carnegie and other steel and iron plutocrats and by the men engaged in some other industries, instead of voting subsidies to steamship lines.

Mr. James J. Hill said last Saturday:

"If we are to build the ships here, I see no reason why we need a protective duty of seven dollars a ton on plates as long as our plate-makers are exporting plates to the other countries—especially as they are willing to furnish them for export at a lower price than they do to our own people."

The cheapest steel plates imported have to pay a duty of $6.70 a ton. So high a duty is not necessary for the protection of American manufacturers. During the ten months ending with October last they shipped to foreign markets nearly 73,000,000 pounds of steel sheets and plates. The vital point is that they sold their plates more cheaply abroad than at home. They asked the shipbuilders on the Clyde, where some of these plates went, less than they do the American shipbuilders. This is the policy which the iron and steel combines follow in regard to other products, such as steel rails, billets and wire nails.

If the American shipbuilders could get steel and iron plates from domestic manufacturers on as good terms as foreigners do there would be no question about the ability of American shipyards to turn out vessels at a lower cost than foreign competitors. But the American shipbuilder, like all other consumers of steel, is at the mercy of the steel combines. They have a low export price for foreigners and a high domestic price for Americans.

An excessive duty which enables a manufacturer to maintain these two sets of prices is a grant to him of a subsidy, the size of which depends upon his own sweet will. The manufacturers of steel plates can, if they choose, exact about seven dollars above a fair market price from American consumers. It is largely because of these subsidy grants that a man like Mr. Carnegie has an income of $20,000,000 a year.

If subsidies were as odious to congress as they are to the people, it would investigate this subject carefully, and wherever it discovered an industry controlled by men who have an export and a domestic price, the latter the higher of the two, congress would revise the tariff duties so as to take away from the manufacturers in question their excess of protection and thus deprive them of the power to discriminate in prices against their own countrymen. At this moment the admitted ability of the United States to make steel and iron more cheaply than they can be made abroad redounds chiefly to the benefit of foreign consumers of American iron and steel.

If there is any congressman who says that tariff duties should not be reduced when a manufacturer has an export and a domestic price, discriminating against his own country, he may safely be put down as the representative of some wealthy corporation, which will be unable to collect subsidies if duties are lowered to a reasonable figure. The Tribune holds it to be a self-evident truth that any manufacturer who has an export and a domestic price—the former the lower of the two—is not entitled to tariff protection. — Chicago Tribune (Rep.).

REDUCING REVENUES.

If Republicans Do Anything in That Line It Will Be for a Blind Only.

The Washington correspondent of the Chronicle states as a fact what most observers have conjectured, that the president and his cabinet are much worried about the apparent tendency in congress to make a sweeping reduction of the revenues.

They are themselves chiefly to blame for this apparent tendency. The president in his message and the secretary of the treasury in his report gives prominence to the fact that there was a surplus of nearly $80,000,000 during the last fiscal year, and that there has been a proportionate surplus thus far this year.

In every way they have sought to give the people the impression that the need of "war taxes" was progressively passing away. They have no good reason to be surprised, therefore, if the representatives of the people get this impression and overlook the fact that these high officials figure on very greatly increased expenditures next year and meditate steps necessitating greatly increased expenditures for many years to come.

But the administration need not worry. The house may push through a measure of sweeping reduction for popular effect. But the senate will take good care that the reduction is kept within bounds. By the time the bill gets back to the house even Representative Boutell, of Chicago, will have got his eyes open wide enough to see that his proposal to pass a bill providing for the abolition of all the "war taxes," the repeal to take effect as to each tax at some stated time, is quite impracticable.

Congress and the people may as well face the truth at once that the most of the so-called war revenue is going to be needed for many years to come. They may as well face the truth that we shall never again get down to the former scale of expenditure; that as war has always in the past necessitated a permanent increase, so it will in the present case even more than in the past. And the politicians will soon be teaching the people that high taxes and great expenditures are good things for them and somehow put money in their pockets.—Chicago Chronicle.

REVENUE REDUCTION.

Little Prospect of Such a Thing Being Done by the Republicans.

The proposed reduction of revenue as announced by the ways and means committee amounts to $40,000,000. Inasmuch as the estimated surplus for next year is $80,000,000, a wide margin of safety — too wide, one might think — is retained. But the ship subsidy bill will make heavy demands, and with the elastic provision in the army bill, there is no telling what additional expense the army may require. The objects selected for reduced taxation cannot be altogether commended. Why the tax on beer, cigars and wines should be reduced does not appear, for the stamp tax is still retained on corporate stocks and bonds, freight receipts, certificates of profit, entry of goods at custom houses and other things of similar character. It is to be regretted also that with the opportunity afforded by the surplus there is no thought or intention of reducing taxes in other directions.

The tariff ought to be amended. Many articles, produced by trusts in this country, are sold abroad at a lower rate than here at home. We apparently are so enamored of taxing ourselves for the benefit of our rich men that it does not cause even a protest. It must, surely, in time, however. While we are growing in wealth and population, we are also growing necessarily in the cost of government. With our expanding army and navy, with our ship subsidy projects, our inhuman canal, and with the steadily increasing pension list, we shall require each year a larger expenditure. It may be then that we shall happen on an hour when the voice of sanity that shall plead for taxation to be levied as nearly as possible on all alike, and to be so levied as to give special privileges to none, will be heard; and we may then hope, and not until then, to have something like the spirit of fairness in the adjustment of our public burdens.—Indianapolis News.

——President M——, and his party associates, it is said, intend to take the verdict at the polls last November as an indorsement and a mandate, and they are preparing to obey the "mandate" at home and abroad. McKinley's second term, to all intents and purposes, has begun. He has taken the country through the door of expansion. He stands now ready to lead it into what his friends are so fond of calling the "golden era." It is likely to be a golden era in more respects than one—a golden era for the goats as well as for the sheep, and Washington is literally overrun with lobbyists, attorneys, secret agents and outspoken capitalists—all intriguing for a share of the wealth that is to come from the cornucopia.—Baltimore Sun.

——There is a necessarily comic air about the president's pious hope that congress will be economical. Coming at the heels of recommendations that call for needless millions, and coupled with the well-known fact that McKinley would no more veto an extravagant appropriation bill than he would try to fly from the white house to the capitol, it will induce congressmen only to exchange solemn winks and then fall to legislating that surplus out of the treasury in as neat and speedy and thoroughgoing a fashion as possible. —N. Y. Post.

HEIGHT TO BE TEST.

Railroad Officials Favor Abandonment of Age Limit in Children.

Would Have Use of Half-Fare Tickets Based on Inches, Not Years—Difficulties Met with Under Present System.

It is possible that before long children traveling on railroads may be charged for at so much per inch, instead of selling them tickets upon the time-honored age rule. Officers of the big transportation companies whose lines terminate in Chicago say that one of the most difficult questions they and their conductors have to face is the age limit in selling tickets and collecting fares for children. At least one general passenger agent is of the opinion that children should be charged for according to their height. He says it would be much easier to regulate the difference in rates by this method than by accepting the words of parents and others regarding ages.

"There is absolutely no way in which railroads may discriminate between children over and under age," this official said. "We are entirely dependent upon the word of parents, guardians and others in charge of the minors. The present rule is that children under five years shall be carried free. Between five and ten years half fare is charged. Now, a child under the five-year limit may be unusually large for its age, and the conductor may suspect an over age. Again a child more than five may be unusually small for the age and be passed, beating the railroad out of a half fare. If we should abolish this rule and go by height I don't see that any greater hardship would be worked and the requirement would be more fair to the transportation companies."

The question is of such importance that it will be considered by the general passenger agents of the roads east of Chicago and west of Buffalo and Pittsburgh.

RAILROAD TO HUDSON BAY.

The Plan of Years Now Being Actually Executed—To Be Ready in Three Years.

The talk and plans of decades have finally taken form and a railway connecting the great lakes with Hudson bay is now actually under construction. Consul Brush, at Niagara Falls, has sent to the state department a valuable report on the subject, from which it appears that the line plunges hundreds of miles through an unbroken wilderness, with no cities, towns or even villages to afford traffic.

In fact, only Indian guides and hunters have ever attempted to penetrate the great wilderness to the north. Nevertheless, the railroad, which is known as the Algoma Central, is being built in the most thorough manner possible, with the best equipment available, able to stand almost any strain upon it, and capable of good service for years to come. Eighty-five-pound steel rails are used and the locomotives are of enormous size, weighing 136 tons when equipped for traffic.

The engines are so massive that railway companies were afraid of the strain on bridges and they were delivered from Chicago to Sault Ste. Marie by the lake route on steam ferries.

The new railway starts at Sault Ste. Marie. Ground was broken less than 90 days ago, but already 25 miles of road are completed and in use, and the railway is pushing forward at the rate of half a mile a day. It is expected that it will require three years to complete the road.

WEAKNESS OF HUMAN NATURE

According to the Idea of an Insurance Agent Who Was Interested in the Fire.

"Talk about the frailties of human nature," said a well-known insurance agent the other day, relates the Kansas City Journal, "no one else has so good an opportunity to discover them as an insurance man. An incident occurred a few days ago that showed me a side of a neighbor's character which I had never suspected to exist. A fire broke out in his home, and, do you know, that man went three blocks to a telephone to report it, when there was a 'phone right in his house.

"I saw the fire soon after it started, and rushed to give assistance. It was while helping to pack the things out that I discovered the 'phone, and turned in the alarm. Now, it takes a strong stretch of the imagination to believe that the owner had forgotten there was a telephone in his house. That he should have acted as he did undermines one's faith in people in general.

"Think of it. There I was sweating and endangering my life to save his property, while he was anxious, evidently, to have it burn. Such conduct doesn't encourage one to exert himself for others—"

"By the way," interrupted a listener, "did any of your companies hold a policy on that house?"

"Now, you are asking a leading question," replied the insurance man, with a fatuous smile. "What I am saying is that the actions of that man are a sad commentary on human nature."

Diseases of the Kidneys

will stand no trifling because no disease is so deceptive and none more fatal. Statistics show that more people die from Kidney Diseases than any other disease.

U. S. SENATOR DAVIS DIES FROM KIDNEY DISEASE.

Senator Davis made a prolonged and gallant fight with disease.

The trouble, of which the kidney affection was the fatal outcome, first appeared about Sept. 20.

* * * * * * * * *

Trouble Stealthily Encroached.

The trouble had, however, stealthily encroached upon a vital organ, and on Nov. 11 examination of the urine proved the presence of inflammation of the kidneys.

Both acute nephritis and diabetes made their appearance, and Dr. Murphy, of Chicago, was summoned. He agreed with Doctors Stone and Lankester as to the presence of these serious ailments in acute form, and, while not making any public statement, he made known privately to some of Senator Davis' business associates his opinion that the case was hopeless.

* * * * * * * * *

To those, however, who were familiar with the symptoms of acute kidney troubles the bulletins held ominous information, the rapid respiration, fluctuating pulse, delirium and approaching coma telling the story of death's nearness.

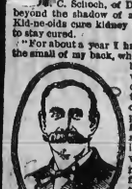
Is This What Ails You?

Does your back ache?
Do you have scanty flow of urine?
Do you have frequent severe headaches?
Do you urinate too frequently either day or night.
Have you sand, gravel, brick dust or white mucous in your urine?
Have you dark or bloody looking urine which scalds when voiding?
Have you dark circles around the eyes, puffiness under the eyes, or bloated appearance of the face in the morning?



Your Kidneys are Sick

AND HERE IS WHERE YOUR DANGER LIES:

Kidney Disease does not make itself felt until it has secured a firm hold on your system.

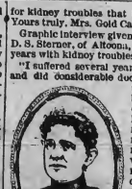
Morrow's Kid-ne-oids are made for Kidney Diseases and that they cure Kidney Diseases can be attested by a "cloud of living witnesses," three of which give voluntary testimony:

Mr. J. C. Schoch.

Mr. J. C. Schoch, of DuBois, Pa., convinced beyond the shadow of a doubt that Morrow's Kid-ne-olds cure kidney troubles promptly and to stay cured.



"For about a year I had a dull, heavy pain in the small of my back, which would be attended by a sharp, stining pain when lifting or stooping over. On account of the pain in my back I could not sleep and get proper rest, and would feel dull and tired when arising in the morning instead of fresh and vigorous. When Morrow's Kid-ne-olds were first advertised I did not have much faith in their curative qualities, but after seeing them recommended to relieve symptoms like my own, I procured some at Vesburg's drug store, and took them according to directions. In a few days the pain in my back stopped. The Kid-ne-olds have done away with that dull, tired feeling and I am enjoying better health than I have for years." Mr. Schoch, lives at 117 Olive Ave., DuBois, Pa. and is always glad to say a good word for that peerless kidney remedy—Kid-ne-olds.

Mrs. Gold Campman.

Mrs. Gold Campman 43 River St., Sharon, Pa., graphically describes her condition before and after she used Morrow's Kid-ne-olds, hoping by so doing she will help some other women to get rid of the debilitating backaches so common to the female sex.

Sharon, Pa., Nov. 8, 1900. John Morrow & Co. Dear Sirs:—"I take pleasure in recommending your medicine to the public in the hope that it may benefit others as it has me. Three years ago in March I was attacked with a severe fever which left me in a miserable, weak condition. About one year ago, after my kidneys became affected, the pain in my back was so bad I could not sit up or lie down. I saw Morrow's Kid-ne-olds highly recommended and procured a box and took them according to directions, which resulted in a cure. I have taken in all three boxes and consider the medicine so good for kidney troubles that I will take no other." Yours truly, Mrs. Gold Campman.

Mrs. D. S. Sterner.

Graphic interview given our reporter by Mrs. D. S. Sterner, of Altoona, Pa., who suffered for years with kidney troubles.

"I suffered several years with kidney trouble and did considerable doctoring, even going to the hospital for a time, but it seemed that my disease was incurable. My suffering was terrible, especially with my back. I saw Morrow's Kid-ne-olds advertised and recommended so highly by other persons whose symptoms were similar to my own that I decided to try them. I began to improve in two or three days after I commenced to take them, and continued taking Kid-ne-olds and am only too glad to be able to recommend such a valuable medicine." Mrs. Sterner resides at 1615 7th Ave., Altoona, Pa. to improve until the pain in my back has all disappeared. I have felt like a new person since

The Xmas entertainment given by the public school, Friday evening at the hall, was quite a success, as well attended and was enjoyed immensely by all. The children were trained exceedingly well by their teachers, Miss Marie Corn and Miss Kate Baker. One of the leading men of the town impersonated Santa Claus to perfection. He favored the audience with a solo, which was enjoyed by all. Mrs. Fannie Clutterbuck presided at the organ.

Francesville.

Archie McGlasson is home for the holidays.

We are glad to report William Goodridge as improving.

A merry Christmas to the editor and all the readers of the RECORDER.

Mr. Bruce Henry contemplates visiting relatives in Virginia, this week.

Miss Julia Beall is home again after a stay of a few weeks at Wm. Riley's.

Chas. Graves is proud of being the owner of the earliest lambs in this neighborhood.

Mr. Ransom Smith, of Rushville, Indiana, and father of Mrs. Charles Beall, is critically ill.

Mr. Lee Pepper buried his 6 months old child, on Saturday afternoon, in the cemetery at Sand Run.

Billy Wreitman, of Ohio, has purchased a home near the village, long known as the "Hearchedy place."

The friends here of Hiram Blankenbeker, of Louisville, are sorry to hear of his death, which occurred on last Wednesday.

Rev. Dame will preach at Sand Run Baptist church on the first Saturday and the Sunday following, in January. Services at the usual hour in the morning and evening.

Mrs. W. H. Hayes and daughter, of Brownstown, Indiana, came in to attend the funeral of Mrs. Dolferlie, of Ludlow, and who was buried at Hebron. She was a sister of Mrs. Hayes.

The funeral of Henry Hafer took place at Hebron, last Sunday afternoon. It was very sad, following so close upon the death of his grandmother. He leaves a young wife and a daughter and a father, mother, brothers and a sister to mourn his departure.

Union.

May the editor have a happy and prosperous New Year.

Clint Blankenbecker was calling in ... Sunday eve.

Mrs. Elbert Wilson, of Bank Lick, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Hedges.

Mrs. S. C. Hicks gave a dinner, Sunday, in honor of her sister, Mrs. Poindexter.

We are glad to hear that Mrs. Henry Rose is out again after a severe attack of rheumatism.

Miss Stella Myers has a 'phone in the house much to the delight of her numerous friends.

Misses Sallie Willis and Sallie Belle Hicks are home from Georgetown College to spend the holidays.

The "Pro Fairia Society" of the Union school gave a very interesting entertainment, Friday afternoon.

The Excelsior Club meets with Mr. Elbert Rouse, Friday evening Dec. 28th. All are requested to be there.

Mr. and Mrs. John Poindexter, of Cynthiana, are spending Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kennedy.

Rev. J. M. Broadnax held his first service at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning to an appreciative congregation.

Mrs. Tom Marshall, after a long and painful illness, died at her home, Friday evening at 7 o'clock. Buried Sunday at one o'clock.

Miss Nell Cleek entertained Misses Kate Green, Ella B. Norman, Messrs. Elbert Rouse, Elza Garrison and Tom Huey to supper, Saturday, at her pretty home near Beaver.

The most interesting bit of society news that has recently been announced is the engagement of Miss Ada M. Bonnie, of Louisville, and Mr. Charles Curtis Castle, of New York, which is just made public. No date has been set for the wedding, which will be solemnized at her home some time during the winter. Miss Bonnie is the oldest daughter of Mr. Frank Bonnie, the retired member of the Main street firm of Bonnie Bros., and the granddaughter of the late J. B. Frazier. She has enjoyed several years of prominence in Louisville society, and is one of the most charming and cultured young women in the city. Mr. Castle is a New Yorker, and is one of the firm of the Hilderite Varnish Company. The couple will make their home in Orange, N. Y.

The following pupils of Union public school secured general average on examination for the third month of school, sufficiently high to place their names upon the honor roll. Several of them reached 99 in scholarship, but as attendance and punctuality must be considered, the grades were lowered by absence and tardiness: Fifth grade—Frank Rouse, 93; Harry Dickerson, 88; Bess Cleek, 97; Jean Cleek, 95; Hattie Rouse, 90; Caroline Friedman, 93½; Sophia Friedman, 90½; Roy Riley, 91; John Dickerson, 91; Madge Williams, 91 1-7; Richard Rouse, 90; Robt. Rouse, 90; Arch Dickerson, 91½; Frank Smith, 92 1-6; Douglas Rouse, 94 5-7; Joseph Cleek, 85 4 7; Edna Mullins, 92. Fourth grade—Tristam Rouse, 98½; Charles Hedges, 89; Lizzie Stevenson, 85; Charles Holtzworth, 87; Henry Holtzworth, 85. Third grade—J. T. Williams, 92; Joseph Gadd, 87½; Benjamin Cleek, 94; Eunice Faine, 92½. Second grade—Bertha Newman, 93; Eugenia Riley, 89; Nina Stevenson, 93; Annie Holtzworth, 90; Eli Williams, 94. First grade—Jessie Cleek, 94; Lizzie Gibbs, 93; Francis Rouse, 90; Ora Taggart, 90; Lena Holtzworth, 93; Luella Faine, 90. Primary grade—Leo Adams, 90.

NANNIE D. BRISTOW, Teacher.

The annual election of officers for Golden Grange will be held at the hall in Union, Saturday, Dec. 29, beginning at 10:30 a. m. sun time. It is hoped every member will be present.

N. D. BRISTOW, Sec'ty.

Walton.

A fair delegation of Masons from the Walton Lodge attended the funeral of brother Lucien McClure at Crittenden, last Sunday.

Mr. Chas. H. Lermond on Saturday completed the frame work for a substantial coal shed for H. C. Diers at the Shortline depot.

Mr. and Mrs. Delvin S. Lermond, of Paris, Ky., arrived here Saturday evening and will spend Christmas week visiting relatives and old friends.

An iron-clad warehouse is about completed for Edward Bros., nearly across the street from their hardware store. It is said that the iron-clad will save two thirds of the insurance. Quite an item, as the rate is about 4½ to 4¾ per cent. on the average frame buildings in which the business is conducted in the town.

"Important dates of the 19th century" in the last two issues of the RECORDER were recognized by the pupils of the schools here, as important and valuable summaries of incidents that will probably be unnoticed by the historians of our age. The scholars have hidden the copies and it is safe to say that altho one may get a chance to see a copy of last week's or one of the week previous, yet you would not be permitted to take it home with you to read at leisure.

Glasscock has "shied his castor" (so to speak) for another bout with the "tobacco ring" or trust this season. He priced, put upon the market and sold for J. W. Rich, of Beaver, 17 hhds. and has picked up about 35 hhds. here, which has gone to the People's Warehouse, Louisville. Rich was more than satisfied with his sales and Glasscock is always satisfied, having unshaken faith in the old motto "Quick sales and small profits." His purchases here are sent to Louisville as fast as prized, all the dealers being apprehensive of a drop in the market. That bought here has cost all the way from 4c to 5½ cents all around.

Mr. Leon Pryor and Miss Mabel Bugby, of the Georgetown College, Miss Edna Ransler, of the Kentucky University, and Fleming D. Hedges, of the Ky. State College, have come home for the Christmas holidays. By the way, it is appropriate to mention here, that Fleming stood a civil service examination, last June, and had never heard anything about the result until he wrote to the examiners, who sent him the following complimentary notification: "Dear sir:—You are informed in reply to yours of the 9th inst., relative to your standing on the civil service examination, that you stand No. 1 on the first grade customs register. Very repectfully,

C. J. Keating, Secretary.

Mr. Hedges, although quite a young man, stands very high in this community and graduated with distinguished honors in the class of '99 in the Walton Academy, reflecting great credit upon Mr. Sc'l. Myers the ... cipal.

A gentleman of this place was desirous of presenting his son a handsome copy of "Gil Blas" and visited a number of bookstores and found that it was not in any of their stocks. He then wrote his brother, Mr. L. W. Botts, of Louisville, to see if he could get it. He visited all the stores in Louisville and found just one copy, which was not just up to the Judge's idea in point of finish but the rarity of the work makes it desirable. Is it not a sad commentary on the literary taste of the people that the immortal work of Le Sage was limited to one copy in two great cities containing more than a half million of people.

A heartfelt reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Myers was given at the home of Dr. and Mrs. D. Bagby by the ladies of Walton, last Friday night. It was simply immense for a small place like Walton, and was attended by all who were able to attend. She left on Saturday to join her husband in Taunton, Vermont, and carrying with her the best wishes for the future welfare of herself and husband. Mr. Myers left the following note for the Recorder: "We wish to express our heartfelt gratitude to the many friends of Walton and vicinity for the kindnesses they have shown us during our stay there, and especially for the reception given us by its people, do we wish to express our thanks. From the shores of Lake Champlain two hearts will beat in loving remembrance for the kind friends of our dear 'Old Kentucky Home.'"

Hathaway.

A merry Christmas to you, Mr. Editor.

The prayer meeting at Big Bone is well attended.

Postmaster D. H. Ryle is on duty again at his store.

Ed Hubbard entertained, last Thursday, with a woodsawing.

Joseph Riddell went to Rabbit Hash last Thursday, to see his brother, Cal.

James Sebree was in Rising Sun, last Thursday, interviewing, Santa Claus.

J. D. McNeely and family spent last Sunday with Nathen Clements and wife.

Rev. James A. Kirtley preached his farewell sermon as pastor of Big Bone church, last Sunday.

John S. Mason recently delivered his last three crops of wheat to the Rising Sun Milling Co.

Miss Birdie Rouse gave her school a nice treat, last Friday, before dismissing for the holidays. The Hathaway band was present and enlivened the occasion with sweet music.

Esquire Moses Scott, of the Rabbit Hash neighborhood, passed through our burg, last Wednesday and Thursday, enroute to Midway, to which place his official duties called him.

After the marriage of Sidney Clements and Miss Alice Scott, announced in last week's paper, they returned to the home of the groom's father, where 75 or 80 of their friends had assembled to greet them. A sumptuous wedding dinner, consisting of all the delicacies of the season, was served, it having been prepared by the neighbors and relatives, the groom and his father having been batching. We extend our congratulations and best wishes.

[Your suggestion was not made in time to admit of preparation for such an event.—ED.]

Idlewild.

Tobacco is moving off at 5c around.

Miss Lizzie Graddy is at home for the holidays; also Mr. J. A. Kirtley, Jr.

It is thought by some that the local tobacco buyers have formed a combine.

Courtney Walton purchased a fine string of stock cows from T. G. Willis.

Dr. A. P. Walton came out Wednesday for a day or two of Christmas fare, country air, &c.

It looks now like it will not be necessary to break up the hens nests in our sleighs this winter.

Mr. McIntosh will give up the tollgate on January 1st, and his place will be filled by Mr. Pierce, of Union.

We deem it a proper thing to mention the exceptionally fine weather we have had through almost the entire December.

Miss Beulah Gaines is at home for the holidays, accompanied by Miss Ada Early and Miss Elizabeth Young, both of Lexington.

The log haulers are doing considerable damage to the roads to the great sorrow of all persons who are interested in good roads.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Cropper gave a dining Wednesday, which it was our great misfortune to miss, as we were delivering our tobacco that day.

Jonas Stevens, who has been in Dr. Holmes' hospital in Cincinnati, for five weeks under treatment for throat trouble, returned home Saturday much improved.

James C. Clore's sale Wednesday afternoon was well attended and bidding ... and W. C. Wa... was the auctioneer, and he is a good one and don't you forget it.

F. P. Walton sold his crop of tobacco at 5½c, and his tenants at 5c around to James Riley and has delivered it and is now ready to go to burning plant beds to feed the trusts.

The first party of the happy Christmas season was given at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Gaines on Monday night, where a delightful time was had by all present.

James C. Clore will leave the first of the year to take charge of his livery stable in Rushville, Ind. Jimmie will be missed, and we hope he will succeed, as he is a very deserving young man.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Morris, of Rushville, Indiana, arrived at Mr. Fletcher Clore's Saturday, where they will pleasantly spend the holidays. Mr. Morris is a successful farmer of Rush county, Indiana.

Rev. J. A. Kirtley filled the pulpit of Rev. Hoover at the church, Sunday. Mr. Samuel Hensley was reinstated as a member and Mr. Kettle, Mr. Bachelor and Miss Maud Jarrel were received into membership.

We attended the sale of the personal property of W. H. Harrison, deceased, on the 18th. The attendance was large and prices fairly good. Corn sold for 42½c per bushel; potatoes, 25 to 38 cts.; fodder, 5c per stack; hay and millet, high; horses, $40 to $60; hogs, about 5c per pound. Mr. John Stephens was auctioneer and Mr. G. M. Riley, clerk. Among other friends we met A. B. Whitlock, whom we had not seen for a long time. Alf, like many others of us, is aging, but very slowly.

Miss Goodin's Christmas treat to her school at the Terrill school house, Friday night, was largely attended and the whole performance reflects credit upon her as a teacher. Each member of her very interesting school recited a neat little speech, after which presents were distributed from a tastily arranged Christmas tree. What might have been a sad accident was narrowly averted by the heroism of Earl Walton and Bernaid Berkshire. Tom Randall, who was to act as Santa Claus, was dressed for the occasion, and on standing too near the candles, caught his batting cotton covering a fire and it was with difficulty put out without serious results or even being known to any except the participants in the accident.

Bellevue.

Rev. Atwood is visiting his parents in Hickman county.

E. L. Grant and family are sojurning in the Crescent City.

Circuit Court.

The hearing of the evidence in the Watson-Michaels damage suit that had begun when we went to press last week, was completed last Friday morning. Some time was consumed in the preparation of the instructions for the jury, and the arguments were not commenced until afternoon that day, J. M. Lassing for the defendants, and O. M. Rogers for the plaintiff, occupying the entire afternoon with their speeches. Clore for defendants and Hargit for plaintiffs, argued the case Saturday, the jury getting the case about two o'clock, and in fifteen minutes thereafter it had returned a verdict against the defendants, Martin and Ben Michaels for $500. The defendants filed grounds and motion for a new trial, which was promptly overruled. The defendants prayed an appeal to the sourt of appeals, which was granted, and they were given until the third day of the next term of the court to file their bill of evidence and exceptions. The attorneys, Lassing, Rogers, Clore and Hargit each made a good argument to the jury, but that of Atty. Hargit was as close an analysis of a case as was ever made at this bar, said many who heard it.

Considerable business was disposed of during the term. Two suits against the Southern railway and one against the L. & N., were compromised, and one against the former road was continued.

Judge Cram disposed of business in a very satisfactory manner, and like an experienced judge.

Court adjourned in a short time after the verdict in the Watson-Michaels case was returned.

Only one divorce was granted, Leanora Satchwill from Joseph Satchwill.

Samuel Wells, aged 65, the blind man who for years has lived in a little hut about a mile above Constance, on the Covington and Dry Creek 'pike, was badly hurt, one day last week, while out on the hill side near his home. He fell and when found was helpless and speechless, and it is not known how long he had been lying where found. He was taken to a hospital in Covington. Mr Wells lived alone, and although totally blind he traveled about the neighborhood without trouble, and did many other things that would appear totally impossible for a person bereft of sight. He is a remarkable man and how he performed the work by means of which he has supported himself, is a mystery to his neighbors.

Since the above was put in type, the unfortunate man has died, never having recovered consciousness.

The Indiana Farmer.

No farmer living in this section of the country needs to be told that of all agricultural newspapers the Indiana Farmer easily takes the lead. It is popular, enterprising, a leader in all forward movements, and by its integrity and faithfulness to the cause of the farmer has firmly established itself in the esteem of its thousands of readers, and occupies a position of immense importance to the agricultural interests of the west. All farmers will want to know all about any legislation in Congress and the State Legislature this winter that will in any way effect the farmer, and for this reason weekly visits of the Indiana Farmer will be especially welcome. For each department of farm and home management the Indiana Farmer has something to say each week, and the entire volume of 52 numbers is a storehouse of information not to be lightly valued. Address Indiana Farmer Co., Indianapolis, Indiana, for a free sample copy.

Among the tens of thousands who have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for colds and la grippe during the past few years, to our knowledge, not a single case has resulted in pneumonia. Thos. Whitfield & Co., 240 Wabash Ave., Chicago, one of the most prominent retail druggists in that city, in speaking of this, says: "We recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for lagrippe in many cases, as it not only gives prompt and complete recovery, but also counteracts any tendency of la grippe to result in pneumonia. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Baisly, Bullittsville; Grant, Bellevue, and Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg.

The large barn on the farm owned by Lewis Clore's wife, near Waterloo, was destroyed by fire, Sunday night about 8 o'clock. Lewis Stephens, son of J. J. Stephens, of East Bend, has the farm rented, and with the barn was consumed his crop of tobacco, two good work horses, all his provender and farming implements except one wagon. Cause of the fire unknown. The barn was insured in the Boone Co. Company, but there was no insurance on contents.

The small residence on the East Bend road, about two miles from Waterloo, and occupied by John Long, was burned last Saturday at noon, the result of a defective flue. Only the contents of the kitchen were saved.

How to Cure Croup.

Mr. R. Gray, who lives near Amenia, Duchess county, N. Y., says: "Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best medicine I have ever used. It is a fine children's remedy for croup and never fails to cure." When given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough has developed, it will prevent the attack. This should be borne in mind and a bottle of the Cough Remedy kept at hand ready for instant use as soon as these symptoms appear. For sale by McKim, Burlington; Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; Baisly, Bullittsville; O. Grant, Bellevue.

The Christmas festivities were inaugurated in the Idlewild neighborhood Monday night by a party at the elegant home of James T. Gaines. Nearly a hundred persons were most delightfully entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Gaines and their accomplished daughter.

The Best Plaster.

A piece of flannel dampened with Chamberlain's Pain Balm and bound to the affected parts is superior to any plaster. When troubled with lame back or pains in the side or chest, give it a trial and you are certain to be more than pleased with the prompt relief which it affords. Pain Balm also cures rheumatism. One application gives relief. For sale by Berkshire & McWethy, Petersburg; Grant, Bellevue; Baisly, Bullittsville; McKim, Burlington.

When a young man who has been very attentive to the young ladies for some time, rents a house and farm, his friends are lead by the transaction to believe that he has serious intention of becoming a benedict. Developments in a case of this kind out on the Bellevue 'pike are awaited.

The recital of Mr. Charles R. Gardner's pupils at the Methodist church, last Saturday evening, was a rare treat to the local lovers of music, and a substantial testimonial as to Mr. Gardner's proficiency as a teacher.

The chorus consisted of twelve well trained female voices, that were pleasing to hear.

Piano Solo—Narcissus—was rendered by Miss Sadie Kirtley, in a captivating manner, and was applauded most generously.

Piano Trio—March Triomphole—by Misses Pattie Revill, Mabel Kirtley and May Clore, three of the younger pupils, showed that these little Misses are possessed of a rare talent for music, and its development should not be neglected.

Vocal Solo—Ah, Well-a-Day — by Miss Kittie Gaines, was applauded most heartily, and when she sang Marguite, she responded to the encore that followed by singing "The Old Kentucky Home," captivating the audience completely. Miss Kittie has perfect control of a very sweet voice. Saturday evening was her first appearance before an audience, and her singing was a revelation to many of her friends.

Piano Solo—Eventide Bells—by Miss Mary Roberts, who is the smallest pupil—a mere tot, was a feature of the evening's exercises. Miss Mary played with the ease and grace of one of mature years, and will certainly make a delightful performer.

Piano Duett—Shepherd's Evening Song—by Misses Inez Gaines and Nellie Rouse, was a beautiful selection well rendered.

Piano Solo—Twittering of the Birds —by Miss Nellie Martin. This is a composition of trills and runs, and gave Miss Nellie an excellent opportunity to demonstrate her skill as a performer, which she did most gracefully.

Piano Solo—La Secret—by Miss Nellie Rouse, was a catchy selection, which the performer rendered in a manuer highly appreciated by the audicence which gave her euthusiastic applause.

Piano Solos—Butterfly and Flour de Soion—by Miss Hettie Riddell, were difficult selections, but were well executed, and in an artistic manner.

Miss Ethel Hayes, of Aurora, Indiana, contributed largely to the evening's entertainment with violin and mandolin solos, and responded to several encores. Miss Hayes seems to have mastered these two instruments, and her selections Saturday eveuing were certainly appreciated by the audience.

JAMES LEWIS LYNCHED.

The Murderer of Marshal Richardson at Gulfport Hanged on a Tree By a Mob.

New Orleans, Dec. 21.—James Lewis was hanged by an orderly mob shortly before noon Thursday on a tree near the Louisville & Nashville depot at Gulfport, near the spot where he shot down Town Marshal Richardson Wednesday afternoon. Lewis was captured by officers with bloodhounds early Thursday morning. Gulfport is a suburban resort frequented by the people of New Orleans.

New Orleans, Dec. 22.—That the Negro lynched Thursday morning by a Gulfport mob was guiltless of any complicity in the killing of City Marshal Richardson, of that town, has been absolutely proved, and the better class of citizens there deplore the error greatly.

A TOTAL LOSS.

Schooner Jennie Hall Stranded Near Cape Henry—Captain and Three Men Were Drowned.

Cape Henry, Va., Dec. 22.—By telephone from Dan Neck Station it is learned that the schooner Jennie Hall, which stranded eight miles south of Cape Henry at 4 a. m., will be a total loss. The captain and two men are drowned. The bodies are not yet recovered. Four nearly died from exposure, but were rescued in the breeches buoy. One man still clung to the mizzen crosstree. By heroic efforts the life savers succeeded in getting the sailor into buoy, and he was hauled safely off. One of the surfmen was washed out of the lifeboat, but was rescued. The weather is rainy, with a light fog and a northwest gale blowing 50 miles an hour.

VESSEL SUNK.

The Little Schooner Emblem Run Down By a Big Ocean Steamship—No Loss of Life.

Portsmouth, Va., Dec. 22.—Cut down by a big ocean steamship, the little schooner Emblem, Capt. Geo. B. Marshall, went to the bottom of Hampton Roads Friday. The sailors reached the deck just in time to seize the dory, which was being towed astern, and, drenched and shivering, made their way to Old Point. The name of the vessel which struck them is unknown. The vessels of the North Atlantic squadron sent boats to the assistance of the shipwrecked crew.

RIVER AND HARBOR BILL.

It Carries Approximately $60,000,000, the Second Largest Appropriation on Record.

Washington, Dec. 22.—The river and harbor bill was completed Friday night, and Chairman Burton gave out a statement showing the amounts appropriated. The total is approximately $60,000,000, of which about $23,000,000 is in direct appropriation and about $37,000,000 in the authorization of contracts for continuous work. Compared with former river and harbor bills, the present one is the second largest on record, and after the senate has added amendments it is expected to be well up to, if not ahead of, all previous records. The bill of 1900 carried $39,958,165, and that of 1897, which was the largest on record, carried $72,273,954.

EX-GOV. WOLCOTT DEAD.

The Former Executive of Massachusetts Passed Away at His Home in Boston.

Boston, Dec. 22.—Former Gov. Wolcott died at 3:40 p. m. Friday.

Roger Wolcott was born in Boston, July 13, 1847, the son of J. Huntington and Cornelia Frothingham Wolcott. He is a descendant of the Roger Wolcott who was second in command in the expedition of Sir William Pepperell against Cape Breton in 1745, which resulted in the capture of Louisburg. Another ancestor was Oliver Wolcott, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. Both of these Wolcotts were governors of Connecticut.

UNDER A CLOUD.

A Receiver Appointed For the American National Bank, of Baltimore, Md.

Washington, Dec. 22.—The comptroller of the currency appointed J. Frank Aldrich temporary receiver of the American National bank, of Baltimore, Md. This bank, it is stated, has suffered a large shrinkage in deposits and has sustained some heavy losses, which involved its capital and surplus and reduced greatly its cash resources. The condition of its assets is such that the loss to depositors probably will be small. At a meeting of the clearing house of Baltimore it was decided that, in view of the condition of the bank, no further credit could be extended to it.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 22.—The United States gunboat Annapolis, which ran aground opposite Lambert's point, was floated late in the afternoon by tugs. The vessel is not thought to be injured.

ARE IN OPEN REVOLT

An Uprising in the Orange River Districts of Cape Colony.

Gen. Brabant Has Been Ordered to the Front—Gen. French Routed a Force of 2,500 of the Enemy at Thorndale.

London, Dec. 22.—"We understand that private reliable advices have been received in London," says the Daily Mail, "to the effect that virtually all the districts of Cape Colony in the vicinity of the Orange river are in more or less open revolt, and that there is likely to be sharp fighting on a rather large scale before the lavasion is crushed. The tactics of the Boers in rallying as many as possible of the Dutch in the back country to their cause are proving successful."

Johannesburg, Dec. 22.—The Boers attacked Zunfontein on December 18, but were beaten off.

London, Dec. 23.—A dispatch from De Aar, Cape Colony, says that the yeomanry have driven the Boers out of Houtkraal, the enemy retiring westward.

Cape Town, Dec. 22.—Martial law will be proclaimed in Worcester, Wellington and Stellenbosch. Heavy rains are general, and several railway washouts delay the movements of troops.

Gen. Brabant, commander of the newly raised colonial division, has been ordered to the front, and started Saturday. At Thorndale Gen. French has routed 2,500 Boers with four guns and a pompom. Thorndale is 16 miles north of Krugersdorp. The fight took place December 19. The British had 14 wounded, and the Boers fled in disorder, with about 50 killed.

The Boers who invaded Cape Colony had in most cases pack horses in addition to those they rode. All were in the pink of condition. They commandeered all possible clothing and stores at Venterstad.

Gen. Baden-Powell started for the Transvaal Saturday.

The Boers derailed a train at Barberton, killing an inspector and others.

Cape Town, Dec. 21.—The situation in the northern districts of Cape Colony is more serious. Fully 2,000 Boers have invaded that section. Grave fears are entertained that Dutch sympathizers will join the rebellion and that this will spread. Although there is no fear as to the ultimate result, the lack of a sufficient number of mounted troops is felt by the British. The enormous waste of horses in South Africa was never fully appreciated until now.

The invasion of Cape Colony is spreading. It is reported that the Boers have occupied Colesburg, south of Phillippolis and near the Orange River Colony frontier. The people here are much disturbed. A mixed force of 1,000 men was dispatched north Wednesday evening.

London, Dec. 21.—A dispatch received here from Johannesburg says: "Heavy cannonading was heard on Thursday morning northward of Krugersdorp Marudin. Boer parties still infest that district."

Bloemfontein, Tuesday, Dec. 18.—Gen. De Wet had 6,000 men and 18,000 horses when he captured Dewetsdorp, according to a gentleman who was imprisoned there.

The Boer commander then declared that he was not going to surrender without a free pardon for all his men, including many Cape Dutch.

The force of 6,000 is now divided into three sections.

London, Dec. 21.—Considerable activity is now manifested at Aldershot. A large draft of mounted troops will be ready to start for South Africa on January 6, while others have been notified to hold themselves in readiness for the same destination. According to the Cape Town correspondent of the Daily Mail, wiring Wednesday, the treason court sitting in Colesburg was obliged to hurriedly remove to Cape Town with the records and documents, owing to the vicinity of the invading Boers.

Death of Congressman Wise.

Newport News, Va., Dec. 22.—Richard A. Wise, congressman from the Second Virginia district, died suddenly at his home in Williamsburg Friday. He had long been a sufferer from Bright's disease. Mr. Wise was defeated for congress in the last election by Hon. Harry Maynard. He was a son of the late Gov. Henry A. Wise, of Virginia.

Italian Mysteriously Murdered.

Chicago, Dec. 22.—Samuel Lepoma, an Italian barber, was mysteriously slain in the shop of Guiseppe Farino, 195 West Van Buren street. Lepoma's body was not discovered for some time. The police attribute the crime to the dreaded Italian secret society, the Mafia. Farino, in whose shop Lepoma was killed, has left for parts unknown.

Trial a Failure.

Newport, R. I., Dec. 22.—The new torpedo boat Bailey failed in her attempt to complete her standardizing trial, likewise failing to reach a 30-knot speed on account of a poor quality of coal used in firing. Another trial will not be made for a couple of weeks at least.

John Owen Hanged.

Paris, Ill., Dec. 22.—John Owen was hanged Friday for murdering James Hogue in an attempt to rob him. Owen's parents live in Bell county, Kentucky.

INSTRUCTED TO SIGN.

Secretary Hay Orders Minister Conger to Attach His Name to the Joint Note.

Paris, Dec. 21.—The Havas Agency has received the following dispatch from Peking, dated December 20:

"The foreign envoys have signed the joint note with the addition of England's stipulation that China can not be allowed to foresee a cessation of the occupation of Peking or the province of Chi-Li so long as she has not conformed to the conditions of the powers.

"Mr. Conger has deferred signing owing to the instructions to insist on final moderation, but he thinks Washington will not insist."

Washington, Dec. 22.—Secretary Hay's action in instructing Mr. Conger to sign the joint note was approved by the cabinet at its meeting.

It is learned here that the agreement signed by the ministers of the powers at Peking, naming conditions as preliminary to the negotiations of peace terms, contains a demand for the severest penalties that China can impose in the punishment of the high officials believed to be responsible for the Boxer outrages. This refers particularly to the 11 prominent Chinese nobles whose names have been mentioned in the press dispatches as those whom some of the nations contended should be executed. Our government has persistently held to the position that penalties should not be inflicted on the Chinese government which she was unable to carry out. The demand for the death penalties was stricken out of the agreement, and that for the severest penalties possible inserted.

THE AUTONOMY PARTY.

Leaders Submit a Platform to the Philippine Commission—A Step Toward Self-Government.

Manila, Dec. 21.—The leaders of the projected autonomy party have again visited the Philippine commission and the platform proposed was discussed privately and in an informal way. The commissioners advise the elimination of a few minor features. Personally they approve the movement as a forward step in the direction of the ultimate measure of self-government which the committee has already been instructed to endeavor to bring about. The plan of the party is to form United States territories involving candidature for ultimate statehood. The platform declares in favor of a senate and house of representatives elected from the districts of the archipelago according to population. In preparing a bill of rights the United States constitution is utilized, with the exception of the feature of trial by jury.

According to the plan, the governor general appointed by the president would have the power to veto, except in cases of a two-thirds vote of the legislature. The legislature would choose five delegates to the United States.

The platform opposes the sale of the Philippines without the consent of the legislature. It contains little regarding judicial or local affairs.

In the main it repeats the features of the United States constitution. The most influential and honorable natives are identified with the movement.

DECLARED OFF.

The Strike of the Telegraphers on the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe Road Ended.

Houston, Tex., Dec. 22.—The strike of the telegraph operators on the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe was called off. It is presumed that there would be issued at once an order calling off the strike on all branches of the Atchison system, but the Order of Railroad Telegraphers' committee has jurisdiction over Texas alone. The strike was inaugurated in Texas 15 days ago. No concessions were asked by the men or offered by the company as a preliminary to calling off the strike.

Topeka, Kan., Dec. 22.—President Dolphin, of the Order of Railway Telegraphers, has declared the strike of the operators on the Santa Fe off. All the striking operators here have received orders from President Dolphin that the strike would continue no longer. The operators are beginning to speculate as to whether they will be reinstated in the employ of the company. They now have the permission of the organization to work if they can secure work.

New Race Track at St. Louis.

St. Louis, Dec. 22.—St. Louis is to have another race track, and its projectors say it will take rank with the best race courses in the country. A tract of 6,426 acres of land on Delmar avenue, just outside the city limits, has been bought.

Will Fight McGovern.

New York, Dec. 22.—Ben Jordan, English feather-weight, has accepted the offer of the National Sporting club, of London, and has signed articles to fight Terry McGovern.

The Germanic in a Gale.

Queenstown, Dec. 21.—The White Star liner Germanic, from New York, December 12, for Liverpool, arrived here Thursday morning and tried to land mail and passengers. The gale prevented, and the vessel proceeded to Liverpool.

Two Steamers Collide.

Christiana, Dec. 21.—The Norwegian steamer Kong Bjoern and the Norwegian bark Kong Sverre collided near Laurvig, Norway. The steamer was struck amidships and badly damaged, but all passengers were saved.

NICARAGUAN CANAL.

Senator Lodge Explains the Amendments to Hay-Pauncefote Treaty.

England Is Asked to Accept Reservation of Rights in Time of War Which She Granted in the Suez Treaty.

Washington, Dec. 22.—Senator Lodge, who had charge of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty in the senate, Friday made the following statement:

"The senate amendments are very important, but they are also very simple, although there seems to be some misunderstanding in regard to them, owing to the fact that all debates upon the treaty took place behind closed doors. Now that the amendments and votes have been made public by order of the senate, it may not be amiss to explain them briefly.

"The American people desire to build, and mean to build and control, the isthmian canal. They recognize that the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, made 50 years ago under conditions no longer existent, stands in the way. They have no desire to clear it from their path in a violent fashion by formally denouncing it or by passing laws and taking action in contravention of its provisions. They wish to remove it by amicable arrangement in a suitable and becoming manner. The Hay-Pauncefote treaty was framed for this object. The senate is part of the treaty-making power, and treaties sent to it for ratification are not strictly treaties, but projects for treaties. They are still inchoate.

"In the exercise of its undoubted rights, without the slightest reflection upon any one, and without a shadow of hostility to a friendly nation, the senate, continuing the negotiations begun by Mr. Hay, offers three new propositions to England. They ask her to omit the clause inviting other nations to adhere, which does not touch her at all. They ask her to conform to our desires by agreeing in unmistakable language to the supersession of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty by the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, which is the whole purpose of the negotiation. They ask her finally to accept in this treaty the reservation of rights in time of war which she granted Turkey in the Suez convention, and of which, as the present possessor of Egypt, she is now herself the beneficiary.

"These propositions are all essential to American interests, and are fair, reasonable, friendly and in no possible sense offensive. England's interest in having the canal built, be it great or small, is second only to that of the United States, for she alone has, like the United States, large possessions in North America and both an Atlantic and a Pacific coast. We agree that all vessels of commerce and of war shall pass through the canal on the same terms as our own, and in war between other powers we agree to preserve the neutrality of the canal toward all belligerents. In deference to the wishes of Nicaragua and Costa Rica in regard to this treaty, and not to any we may hereafter make with them, we relinquish the right to erect permanent fortifications, and, although there is no need of such fortifications, the right to erect them is an important right, and its relinquishment goes to the last verge of concession.

"The vast expense of the canal is ours, the maintenance and defense of it are ours, and the American people will never permit a canal there which they do not control, because the defense of the United States overrides every other consideration. In building and maintaining the canal we assume that burden by which the whole world will benefit, and if we bear the burden alone, the power and control must be ours alone also.

"We desire to dispose of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty in the most friendly way possible. We are most averse to any other disposition of it. England does not intend to go to war with us to prevent our building of the canal, and if it is physically possible to build it we mean to do so in any event.

"Under these circumstances we are very clear that it is as much for England's interests as ours to accept the new propositions in the friendly spirit in which they are offered, and thus end a controversy over an outworn treaty which is only a stumbling block to both nations. It is not to be doubted that the English ministers, whose ability, experience and reputation are known to all the world, will duly weigh all these considerations and rightly comprehend the purpose of the senate amendments and the spirit in which they are offered."

Senator Frye's Wife Dead.

Washington, Dec. 22.—The wife of Senator Frye, of Maine, died suddenly Friday morning in this city.

Fraudulent Divorce Bureau.

New York, Dec. 22.—Recorder Goff sentenced Henry Zelmer, one of the heads of a fraudulent divorce bureau, to ten years in state's prison, and James Holden, alias Frank Wilson, a professional correspondent, to three years in state's prison.

McKinley's Inaugural Ball.

Washington, Dec. 22.—Secretary Hitchcock granted the inaugural committee permission to hold the ball and entertainments incident to the coming inauguration of President McKinley in the pension building.

FILLED ALL REQUIREMENTS.

She Wanted a Real Sensible Book and She Took Robinson Crusoe.

The trials of librarians in city libraries have often been cited; those of the guardians of small country libraries are of a different character, but require perhaps the exercise of even greater patience, says Youth's Companion.

"Ma wants you should pick her out a book," said a freckle-faced girl to the bright young woman in charge of the free library of a New England village; "and she don't want a serious one, she says, nor she don't want a love story, without it's founded on fact. Nor of course, she don't want anything she's ever read before."

The librarian tapped her pencil thoughtfully on the desk, without a trace of despair which a chance listener to this dialogue expected to see on her face.

"Now she don't want anything that's chopped up into short stories, she says," continued the girl, bent on the librarian's further enlightenment, "and she wants considerable going on, and a lot of pictures, ma does. And she told me particular to say she didn't want no dime novels; she says she knows well enough how folks in the country is."

Still the librarian thoughfully tapped her pencil, apparently waiting for further instructions.

"She wants a real sensible book, the kind grandma likes and I like, too," volunteered "ma's" emissary; then suddenly she leaned over the librarian. "Say," she whispered, hoarsely, "if there's one of the Robinson Cruzo books in, ma said you'd better gimme that."

"Certainly," said the librarian, pleasantly, and a moment later the well-thumbed copy of the famous adventures had changed hands, and the happy possessor of it departed wreathed in smiles.

Fire a Shot 20 Miles.

The United States will fire a thousand pound shot twenty miles which will be a record breaker for the distance. The gun from which it is to be fired will be a marvel of American ingenuity, and workmanship. Another marvel of American ingenuity is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. For fifty years it has been the only medicine to cure constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness and by its direct action on the kidneys prevents rheumatism.

POWERS TRIAL ECHO.

Rev. John Stamper Brings Suit Against the Louisville Courier-Journal For $25,000 Damages.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 20.—Suit was filed in the Jefferson county circuit court by Rev. John Stamper, a Baptist minister of Georgetown, Ky., Wednesday, against the Louisville Courier-Journal Publishing Co. for $25,000 damages. The action was brought through Attorney Maj. W. C. Owen and Judge R. C. Kinkead. The suit is the outgrowth of the famous murder trials at Georgetown. Rev. Mr. Stamper testified for the defense in the trial of Secretary of State Caleb Powers for complicity in the murder of the late William Goebel. He is a brother-in-law of Ben B. and Wharton F. Golden, who figured for the prosecution and witness for the prosecution respectively.

On the day following Mr. Stamper's appearance on the witness stand the Courier-Journal printed statements which are alleged to have been untrue and injurious to his reputation as a citizen and as a minister of the Gospel.

RAN TO A FIRE.

While Doing So a Farmer Fell Into a Cistern and Had His Neck Broken.

Williamsburg, Ky., Dec. 22.—Morgan Simpson, a farmer, 35 years old, fell in a cistern at Mrs. Frakes' residence and broke his neck. Early in the night the residence was seen to be on fire, and Simpson ran to the scene, hoping to render such service as was possible. In going around a corner of the building he stepped into an uncovered cistern. When rescued he had a broken neck.

The residence was recently purchased by Mrs. Frakes, who is a widow, and was entirely consumed. There was no insurance.

OVER A BARLOW KNIFE.

Charles Oaks Fatally Stabbed By Starlin Smith as He Emerged From a Cemetery.

Williamsburg, Ky., Dec. 21.—Chas. Oaks was fatally stabbed by Starlin Smith as he emerged from a cemetery near Saxton, where he had seen a brother laid in his last resting place. Both principals are boys, and had a bitter quarrel over a Barlow knife. Smith was accused by Oaks of stealing it, and followed him to the cemetery. As Oaks came out Smith drew the knife and exclaimed:

"Now, if you don't take it back I'll send you to meet your brother."

Oaks refused, and was stabbed in the side. Smith disappeared across the state line into Tennessee.

Louisville Tobacco.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 20.—Offerings passed the 1,000 hogshead mark on Wednesday for the first time since the new burley crop started. The market showed no change from Tuesday, new burley being firm and active. The better grades show continued improved demand. Old burley was offered sparingly, but was firm. Dark was unchanged. In all the offerings were 1,033 hogsheads, of which 940 hogsheads were burley and 93 hogsheads dark.

Pierced By Nails.

Tompkinsville, Ky., Dec. 21.—John Philpot, a carpenter and builder, met with an accident on Judico creek which caused his death in half an hour. He had completed a church, put his tools away and turned to go out when he stumbled, falling from the door onto three nails. One pierced the eye, the other the forehead and another the right temple, penetrating the brain and causing death.

Fell on His Own Knife.

Middlesboro, Ky., Dec. 21.—Ten miles above Mingo Mines, Levering Smith, son of a preacher, was killed by falling on a knife that he had in his hand. Smith was in a neighbor's turnip patch, and, being frightened, ran and fell. The blade, which was a common pocket knife, stuck in his breast on the right side several inches. The boy expired at the door of his home in sight of his mother. Smith was about 16 years old.

Death of Banker Rodman.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 22.—Col. Thos. Rodman, aged 76, is dead. Col. Rodman was one of the best known financiers of this state, and was for 20 years president of the Farmers' Bank of Kentucky, with branches at Georgetown and Henderson, and a capital stock of $1,000,000. Upon the reorganization of the bank recently he was defeated for the presidency, and since then his health had gradually declined. He leaves a large fortune.

A Cattle Ranch.

Versailles, Ky., Dec. 22.—Woodburn farm, which a year ago disposed of its trotting and thoroughbred stud, will engage extensively in the breeding of blue-blooded shorthorn cattle. Mr. A. J. Alexander, the owner of Woodburn, has just purchased a very fine herd of shorthorns in Ohio.

WARM CONTEST.

Deboe and Yerkes Disagree Over a Man to Succeed the Latter—The Recommendations.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 20.—Revenue Agent Charles W. Sewall, under telegraphic instructions from Washington, left here Wednesday morning for Danville to check up the office of John W. Yerkes as collector of internal revenue for the Eighth district and to turn it over Thursday morning to Chief Deputy Bland Ballard, who has been appointed acting collector.

Senator Deboe and Representative Boreing have agreed upon Judge James Denton for the vacant collectorship, and Yerkes has recommended the appointment of George W. Walsh, treasurer of the republican campaign committee in the recent campaign. It seems that all other applicants are now out of the race, and that a warm contest between this pair for the plum may be expected.

CONFESSED TO MURDER.

Two Others Are Under Indictment For the Killing of a Widow and Her Son.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 22.—Samuel Vanover has confessed to the brutal murder and robbery of Mrs. Mina Hall, a widow, and 16-year-old son Charles, at Mountain Hamlet, of Boone's Fork, Letcher county, Ky., November 13, last. Vanover lived at Hall Home and on his testimony Solomon and Elijah Fleming were arrested and indicted for murder and threatened with lynching, trial being set for February. Vanover has been behaving strangely for the past week and, breaking down, confessed that he murdered Mrs. Hall and son and stole money hidden in the house, probably a thousand dollars. He had $400 sewed in his clothes when he confessed. He is under a strong guard and will be first tried for lunacy.

GIANTS IN STATURE.

Eight Stalwart Brothers Went to Town and Had Their Pictures Taken in a Group.

Williamstown, Ky., Dec. 22.—Eight stalwart brothers, the children of Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Roland, of Lawrenceville, came to town Friday and sat for their pictures in a group. The eldest of this remarkable aggregation is 42 and the youngest 23 years of age. They are typical Kentuckians, and average just six feet in height and their average weight is 178 pounds. They are of a family of 11 children, all of whom are living. The father and mother and paternal grandfather are also all living. The grandfather is 95 years of age and the oldest man in the county but quite active.

Attempted Detention.

Richmond, Ky., Dec. 22.—Pauline Duerson, sged 12, Friday swore out a warrant against Albert Rhodes on a charge of attempted detention. Miss Duerson, returning from school on horseback, met Rhodes on foot. She says he endeavored to pull her from her horse. In the scuffle she escaped. She belongs to a prominent family.

Shot Two Children.

Owensboro, Ky., Dec. 22.—Three children of J. Ezell, of Panther, were left alone in a room at home, when a seven-year-old child picked up a loaded gun and, by accident, discharged it. A four-year-old child was shot in the arm, and the member was amputated. A two-year-old child was shot in the legs and body.

Caleb Powers' Case.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 22.—The court of appeals as at present made up will not render a decision in the case of former Secretary of State Caleb Powers against the commonwealth. The court adjourned Saturday for the fall term. When it meets again on January 7 Judge Ed C. O'Rear will be on the bench.

Denton to Succeed Yerkes.

Washington, Dec. 22.—Representative Boreing, of Kentucky, accompanied Judge Denton, of Somerset, Ky., to the white house and introduced him to the president. After the interview Mr. Boreing said Judge Denton would be appointed internal revenue collector for the Eighth district of Kentucky.

All Petitions Refused.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 21.—Gov. Beckham has cleared his desk of the petitions for pardons that had accumulated during the week preceding the inauguration. He examined the papers in about two dozen petitions and refused all of them.

Burglars at Franklin.

Franklin, Ky., Dec. 21.—Burglars entered the sleeping room of W. J. Bernard and stole $30 and a gold watch valued at $60. They chloroformed Mr. and Mrs. Bernard. They effected an entrance through a window. No clew to the burglars.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 21.—Gov. Beckham has appointed Dr. Florence Meder, of Louisville, third assistant physician of the Western asylum, at Hopkinsville, to succeed Dr. Laura Keisker, resigned.

SACRIFICES OF GOD.

Dr. Talmage Preaches an Appropriate Christmas Sermon.

The Lord's Gift of His Son Through His Love of Man for the World's Disenthrallment — Mission of the Saviour.

(Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.)

In this discourse Dr. Talmage describes in a new way the sacrifices made for the world's disenthrallment and deliverance. His text is I. John iv., 9-16: "God is love."

Perilous undertaking would it be to attempt a comparison between the attributes of God. They are not like a mountain range, with here and there a higher peak, nor like the ocean, with here and there a profounder depth. We cannot measure infinities. We would not dare to say whether His omnipotence, or omniscience, or omnipresence, or immutability, or wisdom, or justice, or love is the greater attribute, but the one mentioned in my text makes deeper impression upon us than any other. It was evidently a very old man who wrote the chapter from which I take the text. John was not in his dotage, as Prof. Eichorn asserted, but you can tell by the repetition in the epistle and the rambling style that he called grown people "little children" that the author was probably an octogenarian. Yet Paul, in midlife mastering an audience of Athenian critics on Mars hill, said nothing stronger or more important than did the venerable John when he wrote the three words of my text: "God is love."

Indeed the older one gets the more he appreciates this attribute. The harshness and the combativeness and the severity have gone out of the old man, and he is more lenient and aware of his own faults, is more disposed to make excuses for the faults of others, and he frequently ejaculates: "Poor human nature!" The young minister preached three sermons on the justice of God and one on the love of God, but when he got old he preached three sermons on the love of God and one on the justice of God.

Far back in the eternities there came a time when God would express one emotion of His nature which was yet unexpressed. He had made more worlds than were seen by the ancients from the top of the Egyptian pyramid, which was used as an observatory, and more worlds than modern astronomy has catalogued or descried through microscopic lens. All that showed the Lord's almightiness, but it gave no demonstration of His love. He might make 50 Saturns and a hundred Jupiters and not demonstrate an instant of love. That was an unknown passion and the secret of the universe. It was a suppressed emotion of the great God. But there would come a time when this passion of infinite love would be declared and illustrated. God would veil it no longer. After the clock of many centuries had run down and worlds had been born and demolished on a comparatively obscure star a race of human beings would be born and who, though so bountifully provided for that they ought to have behaved themselves well, went into insurrection and conspiracy and revolt and war — finite against infinite, weak arm against thunderbolt, man against God.

If high intelligences looked down and saw what was going on, they must have prophesied extermination, complete extermination, of these offenders of Jehovah. But no! Who is that coming out of the throne room of Heaven? Who is that coming out of the palaces of the eternal? It is the Son of the Emperor of the universe. Down the stairs of the high heavens He comes till He reaches the cold air of a December night in Palestine, and amid the bleatings of sheep and the lowing of cattle and the moaning of camels and the banter of herdsmen takes his first sleep on earth and for 33 years invites the wandering race to return to God and happiness and Heaven. They were the longest 33 years ever known in Heaven. Among many high intelligences, what impatience to get Him back! The Infinite Father looked down and saw his Son slapped and spit on and supperless and homeless, and then, amid horrors that made the noonday heavens turn black in the face, His body and soul parted. And all for what? Why allow the Crown Prince to come on such an errand and endure such sorrow and die such a death? It was to invite the human race to put down its antipathies and resistance. It was because "God is love."

Now, there is nothing beautiful in a shipwreck. We go down to look at the battered and split hulk of an old ship on Long Island or New Jersey coast. It excites our interest. We wonder when and where it came ashore, and whether it was the recklessness of a pilot or a storm before which nothing could bear up. Human nature wrecked may interest the inhabitants of other worlds as a curiosity, but there is nothing lovely in that which has foundered on the rocks of sin and sorrow. Yet it was in that condition of moral break up that Heaven moved to the rescue. It was loveliness hovering over deformity. It was the lifeboat putting out into the surf that attempted its demolition. It was harmony pitying discord. It was a living God putting His arms around a recreant world.

The schoolmen deride the idea that God has emotion. They think it would be a Divine weakness to be stirred by any earthly spectacle. The God of the learned Beuch and Schleiermacher is an infinite intelligence, without feeling, a cold and cheerless divinity. But the God we worship is one of sympathy and compassion and helpfulness and affection. "God is love."

In all the Bible there is no more consolatory statement. The very best people have in their lives occurrences inexplicable. They are bereft or persecuted or impoverished or invalided. They have only one child, and that dies, while the next door neighbor has seven children, and they are all spared. The unfortunates buy at a time when the market is rising and the day after the market falls. At a time when they need to feel the best for the discharge of some duty they are seized with physical collapse. Trying to do a good and honest and useful thing, they are misrepresented and belied as if they had practiced a villainy. These are people who all their lives have suffered injustices. Others of less talent, with less consecration, go on and up, while they go on and down. There are in many lives riddles that have never been solved, mysteries that have never been explained, heartbreaks that have never been healed. Go to that man or that woman with philosophic explanation, and you will make matters worse instead of making them better. But let the oceanic tide of the text roll in that soul, and all its worriments and losses and disasters will be submerged with blessing, and the sufferer will say: "I cannot understand the reason for my troubles, but I will some day understand. And they do not come by accident. God allows them to come, and 'God is love.'"

But for this divine feeling I think our world would long ago have been demolished. Just think of the organized wickedness of the nations! See the abominations continental! Behold the false religions that hoist Mohammed and Buddha and Confucius! Look at the Koran and the Shastras and the Zend-Avesta that would crowd out of the world the Holy Scriptures! Look at war, digging its trenches for the dead across the hemispheres! See the great cities, with their holocaust of destroyed manhood and womanhood! What blasphemies assail the heavens! What butcheries sicken the centuries! What processions of crime and atrocity and woe encircle the globe! If justice had spoken, it would have said: "The world deserves annihilation, and let annihilation come." If immutability had spoken, it would have said: "I have always been opposed to wickedness and always will be opposed to it. The world is to me an affront infinite, and away with it." If omniscience had spoken, it would have said: "I have watched that planet with minute and comprehensive inspection, and I cannot have the offense longer continued." If truth had spoken, it would have said: "I declare that they who offend the law must go down under the law." But divine love took a different view of the world's obduracy and pollution. It said: "I pity all those woes of the earth. I cannot stand here and see no assuagement of those sufferings. I will go down and reform the world. I will medicate its wounds. I will calm its frenzy. I will wash off its pollution. I will become incarnated. I will take on my shoulders and upon my brow and into my heart the consequences of the world's misbehavior. I start now, and between my arrival at Bethlehem and my ascent from Olivet I will weep their tears and suffer their griefs and die their death. Farewell, my throne, my crown, my scepter, my angelic environment, my Heaven, till I have finished the work and come back!" God was never conquered but once, and that was when He was conquered by His own love. "God is love."

In this day, when the creeds of churches are being revised, let more emphasis be put upon the thought of my text. Let it appear at the beginning of every creed and at the close. The ancients used to tell of a great military chieftain who, about to go to battle, was clad in armor, helmet on head and sword at side, and who put out his arms to give farewell embrace to his child, and the child, affrighted at his appearance, ran, shrieking, away. Then the father put off the armor that caused the alarm, and the child saw who he was and ran into his arms and snuggled against his heart. Creeds must not have too much iron in their make up, terrorizing rather than attracting. They must not hide the smiling face and the warm heart of our Father, God. Let nothing imply that there is a sheriff at every door ready to make arrest, but over us all and around us all a mercy that wants to save, and save now.

If one paragraph of the creed seems to take you, like a child, out of the arms of a father, let the next paragraph put you in the arms of a mother. "As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you." Oh, what a mother we have in God! And my text is the lullaby song to us when we are ill, or when we are maltreated, or when we are weary, or when we are trying to do better, or when we are bereft, or when we ourselves lie down to the last sleep. We feel the warm cheek of the mother against our cheek, and there sounds in it the hush of many mothers: "God is love!"

This was the reason the Bible was written. The world needs no inspired page to tell it that God will chastise sin, for that is proved in the life of many an offender. You can look through the wicket of any prison and see the fact which the world understood thousands of years before Solomon wrote it: "The way of the transgressor is hard." The world needed no Bible to tell it that God is omnipotent, for anyone who has seen Mont Blanc or Niagara or the Atlantic ocean in a cyclone knows that. The world needed no Bible to tell it of God's wisdom, for everything, from a spider's web to the upholstery of a summer's sunset, from the globe of a dewdrop to the rounding of a world, declares that. But there was one secret about God that was wrapped up in a scroll of parchment, and it staid there until apostolic hand unrolled that scroll and let out upon the world the startling fact, which it could never have surmised, never guessed, never expected, that He loved our human race so ardently that He will pardon sin and subdue the offender with a Divine kiss and turn foaming malefactors into worshipers before the throne. Oh, I am so glad that the secret is out and that it can never again be rolled! Tell it to all the sinning, suffering, dying race; tell it in song and sermon, on canvas and in marble, on arch and pillar; tell it all around the earth—"God is love."

Notice that the wisest men of the nations for thousands of years did not, amid their idolatries, make something to represent this feeling, this emotion. They had a Jove, representing might; Neptune, the god of the sea; Minerva, the goddess of wisdom; Venus, the goddess of base appetite; Ceres, the goddess of corn, and an Odin, and an Osiris, and a Titan, and a Juggernaut, and whole pantheons of gods and goddesses, but no shrine, no carved image, no sculptured form has suggested a god of pure love. That was beyond human brain. It took a God to think that, a God to project that, a God let down from Heaven to achieve that.

Fear is the dominant thought in all false religions. For that the devotees cut themselves with lances and swing on iron hooks and fall under wheels and hold up the right arm so long that they cannot take it down. Fear, brutish fear! But love is the queen in our religion. For that we build temples. For that we kneel at our altars. For that we contribute our alms. For that martyrs suffered at Brussels market place and at Lucknow and Cawnpur and Peking. That will yet bejewel the round earth and put it an emerald on the great, warm, throbbing heart of God.

The world has had many specimens of slandered men and women, their motives slandered, their habits slandered—slandered until they got out of the world, and then perhaps honored by elaborate eulogium and tall shaft of granite, all four sides chiseled with the story of how good and great they were. But no one under the heavens or over the heavens has ever been so much slandered as God. Bad men have fought against Him and have thought they heard His voice in the crash of a thunderstorm, but have not seen Him in the sunshine of the spring morning. They have blamed Him for wrongs which they had done themselves. The sight of a church building excites their disgust. They like the madrigal of a saloon better than the doxology of a temple. They do not want to live with Him in Heaven, but would prefer on leaving this world to go into some realm where God has abdicated the throne and from which He is exiled forever. The reason is they do not know Him. They do not realize the fact that God is the best friend this world ever had or ever will have, and that He would do more for their happiness than anyone in the wide universe; that He would help them in the wear and tear and tussle of this life; that He would hush their sorrows; that He would help cure the evil habits with which they sometimes struggle; that He would at their request not only forgive but forget the wrong things in their life. Yes, forget! And that is the only thing that God ever does forget—pardoned transgression. The best memory in the universe is God's memory, and He remembers all that has transpired in all time and in all eternity save one kind of occurrence. That passes completely out of His memory. He declares: "Their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more."

Do you want more proof that "God is love?" Yea, disinterested love. No compensation for its bestowal. No reward for its sacrifices. But I will that back. The world did pay Him. It paid Him on Calvary, paid Him with brambles on the brow and four spikes, two for the hands and two for the feet, and one spear for the side near the heart; paid Him in execration; paid Him with straw pillow in a barn and a cross on a hill; paid Him with a third of a century of maltreatment and hardship save one year—yea, is paying Him yet in rejection of His mission of mercy. Having dethroned other kings, the world would like to dethrone the King of kings. But He knew what He was coming to when He left the portals of pearl and the land where the sun never goes down. Yes, He knew the world, how cold it is, and knew pain, how sharp it is, and the night, how dark it is, and expiation, how excruciating it is. Out of vast eternity He looked forward and saw Pilate's criminal courtroom, and the rocky bluff with three crosses, and the lacerated body in mortuary surroundings, and heard the thunders toll at the funeral of Heaven's favorite, and understood that the palaces of eternity would hear the sorrow of a bereft God.

What do the Bible and the church liturgies mean when they say: "He descended into hell?" They mean that His soul left His sacred body for awhile and went down into the prison of moral night, and awung back its great door, and lifted the chain of captivity, and felt the awful lash that would have come down on the world's back, and wept the tears of an eternal sacrifice, and took the bolt of Divine indignation against sin into Himself, and, having vanquished death and hell, came out and came up, having achieved an eternal rescue if we will accept it.

Some have compared the love of God to the ocean, but the comparison fails, for the ocean has a shore, and God's love is boundless. But if you insist on comparing the love of God to the ocean put on that ocean four swift-sailing craft, and let one sail to the north, and one to the south, and one to the east, and one to the west, and let them sail on a thousand years, and after that let them all return and some one hail the fleet and ask them if they have found the shore of God's love, and their four voices would resound: "No shore! No shore to the ocean of God's mercy!"

FIFTY-SIXTH CONGRESS.

Second Session.

Washington, Dec. 18.—Senate—The senate was in open session only one hour Monday, the remainder of the legislative day being spent in executive session upon the Hay-Pauncefote treaty. No legislative business aside from the purest routine was transacted. The senate in executive session agreed to give its adhesion to the convention to regulate the importation of intoxicating liquors into certain regions of Africa.

House—Under suspension of the rules the house Monday passed bills to divide Kentucky and West Virginia into two judicial districts, to create another district judge in the northern district of Ohio and to refer to the secretary of the interior for investigation the claim of the state of Texas for moneys expended on public improvements in Greer county before the decision of the supreme court placed it within the jurisdiction of Oklahoma. One hundred and two private pension bills were passed.

Washington, Dec. 19.—Senate—The friends of the Hay-Pauncefote treaty occupied nearly all of the time of the senate in executive session Tuesday Senators Foraker and Morgan being the speakers. Previous to the taking up of the treaty the senate disposed of several other treaties. Five conventions in all were ratified. Among the documents thus disposed of was an agreement supplementary to the Hay-Pauncefote treaty itself and extending the time within which it may be ratified. Under the terms of the original treaty the time for ratification expired five months ago. The agreement favorably passed upon Tuesday extends the time until March 4, during which the treaty may be completed.

House—The house devoted the day to District of Columbia business. The entire time was occupied in considering a bill to change the terminal facilities of the Pennsylvania railroad in this city and to provide for the elevation of its tracks across the mall south of Pennsylvania avenue. After much filibustering the friends of the bill succeeded in securing a recess until 11 o'clock Wednesday, in order to continue the legislative day and complete consideration of the bill.

Washington, Dec. 20.—Senate—The house resolution placing Representative Charles Boutelle (Me.) on the navy retired list as a captain passed Wednesday. Seventy-one private pension bills were passed, including two giving pensions of $50 a month to the widows of Gen. John A. McClernand and Gen. John A. Palmer. A bill to give a pension of $70 to the widow of James A. Mercer, late professor of civil and military engineering at West Point, was also passed. The urgent deficiency bill was passed without debate. The full senate committee on military affairs has adopted the army reorganization bill reported by its subcommittee. The maximum strength of the army is to be 100,000 men.

House—At the close of a spirited contest extending over two days, the house passed bills to compel the Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio railroads to abolish grade crossings, to alter their routes into the city and to change their terminal facilities. An amendment was placed upon the Pennsylvania bill to require the road to build a new station to cost not less than $1,500,000.

Washington, Dec. 21.—Senate—On Thursday the Hay-Pauncefote canal treaty was ratified by a vote of 55 to 18. All the amendments except those offered by Senator Foraker and reported by the committee on foreign relations were voted down by majorities averaging about 19.

House—The house Thursday passed the Indian and the military academy appropriation bills. The former carried $9,036,526, and the latter $700,151. Minor amendments were placed upon the former.

Washington, Dec. 22.—House—The house was in session only 25 minutes Friday, when it adjourned out of respect to the memory of Representative Wise (Va.), who died at his home in Williamsburg, Va. The customary resolutions were adopted and a committee of 17 members was appointed to attend the funeral. Under the concurrent resolution adopted a few days ago, the adjournment was until January 3, 1901. Representative Lacy (Ind.) introduced a bill providing for a "cliff dwellers' national park. It provides for setting aside a large tract of public land in New Mexico for the purpose of preserving the prehistoric caves and ruins of the cliff dwellers and other relics thereon. Mr. Perea (N. M.) introduced a bill authorizing the sale of certain New Mexico lands for the benefit of a territorial university.

HIS NEW DUTIES.

John W. Yerkes, Appointed Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Took the Oath of Office.

Washington, Dec. 21.—John W. Yerkes, of Kentucky, recently appointed commissioner of internal revenue, Thursday took the prescribed oath and entered upon his new duties. A large number of prominent officials, including members of congress and several personal friends from out of town, were present and congratuinted the new commissioner on his elevation to the head of one of the most important and responsible bureaus of the government. A large mahogany desk in the center of Mr. Yerkes' room was completely covered with American beauty roses.

A Steamer in Distress.

Hamilton, Bermuda, Dec. 20.—The British steamer Domingo de Larrinaga, Capt. Gibson, which left Liverpool November 28 for Port Eads, La., has arrived here in distress. During a gale on December 13 her main steam pipe burst, killing three firemen and scalding others.

Capital Stock Increased.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 20.—The Singer Manufacturing Co., of Elizabeth, on Wednesday filed papers increasing its capital stock from $10,000,000 to $30,000,000.

LOOK OUT FOR SNAKES.

Australian Officials Have to Warn Visitors of Danger.

When the visitor or immigrant lands at any of the chief ports of Australia, the first thing brought conspicuously to his notice is the government placard warning him of the danger from serpents, and in case of being bitten the most effective remedies to avert a fatal issue.

That this warning is by no means an unnecessary act of officialism is borne out by the fact that in no country of the world, not even in India itself, where 30,000 human beings perish annually from the bite of the cobra, are there so many varieties of poisonous serpents as in Australia.

While in most lands where snakes abonnd the majority of the species are harmless and the minority venomous, in Australia the reverse is the case.

From a great number of the latter class at the antipodes the tiger snake, black snake, whip snake, and the death adder are regarded as deadly, with many others held to be poisonous in the sense of the American rattlesnake.

Owing to the rough nature of vast tracts of the country, and the favorable conditions of intense heat and aridity for the propagation of the serpent species, their numbers have been little decimated by the advance of civilization. The most disgusting feature of the situation is the desire of these reptiles to take up their unwelcome abode under the floors and within the walls of human habitations. Their snbsequent appearance at unexpected moments in the bedrooms or parlors naturally causes scenes of consternation.

As an illustration of this, when the writer upon one occasion was visiting at an up-country station, it happened that one evening a young lady was entertaining the company at the piano. A member of the party, noticing a suspicious rustling about the edge of her skirts, quietly procured a stick, and, after a cursory inspection, flicked out into the middle of the room a blacksnake between one and two feet long. The reptile had evidently been lured from its hiding place by the music.

As a bar to these unwelcome visitors, many of the squatters surround their houses with hedges of ivy geranium, it being the popular belief in the country that snakes possess a great aversion to the pungent odor exhaled from the leaves of that plant. Upon the principle, perhaps, of setting a thief to catch a thief, in Northern Queensland the squatters make a pet of the carpet snake—a monster reptile that sometimes reaches a length of from 15 to 20 feet. While of the constrictor species, the carpet snake is perfectly harmless and is a great prey upon all other serpents. His usefulness, therefore, is apparent, though his appearance upon the porch for a dish of milk is likely to give a shock to the nerves of the uninitiated stranger.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

COAL CONSUMPTION PER HEAD.

Some Interesting Figures from a London Source.

The London Financial News makes an interesting calculation of the consumption of coal per head of the leading coal producing countries, viz.:

"As well as being the biggest producer, and much the biggest exporter, of coal, England is also the biggest per head consumer. Her consumption last year was four tons per head, against 3.83 tons in 1898 and 3.79 tons in 1883. The United States consumption per head was 2.82 tons last year, against 2.60 in 1898 and 1.91 tons in 1883. But the actual consumption of coal was greatest in the United States. It amounted last year to 193,479,000 tons, against 153,798,000 tons consumed in England. Thus the greater industrial progress of the United States has become apparent. Notwithstanding the much greater increase in her population, her per head consumption has grown by .91 ton between 1883 and 1899, while England's has grown by .21 ton only. Germany's has grown by .61 ton in the same period, and stood last year at 1.70 tons.

From these figures it is apparent that England is "slowing down," as the News expresses it, and has almost ceased to progress at all; that the United States is progressing the most rapidly in industrial affairs, with Germany next. And it may be suggested in passing that England should make careful note of what the United States does in the way of industrial progress during the present year.—N. Y. Commercial.

Kentucky Crop Report.

The month of November was characterized by drouth, followed on the 20th and after by very heavy rains, which caused the streams to overflow their banks and occasioned much loss of corn on low bottoms. The rain was a blessing to many farmers, as it revived the suffering wheat fields and furnished much-needed stock water in many places.

Nearly all the correspondents say that the early part of the month was too dry for the wheat crop and that the rain which followed was greatly needed. On the whole this crop is below the ten-year average in condition, the figure being 89.9. Twenty per cent. of reports mention damage by Hessian fly. This pest seems to have gained a foothold this fall which may prove serious in the spring. In some counties the crop was so badly damaged that fields were plowed and resown later with wheat or rye. This was not by any means universal and need create no alarm if there is no great development of the pest in the spriug. The late fall has been beneficial to late sown wheat, which will escape the winter brood of the fly and has the best chance to escape damage in the spring.

The condition of live stock is encouraging, though quite a number of correspondents report some cholera among hogs and a few report "black-leg" among cattle. It seems ahat we are never quite free from these affections of live stock, but there seems to be no malignant form of these diseases and the outbreaks are confined to limited areas.

The tobacco crop has cured in the barns without more damage than is usual. Ten per cent. damage from "house burn" is reported. Of this the greatest damage, 13 per cent, is in the section embracing the burley district, where the crop was large and necessitated crowding in the barns.

Corn is not turning out so good and sound as was expected. It is said to be chaffy in many sectfons and rotting more than usual in others.

One of the best and most available manures is that which our poultry supplies. First of all, it costs no ready money and is an article of value to any farmer who will utilize it. How to save, mix and use this manure has been a study with scores of farmers during the past few years. In nearly every farmer's yard are to be seen from 100 to 200 fowls, and often they have no proper shelter, and the droppings are lost. Often no thought is given to gathering the manure for fertilizing purposes, and in the spring the owner will pay from $60 to $75 per ton for gauno, while the poultry manure that goes to waste on his own farm is almost equally rich in plant food and even better than some brands of so-called "pure" gauno. Poultry manure has the most value when kept in the dry; its value is largely dependent upon the kind of food which the fowls deposit. As a rule the poultry is given richer food than any other farm stock. Wheat, rye, corn, also scraps from the table add to their fare; hence their droppings must possess considerable fertilizing value. We keep the poultry together in the hennery as much as possible. The floor is kept dry, being covered weekly with ashes obtained at a planning mill at a cost of 15 cents per bushel. Regular every week it is removed and stored in a dry place, shoveled over and enough absorbent added to keep from heating. It is astonishing how much accumulates. If we wish to drill the manure it is sifted; otherwise it is applied from the wagon directly. If farmers who keep poultry and let the manure go to waste would try this plan they would save enough the first year in fertilizer bills to build a poultry house and fence a yard for their private fertilizer factory.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

There are counties in Indiana and Illinois where wheat failure has almost ruined the farmers on the high priced land. Many of these farmers are going into stock and some are going into Missouri and states father west, to get more land in order to raise more corn and grass to feed more stock. Still many of the farmers are raising corn to sell, rather than to raise stock. The stock raisers are making money and the corn and wheat raisers are going from bad to worse. Live stock is essential to successful farming in every country.—Dakota Farmer.

Sweet potatoes give fair profits when grown under careful supervision and excellent cultivation. William Colwell, of Hammandton, N. J., using the ordinary Nansemond variety, grew many hills of sweet potatoes this season which contained from 10 to 12 pounds per hill. This would be about 800 bushels per acre, should such a field be uniform in yield. While the crop showed such excellence only in some of the hills, yet the yields show what is possible with the sweet potato with judicious cultivation.

The State of Iowa has long been famous for its agricultural wealth, but this year has made a new record in the prosperity of farmers. The average yield of corn for the decade has been 32.2 bushels per acre, but this year the crop measured out 40.3 bushels. The yield of wheat has been only surpassed twice during the past ten years, and was 14.3 bushels per acre. Crops of other kinds have been abundant, there being a falling off only in broom corn and sorghum, and this being more than made up by the gain in sweet potatoes. The yield of corn was 345,055,040 bushels and at 27 cents a bushel foots up a grand total of $93,164,860, being the biggest item of all. The aggregate value of all the farm products of the State is put at $229,805,058. This is not far behind the year's production of gold and shows that the Iowa cornfields are a greater source of revenue than all the gold mines of North America, besides affording a much more satisfactory way of living. Iowa is one of the banner States in the Union, but through so exclusively agricultural it appears to have no hostility to railroads. Its mileage is a third larger than Kentucky's, is steadily growing, and is lightly taxed, thus affording transportation facilities and a ready market to all the products of its farm.—C.-J.

There is some cause why hens suddenly stop laying, though certainly not always a lack of food, as the cessation may happen in a single day. Neither is it due to disease as the hens may be very healthy. It is nothing more nor less than a lack of warmth, the heat produced from food being necessary to keep up the animal heat, leaving nothing toward the production of eggs.

A certain amount of heat is due the body of the fowl and should the building not be sufficiently warm, then that food which should go toward producing eggs is devoted toward supplying heat for the body.

One cold night with insufficient protection for the hens will stop their laying for fully a week, this occasioning a loss far greater in the end than would have been the cost of a warm building.

Don't neglect the hens in winter if you expect to have them lay eggs. Watch carefully for each sudden change in the weather and change the house accordingly. During the day keep the hens hustling from daylight till dark and the cold will have no effect on the egg supply.

Let the morning feed be very light, only one-third of a full meal, then ... will not be d... to keep them busy.

Oats are a good food for hens, for a change, but they should be boiled before feeding. A neighbor of mine who keeps a good many hens was favored with a surprise party this fall, the party being held in a grove, in the form of a picnic. The visiting friends helped to make their call pleasant by bringing a nice present. While the friends stayed, the hens grew hungry, and in the haste of the moment, they were given a liberal feed of oats, as it was just after thrashing. After the visitors had gone an account of stock was taken and it was found that there was an increase in resources to the amount of a new sewing machine, minus the value of about 75 hens, the number found dead. The oats had so swollen in the crop of the fowls that the crop was actually broken open by the pressure.—Rural New Yorker.
